Andrew's decision not to combine town offices

It was the level of services demanded by both jobs that convinced Donald Andrew that the combined position of Town Accountant and Executive Secretary would not succeed.

Two weeks ago, he talked individually with selectmen and told them of his decision. Although originally enthusiastic about the venture, Andrew began to sense that too many demands on one position left other responsibilities untouched.

"If I had to do it all over again, I would," he said this week. "It was worth the try and it was a unique opportunity. It was good for the town to give it (the combined position) a try, and it was good for me, too."

Selectmen decided last week to heed Andrew's advice, and they abolished plans to permanently combine the two municipal posts. Instead, selectmen have asked Andrew to remain as the town's executive secretary, while they begin the search for a new accountant.

Andrew agreed to remain executive secretary, pending a contract settlement. He is currently negotiating a new contract with selectmen. In the dual position, Andrew was receiving $38,000 a year, with an expected increase of $2000 once the combined post was formally approved by the town.

"I said right from the beginning that I'd be the first to know if this was working," Andrew said. "And I was the first to say so. What it came down to, is that in many towns this type of position can work. But Cohasset places high demands on both positions - they demand a level of service that Cohasset is accustomed to receiving. And that can't be provided by one person."

Selectman Diane Sullivan was highly supportive of the combination position. Once selectmen interviewed Andrew for the accountant's post in May, Sullivan and Selectman Cliff Mitman recognized his abilities in both areas.

Sullivan said she is "disappointed" that the two positions will not be combined because of the potential salary savings to the town, but she understood Andrew's reluctance to see the dual post created.

"He's a very qualified person, but Don had a lot of catching up to do. It was at the (fiscal) year's end (in June) and he had to start getting the tax rate set, as well as close the books. He had to work especially hard. It would have been good for the town, but it was too much for one person," Sullivan said.

Andrew, 33, had previous experience in a similar combined office in Oaks Bluffs, Martha's Vineyard. But there, he said, there were not as many demands placed on either post. A three-member board of selectmen met once a week from 7 to 8:30 p.m., and there were not as many responsibilities assigned to the municipal accountant.

"It's been apparent for a number of weeks that this wasn't working out, but I didn't acknowledge it until just recently," he added. "It was actually following the setting of the tax rate. A number of things caught up to me.

"One big problem has been the physicial separation of the two offices, and the inability to be two places at once," Andrew continued. "In many towns, they have part time accountants. But the accountant's office in Cohasset provides many services, including the town's data processing."

Andrew, who was offered the dual position last May, arrived in early June. For the past five and a

Discussions on Cohasset Heights

For the first time, town officials and the owners of Cohasset Heights Ltd. sat down together to review the operation of the private landfill.

The Crocker Lane business has been the center of controversy and litigation as town boards seek to regulate the operation. The Water Commission recently sought legal assistance in an effort to shut down the landfill.

The Board of Health sponsored the meeting Tuesday night between the owners, their attorneys and engineer, and interested town officials. What concluded was an understanding that more meetings and subsequent communication will circumvent events which have lead to costly legal manuevers and litigation.

There was discussion about the Oct. 24 event in which a Browning, Ferris Inc. truck was stopped from entering Cohasset Heights. Within the truck were small, half-gallon containers holding two chemicals, hydrochloric acid, used by a South Shore auto body shop, and a "generic Drano" picked up at a plumbing supply warehouse. These are chemicals not allowed under state law for disposal within a non hazardous materials landfill.

That incident underscored action initiated in August by the Water Commission to shut down the operation. And despite the dialogue provided by both sides Tuesday night, Water Commission Chairman Peter Pratt insisted that action remains the intent of the board.

Selectmen nix beer at Bildner's

By Linda Dagley
Mariner Correspondent

The Board of Selectmen voted 3-2 against granting a beer and wine license to J. Bildner's & Son, a gourmet food store opening in Cushing Plaza.

"I don't feel the need for another liquor license up there," said Selectman Clifford Mitman who voted against the license.

"We will not be featuring beer and wine," explained James Bildner, President of J. Bildner & Son. "We are offering it as an adjunct to our services.

"What we will sell are high quality wines and malt liquors in line with the food we sell. It is only for the convenience of our customers."

Atty. Roberta Sawyer, representing Bildner's, told the board that of 7,000 square feet of selling space, only 100 feet would be beer and wine.

Bildner gave a slide presentation showing the kinds of food the store would feature.

"We have a very unique brand of merchandising. We are responsive to our customers," Bildner said.

Selectman chairman Frank England then opened the meeting up to questions.

Mitman wanted to know why they waited so long to apply for a license.

Bildner's vice president, David Tierney, said they had no ulterior motive. "We had so many other things to worry about," he said.

Rick Peters, co-owner of Sea & Cheese, a fish and cheese shop, questioned the number of licenses a town the size of Cohasset was allowed to issue.

"There is no limit on beer and wine licenses," said Selectman Rocco Laugelle, "only on liquor licenses."

Cynthia Peters, also a co-owner of Sea & Cheese, asked if they would be selling cheese and wine baskets. "That is one of our principle products," she said. George Peters, another co-owner of Sea & Cheese, said he was opposed to the approval of a liquor license.

"Selling beer and wine is important to us. They say it is not important to them. We are starting to overload the town. It's out of balance. The stores in a plaza should complement each other, not compete with each other," he told selectmen.

Tierney answered, "Our objective is not to cause the Peters any financial problems, but to offer a full service store. It is a smaller part of our store, but it is just as important to us."

Laugelle pointed out that Bildner's agreed not to sell fish in deference to Sea & Cheese.

"Why can't you also go without liquor?" he asked.

"It is important to understand that we have to remain competitive," Bildner said. "We didn't have too much of a choice in that one, but in this we do.

"We hold exhaustive demographic studies which show this issue really relates to our ability to be competitive."

They also emphasized the fact that the alcohol would be sold in a very controlled environment.

"There will be a separate register and there will be no youngsters hanging around trying to pick up a six-pack," he added.

England said there was no question about the fitness of the applicant but that they also had to consider the residents.

Laugelle made a motion to deny the license, saying there were too many licenses in town already.

Diane Sullivan asked if they could take a poll of Cohasset residents present to find their feelings. England refused, saying it was their decision.

Sullivan and England voted against denying the licenses.

Fire chief appointment

Selectmen are expected to name a fire chief at their meeting next Monday, Nov. 18.

The board members interviewed the five final candidates in two separate sessions last week. After they review all the documents compiled by the Fire Chief Search Committee, selectmen will be ready to make their final decision.

Fire Chief Martin Dooley's contract expires Dec. 31. Selectmen would like to have a new chief in the department by mid-December so there will be an adequate transitional period.

Firefighter ordered returned

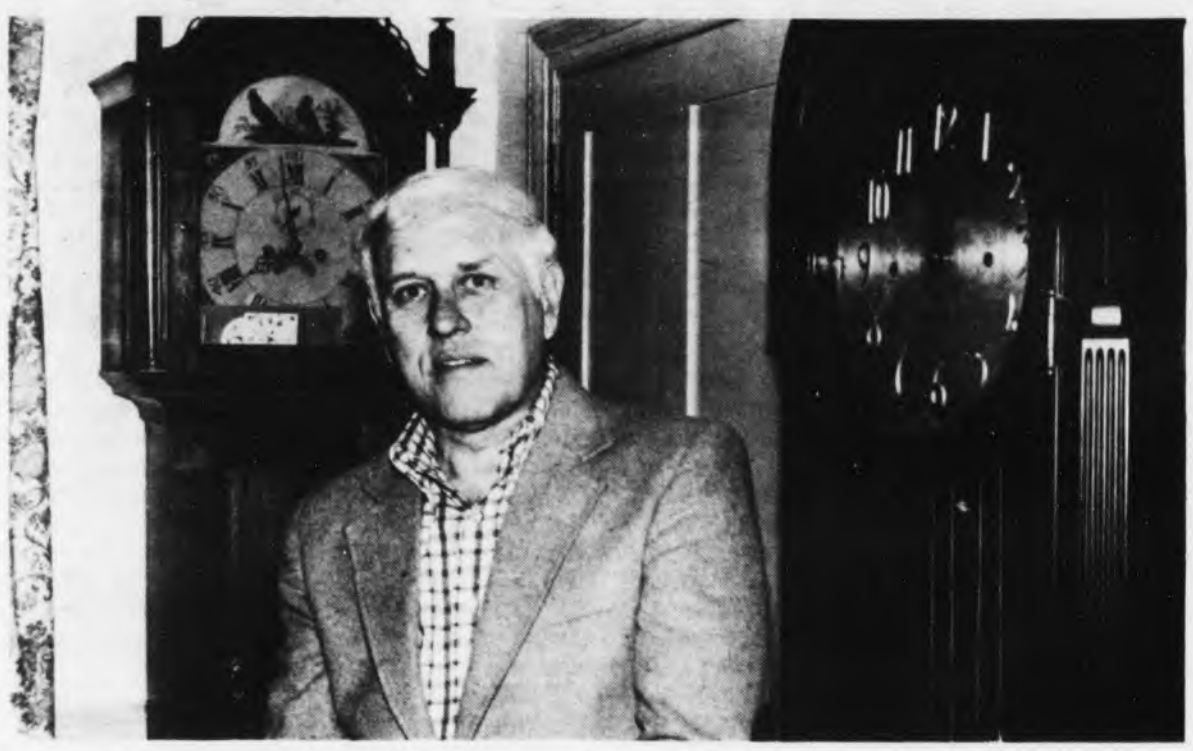
Last week, selectmen requested that Fire Chief Martin Dooley follow the terms of the union contract and order Firefighter Richard Conley to return to light duty service.

Conley applied for a disability pension which would amount to 72 percent of his income. A physician selected by the board examined the injured firefighter and determined that although Conley suffers from a partial diability, he is able to return to work as an office worker.

Although Conley protested the decision, selectmen said last week that Chief Dooley should abide by the union contract and the physician's report, and order the firefighter back to service.

Watershed public hearing

The planning board is sponsoring a public hearing Nov. 20 at 8 p.m. at the Town Hall to review the proposed watershed protection district.



The planning board is again sponsoring an article to formally adopt a watershed district in town, and to add a building moratorium to that designated land. The moratorium will require a change to the town's zoning bylaw.

The article was approved by voters at the June Special Town Meeting, but was later rejected by the state Attorney General's office because the watershed had not been filed with the Town Clerk's office within the statutory time limit.

A copy of the watershed district map is available for public review at the Town Clerk's office at the Town Hall.

Costs of Gloria

Supt. Eugene Crowell has submitted the costs of establishing an evacuation center during Hurricane Gloria. The center, located within the high school, cost about $1500 in pre-storm preparations and staff time at the school during the storm.

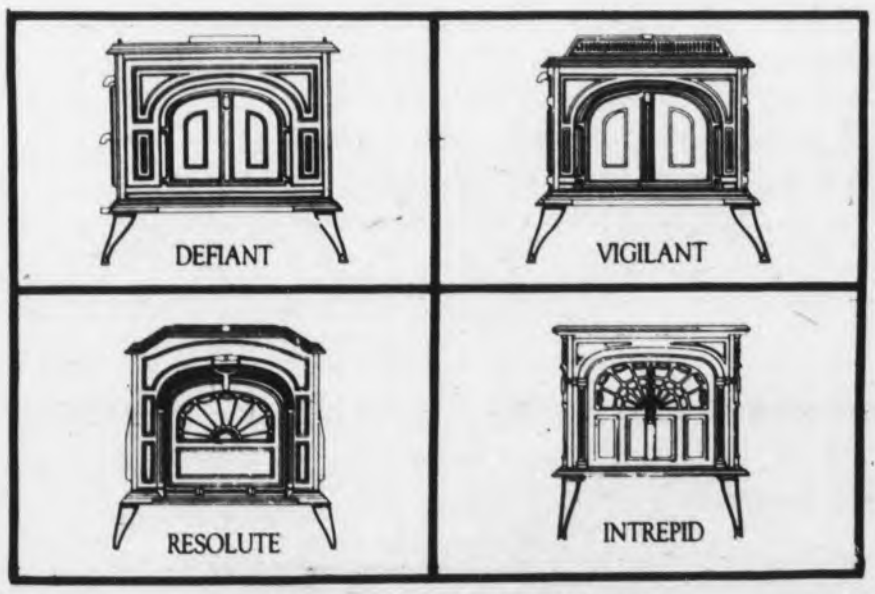
This photo didn't quite catch up with our story published last week on Veteran's Agent Noel Ripley. Well, here he is in black and white! (Paula Brackett)

According to Supt. Crowell, food expenses totaled $43.50; personnel, $89.01; custodial overtime,- $1,313.27; and emergency generator supplies cost $103.70 for a total cost of $1,549.48.

Legislative requests

Rep. Mary Jeanette Murray has requested that the state Department of Environmental Quality Engineering (DEQE) update her on any reports regarding the Cohasset Heights landfill.

According to the Cohasset state representative, "nothing has come across my desk from DEQE regarding the state's previous nor present reports regarding this landfill," she stated. "Please send someone who is supposedly working on this issue to see me at my State House office as quickly as possible."



Rep. Murray noted that the town's water reservoir is subject to pollution from the adjacent landfill, and "if the leachate which has been occurring for a long time does not cease, there will be no water for Cohasset."

In other business, Rep. Murray has also requested that Cohasset receive a grant under the Clean Lakes Act to clear Little Harbor of its continual algae problem.

Noting that algae has been a problem in the area for many years, Rep. Murray said it has become increasingly worse in the last ten years. "The grant is needed," she wrote to Thomas McMahon of the Division of Water Pollution Control, "to clean the algae from Straits Pond which is bordered by Cohasset, Hingham and Hull."

The state representative noted that the algae emits a terrible odor in the v i cinity, and there is an increased midge problem in the area. "I urge you to favorably consider the request for a grant for the purpose of clearing the problems at Straits Pond," she concluded.

Decision on Stop & Shop due Nov. 20

By Linda Dagley
Mariner Correspondent

After meeting last week with Stop & Shop representatives and reviewing landscape and elevation plans, the planning board will make a decision on the Super Stop & Shop Nov. 20.

After Stop & Shop agreed to make a few adjustments to their plans, including some redesigning on the southeast elevation and relocating parking spaces, the board decided it had enough information to reach a decision.

Stop & Shop designer Ralph Caputo presented elevation plans for the store which featured brick and gray clapboard siding with asphalt shingles. The design was a direct result of meetings with the design review committee in an effort to create something in tune with the personality of the town, Caputo said.

John McWeeny, vice president of Stop & Shop, said the design was far from the protypical store. The design review committee was pleased with Stop & Shop's cooperation and only asked for modifications on the design of the loading dock.

Planning Board Chairman Christine Bassett expressed concern that the store would bring in more customers from outside Cohasset.

McWeeny assured the board that the store was being built for the convenience of its Cohasset customers.

"Marketing research shows that customers would like to do their shopping in one place," McWeeny said.

When asked whether the store would be open 24 hours, McWeeny replied that they catered to the customer, but that they did anticipate being open for 24 hours.

"All super stores are open 24 hours, but we will be open when the people in Cohasset want," he added.

McWeeny said it would not affect noise levels because no deliveries would take place at night.

The board also postponed a decision on the development because of concern about the effects blasting would have on the rock ledge.

With no hydrogeological tests to consider, the board gave the applicants time to develop more concrete evidence that blasting will not endanger the rock ledge. The condition of the rock ledge in that area is considered fragile. The town engineer, John Modzelewski, approved the construction of drainage and sewage systems with certain requirements.

After testimonies and complaints from neighbors, the board decided that until details of the blasting could be obtained, the decision would be postponed.

"Insurance from blasters covers pictures falling off the wall, but it does not cover the loss of someone's wetland," said Basset, in reference to a letter from Cornelius Sullivan who was concerned that her wetland would be drained.

Modzelewski assured the board that the protection of wetlands on personal property was covered by the same rights as protection against flooding.

Bassett said she needed a lot of answers from a hydrogeological study before she could ask for a vote on the plan.

Combined position was not effective

half months, he has analyzed the post and its effectiveness. It was only during the last few weeks that he personally decided it was not succeeding, and informed selectmen in time for the Dec. 9 Special Town Meeting.

Voters were expected at that time to confirm the last step and authorize the combination of the two offices. In June, voters decided to eliminate the accountant's job from Civil Service. That vote was approved by the state Attorney General's office. The position will remain out of Civil Service, Andrew explained, with selectmen expected to immediately begin the process of advertising and interviewing a new town accountant.

Despite his decision against the dual post, Andrew disagrees with the Town Government Structure Committee's assessment that the two positions could lead to a conflict between the offices.

"There's no conflict," he said. "In fact, I think during the past five months, selectmen have been more attuned to what is happening in both offices. How many selectmen do you know who are able to review the financial records of the town? By having me in both offices, I was able to examine the records and go over them with the selectmen."

Although the two positions will now remain separate, Andrew said his inherent interest in finances will keep him involved in the financial status of the town.

When Andrew talked with each selectman individually, they responded by saying, "well, you're the one who should know," Andrew recalled. Selectman Mary Jane McArthur asked Andrew where he would like to remain, and he answered "the executive secretary's office."

He explained, "Although I was first interviewed for the accountant's job, I have a feeling I would rather stay here. I echoed that sentiment four more times when I called the other selectmen. I wanted to talk with each of them individually and personally. And I didn't want them to hear about my decision from anyone else."

Andrew, a resident of Brookline where he served as Assistant Town Accountant, will be looking for a residence in this v i cinity in the near future. He has worked in Cohasset's Town Hall for almost six months and assessed the past half-year as "hectic."

He said, "If I was unhappy here, I wouldn't have said I'd continue as executive secretary. It's been hectic, but for the most part, the town has excellent people working for it, and I like where I'm working. It's fast paced. If you're involved in government and interested in it, it's an enjoyable job. Like any other job, it has its drawbacks. But I must say I really enjoy it.

"There's something involved during this trial period the past few months," Andrew continued. "I really wanted it to succeed. But the circumstances in Cohasset are such that it didn't succeed. It's good that people demand that level of service for a better government, but it can't succeed with one person serving both offices. If I had to do it all over again, I would. It was worth the try."

Murray helps create issues forum

A group of legislators, including state Rep. Mary Jeanette Murray, have created a study forum to consider national and international issues in a non-partisan environment.

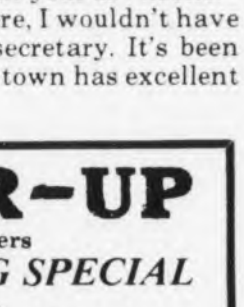
"The Seneca Group," as the group has been called, is named after Roman orator, philosopher and statesman Lucius Annaeus Seneca.

"The Seneca Group" is intended to provide an opportunity for the exercise of intellectual inquiry, debate and discussions on issues well beyond scope of matters normally considered by the General Court,' Mary Jeanette said.

Membership in the Seneca Group is open to all, including elected officials, staff, and members of the general public. Meetings will be held periodically throughout the year.

The first meeting of the Seneca Group recently was held at the Union Club, Park Street, Boston.

The featured speaker at the inaugural meeting was Donald Rumsfeld, former White House Chief of Staff (1974), former Secretary of Defense (1975-1977) and former Congressman from Illinois (1926-1968).



Rumsfeld, who also served as U.S. Ambassador to the North Atlantic Treaty Organization in Belgium, is presently Chairman of the Board of Directors and Chief Executive Officer of G.D. Searle & Company, a developer, manufacturer and marketer of ethical and consumer pharmaceuticals throughout the world.

"The only requirement to join and attend the Seneca Group is a lively intellectual curiosity about the world beyond the borders of Massachusetts," Rep. Murray said.

"Additional information on Seneca Group membership and guest speaker programs is available by calling Mrs. Murray at 722-2400.

Chiropractic for HEALTH

by Dr. Kevin M. Neill, Chiropractic Physician

BACK AT WORK

Those who spend an inordinate amount of time sitting while at their jobs should look at chiropractic treatment as a form of health insurance. For instance, it is estimated that people who spend at least half their job time driving a motor vehicle are three times more likely to suffer a herniated disc than the average worker. In general, sedentary occupations are not good for the back. Sitting puts great pressure on the discs between vertebrae. Driving a vehicle is even worse. It involves periods of prolonged sitting without changing position while the spine is constantly being jarred by vibrations. If your job entails much sitting, you probably already know thta your back could use some help. Try chiropractic.

Twenty-nine articles in warrant

The final version of the December 9 Special Town Meeting warrant has been compiled. It will contain 29 articles.

Among the articles to be considered in the meeting will be a request to accept a collective bargaining agreement between the town and the police association. That agreement calls for selectmen to petition the state legislature to authorize the agreement retroactive to July 1, 1984 and permit a five percent salary increase to June 30, 1985.

The police union does not support this wage increase, and has filed an unfair labor practice complaint against the town in attempt to block it. One hearing has already been held by the Joint Labor Management Committee regarding the complaint issued by the union.

The warrant also includes an article requesting funds to be added to the fiscal 1986 appropriations for municipal insurance. The advisory committee has recommended that $200,000 be added to the account, in anticipation of an expected substantial increase in the insurance premiums after Jan. 1. The insurance advisory committee has said the large increase should be anticipated in a "worse case scenario."

The school committee has recommended that the town accept the provisions of Chapter 188 and increase all teacher's salaries to at least $18,000. This was one of the provisions written into the state's new Education Reform Act.

The legislation does not mandate the salary increase, but is strongly endorsing its implementation. It would mean that all teachers coming into the Cohasset school system would receive a minimal annual salary of $18,000.

This was an attempt by legislators to attract qualified teachers into the state's public school system by increasing the economic benefits.

A second article submitted by the school committee requests appropriation of a professional development grant payable Feb. 15 and Aug. 15 to increase teacher compensation under the provisions of Chapter 188. These teacher grants will be awarded several times each year to those instructors who provide additional quality to the system. The Horace Mann Grants are part of the requirements under the new state education legislation.

The sewer commission has submitted an article requesting the town establish a sewer service district within the town. According to the commission, establishment of a district would help the town acquire federal funding for its alternative wastewater disposal plan by qualifying as a small community under the Federal Clean Water Act. The district has been developed by Ward Engineering.

The commission has also requested $30,000 to pay for legal services and related expenses incurred and to be incurred during fiscal 1986 by the commission's special counsel. The additional legal services has been required "arising out of the Town's wastewater management problems and pursuit of alternative solutions." The commission noted that payment of legal services will be subject to the joint approval of selectmen and the sewer commission.

The planning board is sponsoring an article creating a watershed protection district and a construction moratorium within that delineated district.

The watershed district and its construction moratorium were previously approved at the June Special Town Meeting. But a procedural mistake in submitting the proposed map and zoning bylaw change to the Town Clerk's office within the statutory time, resulted in the article's rejection by the Attorney General's office.

The proposed floodplain and watershed map are currently at the Town Clerk's office, along with the proposed watershed building moratorium. The district has been delineated by engineers from Camp, Dresser and McKee.

Under the proposed zoning bylaw, the moratorium would apply to all new construction within the watershed land and would prohibit topographical alterations to existing property. There will be statutory relief from the provisions of the zoning bylaw through the town's zoning board of appeals.

Article 24 is sponsored by the school committee and requests $10,000 to complete renovations to the high school auditorium. Although some repairs were initiated this summer by school custodians, work has not been completed and the staff has been assigned to other projects.

Selectmen are sponsoring an article which will regulate the operating hours of businesses within the town. Several residents from Fair Oaks Lane, concerned with the possibility of a 24-hour supermarket to be located near their neighborhood, requested the article be included in the warrant. They told selectmen the article should pertain to all existing and future businesses. The bylaw would allow selectmen to prohibit round-the-clock operations and deliveries to the town's retail businesses, many of which are located within or adjacent to residential neighborhoods

Liquor license hike

By Linda Dagley
Mariner Correspondent

At a meeting Tuesday night, the board of selectmen decided against increasing annual liquor license fees, but hiked the one-day fee from $10 to $25.

Selectman Rocco Laugelle suggested that different rates be applied to different organizations.

"The American Legion is a non-profit organization," he said, "I do not think it should be charged the same rate, as say, the golf club. Where else can a working man stop by for a beer at a reasonable price?"

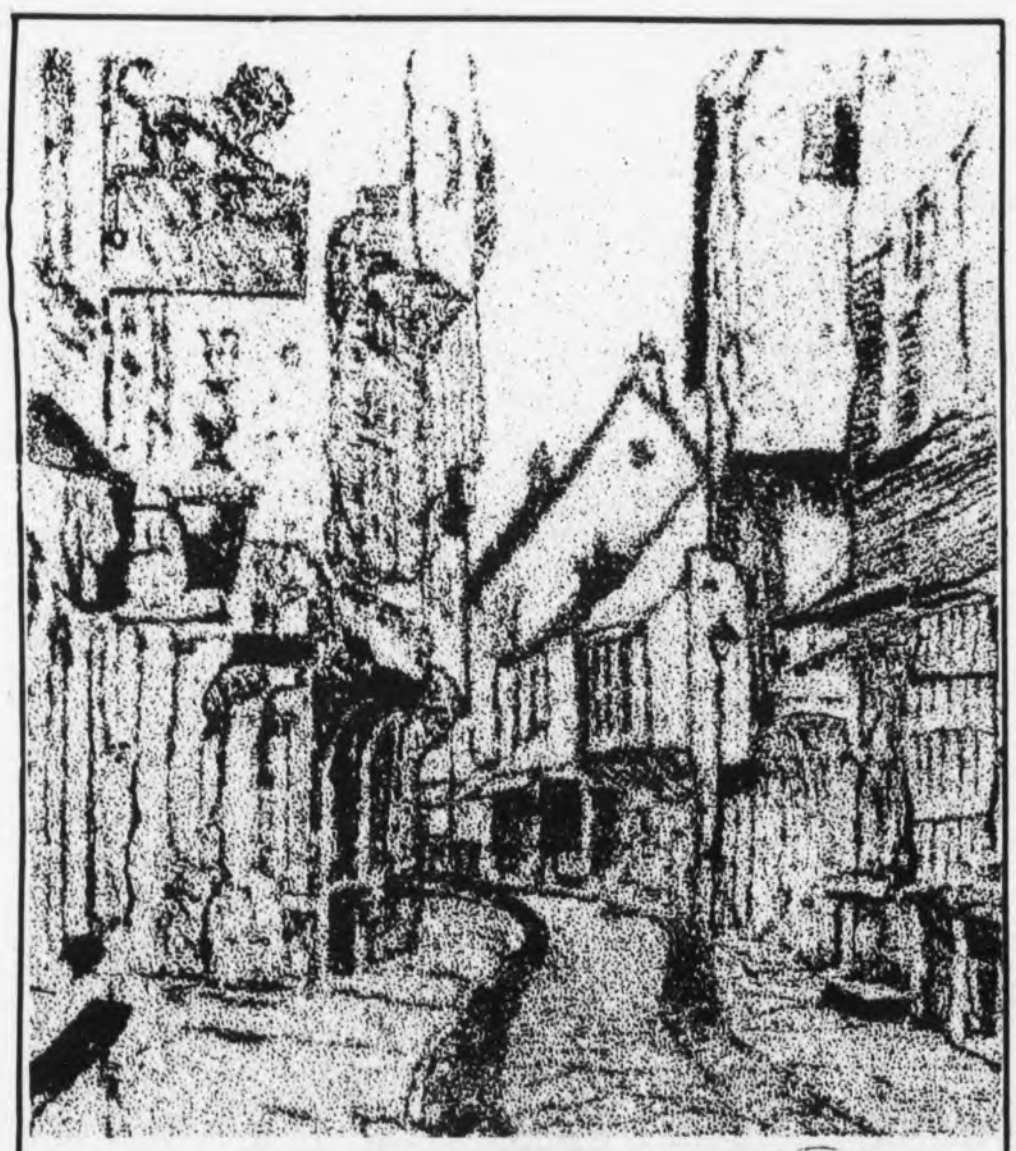
Laguelle moved that the fee for the George F. Meely Post be reduced from $650 to $400.

The motion was defeated 1-4. Chairman Frank England said although he was a member of the Post, right now the town needed all the money it could get.

Two subsequent motions by Diane Sullivan were not seconded. The first was to raise the fees by 10 percent. The second was to raise the fees five percent.

A motion to raise only the one-day fees was passed, 5-0.

The board decided to award Michael Hevey $135.07 for the loss of two quarts of oil and 50 lobsters after Harbormaster Harry Ritter moved his boat.



Hevey explained that after Ritter moved his boat, it tipped over, spilling the oil. The oil killed 38 of the lobsters he had stored near his boat, and damaged the rest.

Harbormaster Ritter confirmed the story saying that while he was trying to adjust a mooring he lost the tide and set the mooring where he thought it

To this teacher, education is life

By Jane Lane
Mariner Staff

When asked if she would like to talk about her year's sabbatical at Harvard, longtime Cohasset teacher Christine Collins responded eagerly to the Mariner's inquiry.

"Oh, yes," she quickly answered. "I'd love to let everyone know just what I am doing this year. I'd like to have that opportunity to publicly thank them for allowing me to have this year at Harvard."

It was difficult in an hour or two to completely comprehend all that Collins is absorbing in her first semester at the prestigious college. What is immediately obvious, however, is her enthusiasm and complete enjoyment of what education is giving her, and her intent to share that knowledge with others.

For children throughout this community, Mrs. Collins has been a dedicated kindergarten and first grade teacher. She is quiet, thoughtful, an attentive listener, and a precisionist with words.

But many of her former students may not be aware of her desire to not only affect the education and lives of her students, but to enrich the schools, curriculum and staff members of the entire system.

She misses the familiar Osgood classroom and her "children." But Collins intends, with her advanced degrees and considerable studies in hand, to become a most effective administrator. It's not that she wants to leave her classroom and students behind. But Collins wants to guide many more students through a system enriched with challenges and a vitality she has helped stimulate.

"Cohasset has a wonderful school system," she said this week at her Pleasant Street home. "And I would love to one day work towards maintaining that quality, and enriching it."

It wasn't that long ago, in 1970, that Collins completed her bachelor's degree. With son Shannon in kindergarten, she completed her degree requirements at the University of Massachusetts in Boston. She was hired the following year as a kindergarten instructor at the Osgood School.

Seven years later, she was granted a year's paid sabbatical. During that time, she received a master's degree in administration with an emphasis on early childhood education. Seven years after that, she requested her second sabbatical leave and again it was approved.

She was accepted into Harvard's CAS program, in which she is working toward a Certificate of Advanced Studies in school administration with an emphasis in early adolescent education.

As she spoke from her elegant home, she pointed to the formal dining room table. It has been occupied since September with books and papers and pencils.

"My husband and I decided when I was accepted into Harvard that I wouldn't be doing much entertaining this year. The dining room is where I work and study," she giggled.

Collins explained her continued struggle to advance her education and ultimately her career. "I truly believe that education is a lifelong process," she said. "It doesn't end when you graduate from high school or college. I don't believe education should replace work, and that isn't the case for me. But going back to school is like an oasis. It refreshes you, and keeps you updated in your knowledge. There's an explosion of knowledge going on, and this helps keep you aware of what is happening."

As Collins explained, "my own life reflects the attitude that education is on-going. I'll probably still be going to school when I'm a hundred and six. I enjoy it that much."

In fact, she has yet to decide whether to continue her education part time after her sabbatical concludes in June. She will have the option at that time of pursuing a doctoral degree from Harvard on a part time basis while continuing to teach in Cohasset.

"At this point, I'm not sure I'll have the energy to continue," she laughed. "But I don't have to make any decision for a while."

The past three months have provided Collins with rich experiences. The average age of the Harvard Graduate School of Education student is 37, she said, and they come from 179 countries and throughout the United States. Thus it is not the classroom alone that provides the entire learning process."

"Just think about how wonderful it is to have lunch with a classmate from South Africa or Germany. It's different from anything else I have ever done," she said.

Aside from the social benefits, Collins is attending classes and listening to instructors she has longed to meet. One of the classes is taught by Carol Gilligan, author of "In a Different Voice." Described by her respectful student, Gilligan is not feminist, but "almost spiritual" in her theory that females experience, learn and think about things in a ☐Amy Duncombe of Cohasset is a member of the Williams College women's varsity soccer team. The squad, which competes in NIAC (Northeast Intercollegiate Athletic Conference) and the NCAA's Division III, finished its season with a 4-7-2 record on Oct. 27.

Amy, a freshman defense player, earned a varisty letter for her contributions to the 1985 squad. "Amy is a tough player and a strong worker. I anticipate that she will be quite valuable to the team in the next three years," Coach Lisa Melendy said.

Amy is a 1985 graduate of Cohasset High School, where in addition to being a member of the National Honor Society, she captained the varsity soccer team. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John S. Duncombe of Sheldon Road.

☐Everyone was so proud of the soccer team and their grand efforts in the state tournament — The boys did an outstanding job and are to be commended for their efforts. Be sure to say something to a team member when you see him.

☐As this is being written, the girls field hockey team is still "alive" in the States, and everyone is singing their praises, too. . .with good reason. Boy, did they have to do a lot of hustling to get where they are now, played really well! Hate to jinx you girls, so I'll just say that everyone wishes you all the luck as this goes to press. Win, lose or draw, you all played great field hockey and are to be commended.

☐Anyone who went into the Charles a few weeks ago to see the regatta (all of the different crew boats) may have seen a Cohasset surprise. Julie Hoogeveen was on one of the first boats, a new undertaking for Julie this year. Julie sure is busy, doing that as well as being on the NCAA cross country team and traveling across New England to compete!

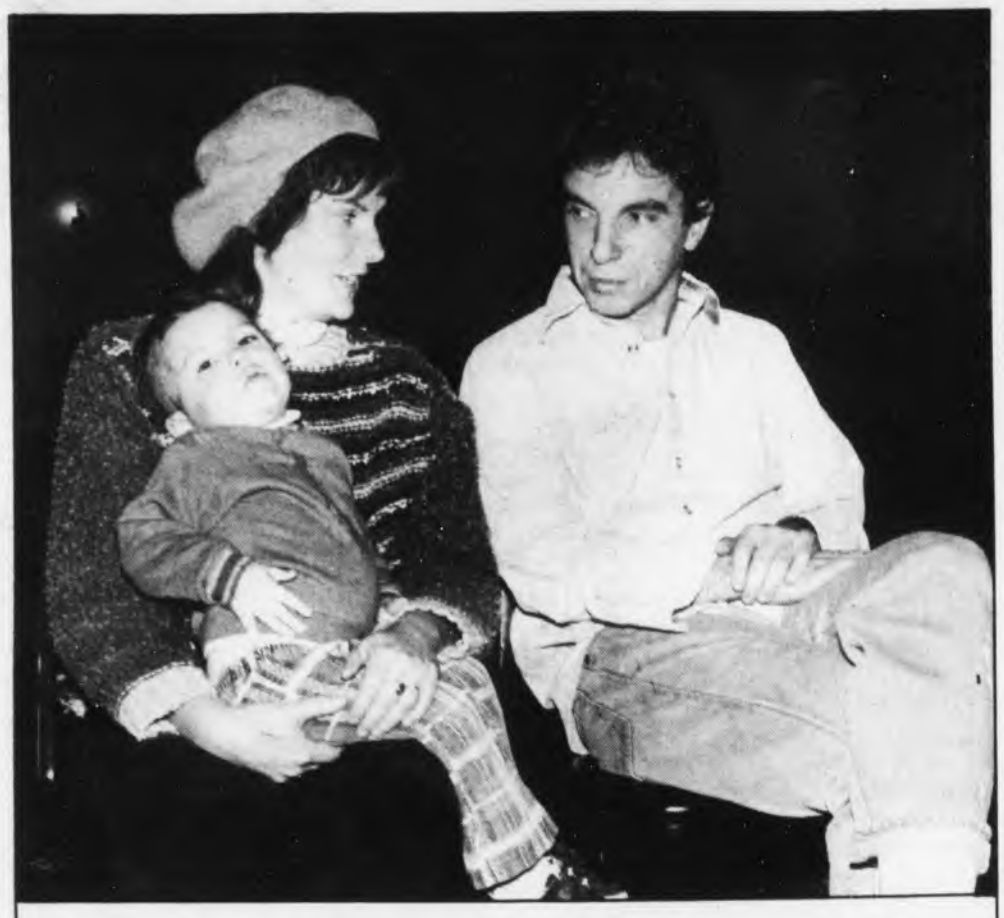
☐Best of luck to Tom Lucas in his retirement. Cannot imagine the art room without Mr. Lucas poking around in it somewhere!

☐The PSO is in the midst of organizing a "Super Sports Market," to take place on Thanksgiving weekend. Among all of the festivities they are going to hold an auction/sale of sports equipment, and they would like each college student to bring home a sweatshirt to auction or sell during this sport auction. Knowing the price on these sweatshirts, if you can't get Mom or Dad to spring for a sweatshirt, perhaps a T-shirt will do just as well. In any case students, hear the call and do your best to come home for Thanksgiving with an item for the PSO. Remember the days when they helped to support you when you were a student at CHS!



☐Hear that the Rotary Club's pancake breakfast was a grand success. Good work to all of the cooks, and all of the super salesmen!

☐Did you get your tax bill? Did you pay your tax bill? Don't forget!

☐Speaking of forget, have you been to visit the new shop on Elm Street, "Forget Me Nots"? They have so many nifty things, including handmade baby sweaters (with matching booties and bonnets), plants, antique classic lithographs, pressed flower pictures, etc. Plan on stopping in, you are sure to find so many things to love you'll find it hard to make a selection.

☐Everyone is waiting for Bildner's to open. Sure will be exciting.

☐The Community Garden Club of Cohasset is having a house tour again this year. To be held on Dec. 12, the theme for this year is the "Joy of Christmas" and there will be six homes on the tour. For more information call Rita Strong at 383-0939. (The price of the tickets are $10 per person.)

Waiting anxiously for the starting performance of Death of a Salesman are Sally Rossi Langer and daughter, Erica, and actor Carl Slotnick. (Paula Brackett)

☐And speaking of Christmas (can you believe it's time to do so?), the plans are underway for White Christmas in Cohasset. Remember what a grand job the Cohasset Chamber of Commerce did last year? It's sure to be a repeat performance, so be sure to get in the Christmas spirit by finding out what you can do to help make it a success on December 8.

☐The reviews are out and the production of "Flowers for Algernon" was a smash hit, judged, by all that attended, to be "the best production by the Drama Workshop yet." Hats off to the cast for a top-notch performance. Perhaps it will be produced again for those who may have missed it and really want to go. (Check with director Mr. Emmons!)

☐That's the news from here for the week. Keep your news coming to me, either by phone or mail, please.

The best choice

Last week, selectmen decided to abolish their plans to combine the office of executive secretary and town accountant. We're in support of that choice, and are pleased it was made in an open, forthright manner.

Selectmen were in a tough situation last spring. After months of searching, interviewing and negotiating, they were still without an executive secretary. Every time they came close to signing a contract, something else (usually money) got in the way, and the candidate would seek employment elsewhere.

It's a situation many private and public businesses face each time they must fill a vacant position. But it's difficult for a town such as Cohasset to function without daily administrative guidance. Selectmen were in a quandry, and they tried desperately to fill that gap.

In the meantime, the town accountant tendered his resignation. Now, the town was forced to fill two of the most important posts in the municipal administration. Not an enviable task to complete - and it was imperative to complete it quickly.

As selectman stated when they interviewed Donald Andrew for the accountant's job, they recognized someone who was suited to both positions. He had filled the same post in Oak Bluffs and was as comfortable balancing the municipal checkbook as issuing daily directives from the selectmen's office.

It was an opportunity staring them right in the face. Here was a person suited to filling not one, but both of the town's immediate needs. Here was a person who could oversee both municipal departments, at a salary lower than the two separate annual incomes.

Don agreed with the board members, and accepted the positions with a variety of conditions dangling from his contract. Among those conditions was a request to the town to eliminate the accountant's position from Civil Service. Town Meeting agreed to that request in June.

The state Attorney General then reviewed the request and approved the town's decision. The next request was scheduled for the December Special Town Meeting. There, voters were to vote on whether to combine the two jobs. Once that was approved, the decision made by selectmen in May would have been finalized.

But Andrew interjected recently and explained that the two jobs were too much for one person. As the Town Government Structure Committee voted recently, the combined position was not an effective method to handle the town's needs. The committee did not cast a vote against Andrew's abilities. The membership simply determined there were too many negatives that overshadowed selectmen's intent to save the town some money.

Cohasset may not be the biggest town, but it's busy. And trying to effectively operate the two offices was more than one person should could do.

Andrew agreed the hours he recently worked to help get the tax rate set and bills mailed, has placed an unfair burden upon his tasks as executive secretary. He told selectmen honestly and openly that it was not working as well as he planned. Andrew saw no merit in accomplishing one task in favor of another, of leaving one item unfinished because another required too much attention.

With Andrew's testimony as their basis, selectmen decided to set aside their original plans. The request to the Special Town Meeting will be eliminated and Andrew will remain the town's executive secretary.

We applaud Andrew for his honest analysis, and wish selectmen luck in finding the town a new accountant.

Nostalgia

A memorable day of dance

By Dorothy Squier
Special to the Mariner

Miss Doris Horslin's School was more like a finishing school than just a dancing school. It was in a large gray house where my teacher lived with her mother and sister.

They had a roomer who they treated as one of the family, a successful estate lawyer, a middle-aged bachelor, whom we called Daddy Reddy. The school was an off-shoot of the old Dorothea Dix School for Stage Children, of which Daddy had been the vice president.

Doris was a far cry from the usual teacher and under her tutelage we learned not only ballet but manners, music, elocution and she even taught us how to set a table and make a bed properly. Plus, through Daddy's generosity, we had a man from the Berlitz School come on Saturday afternoons to give French lessons.

We learned many old English Music Hall songs and dances, we put on little plays for places like the Sailors Haven in Charlestown. In fact, you just never knew what you might be asked to do next. Like the time she took me up to Harvard Square and on the subway to Park Street.

"There's nothing to be afraid of," she explained, as the train rolled over the Charles. "You're going to be the Angel of Peace coming from Heaven. Did you learn your lines?"

"Oh, yes, Miss Horslin. I know them by heart." My voice squeaked with excitement. "And I'm not a bit afraid, honest. I don't mind being up high."

I had no idea of the heights I was to reach that day. The Boston Elks needed an angel for their Veterans Day Memorial service. It was to be held at the Tremont Temple at the eleventh hour of the eleventh day of the eleventh month, which was when the Armistice of the First World War was signed. It was now nearing ten o'clock of that morning.

We walked down Tremont Street toward the old Parker House, a cold November wind whipping the streamers of my beaver hat. Dusty papers swirled around our feet as we reached the brownstone building.

At a side door a stage hand led us into a shadowy expanse. Here I was backstage in a real theatre in Boston and stage-struck! Craning my neck, I peered up into the darkness where a forest of wires and ropes hid the rafters. Over a chair on the stage lay a long white robe and a great pair of feathered wings. Beside them on the floor rested a curious contraption in the shape of a corset, cracked and split like a discarded suitcase, with a metal ring embedded in its back.

A brown haired, mustached man was talking to Doris as he uncoiled a length of fine wire and attached it to the ring. He smiled and patted my head.

"Will she be scared?" His voice was anxious.

"Not this one!" Doris laughed. "I've seen her climb trees almost as high.

"Well this wire will hold more'n ten times her weight. She is a tiny one. What's her name?"

"Oh, I'm sorry, this is Dorothy, Mr. Bancroft."

"OK, Dorothy, hold still now while I hitch up all these buckles so you'll be safe." He leaned down and winked at me. He was smiling and he made me think of my Uncle Fred.

Then the corset was strapped around my waist and the costume dropped over my head.

"She'll be safe," he said as he tied on my wings, "but I don't like that old harness."

I was an angel ready to fly and so excited I felt as though I could take off on my own.

"Keep saying your lines to yourself," Doris said. "You'll be lifted up to the top and when the curtain goes up you mustn't make a sound during the performance. And when you come down you just recite your lines and walk off the stage toward me. I'll be in the wings. Be sure to speak out loud. The folks in the back row must hear every word you say. And don't forget to smile!"

The curtain was down now and we sat on chairs and waited while the great hall was filled. At last my mustached friend nodded and I was led to center stage. Then the first curtain call came and suddenly the floor fell away from my feet. Oh, oh, heavenly days! I thought as I rocketed skyward. Up, up I flew swinging and swaying . . . five, ten, twenty feet. And my stomach followed. I felt the wire slack, then snap tight as I dangled there. A sea of red velvet curtain rose slowly and I could see the footlights shining far below. This was real live theatre! I was "hooked."

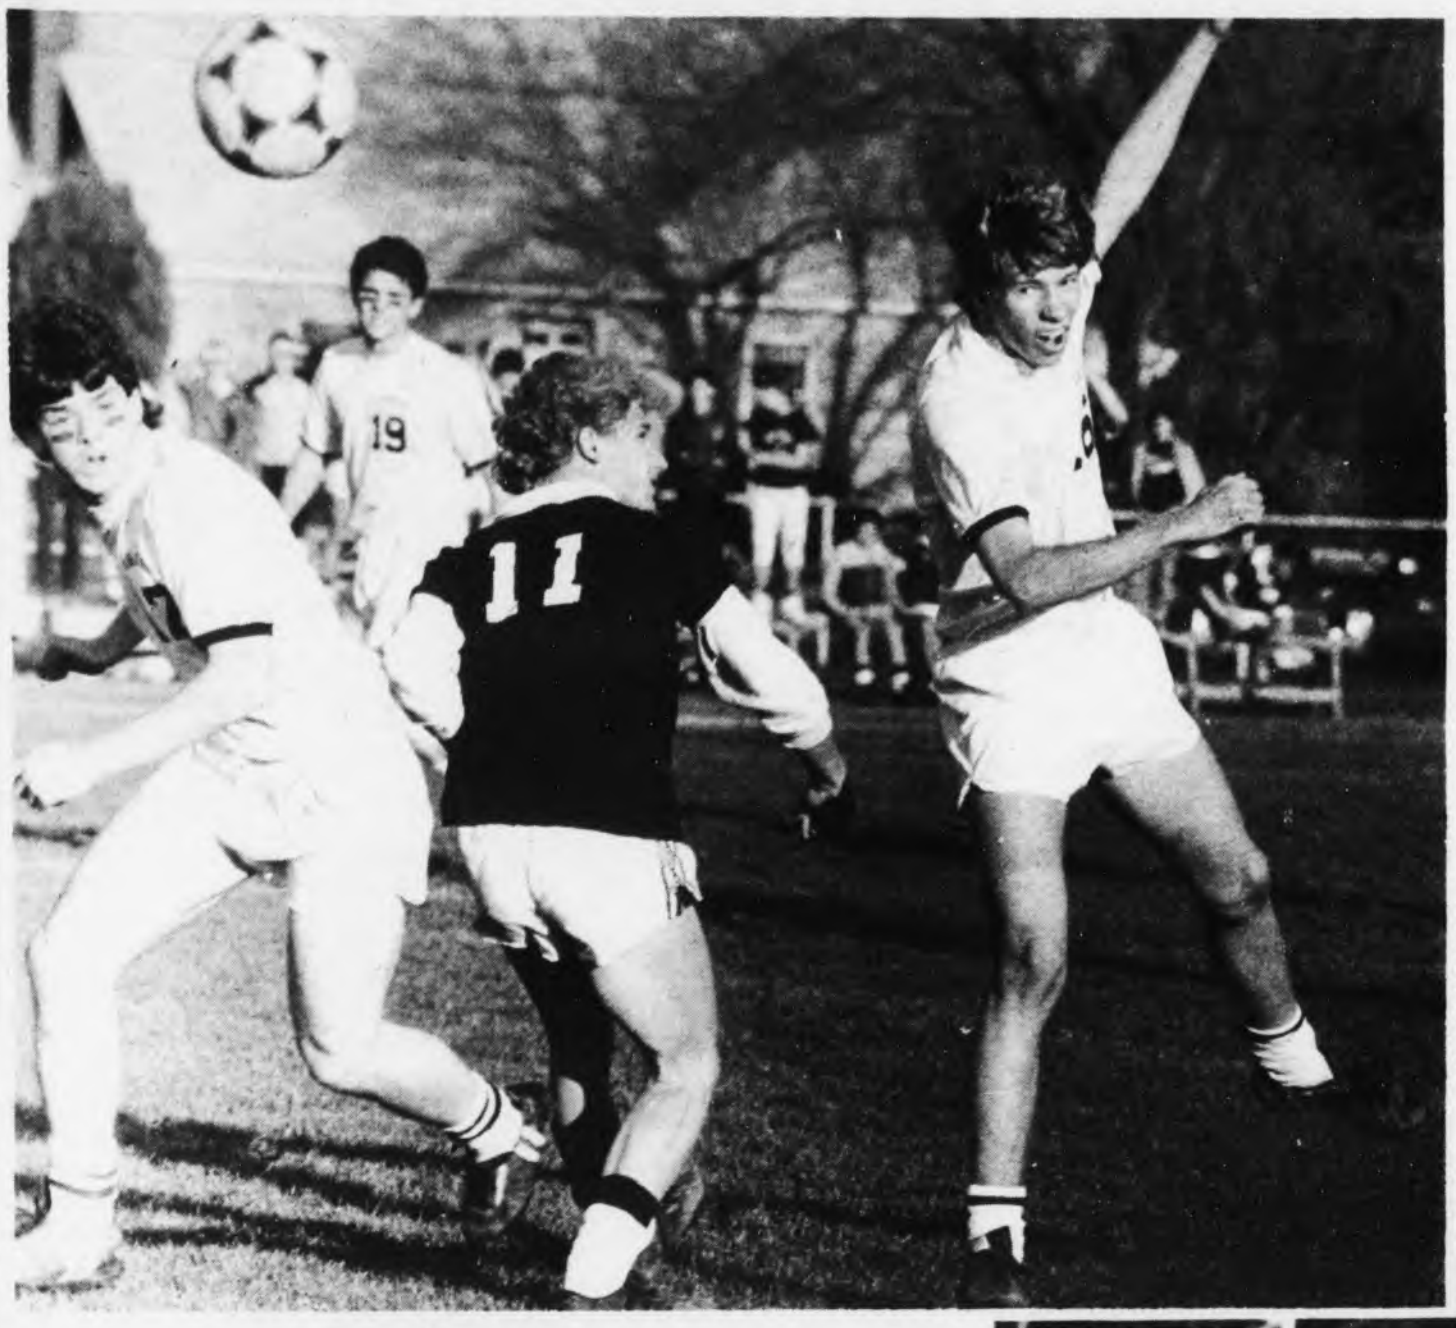
Organ music played softly and voices were speaking about the Armistice and Peace and America. Swaying gently, I was nearly lulled into a doze when suddenly the music swelled to a crashing volume. I could feel the air around me stirring wildly and I started to spin. as I swung toward the curtain I made a grab for a fold of velvet and clung with all my might.

Then I prayed — hard. Please let me down! I want to get down. I heard the sound of creaking, ripping leather. I was cold and scared. At that moment I heard the wire whine. As a bell tolled 11 the descent had begun. I peered down and saw Mr. Mustache pulling on the wire as I floated to earth. The audience was oohing and ah-ing and I remembered to smile.

My grateful toes touched the floor not a minute too soon. Oh, Lord! I had forgotten my lines! A whisper came from the wings and the words tumbled out. The show was over.

Unfastening the wire, Doris said, "I'm very proud of you, dear. You're a brave little girl."

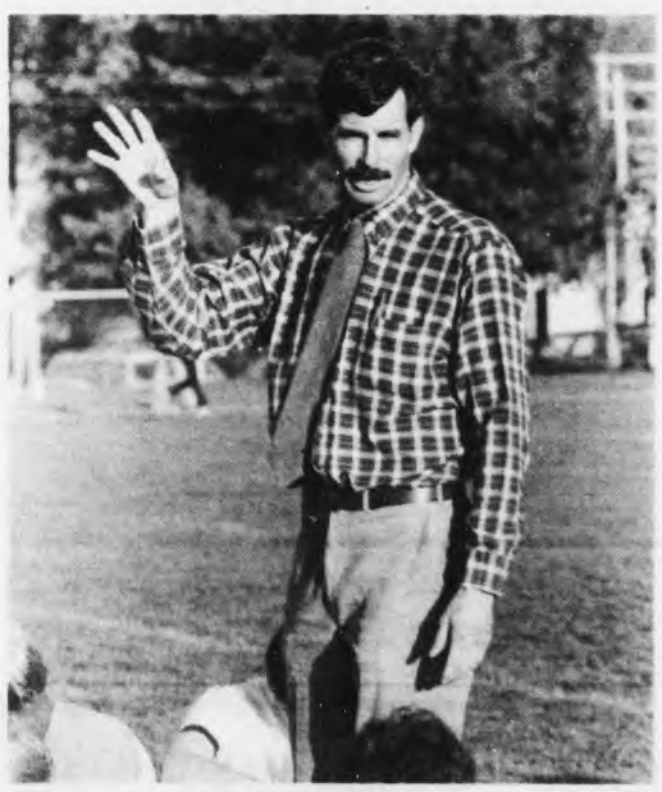
Mr. Bancroft took the corset from her hand.



"This thing is shot." he said. "I guess this performance was its swan song."

He reached for my hand.

"Thanks, kid. You're a real trooper."



He gave me two dollars and a box of chocolates.

A view of our best game (yet!)

It looks like three against one as Cohasset heads toward the goal post. Bob Leonard (far right) gives it his best shot to teammate Todd Trautwein (#12), as Mark Crough (#19) pulls up the rear.

Coach Jon Anderson offers some sage and sound (we're sure!) advice to his team.

Bobby Shultz gives it a blast as he attempts to get the ball downfield for Cohasset.

Bob Leonard (# 16) may be down, but not out as he fights to regain possession against Medway.

Best of luck to field hockey squad in states !

By Lisa Shumaker
Mariner Sports Correspondent

The girls field hockey team is on a roll, and nothing can stop them!

Thursday, after being forced to practice in the gym for two days (don't worry, they put socks on their sticks), the girls opened the tournament with a 2-0 victory over Old Rochester.

Many expected Cohasset to start off slowly, but Maureen Farren proved them wrong by scoring about two minutes into the game off a pass from Cindy Spooner.

The ball bounced back and forth between ends until Maria Cahill fired a shot in, with a mere 30 seconds in the game. Anne O'Leary set up the second goal for Cohasset.

The Skippers' shutout was due larely to the defensive efforts of Jill Shockman, Colby Mantz and Lee Sullivan. Maureen Farren and Cindy Spooner did an excellent job banging away at Old Rochester's net.

Maria Cahill turned in a good effort on both ends of the field.

Friday, the girls went head to head with Case and after two sudden death overtimes and a one-on-one shootout, finally came out on top, 3-2.

The teams played evenly for a while until Case broke the ice and scored with eight minutes left in the first half. However, Cohasset came back tough when three minutes later Maureen Farren took a pass from Cindy Spooner and shot it past a stunned Case defense to tie the game.

During the second half, Cindy Spooner deflected a cross pass from Julie Bowdoin into the net to give Cohasset a 2-1 lead.

It looked like the Skippers were going to take the game away, but with a mere three seconds left in regulation time, a scuffle in front of Cohasset's net resulted in a 2-2 tie and two nailbiting scoreless overtimes.

The referees decided that because of the darkness it was time to start the one-on-ones after the overtimes. Both Lee Sullivan and Maria Cahill drove the ball past Old Rochester's goalie and that's all it took to give the Skippers the victory and the chance to play Bellingham this Wednesday at 6 p.m. at Oliver Ames in Easton.

The game against Case was not won because of skill, it was won because of character. The girls showed a lot of pride Friday, and, hopefully, it will continue to show Wednesday.

Inching closer to another goal and another victory is Ginni Nussdorfer (dark skirt) in a recent Cohasset match.

No. 32 Bob Corkery defies some considerable odds and makes his way to a Cohasset goal.

FOOTBALL

This seems to be the week for close games as the boys squeaked past East Bridgewater, 7-6. East Bridgewater scored early in the second quarter, but fortunately the extra point was kicked wide of the goalpost.

Cohasset remained scoreless, and the game was a defensive battle until a superb run led to Sean Corkery's excellent pass and Jeff Aaron's spectacular diving catch in the endzone with 14 seconds left which tied the contest.

Bobby Durkin then ensured the victory by kicking the ball cleanly through the uprights. And thus a stunned East Bridgewater was left defeated, 7-6, and Cohasset moved in to share the first place position in the Small School Division with their defeated opponent.

Coach Phil Pisano was thrilled with the victory and said that everybody contributed to the win. Pisano was especially pleased with the way in which Sean Corkery, Jeff Aaron and Philip Mahoney executed the plays on Cohasset's last drive.

Philip Mahoney also had a strong game defensively, along with John Froio and Peter Sandbloom. On offense Bobby Durkin was impressive along with Sean Corkery who had an outstanding passing game.

All Cohasset has to do now is beat archrival Hull on Thanksgiving to ensure a co-championship of the Small School Division, an honor not seen by Cohasset football for a long time.

This Saturday, the boys play Hanover in a non-league game. This should be a competitive battle according to Pisano.

BOYS SOCCER

The boys played an outstanding game against Medway and after four overtimes came out on top with their first tournament game, 1-0.

Coach Jon Anderson felt both teams were very evenly matched in every aspect of the game. Anderson felt his team played one of its best games of the season.

Bobby Shultz finally broke through Medway's defense and drilled a shot which bounced off the hands of the Medway goaltender onto the foot of David Shultz who immediately tapped it in. Both boys had exceptional games offensively.

On defense, Todd Trautwein and Kevin Dunn had tremendous games. Goalie Billy McKenna played outstandingly and recorded the 20th shutout of his career. At midfield Chris Kirkendal and Mark Crough turned in good efforts as well.

Saturday, the boys were extremely drained after Thursday's tough game and lost a heartbreaker to Rockland, 4-0.

Bobby Schultz showed a lot of hustle this game. Todd Fitzpatrick, Jeff Christenson, Kevin Henry and Mark Crough played well, also.

Overall the boys ended up with an admirable record of 14-3-2. Anderson felt that his team not only fulfilled its goals, but surpassed some as well. The team will be losing 13 seniors this year, but that does not stop Anderson from being hopeful for next year's squad.

Pain is important to your well-being. It is nature's early warning signal. A message relayed through your nervous system that tells you when something is wrong. As such, pain is merely a symptom and not the cause of most health problems. Therefore, the sensible approach to health is not to merely turn off the pain (or treat the symptom). But rather to find the causes and correct them.

REAL ESTATE GUIDELINES

By Norma Telesco
Home Center Realty

PRICING YOUR HOME

Setting a fair price is a crucial first step in putting your home on the market, and it begins with a professional market analysis of the property. You might start by looking around the neighborhood at other houses for sale. Then contact a realtor familiar with your area to get information about the asking prices of these homes and the length of time each one has been on the market. Your realtor will also be able to provide you with information from official records about the actual sale prices of homes similar to your own, as well as the features of each property that might have affected its value, such as the number of rooms, the overall conditionn, and the extras, family rooms, finished basements, garages or wall-to-wall carpeting. By putting all of this information together, you can establish a market value for your home, or a price range in which it is likely to sell. If you set your price too high, it could take months, even years to sell your home. But if it's priced within about five percent of the established market value, your house should sell fairly quickly.

To arrange for a free professional market analysis of your home, call Norma at HOME CENTER REALTY or stop by our office at 57 Water, Hingham. There's no obligation at all. Our agents can also suggest some inexpensive fix-ups to help you get top dollar for your property.

Obituary

Charles R. Davis

A funeral Mass for Charles R. Davis, 47, head of the mathematics department at Cohasset High School, was celebrated Saturday in St. Christine's Church, Marshfield.

Burial was in St. Francis Xavier Cemetery, South Weymouth.

Mr. Davis died Nov. 6 at South Shore Hospital, Weymouth, after suffering a heart attack at home. Earlier that night he had taught a computer science class for the evening division of Fisher Junior College in Duxbury.

He joined the Cohasset school system in 1961 and became department head about 16 years ago. He had been the track coach at Cohasset High for 20 years but relinquished that position a few years ago. He was also faculty adviser for the math and computer science clubs.

In Marshfield he had served as a coach for the youth basketball and Pony League programs.

He was a member of the Massachusetts Teachers Association and the National Education Association.

Born in Brockton, he had lived in Abington before moving to Marshfield 22 years ago. He graduated from Abington High School in 1956 and from Boston University in 1961. He received a master's degree from Randolph Macon College in Virginia.

He leaves his wife, Marie C. (Maraget) Davis; two sons, Brian A. Davis and Glen C. Davis, both of Marshfield; and a daughter, Kimberly J. Davis, a student at the University of Vermont.

Contributions in his memory may be sent to the Charles R. Davis Scholarship Fund in care of the Miles Standish Credit Union, 560 Plain St., P.O. Box 560, Marshfield, 02050, to be shared by both Cohasset and Marshfield high schools.

Historical Society dinner

The Cohasset Historical Society will hold its Annual Meeting with catered dinner and special evening program Tuesday, Nov. 19 at Trueblood Hall of the Unitarian Parish House.

A catered dinner will include salad, chicken baked with noodles, vegetables, and a dessert of pecan pie with whipped cream. Catering is by Cohasset's Christine Gilmour. The dinner will begin at 6:30 p.m.

Following dinner will be a short business meeting for reports and election of officers and board members. Reservations for the evening are $7.50.

Following the business meeting a special program will be presented by the Society consisting of slides, a showing of early gowns from the Society's collection, and talks by Society officers and members, the goal of which will be to acquaint all with the resources and activities of the Society.

Not all of us may be aware of the importance and extent of the Society's museum collections and of its programs both within and outside of the community. On display will be selected museum artifacts and a group of Society-owned works of art being reproduced for sale to interested persons. The program will be "an inside look" at the Historical Society.

To reserve a place for the dinner and program send checks in advance only, to the Historical Society at P.O. Box 324, Cohasset 02025, or drop in at Lothrop House, 14 Summer St. Reservations may be called in to 383-0773 or 383-6930.

Absolute deadline for reservations is Friday, Nov. 15 and none can be accepted after that time.

No smoking course

The Cohasset Community Center is offering a Five-day Plan to Stop Smoking, which presents a unique solution to smoking. Physical, mental, social and spiritual principles are the heart of the approach.

The plan will include straight, sensitive, factual talk about the dangers of smoking; phychological concepts to aid in developing willpower; physiological facts to help rid the system of those agents, such as nicotine, which create the cravings; how to avoid gaining weight; group dynamics, i.e., let's encourage one another as we quit together, and special pitfalls to beware of when quitting.

Here's some good news. Within 24 hours after quitting, your chance of a heart attack decreases. Breathing becomes easier, lung capacity increases, bronchial tubes relax. And there is so much more!

Stephen Cook will be conducting this seminar. Stephen, along with his wife Alberta, have been involved with Wildwood Sanitarium and Hospital, a preventive medical facility outside Chattanooga, TN. They have presented numerous health programs like the one above and Nutrition and Stress management seminars.

This program will be held Sunday through Thursday, starting Dec. 1 from 7:30 to 9 p.m. at the Center, located at 3 North Main St., Cohasset, and the cost will be $10.

Please call the Center (383-0088) between 9 a.m. and noon to register.

Newcomers Club meeting

The Cohasset-Scituate Newcomers Club will meet Nov. 18. Featured speaker will be Scituate Garden Club member Sylvia White.

Her recent publication "Money from Weeds and Garden Flowers and Pods" will be demonstrated to members.

Sylvia White is a popular speaker in the area.

Any new resident of either Scituate or Cohasset is invited to attend at the Scituate Town Library, Branch Street, Monday, Nov. 18, at 9:30 a.m.

The Club has been busy preparing for its annual holiday bazaar and quilt raffle.

The bazaar will be held Saturday, Nov. 23, on County Way in Scituate at the Masonic Temple. Admission will be free. Featured will be Grandma Claus' Attic for young children.

For further information on the club or the bazaar, please call in Scituate, Jean, 545-6654, or Linda, in Cohasset, 383-6849.

New Friends Program

Everyone needs friends, but there are times when that need is felt more deeply by some.

Often due to illness, age, orpersonal circumstances, one is not able to get out and socialize with others. The Social Service League of Cohasset recognizes this need, and through its New Friends Program introduces these people to new friends.

The New Friends Program offers friendship through regular one-on-one visits. Visiting time is an opportunity for conversation—listening and sharing.

Sometimes New Friends offer assistance with shopping or errands, share a meal at a restaurant or take part in some other recreational activity—whatever feels mutually satisfying and appropriate to the visitor and the person being visited.

By reaching out, this program helps to form bonds of friendship that are important to us all. There is always a need for new friends.

If you would like to become a New Friend and share in this rewarding experience, or would like to have a New Friend, please call the Social Service League at 383-0771 or 383-0821.

LWV meeting Nov. 21

The Cohasset League of Women Voters invites the public to attend a meeting Thursday, Nov. 21, entitled "Growth—It's Impact on Communities."

This meeting should prove to be of special interest to all townspeople in relation to the proposed bylaw to be brought before the Dec. 9 Special Town Meeting, as well as the current Health Board Building Moratorium.

The meeting will be comprised of a slide show, "One County's Water," which concerns water shed protection. In addition, there will be a panel discussion followed by an open discussion. The guest panel will consist of Thomas Cook, chairman of the Water Shed Protection Committee; Barbara Kern from the Board of Health, and a representative from the Water Commission. The discussion will touch on water shed protection, waste and runoff problems, and many other issues.

The meeting is scheduled to begin at 7:30 p.m. at the Unitarian Parish House on Main Street. Coffee will be served.

For further information, contact Debbie Cook at 383-6313.

Holly Day fair

The First Baptist Church of North Scituate will hold its annual fair Nov. 23, from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m.

The Country Store will feature home baked goods, preserves, candy, fruit cakes, cheese and other goodies. There will be a silent auction. Handwork, gift items, books, jewelry, and stationary are a partial list of items for sale. New and nearly new clothing will be on sale.

A "soup and salad" buffet will be served from 11:30 a.m. to 1:30 p.m.

Selectmen vote one-day license hike should be. The oil spilled and he readjusted the mooring.

"I agree, we should pay for the oil, but I don't think the town should be responsible for everyone's lobsters. If you store lobster in Cohasset Harbor, it is at your own risk," Ritter said.

England said according to town council, it was easier to settle the matter than to go to court. Selectman Cliff Mitman agreed that while they shouldn't be responsible for everyone's lobster, they did have a liability here. He moved to reimburse Hevey.

The motion was passed 5-0.

Upon recommendation of the Building Inspector, the price of the watershed maps was raised from $1 to $3.

Executive Secretary Don Andrews reported that production costs will exceed the $1 fee and requested the color maps be sold for $2.

Planning board Chairman Christine Bassett commented that in other towns black and white maps that could hardly be read were sold for $3. The board voted 5-0 to raise the price to $3.

Chairman England reviewed the request from Recreation Director Jack Worley for a larger office for the Recreation Department.

Don Andrews reported that the building inspector saw no problem with relocating Worley to the office which currently holds the department's safe. However, the safe and its contents would have to remain there.

England decided he would need more details from Worley before deciding the issue.

The board agreed to place an ad for a town accountant in the December issue of "Beacon." Andrews submitted an advertisement which he said was almost identical to the one he responded to last spring.

Diane Sullivan suggested that the salary be set in the mid-20's, as opposed to the upper-20's, that a more detailed job description be included.

Andrews responded that he would like to wait until the new accountant is hired before restructuring the job.

"I would also like to see some of the accountant's duty go to the assistant," Andrews said, "many qualified applicants could be scared off by the computer and we currently have someone in the office who is capable of handlng it."

A deadline of Dec. 21 is set for applications.

In response to a letter from the town of Hull, the board decided to continue involvement with the Tri-Town Committee, with a few changes.

Selectman Mary Jane McArthur proposed that instead of board members, other citizens with more time should represent the town. Andrews was instructed to phone the committee with this suggestion.

Selectman Rocco Laugelle agreed to talk with the building inspector about the installation of a ramp for the handicapped at town hall. The project has been discussed for three years, he said. England suggested they place an article in the annual town meeting to obtain the funds.

Murray's Memos

By Mary Jeanette Murray

At the present time in Massachusetts it is possible for a person convicted of a crime to receive different punishments from different judges. Much of the difference can be attributed to the large degree of discretion left to each judge. As a result, some judges are too harsh, and some too lenient.

The House has given initial approval to the so-called presumptive sentencing bill that provides guidelines for judges when rendering sentences or fines for various crimes. In effect, it would bring longer prison terms and more uniformity to the Massachusetts Criminal Justice System.

The way it works under presumptive sentencing is that once a person is convicted of a particular offense, there is a presumption that a certain sentence or fine will follow. To do otherwise requires the judge to give a written explanation for either a lesser or harsher punishment. Also, if the prosecutor feels that the sentence is too lenient, he or she would be able to appeal the judge's order.

Clearly the present system is not the answer to problems in our judicial process. We cannot continue to have people "shop around" for a more lenient judge.

Cohasset school news

Thanks for subscriptions

Students of grade seven and grade eight wish to thank the community for the splendid support given them during the annual magazine drive.

The funds will make a good start in their class funds to be used for the 12th grade graduation.

Farewell to Mr. Lucas

Thursday, Oct. 31, the art students at Cohasset High School honored Thomas Lucas with a retirement party. Mr. Lucas is retiring after teaching art for 30 years in Cohasset public schools.

Signs wishing Mr. Lucas well and thanking him for his years of teaching were hung on the walls. Cake and cider were enjoyed and Mr. Lucas offered the words of wisdom to "work hard" to all his students.

Good luck, Mr. Lucas — and thanks!

PSO news item

Jeff Hartwell, a junior at Cohasset High School, was elected his school's Student Government Day representative during an election held Tuesday, Nov. 5.

One other junior, Karin Anglin, was chosen an alternate delegate to Student Government Day. The election was conducted by Sandra Best, president of the Cohasset High School Student Council. Edward F. Sheehan, chairman of the Social Studies department, is serving as faculty coordinator for the popular program.

During the next five months, Jeff and Karen will attend four meetings conducted by the state Department of Education, the sponsor for Student Government Day. The meetings will be held in the State House in Boston and in the Education Center in Lakeville.

In 1947, the Massachusetts Legislature enacted a program called "Student Government Day." Held on the first Friday of April, the informative program about state government allows student delegates to "take over" state government for a day.

Friday, Jan. 24, there will be a glass bowl drawing in Gardner Auditorium in the State House.

It is then that student delegates are matched with key officials in state government. Student delegates could be governor or members of the state Supreme Court for a day.

Breathalyzer tests students

Sgt. Robert W. Jackson of the Cohasset Police Department visited Edward F. Sheehan's senior elective law class Wednesday, Nov. 6.

The six-year veteran of the police department spoke on the Protective Custody Law, Operating under the Influence Law and the use of the breathalyzer machine.

Students were free to ask questions during the 40-minute class. After the completion of this lively question-and-answer period, Sgt. Jackson demonstrated the use of the breathalyzer machine. Senior John Reilly took the test and was pronounced sober.

Sgt. Jackson, who is fully certified to administer the breathalyzer test, attended Cohasset High School, graduated with a bachelor's degree from the University of Virginia and is presently enrolled in a law enforcement program at Northeastern University.

He mentioned state laws referring to operating under the influence and stressed that there were several elements in this legal question.

He also stated that in Massachusetts when a person receives a license there is an implied consent law in which a person promises to take a breathalyzer test if there is any question of his or her sobriety.

England tour planned

Students from Cohasset will be visiting London and Stonehenge, as well as several other historical sites this spring. During April vacation students from grades 10, 11 and 12 will tour England for 10 days.

They will also see a performance of the Royal Shakespeare Company in Stratford-Upon-Avon. Anyone interested in joining the tour should contact Mrs. Jo-Ellen Wood of the English department at CHS as soon as possible.

Osgood meeting

The PSO will host a general meeting for Joseph Osgood parents on Tuesday morning, Nov. 19 at the Unitarian Parish House.

Coffee will be served at 9 a.m. From 9:30 to 11:15 a.m., a round-table discussion will include a wide range of issues pertinent to Osgood School, from an after-school child-care survey and an elementary adjustment counselor to curriculum planning and enrichment programs.

Come and share your ideas about how to get the most out of parent-teacher conferences, how the School Improvement Council should spend the state funds, what volunteer opportunities await your talents.

Principal Jack Creamer will inform us about School Department requests for the Dec. 9 Special Town Meeting and Joseph Osgood requests for the '86-'87 school budget discussions in January.

Babysitting will be available upstairs at the Parish House. Please call PSO reps Shelly Weier (-1590) or Sue McNamara (-6945) by Monday, Nov. 18 if you will need this service.

Parents not available to daytime meetings, please note that the PSO will schedule an evening meeting in the spring on the issue of "The Hurried Child." Please contact the PSO reps or your room mothers for any information on the above issues.

AFS volunteers

Do you need leaves raked, windows washed or silver polished? The AFS Club will do that and more!

During the weekends of November 16 and 17, 23 and 24, and December 7 and 8, the AFS Club is having their work weekend.

The AFS Club members will come to your house and do any chores you ask. For $5 an hour your house can look like new and all the money is used for scholarships.

'One day, one trial' jury duty to begin in '86

By Marc Sperber
Mariner Correspondent

The process of serving jury duty will become dramatically easier and faster for residents of Plymouth and Norfolk counties beginning in January, when the Commonwealth's One Trial Jury System is introduced in Plymouth, Norfolk and five other Massachusetts counties.

The new system will do away with jury selection by individual communities and replace it with random selection of jurors by a computer at the office of Jury Commissioner in Cambridge.

More importantly, the plethora of exemptions now allowed, designed to relieve doctors, mothers, teachers and others who might find it hard to leave their daily duties for service on a jury, have been abolished. The new system allows only a one-time postponement of one year for those summoned for jury duty.

Jurors will serve for only one day or the duration of one trial. Statistics cited by the Commonwealth claim that 95 percent of all jurors will complete their service in three days or less.

During the period of jury duty an employer is expected to pay normal wages to an employee who has been summoned. If a person serves for more than three days a stipend of $50 per day will be paid by the state.

The One Trial Jury System is made possible in part by the fact that Massachusetts is the only state in the country that mandates an annual census. This gives Commonwealth authorities, who collect the census rolls from all 35 cities and towns in Massachusetts, an up-to-date pool of potential jurors.

The Jury Commissioner's office will process the census rolls and place them into its mainframe computer for random selection.

The selection of jurors is thus removed from the hands of selectmen, who have long been accustomed to the process of drawing names by lottery at their meetings.

Paul J. Carr, Jury Commissioner for the Commonwealth, said that the system has been gradually phased in over the past seven years. By January 1988 the entire state will be using the system.

"There's only one purpose for it coming into being," he said from his Cambridge office, "and that's to do away with all the exemptions. Everybody now has to do his or her service."

"The only way we can do that, is to have the shortest term possible," Carr said.

Carr said that in counties where the system is now in force, public response has been "overwhelmingly positive."

"People like the idea of doing it for a day or two, and then getting it out of the way," he said.

Nonetheless, Carr commented, there are "always those persons who don't want to do it."

The One Trial Jury system also has a beneficial sociological impact, Carr said, because the new mandatory guidelines bring a greater cross section of the population into the judicial system as potential jurors.

The old system of jury selection allowed for 40 different categories of exemptions. This meant that many professionals, mothers, health care workers and civil servants opted to bow out of serving.

Now, a greater sample of the public is found in court juries, Carr said.

Among the more esoteric of the exemptions that used to be allowed were waivers of service granted to lighthouse keepers and members of the Ancient and Honorable Militia of the Commonwealth.

"We came along and wiped all of them off the books," said Carr.

The Commissioner, who was appointed to his post in 1982 by the Supreme Judicial Court, said many people fear the prospect of being assigned to a long trial.

Carr said that most trials last for three days or less, and that the right of the attorneys in both parties in a suit to dismiss jurors prior to the start of a trial, known as the peremptory challenge, will remain in force.

Thus, he said, most people will probably not wind up on a long trial, and most will be free of their jury duty after one day.

According to statistics provided by the office of the Jury Commissioner, 95% of all jurors complete service within three days. Of that group, 80% finish in one day.

About 30% of those who do serve for a day sit on a trial. The remainder are dismissed without ever having been called for a trial.
duty per week, said Carr.

When the entire Commonwealth uses the system, he added, about 20,000 summonses will be mailed each week.

Carr expressed support of the system, and said it is a model for other states.

"Right off the bat, I'd have to say it does help the judicial system," he said.

Cohasset Dramatic Club presents 'Salesman'

The Cohasset Dramatic Club will present "Death of a Salesman", by Arthur Miller and directed by Helen Ketcham on Nov. 15, 16, 17, 22 and 23. All performances will be at the Cohasset Town Hall, starting at 8 p.m., with the exception of Sunday, Nov. 17. On that day, the show will begin at 2 p.m., with free admission to senior citizens. Tickets will be available at the door and at Fleming's in Cohasset.

This play is about a defeated, aging salesman who has come to the end of his rope, no longer able to pretend to a debonair cheerfulness "on a shoeshine and a smile." It is a drama that has been widely successful in both the U.S. and in foreign countries.

Dr. Benedict Duffy of Hingham won the assignment of Willy Loman, one of the best plum acting roles. Duffy portrays the salesman, a braggart, who suddenly must figure out what kind of man he really is.

Lee Dunne of Milton, formerly of North Scituate, has been cast in the role of Linda, Willy's loyal wife, who knows he's never made much money and is not the finest character that ever lived, yet is a human being that suddenly has all his props knocked out from under him.

John Kuhn of Hingham and Carl Slotnick of Cohasset will appear as the two sons, Happy and Biff, respectively, who are themselves disconsolate in their non-adjustment to the world around them.

Local residents in other roles include Joseph Milano of Milton; Sidney Browne of Quincy; Carter Hill and Jan Higbee of Hingham; Virginia Barcomb and Ronald Massa of Cohasset; George Hammacher and Sally Rossi Langer of Scituate; and Robert MacKay and Douglas McCabe of Marsh field.

Production manager is Florence Kelley of Cohasset.

Novice hockey league plays for love of the sport

by Tom Henshaw

John Doran in a white jersey with green trim skated down the right side of the rink with uncertain strides and fired the puck at the goal.

Goalie Ken Sargent, in a blue sweater with a rocket on the chest, lunged out with a skate-shod foot and deflected the puck into the corner.

Play went on in Pilgrim Skating Arena, Hingham.

It was not an oil painting, to use the favorite expression of a better known and certainly more proficient goaltender named Gerry Cheevers.

Doran wobbled slightly on his skates. His shot was soft, probably would have missed the net. Sargent's save was awkward and he fell making it.

But they were playing the game, just like Wayne Gretzky and Gerry Cheevers — and, perhaps more accurately, just like Walter Mitty.

Doran and Sargent play for rival teams in the National Novice Hockey Association, which is made up of grown men with expertise in such fields as accounting, law and retail sales, who took up hockey late in life just for the love of the game.

Sargent's team, the Rockets, is the home team for the South Shore, drawing players from communities ranging from Quincy south to Marshfield with an occasional recruit from Boston and the North Shore.

The captain of the Rockets is Howard Weiss, a 37-year-old accountant from Randolph, who had never played hockey or even been on skates for 25 years when he read an ad for the NNHA two years ago.

Weiss, who grew up in New Haven, Conn., caught the hockey bug while a student at Northeastern in the days when Bobby Orr and Phil Esposito reigned at Boston Garden.

He had a season ticket to the Whalers' games when they were the Boston franchise in the World Hockey Association and, like many others in that time and place, he fantasized skating, shooting, scoring along with them.

"I always wanted to do something in sports," he said. "When the opportunity came up and I saw the ad in the paper I called right away.

"I know I could never play in a checking league or even a good skating no-check league. But I can compete in this league and I'm doing something I never thought I could do.

"It's Superman stepping out of the telephone booth."

Recruits in the NNHA, many of whom sign up with no skating experience whatsoever, are given an intensive eight-week, eight-session course in skating and the fundamentals of hockey.

Unless a player has some limited hockey experience, he (or she, for the league is coed) spends the first season with a beginner level team, moves to an advanced level in the second year.

Games are played in three 15-minute periods stop time, which fits nicely into an hour and a half of ice time. If the game drags, the last few minutes are played running time.

Rough stuff and slap shots, which could cause serious injury at the NNHA level, are discouraged.

Jim Farrenkopf of Braintree (4) clears puck from in front of Rocket goalie Ken Sargent of Scituate while Terry Goldstein (5) waits to help.

"If you raise your stick above the knees when taking a shot it's not only no goal but you get a two-minute penalty," said Weiss.

"If you get eight penalty minutes in one game you're out for the rest of the game. The second time, you're out two games. The third time, you're asked to leave the league.

"If you drop your gloves for any reason, you're out of the league."

Each team has 16 to 18 players, enough to provide four lines, five defensemen and one goalkeeper. The NNHA provides jerseys, socks and helmets. Players are expected to spend an average of $250 on other protective equipment.

Dress rules are strictly observed for insurance purposes.

The NNHA was first organized in 1980 in the Washington, D.C., area, and is now in 14 districts across the country. This year, for the first time, there will be a national championship played in Los Angeles next July.

On the South Shore, games are played in Cohasset Winter Gardens and Pilgrim Skating Arena. The Rockets have the ice at Pilgrim for an hour and a half starting at 9:40 p.m. Sunday.

Coach of the Rockets is Barry Neville of Braintree, who played college hockey at Providence in the late 1970s. He also coaches a bantam team in the Braintree Youth Hockey Association.

Coaching in the NNHA is very basic. Recently, the subject for discussion in the Rockets' dressing room prior to a game was "changing on the fly," that is, making substitutions without stopping play.

"If we can do that," Neville pointed out to his players, "we'll have fresh skaters on the ice when the other team is tired."

The most experienced of the Rockets is the goaltender, Ken Sargent, who was playing intramural hockey at Cornell five years ago and once sat at a banquet with Ken Dryden, a Cornell grad and once a star goalie with the Montreal Canadians.

Sargent learned goaltending by playing floor hockey in his hometown of Scituate and took to the ice when his dormitory team at Cornell needed a goalie. He's an engineer in real life.

Other members of the Rockets include Jim Burns, Terry Goldstein and George Kelley of Weymouth. Burns manages a Friendly Ice Cream store; Goldstein a Bradlee's discount house.

There is also Jim Karrenkopf of Braintree, a phone company worker; Keith Dinsmoor of Braintree, a postal employee; Edward Nye of Randolph, area manager for an automobile company.

Roger Fusco of Hanover, who also manages a Friendly's store; Gerry Rogers of Pembroke, a salesman; John Guarnotta of Marshfield, a certified public accountant; Jack Mayo of Marshfield, who works in electronics.

Dec. 9 warrant

The warrant will also contain an article requesting $2,175 as matching funds to a local aid grant from the state Executive Office of Communities and Development to train department heads in employee evaluation systems. The state agency has declared its intent to award the grant to the town, contigent on the town's willingness to follow the federal Fair Housing standards. The state has previously notified the town that unless some low and middle income housing is proposed, no state grants will be awarded the community.

A final article requests an additional $10,000 for engineering services to the town's planning board for fiscal 1986.

Weatherwise, November is exciting

By Warren Waitkus
Special to the Mariner

As the last leaves of autumn flutter, then scurry across dormant lawns driven by brisk northwest winds, Old Man Winter stands in the wings, ready to enter the spotlight of center stage.

The warmth of summer is gone and the cold blast of winter air enters the heartland of our nation. When the Alberta (Canada) and Colorado lows meet, great storms often attack the Great Lakes Region.

On November 11, 1835 a powerful storm was reported to have "swept the Great Lakes clear of sail." But the most vicious of storms to strike the Lakes occurred on November 7-9, 1913 with hurricane force winds, snow, freezing temperatures and mountainous waves. Nineteen ships were lost, twelve with all hands. Twenty other vessels were driven ashore. In all, 250 sailors went to a watery grave, and shoreside communities suffered immense damage.

In New England the "Portland Storm" is indelibly written in the pages of weather history. This storm, so called because of a sea tragedy, occurred on November 26-27, 1898. At 7 p.m., Saturday, November 26, the side-paddle steamer S.S. Portland left Boston's India Wharf and disappeared into the foreboding darkness. Offshore, a frightful northeaster was lurking. In 70 mph winds and towering seas, the S.S. Portland sank, going down off the Cape's Highland Light, and 191 people, crew and passengers, perished. This storm also closed the old mouth of the North River in Rexhame (Marshfield), Massachusetts, while opening what is now known as the New Inlet, in Scituate. West of the storm track, heavy snow fell, with 27 inch depths reported. Total loss of life in this great storm is estimated at 400.

The lowest temperature ever recorded in the contiguous states in November was 53 degrees (F) below zero at Lincoln, Lewis and Clark County, Montana on November 16, 1959. The highest reading was 105 degrees (F) at Croftville, California on November 12, 1906. The wettest place is on the Oregon coast at Glenora, Tillamook County, which measured 50.22 inches in November, 1909.

November is the last month of the hurricane season, but one of the greatest of all time roamed the North Atlantic during the first half of November 1932. Fortunately the storm remained safely at sea. But another late season hurricane moved along the Eastern Seaboard from the Carolinas to New England on November 25-28, 1888. The eye passed Nantucket Island on the morning of the 27th with winds of 65 mph. Fifteen ships were reported wrecked near Boston. November can be an exciting month weatherwise.

LONG-RANGE FORECASTS

For over thirty years I have studied the possible influence of the moon upon the weather. My interest was stimulated by a Weather Table devised by the noted English astronomer, Sir William Herschel, in the 1700's. Herschel is credited with the discovery of over 2,500 star clusters and nebulae, as well as discovering the planet Uranus. His table contained detailed forecasts which were amazingly accurate in England. His method was not as successful in the New World, but was often published in early almanacs.

An example of this fact appeared in the 1825 almanac by Isaac Bickerstaff: "We publish the following table of the celebrated astronomer, William Herschel, for the amusement or benefit of our readers. It is of great reputation, and is now nearly out of print; and although the meteorological remarks are not probably correct for this climate, it may serve as a data by which to ascertain with

BRIDGE LESSONS

The Cohasset Recreation Department will accept telephone reservations for Bridge Lessons to be taught by Mrs. Barbara Elliott.

Lessons for beginners and intermediates interested in up-to-date bidding principals will be offered Fridays from 10 a.m. to noon, beginning Friday, Nov. 15, at the Town Hall Auditorium.

If you are interested in learning and playing bridge, please call the Cohasset Recreation Department office at 383-6791. When calling, please state which category, beginner or intermediate, you would be in.

Sessions are six weeks in duration and the fee is $20 per person, per session. Non-residents will be accepted on a space available basis.

BLUE HILLS SKI LESSONS

The Cohasset Recreation Department will accept registrations for ski lessons to be held at Blue Hills, this winter.

Registrations will be held at the Recreation Office Wednesday, Nov. 20, from 2 to 4 p.m. and Thursday, Nov. 21, from 6 to 7:30 p.m. The cost for the five-week, one-and-a-half hours per week lesson is $47 per person. Parents must register participants as a release form has to be signed.

Lessons will begin Thursday, Jan. 2. The fee covers transportation to and from Blue Hills for the five weeks and lessons. Equipment rentals are available at Blue Hills for $6 per week.

Classes are offered for all levels of instruction beginning at age seven. Buses will leave from the Town Hall parking lot at 3:15 p.m. and return at about 6:30 p.m. Parents who wish to go as volunteer chaperones may sign up during the registration.

SPECIAL EVENTS

Because of the Town Hall Auditorium floor refinishing work and various other scheduling conflicts this fall, the Cohasset Recreation Department has not been able to book any special events during the past two months. Also, scheduling of the auditorium for November will preclude any special events as well.

However, magic shows, movies, clown acts, etc. are being planned for the months of December, January, February, and March. Please watch in local news media for exact dates, times, and performances that will appear soon.

Children's advocacy group lobbys for services

By Valerie Kroon
Mariner Correspondent

Members of the Coastline Council for Children, the citizen advocacy group for Braintree, Cohasset, Hingham, Hull, Norwell, Scituate and Weymouth, heard what's in store for future children's services at their recent monthly meeting.

Speaking on "Perspectives on Child Advocacy in Massachusetts" was Dr. Richard Rowe, president of the Statewide Advisory Council to the Office for Children (OFC).

The father of five children, Rowe is president of Faxon Corp. and a former associate dean of Harvard Graduate School of Education. He's been advocating for the state's children in need since 1969.

"I've put a great deal of effort into lobbying and presenting facts," said Rowe as he noted that future policy development for children's services will be "a tough challenge."

Rowe noted the fact that society is getting older and older, and with this there's a trend to shift available resources away from younger concerns. Current policy has seen a per capita rise in expenditures for the over-65 age group and a decrease in funding for those under 18, Rowe said.

"Unless we do something, this trend will continue over the next two to three decades," Rowe told the group. "It's the children who make society's future. Our commitment to them can determine what society may become."

The state OFC program is unique in the nation as its bylaws mandate a regional network of citizen advocacy councils of which coastline Council is one of 42. But these councils have been faced with both disappointment and achievement, Rowe reported. The Statewide Advisory Council's number one priority for 1985-86 will be to increase public awareness and media exposure with a focus on specific issues and needs of children.

The council is also currently investigating what is happening to the quality of life for children in the state and will publish a "state of the child report" in late spring. Rowe said that the council hopes to make this investigation an annual priority in hopes that both the public and public officials will be able to discover trends in anticipation of needs for services.

The statewide council's four priority children's issues for 1985-86 are education, with an eye to developing better linkage between schools and human services at the community level; day care resource information and referral services; day care licensing in an effort to register the estimated 10,000 facilities which are currently unlicensed; and an investigation into foster-care/adoption recruitment, training and reimbursement rates.

"In Massachusetts, we pay more to lodge a dog in a kennel than we pay to house a child," Rowe explained. "We need a more adequate set of policies and a more adequate process for adoptions."

Currently the state pays $7 a day to foster care providers and Rowe said he believes the waiting list for care is more than 300 state-wide.

Rowe also reported that OFC is required to make on-site visits to all of the more than 20,000 day care facilities by the end of 1986. With limited staff, he estimated it will require 40-60 visits a day to cover them all.

'How can we have meaningful policy if we don't know what's going on?" he asked.

Rowe said he's an advocate for keeping human services as close to the neighborhood as possible and that he's always thought schools to be the ideal place for human service centers as there is much down-time in school buildings.

"But this is a political issue, and our governing officials are not oriented around the delivery system but rather, are oriented around the constituency."

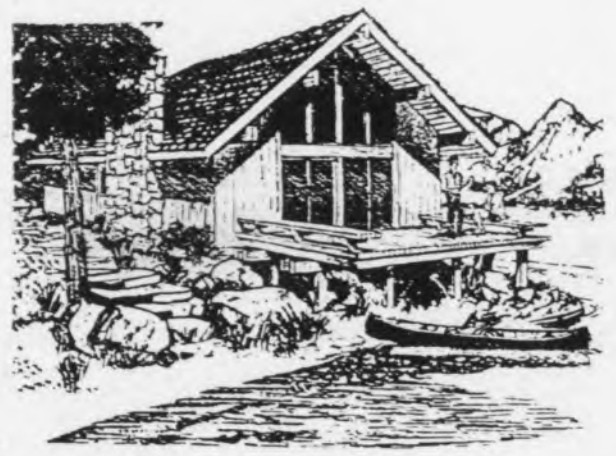
Rowe closed his talk by saying he "sensed" the 1987 state budget will prove very sparse unless advocates push hard to get legislators to enrich proposals for children's service programs.

1985-86 COUNCIL BOARD ELECTED

At the October meeting, council members voted their 1985-86 slate of officers in. Elected for a one-year term were Donna O'Sullivan, Braintree, chairperson; Nancy McKenna, Braintree, vice-chairperson; and Linda Chase, Braintree, regional representative.

Elected to the board of directors for two years were providers: Judy Baker, Weymouth, protective services; Susan Braus, Braintree, local government; Valerie Browne-Matherly, Cohasset, basic needs/low income; Dianne Cibotti, Braintree, general education; Barbara Greenglass, Hingham, physical handicaps; Paula Guyette, Braintree, foster care; Maureen Kelly, E. Weymouth, recreation; and Dr. Margery Schonfeld, Hull, adolescent service.

Consumers elected for a two-year term on the board were Louise Bacon, E. Weymouth; Kathryn Chappell, Braintree; Roberta Dunfield, Braintree; Jeanne Emond, Braintree; Anne Goerss, Scituate; Bonnie Gorman, Weymouth; William Greene, Braintree; Carole McDermot, Scituate; Donna O'Sullivan, Braintree; and Leona Vaugn, Braintree.



House tour Dec. 12

The Cohasset Community Garden Club will once again sponsor a house tour, Thursday, Dec. 12.

Six homes will be featured in this tour entitled "Celebrating the Joy of Christmas." After the tour, there will be complimentary "palate pleasers" featuring a light lunch menu.

Tickets for this spectacular tour are available at $10 each, at Country House Antiques and Collectables, 818 Chief Justice Cushing Highway, and two village locations, Stitches, Brook Street, and Fleming's Hardware of Elm Street.

If you would prefer to have your tickets mailed, contact Mrs. Paul Desmond at 383-6446, or Mrs. Louis H. Strong, 383-0939.

The following story is true.
Where did it happen? It happened in the mind of one man...
...Ken Coleman.

One year ago, in October to be exact, he started Ken Coleman's Sports Fantasies. The finest venture of its kind in New England! Now, one year later his fantasies have made heroes of more people than he ever imagined....

From Seattle Washington to Portland Maine, there are World Series Winners, Heavyweight Boxing Champs, Masters Golf Champs...men and boys who have won the Stanley Cup, The NBA Championship, The Boston Marathone, ladies who have won The Dinah Shore Golf Classic. Men who have won The Big College Football Game. Not to mention The Super Bowl.

Congratulations to all of you winners, so happy that your friends, families, favorite movie, TV and sport stars watched you do it. Hope your are enjoying your fame!

For the rest of you good folks who are looking for the perfect gift for Birthdays, Christmas, Retirement Parties, and maybe for that Client who's a sports nut!

We'll provide a personal, individually prepared sports fantasy that will be enjoyed, over and over, for many years to come.

CHS prepares for 'Pirates of Penzance'

The story had its beginning in 1879. It repeats itself whenever music departments and talented students decide "they're ready" to do "The Pirates of Penzance."

"Pirates" has everything — it is a love story (many), dance, music, a battle with swords, a pit orchestra and talent (not so raw, either). It is no accident that six of the ten leading roles are played by CHS seniors.

"Pirates" is a comic operetta, one of the most popular ever written by Gilbert and Sullivan; it is also a kind of last hurrah for 1986 graduates who will get one last chance to show their musical stuff, on the CHS stage.

A cast of more than 33 appear on the CHS stage, with a host of both student and teacher talent appearing behind the scenes as scenery/prop/costume and choreography crew.

In addition to audiences being treated to a newly-refurbished facility (new carpeting, new lighting board), Musical Director/Producer Bryan Marks has purchased a special effects screen for this operetta which will add to your viewing delight.

Tickets are on sale at CHS for $4 each. Put it on your calendar now: "Pirates of Penzance: Thursday, Friday and Saturday, Dec. 5, 6, and 7.

In upcoming weeks the Mariner will feature some of the students who have leading roles in this production.

FREDERIC

Known throughout his high school years as a fine vocalist and musician, senior John Kornet makes his acting debut as "Frederic" in "Pirates."

Kornet is a member of the barbershop, band, jazz group, show chorus and is also a member of the National Honor Society. In "Pirates" Kornet is "lover boy" — who is pursued by his old nursery maid and Pirate maid of all work, "Ruth," played by Cindy Bell; and sophomore Michelle Meagher, who plays "Mabel." While these three individuals are working things out, a motley crew of pirates, police and others are preparing for battle (opera-style).

RUTH

Junior Cindy Bell has a long list of theater productions to her name. She played Kate in "Working;" and was in the chorus in "Chicago" and "Godspell.' She also appeared in the class competition play in her freshman year. Bell's personal interests include but are not limited to: skiing, shark-spearing and trail-breaking.

MABEL

Sophomore Michelle Meagher played "Sally" in Snoopy, had a solo in "Godspell," and appeared in "Voices." For several years Meagher has been taking voice lessons from Joan Jenson of Cohasset, and when you hear her sing the part of "Mabel" you will see the results of that effort. Meagher's goal is to continue lessons at the Boston Conservatory and to perhaps someday sing opera professionally.

Great Books series at Deer Hill

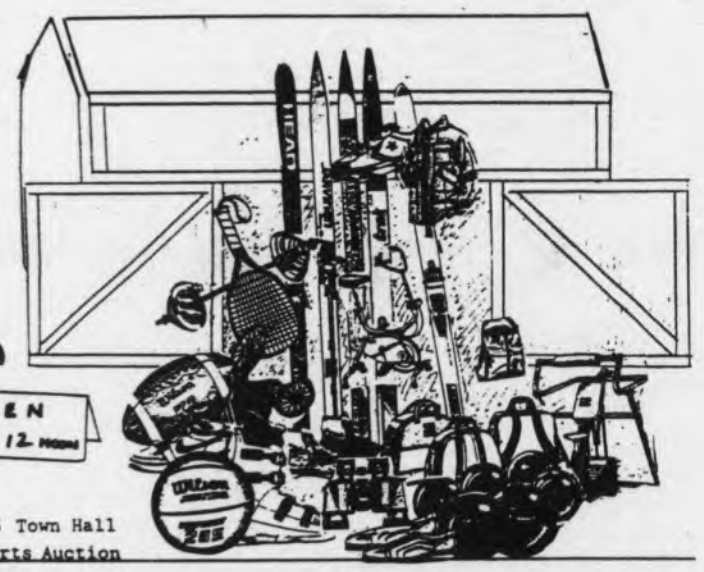
In an attempt to broaden the enrichment opportunities offered to students, Deer Hill School is offering a Junior Great Books Mini-Course to a group of fourth graders. The program will continue for nine weeks.

Junior Great Books is a reading enrichment program that fosters enjoyment of literature through "shared inquiry" — a discussion method that brings children and adults together to interpret short stories. Each week a different selection from stories such as: "The Red Balloon," "The Emperor's New Clothes," "The Story of Dr. Dolittle," and "Ali Baba and the Forty Thieves," is read and discussed by students. They are encouraged to express their own ideas and to support them with evidence from the story.

Wednesdays, Mrs. McDonald's reading group divides and meets with Dorothy Wondolowski for two separate 30-minute discussions. At this meeting, adults and children work as partners on problems of interpretation.

Other adults who trained for the Junior Great Book Program are Regina Schultz, Marilyn Pope, Joanne Chittick and Sue McNamara.

About two-thirds of all fourth graders will complete the mini-course this school year. This enrichment program is published and distributed by the Great Books Foundation, a non-profit educational corporation.



If parents have any questions or would like to discuss the program in more detail, please feel free to contact Dorothy Wondolowski, Enrichment Coordinator at Deer Hill.

A list of the programs offered at Science Center

The days may be growing shorter but a full calendar of programs and activities continues at the South Shore Natural Science Center.

NEW TRAIL WALK

Bring the whole family and explore our new peripheral trail with naturalist and author Bill Perkins on Sunday, Nov. 17 from 1:30 to 3:30 p.m. We'll have a chance to try out his new trail guide as we enjoy the late fall at the Natural Science Center. Pre-paid registration is required (members $3; non-members, $4). For further information, call 659-2559.

HOUSE AND BARN STYLES

Home may be a man's (or woman's!) castle, but his barn can be a pride and joy too. All the buildings on the New England farms have a story to tell with each year of social history producing a particular mark on the structures people erected. After a slide program with landscape architect Barbara Devine, we will carpool for an eyeball survey in our area. This adult tour and program will be held Monday, Nov. 18 from 9 a.m. to noon. Pre-paid registration is required (members $8; non-members $9). For further information, call 659-2559.

WOODLAND TERRARIUMS

On Wednesday, Nov. 20 from 9 30 to noon, create Woodland Terrariums with Barbara Devine. We'll go to a nearby area to collect materials and return to the Center to assemble our creations - please bring your own container. Pre-paid registration is required (members $4; non-members, $5; $1 extra for materials). Call 659-2559 for further information.

INVITATIONAL SLIDE SHOW

Bring your family to view beautiful slides by talented local photographers with your genial host, Phil Swanson, on Thursday Nov. 21 from 8 to 9:30 p.m. The program is free with donations gratefully accepted. Call 659-2559 for further information.

ARMCHAIR TO RUSSIA

Bluest of autumn skies contrast with the golden domes of Russian buldings. On Friday, Nov. 22 from 1 to 3 p.m., Helen and John Gallop will take us on the "Golden Ring" of Russia around Leningrad and Moscow to the outskirts to where history began. Pre-registration is required. (Fee: Members $3; non-members $4). Call 659-2559 for further information.

ANIMALS MEET PILGRIMS

Did you ever wonder what greeted the Pilgrims besides are Native Americans? Children (Grades 1-5) can join naturalist Barbara Devine on Saturday Nov. 23 from 1:30 to 3 p.m. and learn about the animals that met the Pilgrims. We will also find out about the adaptations the animals used to survive the winter. Pre-paid registration is required (members $3.50; non-members $5). For more information call 659-2559.

CRAFT SALE

Don't forget to mark your calendars for our Annual Holiday Craft and Gift Sale, held Dec. 2 through 8. Don't have a calendar? The gift shop has an assortment of beautiful nature oriented calendars!

The South Shore Natural Science Center is on Jacobs Lane, Norwell, just off Route 123 and is open from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. Mondays through Saturdays and 1 to 4 p.m. Sundays and most holidays, and offers free admission, gift shop and library.

Haley's Comet open house Nov. 15

Rolf E. Egon, president of the South Shore Astronomical Society, has announced that there will be an open house on Nov. 15 at 10 p.m. to observe Halley's Comet. The public is cordially invited to observe the comet with the members of this society.

The South Shore Astronomical Society is located at the South Shore Natural Science Center, Jacobs Lane.

In addition to the large 10-inch Cassegrain Telescope at the society's observatory, there will be several other large telescopes available for public viewing of this comet. The public is also welcome to bring their binoculars and telescopes as well.

Comet Halley will not be as spectacular as its last return in 1910. New Englanders will be able to see a fuzzy patch of light during the month of November. The months of December and January will show the comet with a short tail as it comes closer to our sun, shortly after sunset.

After this period, the comet will not be visible until February, March and April of 1986, in the pre-dawn skies. The comet's tail will be nearly fully developed but very close to the horizon. The length of Halley's Comet can, at times, reach a length of over 90 million miles. Unless you are away from the city and town lights, have an unobstructed view of the southeastern horizon, your chances of seeing this comet are slight.

Halley's Comet has an orbit around our sun of 76 years and will not return until the year 2061. The comet has been visible for over 2000 years to mankind.

The nucleus of the comet is approximately three miles in diameter, weighs about 68 billion tons, and has a speed of approximately 122,000 miles per hour when closest to our sun.

In case the sky is cloudy on the night of Nov. 15, this open house will be canceled and rescheduled at a later date.

For further information, please call Rolf Egon at 337-4729, or Matt Pickett at 337-3607, after 7 p.m.

She has left one classroom for Harvard studies different method than males.

Her Adolescent Pschology course is, according to Collins, "a scholarly approach to understanding the differences in how men and women, girls and boys" react to situations.

This class, in addition to her other courses, will help Collins fulfill her goal to comprehend and develop a strong administrative leadership and effective school.

One project she is currently involved in, allows her to see how a young child constructs thoughts, in comparison to the adolescent process. The child sees things in concrete ways, she explained, and the young teen views concepts in abstracts.

Another project this semester involves the understanding of what creates an effective school system and how schools can become better. "We look at how schools can be improved, using what is called 'effective school literature.' We look at how we can make schools better and what is needed. For instance, a good leader allows his or her staff to have ownership in the decisions affecting that school -making the staff a part of the organization and its programs," she said, adding that the greater the expectations are placed upon the students, the higher the success rate of that school and its students.

"It's so important to have an orderly environment - a place where the child is at peace and can learn. And it's important the child's work be monitored, and frequently. Basic skills must also be taught," she continued. "A good administrator will see where his staff may be weak, or needs help. The administrator should be there to help fill the gaps created when the child has not followed the step-by-step learning process."

Curriculum studies also fill part of Collins's four-day week at Harvard. Part of a project requires her to develop a high school curriculum. Once again, she is studying with a long-respected authority on that subject, Donald Oliver. His class at Harvard is entitled, "Philosophy of Education."

Another addition to the renowned staff at Harvard is a former assistant to Piaget, Eleanor Duckworth. "This year is a unique opportunity for me to learn many new ideas with people I have read about, and respected for a long time," Collins said.

Her days in Cambridge are supplemented by one day as an administrative intern at Duxbury High School. There, Collins is learning the "real world" environment of high school academia with Principal Dr. John Hill.

The cost of such an education is grand indeed, Collins admitted, assisted by half payment from the Cohasset school system. She could have attended another institution at far less expense, but, Collins said, "My husband and I decided that cost would not be the determining factor. The other programs were very good, but the one at Harvard provides a unique opportunity to learn."

Weekends are generally spent poring over original documents written by the philosophers of education. Thus far, Collins herself has written "at least" ten papers for her various courses.

Her plans for the future are not as firm as her determination to complete the Harvard studies. She would "love" to remain in Cohasset, ultimately attaining her goal as a school administrator.

"I don't see sex being an issue. Competence is the issue," Collins responded when asked if she has witnessed discrimination in school systems toward female administrators. "People really believe that someone should get a job, not because she is a woman, and she shouldn't be denied it because she is a woman. Someone should become a school administrator because that person is capable of running an effective school."

In the meantime, Collins is absorbing all the knowledge she can from her texts, teachers and associates. "I am learning to think in new and different ways," she said. "Learning is a lifelong process and it doesn't stop because we've graduated, have married, or have children. Adult education is very important."

Narrative history of Cohasset now available

During the 19th century several South Shore communities produced definitive history books of their towns. The early years of the century saw publication of Dean's history of Scituate and the compilation of an early Hingham history by Solomon Lincoln.

In the latter 1800s the monumental four volume set covering the entire history and genealogy of Hingham was compiled by George Lincoln, and a town history and genealogy of Hanover was written by historian Jedediah Dwelley.

In 1894 the move to compile and write a town history spread to Cohasset, where at Town Meeting of March 5, it was voted to establish a Committee on Town History. The committee's first six members, chosen at that meeting, were: The Reverand Joseph Osgood who for more than 50 years had been pastor of the town's original First Parish; the Reverand E. Victor Bigelow of the Second Congregational Church; Dr. Oliver H. Howe, prominent local historian who would become, years later, one of the founders of the Cohasset Historical Society; Beechwood historian and prominent public figure Aaron Pratt, Esquire, known as "Squire" Pratt; Newcomb Bates Tower, owner of the town's largest maritime business and Town Clerk; and Edward Pomeroy Collier, son of Cohasset's most illustrious "Deep Sea Captain," Capt. James Collier, Jr. Given authority to enlarge its own membership, the Committee added citizens Ira B. Pratt and George Collier to its group. The latter was another son of Capt. James Collier.

Within two years, the Committee on History amassed a large collection of documents and artifacts relating to Cohasset's past, and had begun to consider the writing and publishing of a comprehensive history of the town. Committee member Bigelow volunteered to do the writing, using information compiled by the members of the committee. Each was assigned a specific area of town history, to form the various chapters of the book.

The committee then read each section as it was presented at meetings. Proven facts and verifiable traditions were included in the new book. Long hours of research and extensive culling of historical records were needed to insure accuracy. For two centuries, Cohasset had been an agricultural and maritime community, with shipbuilding, fishing and commerce as its main industries.

By the time the town's history was being written, however, far-reaching changes had already begun. The shipyards at "Ship Cove" were gone, so were the mackerel schooner fleets, and only the very last of the "Deep Sea Captains" of Cohasset were still living. The community was on its way to becoming a modern big-city suburb. The Town History Committee was well aware that much of the story of early Cohasset would be lost if not soon preserved in writing.

Thus it was that, chapter by chapter, beginning with the town's underlying granite ledge geology, extending to the new settlers' first arrival in the late 1600s, through its development first as part of its parent town of Hingham then later as a separate and individual town, and finally "up to date" in 1898, Rev. Bigelow's book took final form.

In all, the book was a committee undertaking with Bigelow providing the final writing in a uniquely flowing narrative style. The various chapters of Bigelow's "Narrative History of the Town of Cohasset, Massachusetts" explore such topics as "How the Soil Came" (the story of the ancient glacial epochs); "The Aborigines" (the Quonahassit Indians from whom the town finally took its name); "The 'Quonahassit' Pioneers" (earliest visits by Hingham settlers); "Dividing the Land" (the 1670 land division of the Conahasset upland); and "The First Homes" (early Hingham families who settled in Conahasset).

Also included is the story of the town's separation from Hingham, the growth of its earliest industries, the development of its earliest churches, schools and libraries, its participation in the new nation's wars for survival, and its growth and decline as a seafaring and maritime community.

The story of shipwrecks, lifesaving, and of Minot's Ledge Lighthouse were presented in detail. The "Narrative History" was ready for publication by early in 1898. At this time the venerated chairman of the committee, Rev. Osgood, died and Newcomb B. Tower succeeded to the chairmanship as the book went to press. A promotional flyer issued by the committee noted that the new volume "starts with the formation of the granite rock; and follows the romance of nature and of human life which has transpired here. This is the only history of our town ever written, and the committee in charge of the matter desire to place it within reach of every household."

The book appeared in late 1898 to be greeted both of acclaim and by some constructive criticism. The Rev. Bigelow copywrighted the volume in his own name on Dec. 15, 1898, then on Jan. 18, 1901 assigned the copywright to the Committee on Town History. That original printing of Bigelow's "Narrative History" soon was sold out and the book became increasingly difficult to obtain. Then a limited reprint was issued in 1970 as part of Cohasset's own Bicentennial celebration.

Now a second reprint has been made in the form of a commemorative volume by the Cohasset Historical Society. The Bigelow book remains the definitive history of early Cohasset, and its 19th century narrative style renders it not only a superlative source of historical information but a delight to the reader as well.

"The Narrative History of the Town of Cohasset, Massachusetts" by the Rev. E. Victor Bigelow makes a truly distinctive and thoughtful gift for the coming holiday season — or for any other occasion calling for a gift of unique and fitting value.

Bigelow's History may be obtained by calling the Cohasset Historical Society at 383-6930 or 383-0773, or at Fleming's, Cohasset Center. The cost is $20 plus $1 state tax.

All proceeds from sales of the book go to the Historical Society for the maintenance of its historical museums and for the continuance of its programs within the community and on the South Shore.

Town officials calmly discuss landfill operation and John Barry emphasized they regularly monitor the contents of the trucks passing into their business. It was never their intention to allow the cargo into the landfill, they said, and they have so informed Browning, Ferris Inc.

"I don't want hazardous materials in my landfill," John Barry stated. "We are livid at BFI." He explained that BFI has been sent a written reprimand by the Barry brothers, and if such an incident occurred again, they would refuse to allow them future use of the landfill.

Atty. Bill Coyne, representing the Barrys', explained the corporate structure of the company. Thirteen years ago, the brothers formed Barry Brothers Inc., a local hauling business with a total of 25 trucks. In February, 1983, they formed another coporation entitled Cohasset Heights Ltd. and purchased the Crocker Lane landfill. They were two separate entities. Two and a half years ago, there was a merger between Barry Brothers Inc. and BFI. The resulting corporation is BFI, and Barry Brothers Inc. is no longer in existence with all assets transferred to BFI.

"I'm concerned that Cohasset Heights Ltd. took a lot of media abuse because of what BFI did," John Barry stated. "It's getting to be very tedious. And I'm concerned about something I do not want in my landfill."

In response to a question from Special Town Counsel Michael Leone, Barry explained that a physical inspection of every haul occurs before it is allowed within the landfill. He admitted there was no failsafe method to guard against the illegal disposal of hazardous wastes.

Atty. Leone suggested that a contract between the landfill operators and the hauling businesses could specify the prohibition of certain wastes and products. "Perhaps through contract incentives, they will know you mean business," Leone stated.

Cohasset Heights Ltd. attorney Tony Murphy agreed with the proposal and suggested that tool could be used between the landfill owners and all the hauling firms.

Board of Health member Dr. C. Michael Bliss asked whether there could be a financial resource, such as a bond, which would allow the operators to check the truck contents regularly. If hazardous materials were found, the operators would then be able to turn the haulers away.

"If this abuse happens in the future," John Barry responded, "I have no qualms about letting them go."

He had earlier explained that the truck drivers are strictly instructed to inspect their haul, and that they have the right to refuse customers. As the engineer representing the landfill owners stated, what was intended for deposit Oct. 24 was "like throwing away three cans of Drano. They have to rely on the haulers not to bring into the landfill any hazardous materials. But there is nothing you can do but eyeball it."

When Dr. Bliss asked whether a secret deal could be made between a hauler and his customer "and he mixes in some hazardous materials with his roadside stuff, is thereany way you can tell?"

Paul Barry answered by saying only large quantities would give a certain appearance or color to attract attention of an inspector.

"That same type of illegality would not be more far fetched than the same thing happening" at the town's public landfill on Cedar Street, according to Atty. Murphy.

John Barry noted how the equipment and engineering techniques used at the site are state of the art. "We've done our best with them (BFI) and have done everything to police the situation," he said, noting that prior to 1970, most municipal landfills allowed all types of materials to be deposited.

Paul Barry then asked Water Commissioner Pratt, "It seems you feel we should have some type of monitoring system there?"

"I don't feel you should be there at all," he responded, adding a list of several issues the commission has sought answers to in recent months.

"Our basic point is that it is an improper site assignment and we do not want the expansion or its continued operation," he answered.

In an earlier discussion with Atty. Murphy, Pratt attempted to clarify the commission's opinion of the landfill operation.

"The Water Commission has issued a request to town counsel through selectmen to see that Cohasset Heights ceases and desists operation and that certain remedial actions be taken to protect the town's water supply which is in peril by the past and present actions of Cohasset Heights Ltd. We have also asked that it be enforced with all deliberate speed," he stated.

It has been the contention of the commission that part of the Cohasset Heights property is located on town watershed property. And the commission has also determined the conclusions of an engineering report by Camp, Dresser and McKee have supported the theory that contaminated leachate is flowing from the landfill into nearby watershed land and private wells feeding into James Brook.

Atty. Murphy suggested that he meet with the commission to discuss CDM's evaluation and the town's proposed watershed map.

"My review of the first draft of the CDM report (the only copy Atty. Murphy had yet been given) would not lead me to conclude with what you have suggested tonight," he said.

Atty. Leone, representing the town in this dispute, also acknowledged that the town had learned just that night about plans to initiate a complicated engineering system to divert contaminated groundwater back into the landfill. With better communication between the two sides, there will not likely be a gap in the information provided, he said.

But Pratt noted "had the previous owners of the landfill asked today for use of the land adjacent to watershed, they would not have got it. The Water Commission feels this is an atrocious landuse of a public watershed."

Children welcome to Village Fair activities

Children will once again be "Very Important Persons" and the focus of many of the attractions at this year's Cohasset Village Fair, a major event of the Holiday season to be held in buildings around the Cohasset Common Saturday, Dec.7, from10a.m. to 3 p.m.

From "grabs" to Santa Claus, face-painting to a secret room just for small fry, the Fair will offer a range of tempting goodies for children while parents shop for Christmas gifts, decorations, bargains and taste treats at the many booths and tables in the Town Hall and other Common buildings.

Gail Bell, working with three assistants from the First Parish congregation, heads the Central Committee organizing the Fair this year. Making up the committee are representatives of the five participating churches: Unitarian, Second Congregational, St. Stephen's Episcopal, St. Anthony's and Panagia Greek Orthodox.

Returning as the principal center of children's activities at the Fair this year will be the Community Center where youth groups recruited from the participating churches by Dot Gammon, a Central Committee member from St. Stephen's, will stage a variety of events and features appealing to youngsters.

Enthusiastic and imaginative face-painters under the direction of Avis Sweeney will be indulging the youngsters' fantasies and turning them into clowns and gargoyles to go forth on to the Common.

In the planning stages are story-telling sessions to keep small fry amused while mothers and fathers tour the other Fair features, and other activities that will turn the Community Center into a lively, exciting attraction for children.

Building on highly successful experiences in the past several years, the Secret Room for children will be further expanded this year, moving into two rooms on the second floor of the Congregational Church annex. Lilliam Ketchum heads a group of volunteers that has been making and assembling gift items that can be modestly priced to be bought by children for their family members. In this feature, admission to the room is limited to those 12 and under so that they can shop in private for Mom, Dad, brothers and sisters, aunts and uncles.

Workers with Mrs. Ketchum on this ambitious project include Lee Jenkins, Gail Whitehouse, Barbara Hislop, Ann Vanderweil, Carol Riley, Kathy Wolsh, Nancy Connolly, and Chris Whoriskey. Together they expect to have as many as 700 items available on Fair Day so that no youngster will be disappointed.

No Village Fair would be complete without the presence of Santa Claus who has promised Jeff Steele that he will arrive by fire engine about 10:45 a.m. to be established in his evergreen bower on the Common from 11 to 2 p.m. With Mrs. Steele and her partner, Margaret Young, assisting, Santa will be available in this sleigh to take orders from tots and to pose with them for Polaroid pictures that become favorite gifts for grandparents.

Adding to the festive air of the day will be the multi-hued balloons to be inflated and merchandised by a group headed by Kathy Brennock.

Of special interest to children and parents alike will be the Children's Table which traditionally occupies a place of honor in the Town Hall. Under the general chairmanship of Barbara Mullett, groups of workers in the individual churches have been fashioning a store of babies' and children's clothing and novelty items such as stuffed toys, crib blankets, doll clothes, sweaters, and dresses. Kathy McGrath heads the Children's Table group in the Greek church while Adeline McGrath, Goldie Langel and Frances O'Toole are among the workers at St. Anthony's.

Also scheduled for the Town Hall will be the tempting feature of Grabs, where a collection of wrapped mystery treasures assembled by a group under Dawn Vivian will be available to young chance takers.

Another standard Fair feature with appeal to young and old alike will be the Bargain Bazaar in the Unitarian Parish House. For weeks now, contributions of used but still serviceable items have been deposited in the basement of St. Anthony's Rectory and will be transported and put on sale Dec. 7. The items include a range of sports equipment, games, tools, small appliances, kitchenware, etc.

To satisfy immediate appetites of children will be the Snack Bar presided over as in the past by Phil Shockman and Jack Riley, and offering hot dogs and soft drinks, Rod and Marilyn Hobson will again operate their productive and popular popcorn machine, while for those with a yen for more substantial food, the Chowder Bar and Greek salad operations will be doing business in the Congregational Church vestry.

Working closely with Mrs. Bell at the head of the Central Committee are three fellow parishoners of the First Parish: Lucy Marsac, Megan Phelps and Ruth Wilcox. Representatives from the individual churches to the Central Committee are: Congregational, Annette Sawchuk and Ruth Nedrow; St. Anthony's Goldie Langel, Adeline McGrath and Frances O'Toole; Greek Orthodox, Maria Barber; First Parish, Shelley Weier. Charles Costas is treasurer, and Dolores Roy, secretary.

What's the REAL RETURN on Your Savings Certificate?

It may surprise you to learn that interest rates may look alike .... but interest payments may NOT all be alike!

The method a bank uses to compute its interest may make a significant difference in the amount of interest payment you receive.

Take this very typical example (let's use an 8½% Annual Rate for comparison):

Annual Rate	EFFECTIVE ANNUAL YIELDS
	Compounded Daily (ROCKLAND TRUST METHOD) 365/360	Compounded Daily (360/360, Method)	Compounded Weekly	Compounded Monthly	Compounded Semi-Annually
8.50%	9.00%	8.87%	8.86%	8.84%	8.77%

The moral is simple: Be sure your bank is paying daily interest on the 365/360 method or be sure your account is at Rockland Trust!

Roofing — Siding — Gutters

Keep in mind late fall and early winter are excellent times to have your roof and siding repaired

There are seven good reasons to call us for your roofing needs.

We have replaced nearly 2,000 roofs on the South Shore.

We have over fifty years of collective construction experience.

Our foremen are Massachusetts State Licensed Construction Supervisors.

We are on the Board of Directors of the Northeast Roofing Council.

We were among the first five roofing companies to be certified, nationwide, by Bird, Inc.

We inspect and estimate roofs at no charge.

And, most importantly, we do the best work possible with the best materials available.

Syma offers her artistry at the Deer Hill School

By Linda Dagley
Mariner Correspondent

When you stop by this special room at the Deer Hill School, make sure you sign the guest book. And tell (at least) two people what you saw.

The room is a workshop for Syma, a Hingham artist, who is working on four low-relief mural pediments for a Boston townhouse complex. All day, students and teachers stop by to offer advice, ask questions and gaze at Syma's intricate artistry.

When Syma, who worked as an artist-in-residence at the school last year, was asked by architect Vcavy Strekalovsky to redesign the pediments for the Symphony Road townhouse, she needed to find a big enough workshop.

"I decided the classroom I had worked in last year was ideal. So I called the principal, Ken Ekberg, and asked him if he knew of any empty classrooms I could use. He immediately offered me this one again," she says.

Both artist and students love the arrangment.

Their enthusiasm is great !" says Syma. "It's terrific for me. The kids are excited and its exciting to show them the possibilities that can come from what they did."

Last year, Syma directed the students in making the terra-cotta friezes which now decorate the school lobby.

"It's a privilege to have her here today," says Matthew Tromoda, 9. "I took a class with Syma and I thought she was neat."

Colin Know and Rusty Starmier, both 12, pointed to the lines in guest book where they signed their names about a dozen times a day.

The school has turned this into a unique learning opportunity for the students.

"Teachers bring in their classes and I go through the process with them," explains Syma.

That process includes sculpting bricks to create the design, allowing them to dry and casting them in plaster. Four bricks are made from each mold as there will be a total of 16 pedim.ents. The clay is from a brickyard in Maine where they are sent back to be fired.

The designs on the pediments are a cross between Greek Revival and art nouveau.

Mr. Deon's sixth grade class is incoporating Syma's project into their own studies on Ancient Greece. Acting as scribes, Matthew Tromada and Kristin Grassey, 10, were there to assess progress in "Syma's Scribbles," a daily log compiled by the class.

"They asked me what they could do to help me and I didn't have the time to record the work I did each day," says Syma.

"That's so more people could know what was happening," explained Kristin.

Syma loves having the kids stop in.

"I borrow them for their noses, and show them what I am doing. Sometimes they offer their criticism. I was having a problem with one design and one boy told me the eyes on one of my models were too big. He was right," she adds.

"They help in other ways too," she continues. "Fifth grader Charles Shedd spent a whole afternoon cutting bricks for me."

Another student claims he is the one who had to wash the floor.

Syma doesn't know exactly when the project will be completed. But she will be at the school until Nov. 27 for anyone who is interested in stopping by.

In the meantime, some of the terra-cotta pottery she made last year at Deer Hill will be on display at the Federal Reserve Bank in Boston exhibit.

An attentive audience listens and watches as Syma explains her technique to students (l to r) Anne Lindgren, grade 4, Heidi Lincoln, grade 6, and Charlie Shields, 6.

THE BEST OF ENGLAND COMES TO NEW ENGLAND

'Little village' writings offer readers cherished tidbits

By Peggy Beals
Mariner Correspondent

"Old age is priceless: you can't borrow it, you can't steal it you can't earn it, you can't inherit it, you can't merit it, so if you're fortunate enough to attain it, for Heaven's sake, enjoy it, and stop complaining!"

CROMPTON HODNET, by Barbara Pym, is an early, entertaining novel of this rediscovered English author. Sometimes the reprinting of early things, when later works have brought fame, is a pitiful attempt to milk the public, but this one isn't.

It's set at Oxford University, where a tight circle of academically related people extract nourishment from each other's doings.

The idealistic student, romantic about her tutor, the avid librarian cherishing tidbits to take home to mother, the spinster ladies and their boarder, the handsome curate, are recorded through a year of hopes, encounters, disappointments and hopes again, but in a quite short book.

Wonderful woman, to be so good and so short. She views her people through a microscope, to craft vivid little societies to delight her many fans.

The little village concept is popular in fiction, indeed, in fact, too. In THE WOMEN OF PEASENHALL, by R.J. White, Det. Brock notes wryly that people from Peasenhall travel to Africa to do anthropological studies of the natives but would save time and money by opening their eyes to the goings-on in their native village.

Whereupon he, in the course of detached detecting, takes the lid off tiny, one-street Peasenhall to show ancient practices very much directing the events leading to the murder of a servant and the acquittal of the prime suspect.

R.J. White is a history don at Cambridge Univ. I read his THE SMARTEST GRAVE some years ago with such pleasure I remembered it when many mysteries slide rapidly into oblivion. The Peasenhall book is based on a famous British crime in 1902.

A reader complains, "You should stick to reviewing books that are available to me in the nearest library!" I found the Peasenhall when Dorothy Amore Pilla's soft sculpture exhibit drew me to the Duxbury library. I found the exhibit delightful, and the library so pleasant I asked if out-of-town people could use it. Yes! Joyful news, for no one library can buy them all, and this arrangement gives us a wide selection within reasonable range. I headed for favorite authors and found several titles our libraries don't have. Perhaps my frustrated reader will do the same.

Back to little villages, Agatha Christie's Miss Marple has, like Thoreau, "travelled widely" in her vilage of St. Mary Mead, and learnt it is a microcosm of the world. Jane Austen extolled villages, perhaps because getting away from them was harder then. A British author recently described himself as an outcast from the society of Janeites because he prefers PERSUASION to EMMA. PRIDE AND PREJUDICE has been so popular it's almost disdained, but they're fun all.

Hopping to New England, readers continue to appreciate the little Cape Cod villages as depicted by Joseph Lincoln and Sara Ware Bassett, gentle reading soothing as warm milk and a welcome respite from an oft-jangling world. Sarah Orne Jewett's COUNTRY OF THE POINTED FIRS and others of the Maine coastal villages are a gentle and quieter still. Her house in So. Berwick, Maine was threatened by lack of funds a few years ago but I believe was saved by the valient efforts of friends and may be visited.

Three other thinking-small efforts I treasure. In the Victoria and Albert Museum in London there's a fascinating book, amateur in every sense. The parson of a little village had "a literary bent" and set out to document the individuals in his parish, capturing them, in the pages of a crude scrapbook, in colored pictures and handlettered descriptions. It is charming, the more endearing because he was interested enough in each person to think them worth the work.

Shrinking the field further, Jean Henri Fabre, French naturalist, whose home is now a museum, wrote an entire book some years ago, and the title escapes me, of what he observed in one square foot of his yard!

A Scituate friend, an artist, expecting to be close to home for a time, set out to do the same for her yard, describing and illustrating its flora and fauna. She spoke of the project apologetically, as if afraid she might be criticized for selfish use of her time. Later we learned of the infinitely delightful COUNTRY DIARY OF AN EDWARDIAN LADY which has given so much pleasure to many.

The Dragon's Dungeon

By Claire McDonough

How many shopping days till Christmas?

"I can't stand it," Fauna moaned. "There's a cardboard Santa Claus outside one of the stores at Harborlight Mall; there is a tree with Christmas lights on 3A in Weymouth; I heard "Frosty the Snowman" on elevator musak the other day, and it isn't even Thanksgiving yet."

"I know," I agreed. "I think they do it to make those of us who wait till the last minute to do anything about Christmas feel guilty. Whenever I see Christmas paraphernalia in July or hear "Silver Bells" in September, I'm vaguely aware of all those industrious souls out there shopping, wrapping and hiding presents. To say nothing of making lists and writing Christmas cards."

Flora smiled. "I," she announced smugly, "have purchased, wrapped and hidden all my Christmas presents. And I'm just about finished with my cards."

Fauna looked at her.

"Sometimes," she said evenly, "you make it very difficult to continue our friendship. When did you do your shopping?"

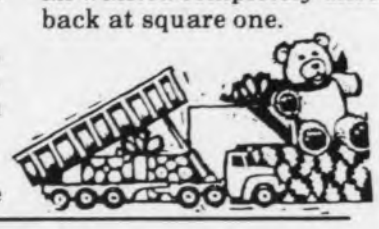
Flora looked serene. "In August. I bought everything while I was in Ireland on vacation. I had them send the things to me all wrapped."

I sighed. "Frankly, Flora," I told her, "sometimes you make me wonder if it's worth making the effort to continue our friendship. Do you mean to say you didn't have anything better to do than Christmas shop while you were on vacation? In Ireland?"

She smiled. "This may be hard for you to believe, but there are those among us who are organized. Who plan ahead. Who have our lives under our own control."

Fauna shot her a look filled with pure venom.

"I understand there are also people who know the contents of everything in their bureau drawers. People who clean the lint filters in their dryer every day. People who keep gloves in the glove compartments of their cars. People who always know where their car keys are. But personally I think it's sick."



She turned to me. "Didn't you get your Christmas shopping done awfully early one year?"

I nodded. "Two years, actually. The first time, I decided to be really efficient. I took advantage of the after-Christmas sales, and I had everything done by mid-March. I felt wonderful. Then whenever there was a birthday, or one of the kids was invited to a party, I'd take one of the gifts and use that. By December 1, the cupboard was bare, and it was the usual frantic rush.

"The second time, I was truly crafty. Whenever the Dragon or one of the kids would mention something he or she simply had to have, I wrote it in my secret notebook. Then I'd watch for it to be on sale, buy it, wrap it, and put it away.

"I vowed I wouldn't weaken — I would use no gift before its time — and I kept my promise to myself. On December 1, I felt superior to everyone who had to rush around frantically and get exhausted. Then disaster struck.

"The stores began their customary media blitz, and they started hyping things none of my family had even considered before. By December 10 they all wanted completely different presents, and I was back at square one.

"That was when I decided that it just isn't my nature to be organized, anyway."

Fauna brightened.

"Maybe something like that will happen to Fauna," she mused. "Or even something worse."

I smiled at her.

"That's the Christmas spirit," I agreed.

FROM THE KITCHEN

by JOAN PINKHAM

Readers share favorite family recipes

Just skip this paragraph if you're a longtime reader. Every now and then I like to explain what this column is all about, for since it all began in 1972, the Mariner has grown to find its way into kitchens all over the South Shore. Our latest cooks in Randolph might like to know that when our publisher started out with the Marshfield Mariner, it wasn't too long before the Norwell Mariner became the second of today's ten papers.

We discovered there were many good cooks on the other side of the North River, so we joined forces, swapping recipes, offering suggestions and finding this column a useful medium for pooling our thoughts on cooking. Recipes are family favorites, some handed down over the years, some gourmet, some simple for beginners such as brides.

To this day, readers still ask if I try out every recipe before it is printed, and I readily admit they're not tested by white-smocked experts in sunny spotless test kitchens. But readers and their families have enjoyed what you see in print. Families being our harshest critics, if they like it, it must be good! The recipe below is one sent in by Barbara Warren when the column first began, and I've served it many times, for it makes a wonderful luncheon or buffet dish to serve eight or 10 and is called

MUSHROOM BUSINESS

3 slices bread, buttered and cubed
1 lb. mushrooms, sauteed in butter and combined with 1/2 c. each of the following, chopped: celery, onion, peppers.
Line large casserole with bread. Top with celery, onion and pepper combined with:
1/2 c. mayonnaise
Salt and pepper to taste.
Top with 3 more slices cubed bread
Beat together:
1 ½ c. milk
2 eggs
1 can of cream of mushroom soup.
Pour over top of casserole and refrigerate at least one hour before topping with 2 more slices of cubed bread. Bake in 325 over for 65 min.

This is your written invitation to join in the fun. Even if you're bashful about sending in household tips or your husband's favorite barbecuing secrets, call or write about a friend who delights in cooking. Food can conjure up memories and Helen Melvin writes that the Ladies' Circle of the First Baptist Church will always think of their late member, Sylvia Monroe Young, when they make the following dish for one of their famous summer luncheons they've served for many years. Helen says Sylvia was a faithful worker, so in her memory we're calling this recipe

SYLVIA'S CASSEROLE

1 lb. cooked elbow macaroni
2 green peppers, chopped
2 cans each corn beef, crumbled, cream style corn and cream of celery soup

To make two medium casseroles, mix all ingredients, adding enough milk so casserole won't dry out when heated in a 350° oven until hot and bubbly. Top with crumbs. Spam, leftover or cooked meat may be substituted.

The wholesome, nourishing meals served by the Ladies' Circle have people lining up on the first and third Wednesdays from April to October each year. Unfortunately, the women who do all the cooking, set up the tables, serve and clean up afterwards, now number only about six. They deserve a lot of credit for their efforts in serving dishes such as this popular favorite called

TEXAS HASH

2 large onions, sliced
2 green peppers, cut fine
Saute in 3 T. shortening until soft
Add 1 lb. ground beef, saute for a few minutes
2 c. canned tomatoes
1/2 c. uncooked rice
Salt, pepper and chili sauce to taste

Place in covered casserole. Bake at 350° approximately 45 minutes.

NOTE: Frozen onions and peppers may be substituted.

Just about everyone in bridge club is looking for ways to use their new microi-wave ovens to the max and suggestions and recipes from our readers would be welcome. Also, with Thanksgiving looming, please share with our readers your family's favorite holiday recipe. Margaret Varnerin is looking for a recipe for apple bread, one I don't have, do you? If you care to contribute to our column, notes and recipes will reach me at Box 25, Marshfield Hills 02051.

THE BOSS SNOWPLOW
BY ADVENTURE PRODUCTS, INC.
Chassell, Michigan 49916

Carry Position moves up to three times the volume of snow per pass that a straight blade can move. Excellent position for cleaning snow from in and around obstacles such as cars, buildings, etc.

Plunges through drifted snow like a county plow. Less wind resistance when traveling.

Notice finger tip plow control to the right of steering column. Operator is pulling lever that disengages plow from under carriage. No more crawling under truck to remove pins.

FEATURES

Hinged blade assumes five positions
Quick and easy installation
Double lift chain
Easy connect/disconnect of plow to undercarriage
Inside blade release control
Hydraulic cylinders retracted when stored to protect against rust
Low wind resistance when traveling with plow up
Greater maneuverability in tight quarters
Blade guides
High under[illegible]ge to ground clearance

vol. VIII, no. 8 | 383-6731/545-7060 | thursday, november 21, 1985 | 2 sections | 35 cents

Selectmen choose Southboro man as chief

Rather than accept the Fire Chief Search Committee's first choice, selectmen decided to offer the position of Cohasset Fire Chief to Daniel Brock of Southboro.

It was a unanimous decision by selectmen Monday night to offer the job to Brock, a Southboro Fire Department captain, at an annual salary of $34,000.

Citing Brock's extensive education, experience and "enthusiasm for his profession," selectmen decided to pass over the search committee's primary choice and offer the position to the man who was ranked second to Cohasset Capt. Mark Trask.

Speaking before a large audience gathered to hear the announcement, selectmen said they were swayed by the recommendations Brock received when they visited his hometown. As the board members quickly concluded the unanimous vote, about a dozen firefighters and several others rose from their seats and left the meeting.

Gathered outside in the cold, members of the firefighters' union were asked their opinion of the choice. No one would comment on selectmen's actions.

After the meeting, Selectmen Chairman Frank England noted that Brock had received a perfect score on the examination administered by an independent fire consultant. It was that factor, his subsequent interview with the board, and the high recommendations he received from the Southboro community, that determined their choice for fire chief, England said.

Oct. 21, the search committee gave the board its list of five final candidates for the position. Nov. 6 and 7, selectmen conducted interviews of the five candidates and then narrowed the field to three which included Trask, Brock, and Edward Hartin of Mashpee.

The board members then conducted extensive background checks and talked with the candidates' immediate supervisors in their hometowns. Chairman England visited Southboro and Mashpee, he said, where he talked with local selectmen about the candidates from those communities. Diane Sullivan also visited Mashpee and Cliff Mitman and Mary Jane McArthur talked with local officials during their trip to Southboro.

At Monday night's meeting, England opened an envelope containing a statement from Selectman Mitman. He was unable to attend the meeting, and

School articles down to two

The school department has whittled down its Town Meeting requests to two.

The school committee decided last week that the town is being besieged with enough pleas for financial assistance, so they withdrew one article from the Dec. 9 warrant.

That article requested $10,000 to complete repairs to the high school auditorium. Supt. Eugene Crowell explained that custodial crews had worked through the summer on needed repairs to the auditorium. But when Hurricane Gloria struck town, workmen were assigned elsewhere, leaving the school auditorium in disrepair.

In fact, the school budget was exceeded by $3500 because of the Hurricane - with cafeteria, custodial crews and administrators working round-the-clock to prepare the evacuation center.

Rather than continuing the auditorium repairs as originally planned, the superintendent will request a $3000 budget transfer to cover the cost of reaholstering half the auditorium seats, painting the hall, and installing new lights and carpeting.

"We haven't finished negotiating a contract with the teachers, and the committee felt it wasn't fair to put this additional request before the town," Supt. Crowell explained, adding that the interim repairs will alleviate the dilapidated condition of the auditorium.

What the committee will request at the Dec. 9 meeting are two issues relating to the state School Improvement Act of 1985.

One article will seek a total of $2,050 which will be used to increase all teacher salaries to a minimum of $18,000. This is an option created through Chapter 188 - the School Improvement Act, in an effort to make all school systems competitive and attractive to teachers seeking positions in public schools.

As Supt. Crowell explained, this portion of the law, Sections 16 and 17, will only affect one teacher in the Cohasset school system, and only until June 30. The bottom salary schedule for Cohasset teachers is currently $15,100, but all teachers will be at $18,000 by FY 87. Until that time, one elementary interim teacher is $2,050 below that level. She will be leaving that position the end of June, Supt. Crowell explained, and the adjustment will no

CHS reporter a true superstar

By Jane Lane
Mariner Staff

If it hadn't been for an anonymous tipster, the Mariner would have been left in the dark on this hot story. Even our own Cohasset High School sports reporter wouldn't call us on this one.

It's not that Lisa Shumaker isn't a sharp reporter. She's the most reliable writer on staff.

Our guess is that Lisa failed to tell us that a member of the Cohasset girls' field hockey team was named Channel 7's Player of the Week because she's shy, unassuming, and not fond of public accolades.

So we're going to do it for her. With all the fanfare we can muster, we our proud to announce that (the Mariner's) Lisa Shumaker was named last week as WNEV-TV's Superstar 7.

For those of you lucky enough to catch last Thursday night's (Nov. 14) 6 p.m. broadcast, Lisa and the CHS field hockey team were featured in a sports segment called Superstar 7. Frank Shorr, producer of the feature, explained the contest has been on-going for more than a year.

Each week, the Boston television station solicits nominations for the weekly superstar contest. The candidates are screened, as Shorr said, "for their talents and abilities on and off the playing field. They have to be just as good in other activities and in academics, as they are on the field."

Lisa certainly qualified for that. The eleventh grade student has been ranked number one in her class since the ninth grade. Sports reporter Bobby Estill gained some insight into Lisa's quiet precociousness when he remarked at her ability to deftly handle questions on camera. She quickly remarked to him after the interview, "Well, someday I might have your job."

Lisa is interested in a future in journalism - but not in television. She is fond of the print media and hopes someday to pursue that profession. While in school, she remains occupied by writing the high school sports results each week for the Mariner.

Her other interests, which all revolve around sports, includes field hockey, basketball, softball, and sailing in the summer. During the summer months, Lisa teaches sailing at the Cohasset Sailing Club.

Her favorite sport? "Whatever sport I happen to be playing at that moment," she honestly assessed. "I'm probably best at field hockey. I am a goalie - I have been since I started playing in the eighth grade. The only reason I became a goalie is that they were recruiting them at that time. In the eighth grade I started after I saw my first game. I guess you could say it was a freak accident that I became a goalie."

An inexperienced observer would be startled to witness the rough play by these girls in skirts. While Channel 7 filmed their last game played at the state tournament last Wednesday, Lisa could be viewed possessively protecting the Cohasset goal. She lunged from one end of the net to the other, falling to the ground frequently to prevent a score from the opposing Oliver Ames High School.

"Yes, it gets rough," Lisa said in a genuine understatement. "But I don't really worry about it. If a player touches me, the whistle blows and they are penalized. Besides, I have all the padding."

Coach Gino DiGirolamo explained to the Channel 7 reporter that he frequently puts Lisa through practices similar to a hockey player. In fact, Lisa said he often has her lie down while teammates shoot the ball into the net behind her. It's up to Lisa

Vietnam Vets convention

State Rep. Mary Jeanette Murray (R) 3rd Plymouth District is urging all Vietnam Veterans to attend the fifth Annual Convention in Boston. Sponsored by the Vietnam Veterans of Massachusetts, Inc.

The Convention will be held Dec. 6 through the 8 at the Parker House.

A reception will be held Friday evening. Continental breakfasts will be served Saturday and Sunday with a special luncheon planned for Saturday. A Sunday Dignitary brunch and a POW/MIA Candlelight Ceremony are also included, as well as other activities.

For more details and reservations contact Daniel Whitcher, Executive Director of Vietnam Veterans of Massachusetts, Inc., Room 19A, State House, Boston, Massachusetts 02133, 722-2571.

MIA flag presented

Selectmen were presented Monday night with the black and white flag symbolizing the 2500 U.S. servicemen still listed as Missing in Action. The flag will be flown day and night from the flagpole at the Veteran's Memorial across from the Common.

The symbolic flag was presented to the board by Al Hallenbrook of Scituate, a member of the Massachusetts Vietnam Veterans Era Association. In his brief presentation to Chairman Frank England, Hallenbrook noted there are 2500 servicemen still listed as Missing in Action. Fifty seven men from Massachusetts are on the list, he added.

"This flag is a symbol of our awareness of the 2500 men still missing," Hallenbrook told selectmen. "We want you to fly this daily."

Chairman England accepted the flag in the town's behalf, saying, "We certainly appreciate and accept it humbly. We hope the day comes when this will be all over."

Robinson and Murray work for surtax repeal

House Republican Leader William G. Robinson joined Representative Mary Jeanette Murray (R-Cohasset) last Saturday in Hingham and Cohasset to collect signatures for the initiative petition to repeal the ten year old 7½ percent surtax on the state income tax.

Robinson has been traveling around the state joining other state and local officials and citizens who are working to collect the 61,508 signatures required by November 20 to put the surtax issue on the 1986 ballot.

"Thanks to the efforts of Representative Murray and others in Hingham and Cohasset, citizens may have the chance to decide whether they want to get rid of the surtax," said Robinson. "We still are a long way, however, from the required number of signatures to put the issue on the ballot—and time is running short!"

Capital budget requests

Executive Secretary Donald Andrew told selectmen he had met with members of the Capital Budget Committee to review budget requests from the Board of Selectmen.

Andrew said he discussed selectmen's future plans to reclapboard the Bates Building on Elm Street, the proposed addition to Town Hall and several other minor renovations within the building, and the proposal for a town garage.

"They took everything under advisement," Andrew said, explaining that the Capital Budget Committee must now prioritize requested items from all departments in next year's budget.

School contract talks

No conclusions were reached during negotiations held Tuesday between the teacher's union and the school committee.

Although both sides had expressed hope that this would be the final session and a contract would be finalized, the meeting was called off at 2 p.m. with no agreement reached.

Union President George Fortin said the teachers had been "very hopeful" that a contract would be signed by the end of the day. "We are very close," he said Tuesday night. "But not close enough. At this point, nothing further has been scheduled. I think both sides will go back and talk now."

The teachers have been working without a contract since July 1, and have been negotiating with the school administrators for more than a year.

Supt. Eugene Crowell had expressed the same hope earlier this week that an agreement could be finalized.

After Tuesday's long meeting, Fortin said, "at this point, I'm not sure where we're going."

Warning for Chamber

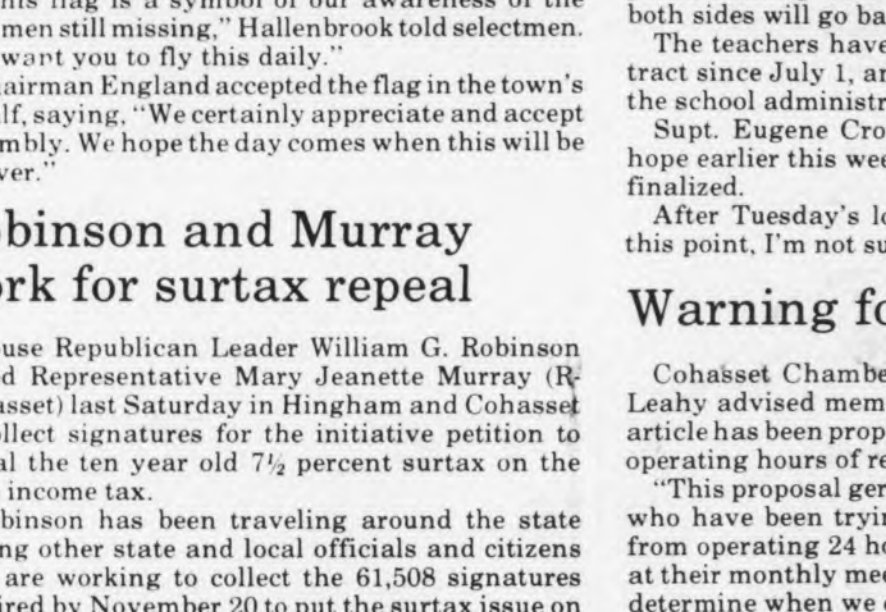
Cohasset Chamber of Commerce member Dan Leahy advised members last week that a warrant article has been proposed which intends to limit the operating hours of retail businesses in town.

"This proposal germinated from the same people who have been trying to stop the Stop and Shop from operating 24 hours," he told the membership at their monthly meeting. "They want to be able to determine when we can operate. This sort of thing lends itself to a hidden anti-business climate."

Leahy told the Chamber members to keep apprised of the article scheduled for the Dec. 9 warrant. "Town Counsel has advised that this sort of thing has stood up in court," he added. "This is a potentially-damaging bylaw change which will affect all retail businesses."

South Metro meeting

Selectmen have been invited to attend a meeting Thursday, Nov. 21 of the South Metro Council.



Ten communities have voted, through their selectmen, to participate in the South Shore Incentive Aid application, according to Senator William Golden.

The agenda for the Nov. 21 meeting will include submission of names for the new regional council, and a discussion of the issues critical to each participating community.

Despite problems, health board okays opening

By Linda Dagley
Mariner Correspondent

Thanks to a Board of Health decision Monday night, the opening of J. Bildner's & Son went on as scheduled Tuesday, despite an incomplete septic system. The Board also unanimously approved plans to reconstruct the septic system at the KoKo Island Restaurant on Route 3A.

In a 2-1 vote, the Board decided to allow J. Bildner & Sons to utilize a completed septic tank and grease tank as holding tanks until Dec. 9.

Bildner's agreed to suspend food preparation in their commissary which accounts for a major part of their waste production. They also agreed to check the tanks daily and pump them as needed.

Representatives of Bildner's stated that they had been working steadily on the septic system since approval was granted in July, but were unable to complete it in time for their opening.

James Bildner, Jr., president, said delay of the opening would put them in significant financial hardship.

Engineer Ron Erikson outlines two proposals for the board. The first plan involved hooking up the store to the existing leaching field which services the rest of the plaza.

Upon the recommendation of Health Agent Joseph Godzik, the Board agreed upon the second plan to use the holding tanks.

"I've been vacillating between the two plans but it is better to utilize the two tanks than to hook up to the leaching field," Godzik said.

Chairman Barbara Kern opposed the approval saying she did not see significant facts for a hardship case.

"We should not have to change our rules," said

No SEMASS for Cohasset trash

The Disposal Area Study Committee has been advised that Cohasset will not be accepted into SEMASS at the reduced tipping fee rate. SEMASS is the Rochester waste-to-energy disposal plant which recently began construction.

Although the town was unofficially informed last month, written notice was not received until last week that Cohasset would not be included among the communities receiving preferred rates. Although the tipping fees were increased several months ago because of the cost of acid gas scrubber installation, none of the originally-accepted communities terminated their contracts with SEMASS.

Cohasset was told last year that if some of the communities backed away from the agreement, the town would be allowed into the first level of tipping fee rates.

SEMASS President George Mallan informed selectmen Nov. 7 of the inability to accept more communities into the program. He suggested the town discuss short-term contracts with the organization, or "explore with us our plans for additional capacity in Southeastern Massachusetts."

Disposal Committee Chairman Sherry Becker said the Cohasset committee will discuss a response to Mallan's letter at its Dec. 10 meeting. At that time, she said, the committee will be receiving additional information on SEMASS from member Jeffrey Powers.

"We are also looking into other alternatives," Becker said. "We're sort of at ground floor, but we have time to explore." Becker noted that the Governor's legislation regarding landfills assures communities that the state government will take a more active role in securing disposal areas for municipalities. Becker said the town could expect some assistance through the legislation, from the state Bureau of Solid Wastes.

Bildners will file for new beer license

Using authority granted under state statute, Atty. Charles Humphreys will file a new beer and wine liquor license application for J. Bildner and Sons.

Saying his clients did not fully present their view last week during his absence, Atty. Humphreys told selectmen Monday night that he would be filing a new license application. The law allows an establishment to file for a license two times within a calendar year.

Last week, selectmen voted 3-2 to deny the beer and wine license to J. Bildner's, the gourmet-grocery store scheduled to open this week in Cushing Plaza. Atty. Humphreys explained he was detained that night while trying to return home from out of state. His associate, Roberta Sawyer, who was not familiar with the client's file, had to represent Bildner's before selectmen.

During his discussion Monday night with selectmen, Atty. Humphreys noted that certain license holders in town opposed the granting of the license to Bildner's last week. Since that time, he has discussed the matter with those merchants, and they now understand the type of market Bildner's is aiming toward.

"This is a unique operation," he told selectmen. "They will service only high quality wines - those not generally available in any other location in town.

"They are trying to rehabilitate a tired shopping center and are spending over $1 million toward that end." J. Bildner and Son is owned and managed by Windward Management, the company that recently purchased Cushing Plaza.

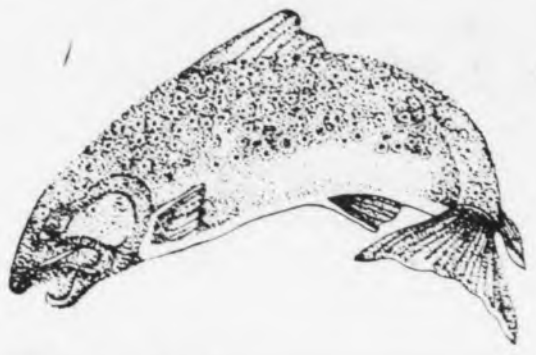
Atty. Humphreys initially asked selectmen to reconsider their previous vote. "I'd like to have the opportunity to give a fuller look at this application," he said.

During last week's presentation, James Bildner, president of J. Bildner and Son, explained that the store would not be featuring the sale of beer and wine. "We are offering it as an adjunct to our services," he said at that time.

Atty. Sawyer had noted that only 100 of 7,000 square feet of store space would be used for the sale of the beer and wine. But demographic studies conducted by Bildner's had shown that in order to remain competitive, beer and wine sales should be part of the store's merchandise.

Selectmen this week rejected a suggestion from Atty. Humphreys to reconsider the application. That option is also authorized by state statute.

Last week, selectmen were divided 3-2 on the license application. Selectmen Frank England and Diane Sullivan approved the request, while Rocco Laugelle, Mary Jane McArthur and Cliff Mitman rejected the application.



Now that the applicant intends to reapply for the license, the procedure will be repeated and all abutters will be notified of the hearing before selectmen.

State schedules mediation meeting

The state Joint Labor-Management Committee (JLMC) has schedueld a Committee Level Mediation session regarding the police association contract.

The Cohasset police union has been without a contract since July 1. The town has proposed a five percent retroactive pay increase and has submitted that proposal in the Special Town Meeting warrant for Dec. 9. The union has rejected that contract offer.

The mediation session between the police union representatives and the personnel committee and the town's labor attorney was scheduled for Wednesday, Nov. 20. This will be the second mediation session ordered by the state JLMC.

longer be needed.

"This portion of the law is, for Cohasset, small potatoes," the superintendent said. "And it will upgrade the position of the teaching status and in some aspects, attract talented, young people who have studied for four years to become a teacher.

"And truthfully, I don't want to be in the position where we aren't offering what other area schools are offering. All the local school systems are raising the salary level to $18,000 and if we don't, we may not get the type of teacher Cohasset expects to attract," he added.

The school committee will also voice their support of another section of the new state law regulating professional development grants. Section 13 of the new state law will distribute $55,670 to Cohasset in the current fiscal year, beginning Feb. 15 as a salary addition for teachers.

According to Supt. Crowell, the total distribution amounts to approximately $500 per teacher each year. The grants will be given in February and August of the current and upcoming fiscal year. As the superintendent noted, if the town fails to approve the grants, Cohasset will lose the state subsidy.

There are four parts of the grant program extended over a two-year period. Town Meeting must approve the grant program before the money is released to the town. The town is expected to receive $38,540 in FY 87.

The school committee intends to distribute the grant aide to the teachers as an addition to their salaries, not built into the negotiated base pay. In that manner, if the monies are discontinued after two years, the grant program will not cost the town anything in subsequent years.

Although the Governor and the legislature believe this is a longtime commitment to public education, the school committee does not want the grant to be built into salaries, should the financial aid be relinquished.

With approximately 100 teachers in the system, the grant will average $500 per teacher in FY 86 and $400 the following year.

Supt. Crowell explained the grant money will be sent directly to the town accountant who will establish a separate account for the funds. The money will be divided into two calendar years for distribution in February and August of those years.

'Deborah Irene' ordered out of harbor

Town Counsel Richard Henderson has ordered the vessel "Deborah Irene" out of Cohasset Harbor, and also notified Bernard Salvador that his mooring has been forfeited.

According to Executive Secretary Don Andrew, because of town counsel's directive, there is a vacancy on the mooring list and the next person will receive the space previously held by Salvador.

Reacting to a complaint from Richard Barrow of King Street, selectmen found a title report for the boat "Deborah Irene." The report indicates that the vessel has been owned by Hutt Industries, Inc. since Sept. 17, 1980.

In his notice to Salvador of Elm Court, Atty. Henderson explained that Salavador had been assigned mooring space in the harbor for "Deborah Irene" on the condition "that you or a corporation that you controlled owned that vessel.

"Since neither you nor a corporation which you control has owned the vessel for a period in excess of five years, the mooring space has been forfeited amd you are directled to remove the mooring tackle from Cohasset Harbor forthwith," Henderson stated in a letter dated Nov. 12.

In a second letter to Hutt Industries, Inc., Henderson stated the vessel is owned by Hutt Industries, according to records provided to the Board of Selectmen. "No mooring permit has ever been issued to Hutt Industries, Inc. to moor the 'Deborah Irene' within Cohasset harbor," the letter stated.

Atty. Henderson concluded that the "Deborah Irene" must be removed from the harbor "or a Court order will be sought to accomplish that end."

to rise quickly enough to block the ball from getting into the net.

"There's a lot of diving," Lisa said, describing how a goalie reacts to the game. "But it's kind of instinctive. I'd do anything to stop the goal."

She obviously has. Channel 7 quoted some impressive statistics from her brief sports career, including 32 shutouts and only six goals this season.

Her coach's on-the-air response to Lisa's accomplishments - "sensational."

Supt. Eugene Crowell was also impressed with Lisa, her coach, and the praise bestowed on the Cohasset girls' field hockey team. Undefeated during regular season play, the team lost that final game Wednesday by an incredible 1-0 score.

"Lisa is deserving of everything she gets," Crowell said after viewing the television news segment. "Her personality, her humor, and her wholesomeness showed during the interview. She was very articulate."

Supt. Crowell also praised Coach DiGirolamo, whom, he said, "looked great, wearing his Cohasset High jacket."

Lisa is currently thinking about college applications for next year. Contemplating a future in professional writing, Lisa would like to study English in an Ivy League setting - preferably at Yale or Harvard.

She's already decided to concentrate on field hockey and will apply for the Bay State Games, and attend a field hockey camp this summer. She's learned that Harvard has an excellent field hockey team, and has already talked to that coach and expressed her interest in the school.

Her most immediate concern, however, since the conclusion of the field hockey season, is the upcoming Powder Puff game. That is scheduled for Saturday morning, Nov. 23 in front of the high school. There, the junior girls will compete in a game of touch football against the senior girls. Some anonymous male students will serve as interim cheerleaders.

With various sports practices, and nightly homework, there is not much free time for this 17 year-old teenager. When she has a bit of time, Lisa likes to read and re-read classic literature such as Jane Eyre and Wuthering Heights.

She is not one to accept honors without bequeathing appreciation to those who helped along the way. Her grandfather, Howard Moog of Boston, was the instigator of the Channel 7 honor, having submitted her name to the station. He and Lisa's uncle, also from Boston, have become great field hockey fans and attend most of Lisa's games - home and away.

And Lisa is also appreciative of her friends on the team - the kids who enabled her to have the type of playing record which piques the interest of Boston news stations. Members Maria Cahill, Lee Sullivan, Maureen Farren, Sarah Dickerman, and Cindy Spooner joined Lisa on this year's All-Star squad.

"I was really excited about the award," Lisa said this week. "But it was bittersweet after we had lost to Oliver Ames."

Don't worry, Lisa. We're sure your future will include more honors and many more victories for all teams lucky enough to have you in their membership.

The Law and You

by Richard Price, Attorney-at-Law

THE SUBPOENA

A subpoena is the court's official way of requiring an individual who is not party to a court action to testify in court or at the taking of a deposition. Some forms of subpoena require the witness to bring in certain records, documents or other tangible evidence within his control such as bank records or photographs. If the witness has been properly served the subpoena and fails to appear, a contempt proceeding can be instigated. A sheriff may then be able to take the witness into custody and bring him before the court. If there is a legitimate reason for not honoring a subpoena, such as poor health, the lawyer serving the subpoena should be advised.

Oftentimes the best service an attorney performs is action that keeps his client out of court. Sewer articles to be reviewed Nov. 25

The sewer commission will return to selectmen next Monday, Nov. 25, to discuss in detail why they have failed to respond to some of the state's demands while in the midst of a fight for funding Cohasset's alternative wastewater treatment plan.

Commissioners Charles DeSantis and Ted Guild were scheduled to discuss with selectmen the two articles contained in the Dec. 9 Special Town Meeting warrant. But Selectman Mary Jane McArthur requested an explaination as to why the town had never responded to the state Department of Environmental Quality Engineering (DEQE)'s request for additional information.

Without the DEQE's document in hand, the commissioners were unable to specifically answer McArthur's questions, and said they could return with the information next Monday night.

The state had forwarded a letter to the sewer commission last month, reiterating the state Divi-Division Water Pollution Control (DWPC)'s funding rejection of the Cohasset wastewater plan. In the DEQE statement, officials frequently commented that Cohasset never responded in full to many of the state's inquiries regarding the plan.

DeSantis said the town does not have the funding to answer many of the state's questions. Guild added that the same information was never requested of Metcalf and Eddy, the engineering firm whose design was originally approved for construction by the state five years ago.

In defense of the commissioners, Selectman Diane Sullivan noted that many of the state's demands could not be met without incurring great financial hardship upon the town. A request to provide a design of on-site septic systems would be impossible unless the town paid an engineering firm to complete a design, the last step before construction. The town could never afford such a procedure, Sullivan stated.

One warrant article sponsored by the sewer commission requests $30,000 for payment of additional legal fees. DeSantis explained the additional costs will include some engineering fees. The money will also provide payment for legal services requested by selectmen after a recent meeting with the commission and its attorneys, DeSantis said.

Selectmen Chairman Frank England repeatedly asked the commission this week for a detailed account of what money has been spent on legal fees in the town's fight to obtain state and federal funding. The commissioners said they have the information, but it was not brought to the meeting.

"Isn't it a fair question for the taxpayers to ask how much money has been spent ?" England stated. "Give us a synopsis of what you've spent."

The commissioners agreed to bring the information to the selectmen's meeting Nov. 25. They noted that no monies can be spent without prior approval from selectmen and the sewer commission.

Selectman Sullivan added, "I don't want to jeopardize our appeal. If this is what we need to do it ($30,000), then I don't see how we can stop at this."

The commissioners agreed that $30,000 is a sufficient amount for legal services through June 30, "unless the town finds itself in court, then our attorneys have said 'all bets are off' (regarding the estimated $30,000 legal costs)," DeSantis told selectmen.

The second warrant article sponsored by the sewer commission requests that the town establish a sewer service district within the community. "By convoluted reasoning," DeSantis explained, "the DEQE has denied Cohasset funding which is just due." By creating a district with a popular density less than one person per 1.7 acres, the town will qualify for funding of small diameter sewers.

The district will be delineated on the town map with a total population projection of 2000. Cohasset should have qualified for the funding based on population density. But the state rejected it, saying it did not meet certain technical data," DeSantis said, "although that data is not required in the funding regulations."

Chairman England emphasized the need for commissioners to present their arguments to Town Meeting in a more clarified, simplified manner. If selectmen, who have become familiar with the long-standing issue are confused by this request, how will the average citizen react to it, England asked.

He suggested the commissioners design a copy of the proposed district which could be shown on an overhead projector at the Dec. 9 Town Meeting.

Selectmen also requested an update on the Hull-Cohasset pipe connection.

DeSantis said, "I assure you that the Hull Sewer Commission and the Cohasset Sewer Commission are willing and interested." An official intermunicipal agreement can not be finalized until the state's mandated engineering study by Camp, Dresser and McKee is completed. The study, funded by the state, will include information regarding Hull's capacity to treat sewage from Cohasset.

Selectmen said it is important for the commissioners to tell the public as much as possible about the fight to obtain funding, without jeopardizing litigation. They also requested that the commission return next Monday with an answer to a "key question" posed to the sewer commissioners in a recent closed session between the town officials.

☐ Early reservations get the best seats in the house! Diane Pereira is Community Ticket Chairman for the Dec. 5, 6, 7 productions of "The Pirates of Penzance." Make your reservations now . . . call Diane at 383-6094. Tickets are $4 each. Performances will start at 8 p.m. sharp, at the newly-rennovated CHS auditorium.

☐ The Fire Dept. is in need of an executive type chair for the Watch Office. Any donations of used furniture will be appreciated.

☐ Janet Digirolamo of Cohasset, a freshman at Bridgewater State College, was named to the Bridgewater girls' basketball team. Janet is a guard on that team.

☐ The Cohasset Council on Aging has a nifty idea going on now, the Silver Savers' Passport. Any Cohasset resident 60 years of age or or older gets an identification card, which entitles them to discounts and special offers found in the Silver Pages. The Passport card is free of charge, and the Silver Pages is a complete directory just for senior citizens. The first part contains information about programs and services available to seniors, the middle has informative articles and ads, and the back of the directory has classified listings and display advertising of businesses which offer discounts and special service to senior citizens. Participation is two-fold . . . helps the Senior save some money, and the Cohasset Council on Aging receives a small amount of money for each senior registered, money that will go to the new Senior Center. Sign-up only takes a second, do it today and start reaping the benefits!

☐ Remember the Glenn Higgins family? Well, Glenn and his wife, Meredith, are living and working in Florida now, and are loving it! Not only that, seems that Meredith has become somewhat of a celebrity, a cover girl to be exact. Her picture is on the cover of Graphics Magazine, and it is a grand one. Being extremely busy this week, I didn't have time to take a peek, but I'll bet that if Milton Higgins (Glenn's dad) were asked he could find a copy for you to see. They always say a smile is worth a thousand words, and Meredith's was always a beautiful one . . . .

☐ John Hall is certainly earning a lot of respect throughout the league . . . a few weeks ago, after the B'water game, the coach of the other team sought him out to tell him what a spectacular game he played. Now that's when you know that you've done something right!

☐ Mrs. Manna's farewell card certainly created a lot of attention at the library while it was there. Here's hoping that she has a very long and happy retirement, with many trips in her future!

☐ A real tribute to a fine man has been witnessed ever since his sudden death last week . . . the number of people, old and young, that have called this house to find out what they can do is unbelievable. The words of praise, the special things that he did for students and adults, the kind man that he was . . . all of this and much more has been said about Charlie Davis. Everyone that was ever fortuante enough to have known Charlie, much less had the luck to have him as a teacher, loved him. Charlie will be missed by all of us, but certainly never forgotten by any one. I feel honored to be in that group.

☐ Cohasset's own Christy Mihos has been elected to serve as a member of the board of the directors of the National Association of Convenience Stores. Mihos is present and the chief executive officer of Christy's Markets, Inc., which is a convenience store company that is based in Brockton and has 85 stores operating in Massachusetts.

☐ It will seem strange to be without Tom Ballerino and his wife Pat. Tom has resigned as principal of Hull High School after 15 years. He and Pat moved from Cohasset a while ago, but they could still be spotted "around town" as long as he worked in Hull. Now, however, he will be a principal at Nauset Regional High School in Eastham. One wonders if he'll be located near the water as he was in Hull . . . sure had to pay careful attention to Don Kent and the tides before school started each day! We wish you luck and happiness in your new post, Tom, you and Pat keep in touch.

☐ Saw Dianne Williams in town last week, walking along with her mom and taking in the sights. Good to see you here, Dianne.

☐ That's the news for now, but the exciting times are coming . . . everyone will be home for the holidays, and there are lots of stories that they will share you. How about telling us!

CHS cast prepares for 'Pirates of Penzance'

By Tanna Kasperowicz
Special to the Mariner

Senior John Pereira has a tough role in "Pirates of Penzance." Anyone who has heard Pereira sing "The Star Spangled" at a basketball game or has caught his act during a chorus recital knows this kid has the bass range required for the part of Priates' King. He's a talented youngster, chosen by a talented director to appear in the role.

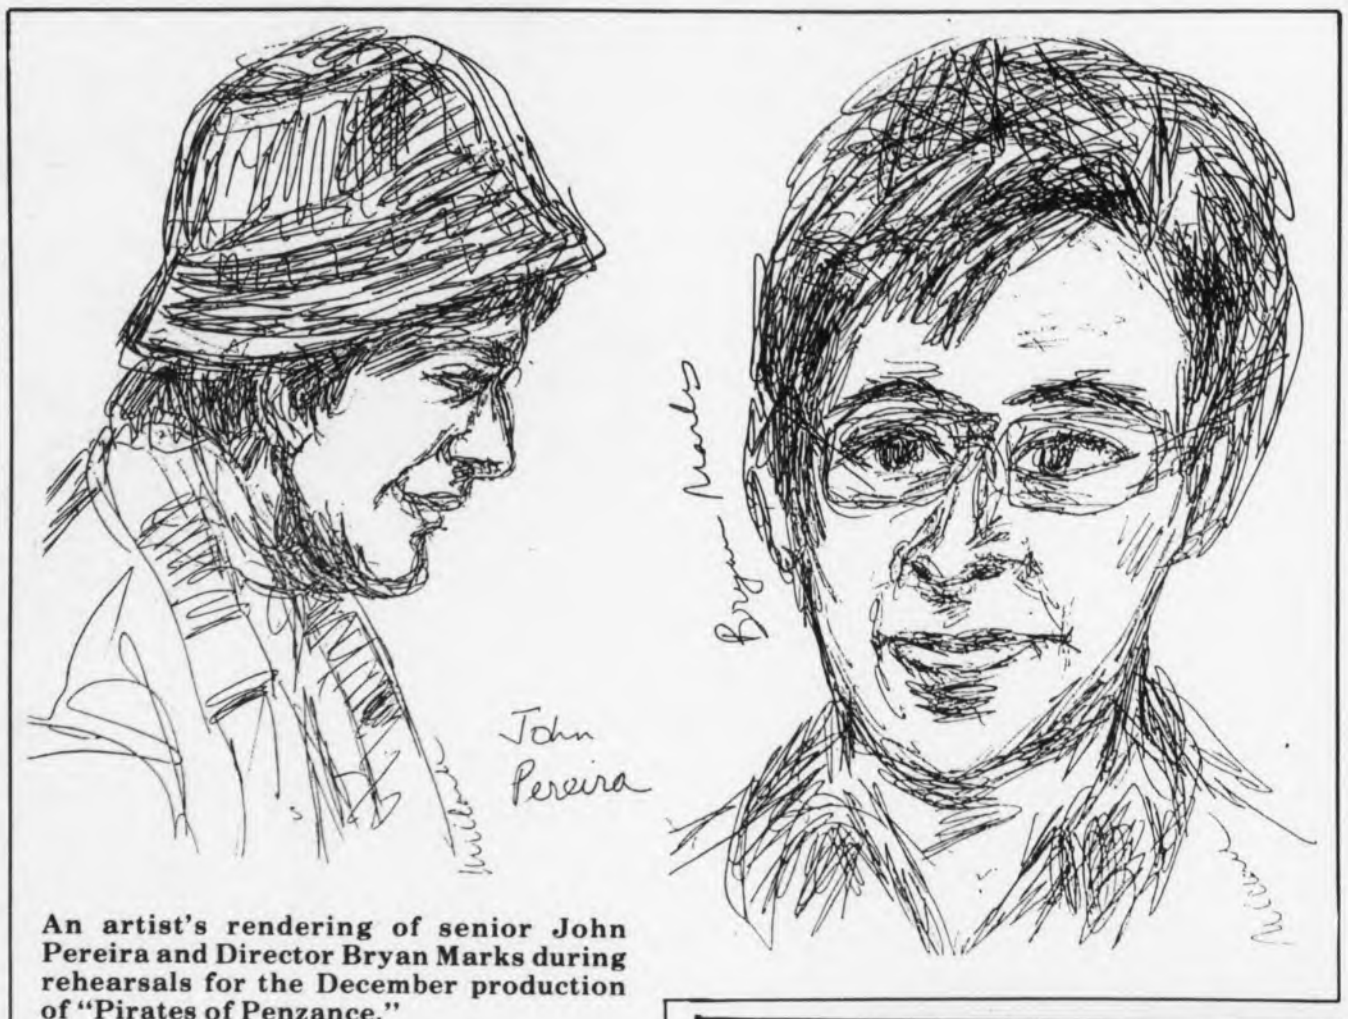
If you missed Pereira in "Flowers for Algernon" you missed much. What Pereira didn't know, possibly until reading it right here, is that his director, Bryan Marks, performed in "Pirates of Penzance" as Pirate King on the Silver Lake Regional High School Stage in 1973.

Pereira must perform with the quality and consistency and ability which Marks performed the part in 1973. A difficult act to follow. In 1973 Marks had no competition for the part of Pirates King. His potential competitors were frightened off when they heard he wanted the part.

Unlike Marks, Pereira's competition for the role was touch. In fact, this might have been a Broadway audition, according to those in the theater know at CHS.

The main critics at the Dec. 5, 6, 7 performances of "Pirates" will be parents, friends and peers of the 32 students who have been selected to perform in on-stage parts. Additionally, there will be two very severe critics. And they are, Bryan Mark's mother, and his former high school director, Richard Shattuck. In addition to being coordinator of the Art Department at Silver Lake Regional High School, Shattuck is also S.E. District Manager of the Musical Education Association.

Marks' entire career has been at CHS—even his student teaching was done at CHS. A graduate of Eastern Nazarene College, from where he received a B.S. degree in voice, he also plays the guitar and trombone, and has done much solo work (serious music).



At Eastern Nazarene he gained distinction as the first freshman who was selected to be a member of the Select College Choir. College sports: varsity track and varsity tennis.

Since 1977 when he was appointed Choral Director at CHS Marks has been a firm believer in the philosophy of: "Involve as many kids as possible in every production." Since 1977, Marks has acted as co-director with Ron Emmons of "Grease," the first all-school musical; "Godspell," "Snoopy," and now "Pirates."

In addition to directing the Jr. and Sr. High Chorus, Marks also gives electronics music courses, directs barbershop, and was one of the main instigators behind "Show Chorus," a group which evolved last year to the delight of concert attenders.

When you attend the performance of Dec. 5, 6, or 7, you will be treated to (for $4) an experience beyond the high school stage.

The Cohasset Arts Boosters is appreciative of the support which it has received from all sectors of the business and civic community with regard to its program publication. The final, and more important display of support is "house." These performers deserve nothing less than a full house for all three nights, Dec. 5, 6, and 7. If you've ever wondered what good things kids are doing—this is what "good" things kids are doing.

Chiropractic for HEALTH

by Dr. Kevin M. Neill, Chiropractic Physician

PATIENT IN GOOD STANDING

One of the major underlying causes of back pain is faulty posture. It can alter the normal curves of the back and put severe stresses on the supporting muscles and ligaments of the spine. An individual with round shoulders, a protruding abdomen and a swayback probably already has back pain or will have it in the future. The body has a normal center of gravity. A line dropped from the level of the ear should cross the outer tip of the shoulder, the middle of the hip, the back of the keecap, and hang in front of the ankle joint. If one's center of gravity is off, one assumes an abnormal posture to compensate. Allow a chiropractor to evaluate your posture and provide treatment to help correct it.

Relief is possible. Oftentimes chronic back pain is endured due to the misconception that there is no alternative. We invite you to call the COHASSET CHIROPRACTIC OFFICE, 760 Chief Justice Cushing Hwy., Suite 12, and let us offer the chiropractic exam that will address your problems and provide the applications that may offer the relief you have long sought. Wish him luck

The choice has been made. Selectmen did not take the easy route, which would have been to name a Fire Chief from within the ranks. For whatever the reasons, they were unanimous in their decision to seek a chief outside the department.

That is a decision which will likely cause some bitterness and derision within the fire department. As they stormed from selectmen's meeting Monday night, it was obvious the firefighters were upset and discouraged. One of their own, a man whom they admire and respect, was rejected as the choice for Cohasset Fire Chief.

Selectmen decided to appoint a man from Southboro, a man who is well-educated and experienced in the field of firefighting.

We can understand the bitterness and the resentment the firefighters must feel as their own man was overlooked for another. They feel that all along selectmen have looked elsewhere for a new chief—seeking someone who wouldn't be bound so close to the brotherhood within the department. They wanted 'new blood', someone who would look at ideas and personalities with a fresh vision. Someone who wouldn't be so easily swayed by the force of a powerful union.

Perhaps those are valid reasons why selectmen did choose an outside candidate, although they failed the last time. And when the search committee, a group everyone agreed completed a perfect assignment, recommended one choice and the selectmen appointed another, questions must be asked.

But selectmen were determined to make a sound, thorough choice this time. First, they appointed the fine search committee and allowed them to do their job. Then once the committee's task was completed, selectmen interviewed the five final candidates.

After they narrowed the field to three, they visited the two other communities and talked with local officials and business associates of the candidates.

One choice was clearly superior to all the others, selectmen agreed. They concluded in a choice of a man who had more experience, maturity, education and enthusiasm for his profession than all the remaining candidates.

It's difficult at best for the local candidate to be rejected in favor of an unknown. Everyone knows the feeling. The difference is, our rejections at work are completed in private.

When you've been overlooked for a job you feel completely qualified for, you may cry, you may kick, you may scream. But it's done behind closed doors.

Selecting a fire chief is a very open, public process. Everyone knows the entire business and there are few secrets. So when you don't get the job (and only one person does, so your chances of rejection are overwhelming), you're forced to face the public.

We hope selectmen made the right choice. It would have been nice to appoint a qualified candidate within the department, but they have judged that Dan Brock is the superior choice.

They have completed their task in a thorough and complete manner. We applaud their hard work and wish Brock a successful future in Cohasset.

Enjoying a last opportunity to find warmth in the sunshine, is Darlene Steverman and Patrick Ridge.

requested that his opinion be forwarded through the written statement.

In the final analysis, Mitman wrote, he was swayed by the fire service experience, the extensive education and training of Daniel Brock. "The combination of superior fire service, educational background, more extensive experience and demonstrated abilities in specific areas such as EMT training and communications," lead Mitman to select Brock as his first choice for Cohasset Fire Chief.

During his interview with selectmen, Mitman noted that Brock "demonstrated an enthusiasm for the fire service and gave an indication that he is capable of developing and working with new ideas and concepts."

Selectman England agreed with Mitman's assessment, adding that the biggest factor in the search committee's findings was the examination results. "That test showed us which person was most technically competent. That's what we need in Cohasset. We also need leadership ability, which Brock demonstrated in the interview with the board members earlier this month," England said. "The test, administered by an outside, independent consultant, was a tremendous help in our decision."

During his visits to Southboro and Mashpee, Selectman England said he checked with several references within the communities. "I found that Brock's extensive fire education and background and his general enthusiasm toward the profession of firefighting" swayed his vote to the Southboro Fire Department veteran.

Selectman Mary Jane McArthur said she was recommending Brock for the position, saying he was "bright, articulate and creative." The 40 year-old Fire Capt. also possesses the administrative qualities and broad-based knowledge of communications needed for this position, she added.

"We spoke with many people," McArthur said. "Based on the qualifications outlined here, I move we offer Daniel Brock the position at $34,000 subject to negotiation of a contract and a physical examination.

There was no further discussion from the two remaining board members.

As the vote was cast 4-0 for Brock, the firefighters who had filled the Town Hall auditorium abrubtly left the room. Selectmen Chairman England called for a several-minute recess.

"No comment" was uttered by several firefighters to reporters as they angrily walked from the Town Hall. There was little discussion outside the building among the men who had gathered in support of their captain.

The new Fire Chief will have a couple of weeks before arriving for duty in Cohasset. Fire Chief Martin Dooley's contract expires Dec. 31. Selectmen were anxious to name a new chief so there would be an adequate transition period for the new department leader.

Murrays Memos

Report from the State House

By State Rep. Mary Jeanette Murray

Last summer the Massachusetts Legislature passed the Public School Improvement Act (Chapter 188 of the Acts of 1985). One of the major sections of this bill establishes the School Improvement Fund, from which will be allocated grants to schools that establish School Improvement Councils.

Q. What are School Improvement Councils?

A. The School Improvement Councils are composed of the principal, three teachers, two parents of children in the school, and one community representative. These councils are formed voluntarily by schools wishing to take advantage of School Improvement Fund grants. Councils have the authority, subject to the veto of the school committee, to determine how the monies that are appropriated to their school are spent consistent with the authorizing statute. They also have the unique opportunity to expand the parent and community participation in decision-making in their school and to educate the community on the programs and needs of their school.

Q. What is the School Improvement Fund and what is its relationship to School Improvement Councils?

A. The School Improvement Fund has been established by the Legislature for the purpose of receiving annual appropriations that will be allocated to School Improvement Councils in the form of grants. Schools that establish School Improvement Councils can apply to the Department of Education to receive grants from the School Improvement Fund that equal the number of full-time equivalent students enrolled the previous year multiplied by $10.

Q. Why were School Improvement Councils included in the legislation?

A. The Legislature is interested in increasing the participation of teachers, parents, and community representatives in the educational planning that occurs in schools. It recognizes the importance of having local citizens help to make determinations about the direction that education takes in their schools and hopes that, through the incentive grants, it will expand community understanding and involvement in the schools.

The Board of Education also is enthusiastic about the potential that councils have for increasing citizen involvement in the educational process and is taking a leadership role in supporting the implementation of this legislation. The Board is encouraging schools to take advantage of the opportunities that councils present to increase their financial resources and to expand the participation of parents and citizens in local educational decision making.

Outgoing president reviews profitable year

In her concluding address Nov. 7 as President of the Cohasset Community Center, Judy Volungis gave a brief overview of the Center's activities during he past year.

"Presently our Nursery School is operating at full capacity and we have a list of children waiting to enter the program. During this past year, we installed a permanent fence between the two playgrounds, purchased and installed new playground equipment and painted the nursery school and all the furniture and bookcases. The room is really quite cheerful now. We recently started an experimental extended day program. If this proves successful we will be offering this on an expanded basis," she stated.

"Our Program Committee is doing a great job," Volungis continued. " Most programs are full and we have added a new ballet instructor, and again offer yoga. Course participation and membership have increased over last year's numbers. In fact, we have difficulty with scheduling because of lack of space." In addition, all three apartments are rented.

The Bowling Alley is operating at a profit, with enough money to purchase new bowling shoes this year. Bill retired and George Brooke is manning the alleys. There will be enough money to refinish the alleys in the spring, she said.

"Our Ways and Means and Special Events people have planned and executed some fun programs which involved the whole town," Volungis added. "The winter Frosty Frolic Dance helped us raise $1,350. We recently held an adult costume party for Halloween and sponsored at least two teen dances. This year we also expanded our annual Halloween Happening into a mini-fair on the Common which drew quite a large crowd."

Last month the Center entered into an agreement with the Council on Aging to provide space designated as a Senior Citizen Center. This completes the circle allowing the Center to provide services to all age groups in town.

The South Shore Playhouse Associates gave the center a grant to complete roof repairs, replace gutters and paint the building; most of which has been completed.

"All these accomplishments lead up to our major accomplishment of the year, which is the official beginning of our "barnraising" project," according to Volungis. "We have the necessary permits, the plans, and have started our major fundraising program. We have already raised $18,000 towards our matching grant of $20,000. This was accomplished through several large donations and many, many smaller donations from townspeople

"This has been a super year for the Center because we have an outstanding group of people pulling together to make this all work. I would like to thank each and every board member for doing such a great job and helping to make the Center the great organization it is today," she concluded.

Cong. Gerry Studds reports on hurricane loans

There was some confusion recently about the deadlines set by the Small Business Administration (SBA) for loan applications to cover losses attributable to Hurricane Gloria.

As I reported recently, the SBA designated Norfolk, Bristol and Plymouth counties as "disaster areas" for the purpose of providing financial assistance to businesses, homeowners and renters who had suffered property damage or economic loss.

Homeowners and renters will be eligible for low-interest loans of up to $100,000 for damage to real estate and $20,000 for personal property loss. Businesses and non-profit organizations can borrow up to $500,000 to cover property damage. I would like to emphasize that, contrary to some reports, the application deadline has not passed. The SBA will continue to accept applications through December 30.

In addition, commercial enterprises are also eligible for disaster loans up to $500,000 to cover economic losses attributable to the storm. Applications will be accepted by the SBA through July 30, 1986.

Residents of Plymouth, Norfolk and Bristol Counties interested in applying for SBA disaster assistance can obtain an application and additional information through the agency's office in Fair Lawn, New Jersey. The toll-free telephone number is 1-800-221-2093.

SIGH OF RELIEF

Town officials throughout the 10th District area can breathe a collective sigh of relief as legislation to modify costly federal regulations affecting state and local government won final Congressional approval.

Earlier this year, the U.S. Supreme Court ruled that minimum wage and overtime pay provisions of the federal Fair Labor Standards Act apply to all state and local employees.

Under the terms of the Court's ruling, cities and towns could no longer accept volunteer or sub-minimum wage services, nor could they grant workers compensatory— or "comp" — time in lieu of overtime wages for extra hours worked.

The court decision would have meant additional costs to the nation's municipalities estimated as high as $2 to $4 billion.

I am pleased to say that the Congress acted quickly to provide a measure of relief to our financially strapped states and towns, — while protecting the interests of public employees.

Specifically, both houses of Congress this week adopted compromise legislation to permit jurisdiction to provide compensatory time in place of overtime pay — at a rate of at least one-and-a-half hours of comp time for each overtime hour.

The bill also permits the use of volunteers, even if they receive expenses or a nominal fee. Once the bill is signed into law, towns in the 10th Congressional District will be able to continue to use volunteer school crossing guards and firemen, to staff summertime beach patrols with persons already employed full-time in other capacities, and to afford to provide other important municipal services.

I have alerted each Board of Selectmen in the 10th District — many of whom had already contacted my office — to this sensible solution to what would otherwise have constituted a financial crisis for communities in southeastern Massachusetts and the nation.

November workshop at the Art Center

Two special workshops—a critique session for artist and collagraphy/collage seminar—are on schedule for November at the South Shore Art Center.

The critique session led by artist Bety Kohlberg is planned for Saturday, November 23 from 10 a.m. to 1 p.m. and the collage workshop by Berj Kailian was for Tuesday, November 19 at 8 p.m. Both programs will be at the Center, 103 Ripley Road, Cohasset. Advanced registration is required.

Artists are invited to bring to the critique session five works that are either completed or in progress. This session offers an excellent opportunity tor painters working on their own to receive valuable feedback.

The collagraphy/collage workshop will emphasize collagraph as an artistic medium which uses the techniques of collage to present a diversity of images and ideas. For the artist this workshop provides the study of collage as a good opportunity for a greater visual expression and for the non-artist the lecture will provide a greater understanding of collage.

Extended day program

The Cohasset Community Center is pleased to announce the expansion of its regular nursery school program to include extended day, from 11:30 a.m. to 3 p.m.

Kindergarten and preschool age children will be eligible to attend the program. Reservations for space in the program must be made and paid for in advance. The group size is limited to 13 children, so reservations well in advance are recommended in order to ensure a place. Children do not have to attend the nursery school in order to attend the extended day.

Please call the nursery school director to make reservations, or for further information at 383-0036. Children must be three years old before December 31, and fully toilet trained in order to be eligible.

Nursery school scholarships

The Cohasset Community Center Nursery school is pleased to report that scholarship assistance will now be available for students of the nursery school.

The Andrea Nardo Scholarship Fund was established in memory of a former nursery school student. It was the wish of the family that donations in her memory be used to benefit other children.

Donations to the scholarship fund will be gratefully accepted. It is the deep hope of the trustees of the fund that ongoing assistance might be available each year.

Donations may be made payable to the Andrea Nardo Scholarship Fund, c/o The Community Center of Cohasset, Inc., Three North Main St., Cohasset, Mass. 02025.

Further information regarding the fund may be obtained from the nursery school director at 383-0036.

United Way in Cohasset

The United Way of Massachusetts Bay served the needs of more than 1,600 Cohasset residents in 1984 — one out of three — in 1984, according to information recently released by the United Community Planning Corporation.

Overall last year, more than 1.2 million people in more than 80 eastern Massachusetts communities were helped by the United Way's 183 health and human service agencies, its Information and Referral Service, and the "Answer Van," a mobile information unit.

Agencies serving Cohasset residents include the South Shore Region of the American Red Cross, the South Shore YWCA, the Visiting Nurse Association of the South Shore, the South Shore Associaton for Retarded Citizens, and the American Cancer Society, Massachusetts Division.

The American Cancer Society and the United Way are partners in education and fund raising in business and industry.

This year, the United Way celebrates 50 years of service to the Massachusetts Bay community. The 50th anniversary campaign, now underway, has a goal of $39 million . The campaign runs through Nov. 26.

Science Center news

Did you ever wonder what greeted the Pilgrims in addition to the Native Americans? Children (grades one through five) can join naturalist Barbara Devine on Saturday, Nov. 23, from 1:30 to 3 p.m., and learn about the animals that met the Pilgrims. We will also find out about the adaptions the animals used to survive the winter. Pre-paid registration for this walk and talk is required (members $3.50, non-members $5). For more information, call 659-2559.

CHRISTMAS CARD WORKSHOP

Learn the art of wildlife sketching and design your own Christmas cards. Artist Joanne Papandreas leads an adult workshop on creating Christmas cards on Monday, Nov. 25, from 9:30 a.m .to 12:30 p.m. Cards may be printed for approximately $10 for 50 cards (in addition to registration fee). Bring photo, pen and ink or fine point magic marker, pencil and eraser. Christmas greetings mean much more when you send homemade cards and won't your friends be impressed! Pre-paid registration is required (members $15, non-members $18). For more information, call 659-2559.

The South Shore Natural Science Center is on Jacobs Lane, Norwell, just off Route 123, and is open from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m., Mondays through Saturdays, and 1 to 4 p.m., Sundays and most holidays. Free admission, Gift Shop and library.

Lunchtime discussion

The Social Service League of Cohasset will host a noontime, brown-bag lunch, Friday, Nov. 22 at St. Stephen's to discuss drugs and alcohol education and counseling programs.

This meeting will serve as a follow-up to the three-part series held in October for adolescents and parents titled "Chemically Free."

The meeting Nov. 22 will be held at St. Stephen's Church and is open to the public. Coffee and dessert will be served.

LWV meeting Nov. 21

The Cohasset League of Women Voters invites the public to attend a meeting Thursday, Nov. 21, "Growth — It's Impact on Communities."

This should prove to be of special interest to all in relation to the proposed bylaw to be brought before the Dec. 9 Special Town Meeting, as well as the current Health Board Building Moratorium.

A slide show, "One County's Water," will be shown. In addition, there will be a panel and open discussion.

The panel will be made up of Tom Cook, Chairman of the Water Shed Protection Committee, Barbara Kern from the Board of Health, and Peter Pratt from the Water Commission.

The meeting will begin at 7:30 p.m. at the Unitarian Parish House on Main Street. Coffee will be served. Contact Debbie Cook for details at 383-6313.

Ros Farbush

Ros Farbush, instructor at the Museum of Fine Arts for 20 years, well-known award-winning artist, will have a one-woman show at the new Sandy Cove Gallery in North Scituate just across from Ebenezer's. The show will run for one day only on Sunday, Dec. 1, from 1 to 5 p.m. Ros has entitled the show "Christmas Sale of Small Paintings." There will be refreshments. Please park in the town parking near the Town Pizza.

The Sandy Cove Gallery is owned by two local artists, Mary Lou Clark and Roberta Raffa. The Gallery will also sell crafts on consignment.

REAL ESTATE GUIDELINES

By Norma Telesco
Home Center Realty

FIXING UP TO SELL

A paint brush and a scrub brush can help you get top dollar when it's time to sell your home. Start with a close look at the walls, both the condition and color of the paint. Cracked plaster, especially on your ceiling, can make buyers wary about the roof or structural integrity of the house, even though the problems may be purely cosmetic. People will try to imagine their furniture in your rooms. If you have strong decorating tastes, such as bold colors or lots of printed wallpaper, think about making them more neutral. Cleanliness is also very important, especially in the kitchen and baths. Buyers react emotionally to houses, and it's hard to fall in love with dirty dishes, dustballs and bathtub rings. Before you begin to allow agents to show the house, go through each room and make it shine. It really does make a big difference.

When you're considering which improvements will be cost-effective and help get your home sold quickly, call Norma Telesco at HOME CENTER REALTY, or stop by our office ta 57 Water St., Hingham. Make an appointment with one of our professionals for a pre-listing inspection of your property and get some fresh ideas about ways to make it more attractive.

Community celebration

A Thanksgiving Eve Service, Wednesday, Nov. 27 at 8 p.m., will be held for all of the Cohasset community at St. Anthony's Church, 129 S. Main St.

Participating churches in addition to St. Anthony's are the Second Congregational, the Panagia Greek Orthodox, Beechwood Congregational, St. Stephen's Episcopal, First Parish, and the Vedanta Centre.

Traditional Thanksgiving hymns will be sung. The choirs from all the churches will join together for two anthems: "Let All Things Now Living" and "Praise to the Lord the Almighty." The organist will be Mr. Richard Hunter of St. Stephen's Parish. The choirs will be directed by Carolyn Curtis of First Parish.

The original Thanksgiving Proclamation by Governor William Bradford will be read by the Rev. Edward T. Atkinson of First Parish. This year's "President's Proclamation" will be read by Mrs. Alice Daunt of St. Anthony's Parish. The Thanksgiving offering taken up at the service will be donated to Oxfam America to help alleviate the problem of hunger in the world.

"Come, ye thankful people, come!" The churches and religious communities of Cohasset invite you to join in this service of gratitude, prayer, and song.

From our diverse traditions, let us celebrate Thanksgiving with thanks-giving. Come on Wednesday, Nov. 27 at 8 p.m. and give thanks.!

Caristi, featured artist

Mark Caristi is the featured artist this week at the Paul Pratt Memorial Library's children's room gallery.

Mark is five years old and a student at the Carriage House Nursery School. In vivid shades of blue, red and yellow, Mark has painted three very energetic works of a street cleaner, a steam shovel and a locomotive. You can almost feel the machinery in motion!

Other students ages three, four and five have contributed "leaf people" constructed with pressed foliage. Regina Schiltz, children's art chairman for the Friends of the Library arranged for this display.

Dukakis meeting

A meeting to organize the Cohasset committee for the 1986 Dukakis campaign will be held at the Lothrop House Monday, Dec. 2, at 8 p.m.

Anyone interested in working to reelect Governor Dukakis is welcome to attend.

Booster Club meeting

Parents of boys and girls playing basketball in the Recreation League and junior/senior high school program are urged to attend a meeting being held at the home of George and Pat Ellinger, 17 Surrey Drive, Sunday, Dec. 2, at 7 p.m.

Other interested people are also welcome. We will be discussing the 1985-86 program and fundraising ideas. We need the support of everyone interested in the basketball programs.

Newly elected officers of the club are: Shirley Watters, president; Linda Shultz, secretary; Sue Trautwein, treasurer. If you have any questions pertaining to the club, call Shirley at 383-6056.

S.Shore Genealogical Society

The South Shore Genealogical Society will hold its next meeting on Monday, Nov. 25, at 10 a.m. at the James Library in Norwell Center.

The guest speaker will be Barbara Merrick, Historian General of the General Society of Mayflower Descendants, who will give an overview of the documentation requirements for joining the General Society and proving ancestors.

Anyone interested in genealogy or researching family history is welcome. The next evening meeting will be held on Monday, Dec. 2, at 7:30 p.m. also at the James Library.

Newcomers Club bazaar

The Scituate-Cohasset Newcomers Club will hold its free Holiday Bazaar, Saturday, Nov. 23 from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. at the Masonic Temple, 354 Country Way (the other side of First Parish Road.)

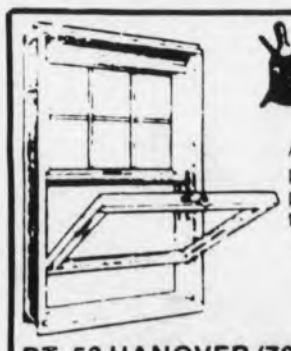
The Holiday Bazaar is one of the chief fundraisers of the club for its Scholarship Award Fund. The Scholarship Award is given each year to a student from each town, Scituate and Cohasset last year's award of $1,000 each were awarded to Janet Russell of Scituate and Janet M. Bagley of Cohasset.

The Holiday Bazaar will feature a shopping experience for the children, a private shopping place "Grandma Claus Attic."

This will allow the children to shop alone for Moms and Pops and place their surprise gifts under the tree. The quilt raffle will once again be held, along with two beautiful handmade sweaters.

For information on purchasing raffle tickets or on the bazaar, please call 383-1089.

Also featured will be the used books and magazine table. The White Elephant Table and treasures such as gold tone table centerpieces, fabric and lace picture frames, various size pine cone wreaths and grapevine decorations and baked goods.



Refreshments will be sold. There will be face painting for the "happy little faces", along with babysitting. Items native to other parts of the country and overseas, and creations of the members who have travelled world-wide, will be featured.

Cohasset residents join Village Fair plans

A panoply of food treats to tempt appetites from tots' to gourmets' will be on the menu of this year's Cohasset Village Fair, Saturday, Dec. 7, some of them coming from the kitchens of the area's best cooks and others provided by the generous donations of the area's finest restaurants.

Always a staple part of the Village Fair offerings, food will again this year be a major attraction for the hundreds of holiday shoppers who traditionally make the Fair a most important stop in their seasonal preparations.

Particularly significant this year will be the "dinners for two" being donated by area restaurants as prizes in the raffle. Ruth Wilcox, raffle chairman, reports such donations already received from Hugo's and Kimball's-by-the-Sea in Cohasset; the Barker Tavern and P.J.'s Country House in Scituate, and the Whiton House in Hingham. Other local merchants will be donating food items, and a special food-related prize will be a copy of the popular cookbook "Applehood and Mother Pie", contributed by Johnny Appleseed's. Tickets are on sale at each of the five sponsoring churches.

will be on sale at the Fair itself.

Pam McNamara will preside over a table selling home-make candies, while nearby, a food and pastry table, headed up by Mary Sofis, will offer cakes, cookies, bread and pastry, including mouth-watering Greek pastries.

One of the most popular features of every annual fair is the Snack Bar which attracts throngs of youngsters coveting hot dogs and soft drinks. It will again have a place of prominence in the Town Hall and will be staffed by a group headed by Phil Shockman and Jack Riley.

Also in the Town Hall, the popcorn machine of Rod and Marilyn Hobson will be churning out its cascade of crisp white kernels to be buttered and salted to taste.

Gail Bell (center), Village Fair general chairman, is flanked by Delores Roy, secretary and Charles Costas, treasurer.

Next door in the vestry of the Congregational Church will be another of the Village Fair stand-by features, the Chowder Bar, where Bob Beggan and his crew will dish out bowls of steaming clam chowder. Once again this year, the chowder will be supplemented by Greek Salad and souvlakia arranged for by a group from the Greek church headed by Ernie Sofis.

Many persons have come to depend on the Village Fair as their source of specially-selected country cheese and they will not be disappointed this year as Ham Tewksbury again brings giant cheese wheels to the Town Hall and cuts them into the desired wedges.

Dining out will not be the only appeal of the raffle, Mrs. Wilcox emphasizes since other major prizes open to lucky ticket purchases include a portable color television set, and, new this year, a week-end at the posh new Bostonian Hotel including a complimentary bottle of wine and continental breakfasts. This new hotel, situated directly across from the Faneuil Hall Marketplace, has already been cited as one of the nation's finest small hostleries.

In addition, the raffle will offer distinctive prizes contributed by King's Jewelry, Fleming's, the Linen Chest, Carousel, Cohasset Clayhouse, Cohasset Hardware, Colonial Pharmacy, Greengage Plum, Hair Affair and Reflections.

For workers at the Fair this year, the Central Committee is arranging a special thank-you in the form of a Celebration with light refreshments at the Unitarian Parish House on Sunday afternoon, Dec. 8.

Parent involvement encouraged in Pack 38 unit

Parents of Cub Scouts must encourage and work with their son so he will be able to complete the Scout achievements and advance in rank. All parents are asked to donate one hour of their time to Pack 38.

Committees that will be set up in the future are: Dec. - Christmas party; Feb. - Blue and Gold dinner; March - Pinewood Derby Race; April - Olympics.

Scouts should earn their Bobcat Badge by November and their Wolf with arrows or Bear by February. Scouts will sit with their Den Leaders at their assigned table at each Pack Meeting. If there is a problem with discipline, the boy will be warned once by the Den Leader. If that doesn't stop the behavior, then the scout will be asked to sit in the back with his parents. Parents are expected to attend all Pack Meetings and other brothers and sisters can attend too.

Calendar events -

Dec. 4 - District Round Table
Dec. 7 - Webelos Swim
Dec. 18 - Pack Meeting Christmas Party - 7-8 p.m. Deer Hill School
Dec. 30 - District Cub Roller Skating
Jan. 26 - Committee meeting
Jan. 29 - Pack Meeting
Feb. 23 - Committee meeting
Feb. 26 - Blue and Gold Dinner
March 23 - Committee meeting
March 26 - Pinewood Derby Race
April 27 - Committee Meeting
April 30 - Olympics

Each den will have a Den Chief to help the Den Leader. The Den Chief is a Boy Scout who will attend and assist at the Den and Pack Meetings.

'The Wonder and Mystery of Chemistry'

At Deer Hill School last Friday, the PSO sponsored a Dow Chemical program entitled "The Wonder and Mystery of Chemistry."

David Seay, who travels all over the country presenting this program, generated a great deal of enthusiasm from the fourth, fifth and sixth graders as he showed the properties of various gases and explained chemical and physical reactions.

Throughout the program, Mr. Seay stressed the safety precautions necessary when working with chemicals or gasses.

Students watched with awe as Mr. Seay pulled strings of nylon from a small glass cup filled with chemicals. For the grand finale, everyone was asked to cover their ears as Mr. Seay held a helium and hydrogen filled balloon over a small flame. The balloon burst with a hugh flaming bang, then dust settled over some of the spectators.

It was certainly an exciting learning experience for students and adults.

What's the REAL RETURN on Your Savings Certificate?

It may surprise you to learn that interest rates may look alike .... but interest payments may NOT all be alike!

The method a bank uses to compute its interest may make a significant difference in the amount of interest payment you receive.

Take this very typical example (let's use an 8½% Annual Rate for comparison):

Annual Rate	EFFECTIVE ANNUAL YIELDS
	Compounded Daily (ROCKLAND TRUST METHOD) 365/360	Compounded Daily (360/360, Method)	Compounded Weekly	Compounded Monthly	Compounded Semi-Annually
8.50%	9.00%	8.87%	8.86%	8.84%	8.77%

The moral is simple: Be sure your bank is paying daily interest on the 365/360 method or be sure your account is at Rockland Trust!

First Parish

Unicef drive -I'd like to thank all those children and adults who participated in our annual Unicef fund drive. We collected $100.

Youth group - This week's meeting will focus on our fund-raising pie project. Please come down and sign up for a job. Let's get going ! The meeting is from 7 to 8 p.m. Sunday.

The Youth Group will once again offer homemade pies for Thanksgiving. Apple, pumpkin, pecan and mince are available for making. Please sign up as early as there is a limit.

South Shore Cluster meeting - will be held Thursday, Nov. 21 at the First Parish Church in Norwell beginning at 6:30 p.m. Bonnie Shelton will speak on "The U.U.A. Legal Aid Society." Please call the church office at 383-1100 to make your reservations.

Second Congregational

Pledge Sunday - Sunday, Nov. 17 the Finance Committee set up the "Lobster Trap" in the entry way to collect your pledge cards. Extra cards are available if you didn't receive one in the mail.

As you prepare your 1986 pledge, think about not only what the church means to you, but what your support means to the life and goals of the church.

Minister's note - I have been taking part in a five-day conference at the College of Preachers, an adjunct program of the National Cathedral in Washington, D.C. Along with a dozen other ministers, I have spent from 8 a.m. until 9 p.m. each day learning about preaching from a master craftsman in my trade. I expect to be back in Cohasset by Friday evening.

In addition to a brief but beautiful sermon from me this week, we will welcome Norene Carter, a recent graduate of the Episcopal Divinity School who is Executive Director of the South Shore Association for Retarded Citizens. She will help all of us to learn more about this group of our neighbors, and what we can do to support and encourage them to live their lives as fully as possible. JMB

Children's Table - Extra help is needed to sell at the Fair Sat., Dec. 7 from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m. Please call Goldie Lengel or Fran O'Toole.

Plant Table - Please hunt around your home and yard for large and small plants, cuttings, fresh herbs, dried flowers and any plant related craft you are willing to donate. For those interested in workshops or making donations, call Sharon Costas, 545-4463 in the evening.

Foyer of Charity, North Scituate - In preparation for Advent, Christmas and the New Year, two weekends of prayer are being offered - Nov. 22 - 24; Dec. 6 - 8; and a retreat from Dec. 26 - Jan. 1. Call 545-1080 or write to Foyer at 74 Hollett Street, North Scituate, 02060.

Wedding

Klier/Lemaire

Leslie Ann Klier, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Daniel Klier, of Cohasset, and Thomas Richard Lemaire were married Sept. 7 in a Nuptial Mass at St. Anthony's Church, Cohasset. The ceremony was performed by Father John Keohane, and Rev. William F. Gartland, CSC/Stonehill College.

The groom, formerly from Newport, R.I., is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Lemaire, Portsmouth, R.I.

The bride was given in marriage by her father, Joseph D. Klier.

Maid of honor was Caroline Klier, sister of the bride, of Cohasset; bridesmaids were Marilyn Klier, sister-in-law of the bride, of Hingham, Kelly Lewis, of Braintree, the bride's cousin, and Elizabeth Potter of Salem. Kristen Klier of Hingham, niece of the bride, was flower girl.

Michael Manning of Newport, R.I., was best man. Ushers were Joseph Klier, Jr., Peter Klier, Michael Klier, brothers of the bride; Jeffrey Lemaire of California, brother of the groom, and Eugene Kelly, Milton, MA.

A reception was held at the home of the bride's parents in Cohasset.

The bride graduated from Cohasset High School and Merrimack College, and is employed as an accountant at B.D. Brooks Co., Inc.

The groom graduated from Rogers High School, Newport, R.I., and Roger Williams College. He is presently employed as a salesman at B.D. Brooks Co., Inc.

After a wedding trip to Bermuda, the couple are residing in Cohasset.

There's a magical kingdom waiting for you and your children. A kingdom where the spirit of Christmas burns brightly for young and old alike. Where 200,000 Christmas lights illuminate the night, painting rainbows across the winter's landscape. And heated antique steam trains travel through woods and fields alive with wondrous sights.

It's the Edaville Railroad Christmas Light Festival. A magical world where Christmas carols fill the air. And laughing children run from one marvelous attraction to the next. From Santa's Village to the baby deer in the petting zoo. From magical animated Christmas displays to a merry white-bearded man who always has a good word and a small gift to share with a child.

Explore this wonderful world with your family. Experience the dozens of attractions, the once-in-a-lifetime train ride, and New England's largest and most magnificent display of Christmas lights.

It's the Spirit of Christmas magically brought to life—at the Edaville Railroad Christmas Light Festival.

Visit the Edaville Railroad Christmas Light Festival.
Open daily (except Nov. 28th and Dec. 25th) now through Jan. 5th; 4–9 PM weekdays; 2–9 PM weekends. Edaville is located on Rte. 58 in South Carver, MA, four miles from Rte. 495, and eleven miles from Rte. 3 via Rte. 44. For more information, call (617) 866-4526.

Cohasset welcomes Bildner's - a few hours late

Despite a broken water main and unanticipated problems with the sewage system, J. Bildner and Sons opened Tuesday, Nov. 19. A bit behind schedule, the store owner remained true to his word and opened the doors to customers by 1 p.m.

It wasn't until that hour that Building Inspector Edward Poskus inspected the premises and granted the owner an occupancy permit. By early afternoon and evening, lines of cars braved the parking lot eaten by bulldozers and machinery, and customers entered the brightly-lit store with the green window shades at Cushing Plaza.

Jim Bildner, president of the gourmet-grocery store chain, is already a part of the business community within Cohasset. His company, Windward Management, recently purchased the plaza and is completing extensive repairs to the store site.

Bildner met last week with members of the Cohasset Chamber of Commerce to discuss his plans for the store and the Route 3A plaza.

The 30 year-old North Shore resident explained there are stores currently located on Massachusetts Avenue in Boston, in the financial district of the city, and in Belmont.

J. Bildner's also specializes in catering for "two to two thousand," he said. Executive Chef Volker Nagel heads the extensive gourmet cooking and catering service for the stores.

In a slide presentation to the Chamber members, Bildner explained that his first acquisition was an historic building on Mass. Ave. He renovated the site into a grocery store and has operated the business successfully for the past year among bordering residences.

Bildner said his business thrives on a consumer-oriented bent - where employees are there to serve the customers. The quality of the employees and their willingness to serve the public is paramount to his operation, he said.

The interior of J. Bildner's is unlike any other store. His motive is to make shopping a pleasurable experience - far removed from the maddening chore it is. Italian tiles and brass railings add a touch of class and a sense of style to an otherwise drab event.

There will be a commissary on the Cohasset site, where the delectable gourmet foods will be prepared. Currently, because of the water and sewer problems, the food will be prepared at a different site at the plaza.

"We pride ourselves on being reactive to customers," Bildner explained last week. Thus, the store will feature an aisle of special butcher-cut meats, as well as pre-packaged, self-service meats.

There will be no fish sold at the Cushing Plaza store, he added, noting that Bildner's made that choice in deference to Sea 'n Cheese, a gourmet food and wine store within the same plaza.

"I think our presence in the center will add to the commercial businesses in Cohasset, not take away," he said. "We see ourselves as hard-working small businessmen. It's important to be good to the business community as well as to the customers."

Bildner explained there'll be a "vast array" of grocery products. J. Bildner's will be a store where the shopper will purchase a special meal for the evening, along with the week's supply of dish detergent, toothpaste, milk and bread.

"We will have variety," he continued, "and our selection will be at competitive prices. Our produce will also be a very important part of the store."

The bakery, Bildner said, will be a special feature of the Cohasset store. "We will have the nicest selection of baked goods on sale in the South Shore," he promised.

When Chamber member Wayne Sawchuk asked how Bildner would open Tuesday with the continual construction, he replied, "there hasn't been a store yet where people haven't said that."

Bildner also emphasized that the store was in need of additional full and part time employees. Anyone interested in applying for a position at the store, should call J. Bildner and Sons at 383-9621.

Bildner's will be open daily from 7 a.m. to 10 p.m. and will provide home delivery service of all grocery and meal items.

Jim Bildner & Claffy Williams, from the So. Shore Art Center, meet outside the new Cohasset Plaza store after the fundraiser.

Chamber plans second gala, 'White Christmas'

Last year's gala celebration exceeded all their expectations. And this year's White Christmas in Cohasset will be even more festive.

That's the word from the Cohasset Chamber of Commerce, the well-organized sponsors of the second annual White Christmas in Cohasset.

What they have envisioned for Sunday, Dec. 8, is a day of festive sights, sounds, and activities designed to attract children and adults into Cohasset for a day of fun. And of course, while enjoying all the attractions, it would be nice to just browse through Cohasset stores which will be open all afternoon.

Last year's festivities marked the first time merchants had banned together to present an entire day of Christmas activities. Hundreds of children and adults enjoyed the beautiful weather, and remained throughout the day.

The Chamber realized they had a good thing, and decided to keep much of same program for this season's events. It will even be held on the same Deecember weekend - hopefully the weather will be as cooperative. White Christmas Chairmen Andrea Merrill and Sally Wood say the event will be held "unless there is a blizzard." In that case, White Christmas will be postponed until the following weekend, Dec. 15. The chairmen are hopeful there will be a touch of snow, however, to add to the cheery, Christmas-y feeling of the day.

Once again, Santa will arrive by helicopter about 11 a.m. at Cushing Plaza. This will start off the day's events as he greets children at his portable "Santa Land." There will be photographs taken of the children sitting with Santa, thanks to George Peter of the Polaroid Corp.

Santa will also help choose the winners of the Raffle. This event is sponsored by J. Bildner and Sons and promises to be an extravaganza. Among the prizes already donated by the merchants is a trip to Montreal from Lido Travel. "There will be a lot of terrific prizes," according to the chairmen. "And they'll be a nice assortment." The Raffle is a new addition to this year's White Christmas events.

Santa will travel into Cohasset Village where he will meet his popular companion, Becky the Camel at about 1:30 p.m.. From St. Anthony's Church parking lot, Santa and Becky will parade into downtown Cohasset. Santa will stop along the way, of course, to greet children and shoppers as they walk along the Village.

Once at the Common, Santa will sit down with the children, while activities surround him. Merchants throughout the Village are encouraged to have white lights strung around their shops. And all the trees surrounding the Common will be lighted with a master switch at 4 p.m.

Meanwhile, there will be a lot going on around the Common. There will be a "moonwalk" for the children, a popular amusement where they are encouraged to jump endlessly upon a huge cushion of air.

The petting zoo will return, where children and their parents may feed the small goats, sheep and chickens. Becky will provide rides for willing participants, and there will be carriage rides for the less daring.

The White Christmas celebration is a well-organized event which takes the 18 committee chairmen months to plan. There are at least 60 Chamber members working on the day's activities, and about 100 local businesses involved.

Even some private citizens lend support to the event, according to the White Christmas chairmen. R. Murray Campbell of Old Pasture Road is donating a 15-foot Spruce tree which will serve as the official Common Christmas tree during the upcoming season. The Chamber has ordered $600 worth of white lights to decorate the tree.

There will be a Carillon concert from St. Stephen's Church at 2 p.m., and there will be Christmas Caroling that afternoon. Souvenir booklets outlining the day's events with words to the carols, will be contained in the booklets.

"We are anticipating there'll be even more people here than last year," Wood commented, noting that the success of last year's White Christmas will attract patrons once again. "Now that people know about us, and had such a good time last year, we expect a lot more people from Scituate and Hingham, as well as Cohasset."

The Chamber members work together for months to plan the gala White Christmas. But it also takes cooperation and work from the local town departments, Wood and Merrill added, including the Tree and Park Dept., and the police and fire departments.

Good news for X-way drivers - finished

Massachusetts Department of Public Works Commissioner Robert T. Tierney recently announced the reconstruction of the Southeast Expressway is substantially complete and that all lanes are now open to traffic.

"The completion of the final paving and striping work represents the end of all major construction work," Tierney said. "The fact that a massive and complex project of such unprecedented size and scope has been completed to the highest standards and so close to schedule is a testament to the expertise and commitment of all agencies, organizations, contractors, and individuals involved."

Tierney highlighted two major long-term benefits to be derived from the project:

"First, commuters are now travelling a safer, smoother road that will be free of major maintenance needs for years," he said. Tierney indicated that improvement made to the Expressway during the two-year, $63 million project included total rehabilitation of all 15 Expressway bridges, an increase in the number and size of emergency turnouts, a new lighting system, improved drainage, upgraded signage, and widening of critical areas. In addition, the roadway is now paved with a new skid-resistant material.

"Secondly, the project has precipitated an exciting new look at transportation south of Boston," Tierney said. "Alternative modes of transportation, instituted or escalated during reconstruction, including commuter boat, rail, express bus, and Red Line service, are remaining in place beyond the end of the job and will continue to be subsidized by the DPW."

Noting that traffic on the Expressway continues to grow, with 7000 more cars per day using the road this year as compared to last, state transportation Secretary Frederick Salvucci cautioned that "this type of cooperation and willingness to use alternate modes of transportation can't end with the project's completion, and, in fact, becomes all the more important as traffic volumes grow."

"We're working to make leaving your car at home as attractive as possible for area commuters," he said, adding that this strategy "is imperative if we are to avoid unbearable commuting conditions on the Expressway and other local roads," he said.

EXPRESS LANE PLAN

Commissioner Tierney detailed a permanent express lane traffic plan based on the success of the 1984-85 winter express lanes that has been implemented on the Expressway.

The two high-speed (left-hand) lanes in each direction have been designated "express lanes" and, during commuter hours, are reserved exclusively for through-traffic between Braintree and Boston.

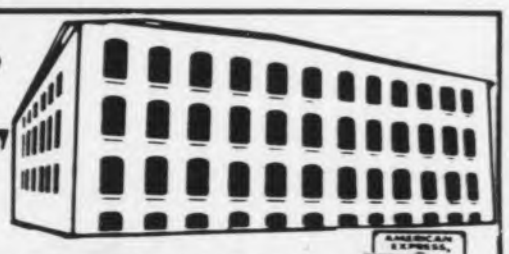
The right lanes will continue to serve all local and truck traffic. White diamond-shaped markings applied to the surface of the left-hand lanes delineate the express lanes and signs along the Expressway give motorists express lane information.

"I urge all motorists to abide by the express lane regulations," Tierney said. "With motorist cooperation, the express lanes will expedite a smooth traffic flow, as they did last winter."

The express lane-local lane configuration is effective weekdays from 6 a.m. to 10 a.m. northbound and from 3 to 7 p.m. southbound. There are no minimum occupancy requirements for vehicles using the express lanes but trucks are restricted to the right-hand local lanes.

Marshfield roadrace Dec. 8

Dec. 8, Rafferty's Pub will sponsor the second annual Rafferty's 5 Mile Road Race. This year's proceeds will help benefit the Marshfield High School Scholarship Fund and the Marshfield Roadrunner's Youth Track program.



The race will begin promptly at noon. Entry fee is $5 per-registration and $6 on race day.

The race is a fast, mostly flat course with one gradual hill. Starting at Rafferty's Pub in the Marshfield Shopping Plaza, the course travels down Webster Street to Careswell Street and loops back to Rafferty's. Each mile will be accurately marked and time splits will be given at each mile. There will be one water stop at the intersection of Webster and Careswell Street (2½ miles).

Last year's race was a huge success with John Madden (24.31) and Andrea Hatch (32:50) taking the top honors. In addition to the Junior, Open, Master, Senior, and Grand Senior categories, an award will be given to the first runner over 210 lbs., as well as an award to the heaviest finisher.

The first 150 entrants will receive a race T-shirt so sign up quickly. Refreshments will be available for everyone following the race. Entry forms can be picked up at Rafferty's Pub or send a self-addressed stamped envelope to Paul Daly, 16 Atlantic Street, Marshfield, 02050.

Hawaii trip for two—$1.00?

Yes! Some lucky couple who paid $1.00 for a Cohasset SPORTS MARKET raffle ticket will say aloha to Hawaii for one sunny week, compliments of American Airlines and Sheraton Hotels. All hotel and airfares will be paid.

The Cohasset PSO (Parent School Organization) SPORTS MARKET will take place at Town Hall, 41 Highland Avenue on Cohasset Common, Friday, Nov. 29 from 1 to 3 p.m. and on Saturday, Nov. 30 from 9 a.m. to noon.

In addition to the first prize trip to Hawaii, a steak dinner for two at New York's famous Gallagher's Steakhouse is offered as second prize, with SPORTS MARKET tee shirts for the whole family (limit six) as third prize. Raffle tickets will be on sale at the Powder Puff Football game at Cohasset High School, Saturday, Nov. 23, at 10 a.m. or at Town Hall on Nov. 29 and 30.

Friday, there will be a cheerleader/football/soccer workshop, kids' movies, and a preview of sports gear to be sold, auctioned or raffled on Saturday. In addition to the raffle, highlights of the SPORTS MARKET on Saturday, Nov. 30 will be:

A used sports equipment sale, featuring skiis, skates, boots, golfclubs, fishing poles, hockey helmets, and other gear donated by Cohasset families. (If any kind soul wishes to donate sports items, they may be dropped off at 178 So. Main St., Cohasset, between 9 a.m. and noon, Saturday, Nov. 23, or call 383-6862 for pick-up.)

There will be a SPORTS AUCTION conducted by renowned auctioneer, Linton Young, who will be hawking such desirables as:

- a blackout/hurricane survival kit (including a generator, chainsaw and candles);
- a "Cruise 'n' Carry" outboard motor;
- sunset cruise of Cohasset Harbor;
- introductory membership at Stone's Gym in Hanover, compliments of Mike Gill;
- $25 gift certificate from GOOD SPORT;
- a tailgate picnic, catered by Laura Atherton;
- New Balance running shoes;
- custom-made super twirl skating skirt;
- Sperry Topsider boating moccasins from Gates;
- Apres ski wine and cheese basket from Sea & Cheese;
- 100% Pima cotton Luxor bath sheet from the Linen Chest;
- Aerobics with Joanne Shepard;
- water ski instruction.

Hot dogs and pretzels will be sold. Admission is $1 for adults, kids free. For more information, call 383-6862. Looks like fun for the whole sporting family, as well as any extra Thanksgiving weekend houseguests! See you at Town Hall.

Band kudos

Congratulations to the following music students for being selected to perform with the Senior High School Southeastern District Band and Chorus. Band: Heather Davenport, clarinet; Daniel Bliss, trombone. Chorus: Michelle Meagher; Amanda Sweeney; Glen Hochkeppel.

Also selected were John Periera and John Kornet who both received all-state recommendations.

Pre-Thanksgiving trip

The early special needs class at the Osgood School spent last Wednesday touring Plymouth. The students visited the Mayflower II and the Plymouth National Wax Museum.

Then they hopped a trolley for a sightseeing tour of the popular historic places located all around this fascinating, historical town.

Mrs. Jillson, Mrs. Mercurio, and their students, Frankie, Peter, Ryan, Joey, Matthew, and Michael wish to express their special thanks to Mrs. Maria Plante for her generous assistance!

Happy Thanksgiving everyone.

Art exhibit visit

The art and French classes of Cohasset High School attended the Renoir Exhibition at the Museum of Fine Arts, Boston, Thursday, Nov. 14.

About 50 students accompanied by Ms. Colleen Lucas, Miss Gray and Sue McNamara of the PSO, viewed this wonderful exhibition. They highly recommend it!

One more win and we are the Champs !

By Lisa Shumaker
Mariner Sports Correspondent

The boys' football team broke a 20-year losing streak to Hanover by beating them, 21-14, on Saturday.

This was one of Cohasset's biggest games of the season, and hopefully they can keep this winning tradition going for at least the next 20 years.

In the first quarter, the Skippers broke the ice when Sean Corkery's pass was tipped by Jamie Roy into the hands of Philip Mahoney, who carried the ball about 45 yards to put Cohasset ahead, 6-0.

Bobby Durkin then kicked the extra point. This was Philip's first touchdown of the season. Then early in the second quarter, Cohasset leapt out to a 14-0 lead when Peter Sandbloom made a fantastic interception and ran the ball for 37 yards into the endzone.

With 50 seconds left in the first half, Hanover finally scored. However, because of two excellent blocks made by Jeff Aaron and Philip Mahoney, Peter Sandbloom ran for an incredible 75 yards and scored, giving Cohasset a 21-7 lead at the half.

Hanover's offense came back strongly in the third quarter, but Cohasset's stonewall defense would not let them through. Coach Phil Pisano felt his defense led by Jon Hall, Bobby Durkin, Philip Mahoney, Peter Sandbloom and Greg Ferreira, played its best quarter of the season during this crucial part of the game. Pisano felt his defense dominated the field and outhit its opponents.

Hanover made a last effort in the fourth quarter and scored. However, their attempts were to no avail. Cohasset still walked away with the victory, 21-14.

On offense, Pisano cited Bobby Durkin as having a good game, especially in the second half. Pisano was also pleased with the blocking of Jeff Soltesz, Jeff Lydon, Jamie Roy and Liam Stanford.

Thanksgiving Day the boys play their arch rival, Hull. A victory here would ensure Cohasset a tri-championship in the South Shore League Small School Division. Hull has always been a traditionally strong team, but Pisano feels his defense is peaking right now.

With a little more work on the offense, Cohasset could very well cap off its successful season with an exciting victory.

GIRLS FIELD HOCKEY

The girls' unbelievable season came to a close last Wednesday as they lost to Bellingham, 1-0, in the semifinals of the state tournament.

Bellingham scored early in the game and then fell back on its heels allowing Cohasset to dominate the rest of the game. The Skippers by far outshot and outplayed Bellingham, but unfortunately the ball just would not fall into the net.

Maureen Farren and Lee Sullivan did a great job creating many scoring opportunities for the Skippers. Cindy Spooner and Julie Bowdoin both had strong games out on the wings. Defensively, Maria Cahill and Sarah Dickerman played well.

The loss, however, should not take away from the girls' incredible season (16-1-4). First, Cohasset had the best record and went further in the tournament than any other field hockey team in the history of Cohasset High School.

Second, during the regular season, the Skippers were the only undefeated team in the South Shore League. Finally, the girls will be adding another banner to the gym as they won the South Shore League Championship title.

This year the girls will be losing the key leadership of seniors: Lee Sullivan, Kara MacDonald, Anne O'Leary, Ginny Nussdorfer, Heather Davenport and Cindy Conklin.

Despite these losses, Cohasset is predicted to have a very strong team next year. It would be very difficult for the girls to match this year's success. However, I wouldn't put it past them!

A frantic fight for possession as Cohasset battled Scituate during a recent field hockey match.

Obituary

Joseph B. Milano Jr.

The Friday and Saturday night performances of "Death of Salesman" will be dedicated to the memory of one its actors, Joseph B. Milano Jr., who died Nov. 17 on his way to his first performance in Cohasset.

The Cohasset Dramatic Club will continue the schedule performances this weekend, despite the tragic loss of actor Milano who portrayed Bernard, a friend to the characters of brothers Biff and Happy.

Director Helen Ketcham explained that this was the first time Milano had worked with the Cohasset Dramatic Club. "He had a tremendous future," she said. "He was writing plays and coaching drama at Xaverian High School. We didn't know him long, but all that time, he was wonderful."

Despite Milano's accident Sunday afternoon, the matinee performance continued without the cast member. Scott Ketcham, who had worked backstage on the play, took over the part when Milano did not show up at Town Hall.

None of the cast members knew of Milano's fate as they continued the show without him. It wasn't until Helen Ketcham returned home that she received a message regarding Milano's accident.

Her son Scott will continue in the role through the weekend.

Helen Ketcham remembered Milano as "a very nice kid. He was talented, agreeable. He was one of us."

Milano, 24, of Milton, was a drama coach and computer analyst at Xaverian High School in Westwood.

Born in Brockton, he lived in Roslindale many years before moving recently to Milton. He was a graduate of Catholic University in Washington, D.C. where he majored in speech and drama.

He was a drama coach at his high school alma mater, where he directed several plays. He was planning to produce and direct his own play, "Invitation to Murder" next month.

He is survived by his father, Joseph B. Milano Sr. of Milton; three sisters, Joanne Milano, Stephanie Milano, and Michele Milano, all of Milton; a brother, Steven Milano of Milton; and his grandmother, Irene Milano of Roslindale.

He was the son of the late Ann (McDermott) Milano.

A funeral Mass will be celebrated Thursday, Nov. 21, at 10 a.m. in Sacred Heart Church in Roslindale. Burial will be in Forest Hill Cemetery.

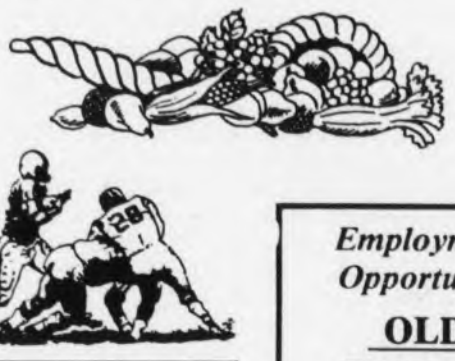
Memorial donations may be made to the Xaverian Brothers High School, 800 Clapboardtree St., Westwood, 02090.

St. Stephen's

Enquiring about the faith - If you have any questions about the faith we share in God, if you would like a refresher, an overview of what we believe, if you are an adult who would like to be conformed or received into the Episcopal Church, or would like to reaffirm the promises made at your Baptism. Then the upcoming Enquirer's class is for you.

This class began Tuesday, Nov. 12, at 7:30 p.m., and will extend for six sessions through Dec. 17.

If you have already been confirmed in the Roman or Orthodox Churches, you will be received into the Episcopal Church. Bishop Rath will be with us on Jan. 5 at the 10 a.m. service to celebrate this service of renewal, reception, and reaffirmation.



Helping the homeless - On behalf of the Quincy Crisis Center, I would like to express our appreciation for St. Stephen's monthly gift of $100. With the winter weather approaching, this is a crucial period for homeless people. Wendy A. Johnson

Thank you from Carillonneur-Emeritus - I must regard all that happened not just in terms of the length of time I have been in Cohasset, but also the kind of people who are St. Stephen's Church. The years before my coming to Cohasset and to this church seem a long while ago. The times ahead without an association with St. Stephen's and with its bells seems far in the future. My thanks to each of you, Earl Chamberlain.

Village Fair notes - If anyone has any red, white or green tissue paper, I can put it to good use in making the children's grab bags for the Village Fair. Please call me if you have any contributions or would like to help. The Fair will be held Dec. 7 Dawn Vivian, 383-6732

Green wreaths will be decorated at the Congregational Church each day from Monday, Dec. 2, through Thursday, Dec. 5, from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. Please come by any time during those hours and give us a hand. We need a lot of help - experience is not necessary. Anyone with fresh greens we can use for swags should drop them at the church or we can pick them up. Please help ! Ginny Riley

Theological education by extension - An Education in Ministry study group will begin on the South Shore by the first of the year. This is a small group using the four-year curriculum of the School of Theology at the University of the South. It is a course of study for lay people with a Mentor who facilitates the learning. The Mentor for this group will be the Rev. Deborah Warner at St. John's in Hingham. If you are interested in participating in or learning more about this program for theological education, contact the Rector.

CHESS EVENT

The new South Shore Chess Club will meet Saturday, Nov. 23, from 12 - 5:30 at the Ventress Memorial Library, Library Plaza, Marshfield.

Christmas house tour Dec. 12

The Community Garden Club of Cohasset will be presenting a "Christmas in Cohasset House Tour" Dec. 12 from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m.

Among the six homes which will be toured that day is an elegant colonial house near Cohasset Village. This home, originally a single-level cape-ranch, was converted into a colonial home with contemporary features.

There are many colonial features throughout, alongside contemporary flairs such as a green-house window in the kitchen and an open family room.

A garden entry is perfect for seasonal flower displays for that creative gardener.

Another home is an English country house that is described as both beautiful and functional. Stately high ceilings, marbled fireplaces and infusions of light and color greet each visitor at every turn.

The third tour home is a century-old structure moved to its present location many years ago by horse and wagon.

The livingroom is baronial, and the dining room features dark paneling from the "Rose Standish" ferry which was plucked from the ocean water near Nantucket many years ago.

A dramatic new kitchen and skylighted breakfast room set a striking pose in contrast to the old elegance of this home.

Another tour house will be a turn-of-the-century mansion revealing handcrafted details long forgotten in the homebuilding industry.

Rich paneling outlines the formal dining room, while the sun-splashed solarium contains a huge fireplace and a wall of leaded glass windows.

A fifth home is situated at the edge of a salt marsh, reflecting the peace and tranquility of its surroundings. Stone fireplaces fill the livingroom and the dining room which are flanked by huge glass windows.

There is also a balcony reflecting a dramatic view of the ocean from the home's master bedroom.

The final home on the tour features ocean views from this converted carriage house. A rainbow of pastels color the formal dining room, while the large family kitchen possesses its own eclectic charm.

There is also a unique wicker room and a special guest room filled with lovely antique furnishings.

Among the Community Garden Club members working on this Christmas event are: President Mary Larson; Tour Chairman Barbara Bowman; Hostess Chairmen, Carla Getto and Barbara Ericson; Tea Chairman, Mary Hickey; Decorators Chairman, Pam Henry; Ticket Sale Chairmen, Rita Strong and Denise Desmond; Boutique Chairmen, Jeanne Replogle, Joanne Haynes and Joan Shockman; and Publicity and Posters, Arlene Ferreira.

Tickets are being sold in advance at Country House Antiques and Collectables, 818 Chief Justice Cushing Highway, and two Village locations, In Stitches on Brook Street, and Fleming's Hardware on Elm Street.

If you would prefer to have your tickets mailed, contact Mrs. Paul Desmond at 383-6446, or Mrs. Louis Strong at 383-0939. Tickets will cost $10 each.

Also featured from 11 a.m. to 4 p.m. will be "Palate Pleasers" at the Cohasset Historical Society's Lothrop House, 14 Summer Street. There will be a "Holiday Boutique" at the Lothrop House, featuring Chirstmas arrangements to decorate your "house beautiful."

New art center president

Cohasset artist Claffy Williams has been elected the president of the South Shore Art Center.

At its annual meeting the Center at 103 Ripley Road in Cohasset elected its new board of directors. In accepting the position, Williams congratulated outgoing president Sheldon Ripley on the fine work he did during his term of office.

Serving on the board of directors with Williams are F. Allen Weisenfluh, vice president; Peter Chapman, treasurer; Anita Franks, recording secretary; and Ali Swedock, corresponding secretary. Also serving on the board are Patrick Dudensing of Duxbury, Thomas Hamilton of Cohasset, Don Lettis of Hingham, Polly Logan of Cohasset, Shirley Neer of Cohasset and Stan Nikkel of Hingham.

Each one of the board members brings to the Center an expertise in business, education or the arts and from this input and interest the Center continues to grow in strength and area of influence.

Art workshop

After the rush of the Christmas holidays, take a brief rest and enroll in a week long workshop at the South Shore Art Center.

The Center's midterm January workshops zero in on portrait painting and life drawing. During the week of January 6 the Center at 103 Ripley Road will offer a portrait workshop taught by artist Katherine Smit and a life drawing workshop taught by artist and teacher David Tandy. Advanced registration is required for these workshops.

Portrait painting will meet from 9:30 a.m. to 12:30 p.m. January 6 through January 10 while the life drawing workshop meets in the evening 7 to 10:15.

Smit will work with students on the structure of portraiture by teaching them how to make a sound, accurate drawing. Charcoal or pastel may be used and students will work from a model.

Also drawing from a live model, the life drawing workshop will be concerned with the basic understanding of the surface structure and form of the human figure. Tandy will teach volume and proportion as it relates to life drawing and influences of anatomy on the drawing.

For further information on these workshops contact the South Shore Art Center, 383-9548.

Cohasset Business Briefs . . .

Charles Sullivan of Scituate, head teller in the Cohasset Office of Cohasset Savings Bank was the state's top salesman of Savings Bank Life Insurance during the month of October and his sales earned the bank its first position among the ten leading banks in the state.

Sullivan was among only four registered SBLI Agency Representatives who recorded sales of $100,000 or more during the month. His total of $145,000 placed Cohasset Savings Bank third among more than 100 of the state's savings banks handling life insurance sales. For the year to date, sales of Savings Bank Life Insurance, a low-cost form of life insurance protection, totalled over $512 million in Massachusetts, and provided coverage for 22,453 individuals.

Sullivan joined Cohasset Savings in 1982 and has completed a training course that qualified him as a Registered Representative. He was commended by Richard A. Peters, Vice President of the state organization of Savings Bank Life Insurance for his October sales performance.

A panoramic view of a grocery aisle at J. Bildner's at the Cushing Plaza.

Conway associates honored

Associates of the Jack Conway Co. were honored for their commit ment to continuing education in the real estate profession at a recent reception sponsored by the company.

The event attracted 133 sales associates who have received or have successfully completed courses leading to professional designations.

The evening's keynote speaker, Quincy Junior College President Clayton Johnson, stressed the need for continuing education. "What history clearly teaches is that in a dynamic society, where previously learned understandings and techniques are in constant change, we must constantly relearn to comprehend," he said. "To live in dynamic world, we must become dynamic in our personal growth and development. Or, failing to do so, our ever changing society will soon pass us by."

Company President Richard Cahill recognized the six associates who have received the Certified Real Estate Brokerage Manager (CRB) designation, including Cohasset Manager Muriel Desmond.

Associates were also recognized who have attended or are working toward the following designations: Certified Residential Specialist (CRS); Certified Commercial Investment Member (CCIM); Graduate, Realtors Institute (GRI); Real Estate Appraisal (REA); Accredited Relocation Coordinator (ARC); or Institute of Real Estate Management (IREM).

Kern.

"We will do anything you want us to do," Bildner told the board. "Believe me, this is the last place we wanted to be before our opening, but, please let us open tomorrow."

Representing KoKo Island Restaurant, engineer Norman Levin asked permissed to do emergency repairs to eliminate the sewage problems at the restaurant.

Presently all kitchen and sewer waste are piped out through the same pipes into the grease trap outside, turning the greasetrap into a cesspool.

The grease from the kitchen waste is killing the bacteria which would normally digest the sewage.

Mr. Levin proposed to separate the kitchen and sewer lines and run the sewer directly into the septic tank. He also plans to waterproof the catch basin and get a properly working vented system to eliminate odor.

"I think it is a very reasonable thing to be doing," Dr. Godzik said.

Dr. Bliss agreed that at least it was a step towards a solution. "It sounds like it is something that has to be done multi-staged."

The board accepted the motion that the plan be approved as the first step in creating a solution.

Mr. Levin said he hoped it would be the only step needed.

John Norris also appeared before the board seeking permission to upgrade the septic system on his King St. property. The board asked him to come back next week with the plans for eliminating the present cesspool and constructing a new one.

In the original proposal Norris wanted to supplement the present system. The installer Arthur Pompeo, Jr., said the cesspool was only 10 feet away from the foundation of the house and they would be better off just building a new septic tank.

Dr. Bliss advised him to abandon the cesspool and it would still be considered a repair.

The board accepted an emergency repair plan for the property at 226 Jerusalem Rd. The present cesspool is close to a well that does not show up on the plans. Now all the plumbing is hooked up and some of the pipes are running outside. A new cesspool will be installed, watersaving devices will be required and the well must be shown on the plans.

The board listened to the report of Joseph Laugelle, director of the Cedar St. landfill. Concern was raised over the issue of keeping contractors from dumping at the site. The landfill is only for use by homeowners who are doing their own work.

Laugelle also complained that too much whitewear was being dumped there.

"You cannot crush whitewear," Laugelle explained. Barbara Kern suggested it be banned from the dumpsite or they would have to get money to get rid of it.

Sen. Golden advocates regional government

Recently, Sen. William Golden was interviewed by The Mariner about his first year in office, and he detailed how he views the significance of regional government. He serves as chairman of the Committee on Counties.

The Mariner—How do you see government changing?

Sen. Golden—I see regional government as being very, very important in Massachusetts and increasingly important throughout the country. Why? Because I think we're going through a decentralization of power in this country, where we realize that now we have the technology to deal with the complexity of our society in a very customized way. We can deal with local problems with the same degree of sophistication that was only available to us before in a very centralized governmental fashion. We can have computers in town government, as well as in state government or federal government.

You see this trend. The federal government is becoming less powerful. The state government is becoming more powerful. And I think you will see that local government and regional government becomes more powerful as well. Certainly regional government has a greater degree of sensitivity to the needs of a particular community or a particular region than state government can. Therefore it can be much more effective in the delivery of services than the state or federal government can.

At the same time we are beginning to realize that a lot of our problems are bigger than single communities and therefore we need a regional response to those problems. That's something I talked about a lot during my campaign. Coincidently I found myself with an opportunity to do something about it through my chairmanship on counties and through what I perceived as an opportunity to bring some leadership to the South Shore as a region.

The Mariner — A major thrust of your Senate campaign was to provide more clout for the South Shore. Your colleague Paul Harold (D-Quincy-Braintree-Holbrook) said the other day that the "Southeast Expressway has been a catalyst for new unity among South Shore legislators."Do you agree?

Sen. Golden — I agree it has been a catalyst. But what I think is there's a far greater catalyst. The Southeast Expressway provided unity for the state legislators. To really get unity on the South Shore you needed unity at the local level. Traditionally the towns on the South Shore have been very parochial. They've looked inwardly for solutions to their problems, not to their neighbors. The degree of cooperation between towns on the South Shore has been very, very limited. What has happened in the last five or ten years has been that we are now being hit with the forces of economic development, in such a way that the problems that we now are confronting are really regional problems and the towns have increasingly, through their frustration in dealing with these problems, begun to realize that the solutions really are as regional as the problems and that they have to work closely with their neighbors. So I think that economic growth and development on the South Shore has been even a more important factor than the Southeast Expressway or any other single factor.

> "What we're (Metro South) going to do on the 21st is that we're proposing a ground water and surface water protection program which will be much more comprehensive than what Weymouth has done."
> —Sen. Golden

Now we have had an opportunity which didn't exist five or even maybe two or three years ago, for the communities to understand the benefits of working together. When I offered this Metro South (Sen. Golden's plan for organizing South Shore communities into a regional group) approach, the thing that astounded me is the degree of interest and the positive response I got. I thought there'd be a lot more nay-saying, a lot more negativism, a lot more parochial protectionism by each town. What I found was that in every town I approached, the local officials were more than willing to talk about a regional approach to these solutions because they knew, from their own experience with dealing with the problems, that that was the only approach that would work at this point in time. It was a historic change, I think, in the development of the South Shore to have these communities, probably for the first time since the American Revolution, sit down around one table and begin to talk about solving problems together.

The Mariner — There's another meeting coming up, isn't there?

Sen. Golden — Yes, on the 21st of November. That will be in the town of Marshfield. Every meeting has been in a different town. We started out in Hingham. We went to Scituate. The next one will be in Marshfield and at that meeting we will decide to have our next meeting in another town. I think it's very important.

The Mariner — All the communities in the Metro South district are sending people?

Sen. Golden — Ten out of the 11 who were asked to join are sending people and have moved along every step of the way together. The one community that has not joined is the community of Pembroke. That's unfortunate and maybe when Pembroke sees what we're able to do, I hope, Pembroke will reconsider, because I think they're a key town in this district.

What we have done is that we've taken a series of steps to form this. I sent out an invitation to 11 communities to send representatives of their Planning Board, their Board of Selectmen and their MAPC (Metropolitan Area Planning Council) representative to sit in on this meeting. To my surprise, not only did each town send a represenative, but for most towns it was two or three elected officials that came, a very high degree of interest.

The next thing we did is that we asked people to designate one elected official as the voting member on Metro South. This required each town to take a motion, which we sent back with them, bring it before the Board of Selectman and take an action in favor of joining. They had to pass this motion. That committed the town officially to participating.

At that next meeting we proposed to them a grant application to the Executive Office of Communities and Development. The purpose was to obtain funding so that the Metro South group would have some staff to organize it and began an outreach program to each of the communities to develop a sense of what issues the organization should be dealing with and how we should organize around those issues.

The Mariner — How do you see this as distinct from the MAPC?

Sen. Golden — I think we have a great partnership with the MAPC. In fact, one of our greatest supporters in this whole effort is the MAPC. The MAPC is responsible for 101 cities and towns. They can't, they just can't respond to each one of those 101 cities and towns individually and get their programs started.

The Mariner — You see Metro South as supplementing the MAPC?

Sen. Golden — It's really part of the MAPC effort. The MAPC is recognizing that they can be more effective if the towns within the MAPC form sub-regional groups. I think what's going to happen here is that the other towns in the MAPC will follow suit and do what we're doing.

Young People's Theatre to expand productions

The Young People's Summer Theatre of Scituate recently announced plans for expanding its existing program following its 10th anniversary production next summer, an expansion that will develop over a minimum of five years.

Recently, Don Capen, Administrator, met with a representative of the Mass. Council on Arts & Humanities to discuss program development and potential as well as funding for YPST.

The expansion program includes: the development of a year-round program which will enable YPST to produce smaller-case musicals and non-musicals; implementation of a program for elementary school-age children; and expansion of the existing summer program to include daytime workshops in music, dance and drama on a more full-time basis.

In addition, mini-productions including scenes, one-acts and recitals would be developed. This program would be open to youths 12 to 16 years old and would include an "outreach" approach to attract members from towns not within commuting distance of Scituate.

Other plans include: the development of a year-round troupe which would perform at various functions and nursing home facilities; implementation of a "work-study" program enabling eligible senior members to be paid for additional duties to aid with college tuition and costs; and the design and development of a permanent facility for the group and other area cultural organizations.

Capen said that a parent-member council is being organized to examine the pros and cons of expansion. "There's a lot of ideas that have to be refined," he stated, "and if we're going to do any or all of this we want to do it right, and without hurting the existing program."

He indicated that some of the obstacles will be funding, competitive programs, and the availability of a facility to conduct the programs. "But," he said, "we feel the time is right. We've been successful for nine summers with slow and steady growth and we want to give ourselves a little push.

Capen added that there are still many people who don't attend the YPST shows and there are some who don't even know the program exists.

He added that he's employing a mailing service to reach every household in the area so those people who don't know the program exists—will. "I know there are kids out there who would join us if they knew about us. It's amazing how many people don't read the newspaper."

Capen and his staff feel that the tenth anniversary celebration is a good transition point. The celebration will include a revue with scenes and musical numbers from all YPST's productions to date.

Anyone who has participated in the group will be invited back to do an encore performance. Anniversary jackets will be available and a reunion dinner is planned. Then, it is hoped that the first phase of expansion can be initiated with a production of "A Christmas Carol" next winter. Also in the works is a musical play Capen is writing for younger children, entitled "Part of Getting Tall," on the topic of growing up.

As for the summer of '86 musical, scripts are being read and a decision should be made soon so both events can be included in Scituate's 350th anniversary calendar of events.

A child is abused: A mother wants justice

by Cathy Conley

The five-year-old girl was playing quietly in the kitchen of the second floor apartment.

Her father was drying dishes. The mother was at work.

"I have a secret I can't tell you," the child said.

"What is it? asked her father.

"I can't tell you. It's bad," she said.

"You can tell me anything," he said softly.

The child would say only a sentence. But that sentence would thrust the family into a two-year nightmare that is not yet over — a nightmare which began for the little girl a year earlier when she was four.

In her own words, she told her father that a relative who had been babysitting had exposed himself, asked her to touch him and had touched her.

She blurted this out, became nervous and fell silent.

With all the self-discipline in his body, the father tried to leash his feelings of horror and coax his daughter to tell him more.

This person was a much-loved relative, a young friend, a trusted babysitter for over a year, "my little buddy who I took everywhere with me," the father said.

"If you can't tell me anymore about it honey, tell your mother or someone else you can trust," the father said.

That night he told his wife. The stunned couple believed their child immediately.

"It hit me like a wall falling on me. I was numb. I went grocery shopping and don't remember anything I bought. I thought I saw him (the relative) everywhere," the mother said.

Scenes during the past year washed over the mother's consciousness — how her daughter was struggling with night terror, how she would not sleep in her bed but slept on the floor, how she cried without reason, how difficult she was to handle, how she was misbehaving in school, and how she giggled when the mother tried to say evening prayers with her.

Over and over again, the mother said she asked her daughter — "is anything wrong?... Is something bothering you?... Can I help you in anyway?"

But the little girl had no answer.

The minute the daughter awoke the next morning, the mother went to her. "I hugged her. I told her I loved her. Over and over again, I told her she had done nothing wrong.

"I told her I was so sorry about what happened. I told her he would never be in our home again. I told her she was brave to tell us, that she was safe and that Mommy and Daddy would help her," the mother said.

Immediately the father confronted the 14-year-old relative accused by the child, along with his parents. "He has never been in the same room with my children since," the father said.

The next day, the little girl told her kindergarten teacher the same story she told her father.

The teacher called the state Department of Social Services and a social worker from the Department of Social Services was at the home within 24 hours.

She interviewed the little girl and suggested that the mother start the child in counselling at Coastal Community Counselling immediately.

"Counselling has been the one postive thing that has helped my child. They use dolls, clay, drawings and games in play therapy," the mother said.

For the next month, the couple were in a quandary. Should they press charges or not? The parents of the alleged abuser had promised their son would get therapy.

The little girl became more troubled and the parent's rage grew. They decided to press charges.

They called the district attorney's office, and Patricia Nigrelli, director of the sexual assault unit was in their apartment within a few days.

"At this time I was eight months pregnant with my third child. Pat Nigrelli spent two hours in my daughter's bedroom. When she came out and saw how upset I was, I don't think she wanted to tell me everything she learned because of my condition," the mother said.

Nigrelli began to tell the mother the details of a year of sexual abuse the child said she had suffered at the hands of the babysitter relative.

The teenager had tormented the child with threats that if she told anyone "God wouldn't love her,"... "He would send her to hell"... "Her mother would put her away forever"... The police would come and arrest her."

"I had to make her stop. I couldn't stand it. I couldn't listen. There is no way to describe the guilt I felt. Why wasn't I there? Why was I working? Why wasn't there some evidence? How could I not have known? Why didn't she tell me?" the mother said.

Shortly after the Nigrelli visit, the mother gave birth to a healthy baby boy, their third child — "the most well-adjusted baby you've ever seen," she described.

A secret that must be told

"His sweet personality has kept us together during this nightmare."

At this point the mother and father knew only that one of their children had been sexually molested by one person.

The relative admitted his guilt, was getting therapy and was awaiting trial.

The family was living in a world obsessed with what they thought was a single, or perhaps a few, instances of abuse.

They had their daughter in counselling. The mother had joined a mother's group. "There is no group counselling for fathers. Most of the sexual abuse is done by fathers," the father said.

"I have brought up my new baby in counsellors' offices," the mother said, the visits are that frequent.

The parents were living in a quiet world of desperation. Neither could sleep at night. "I began taking sleeping pills," the father said.

The mother left her job, and her husband took on a second one to support the family. "I won't leave my children alone for a moment. I got so that I didn't want to be with people. I trusted no one.

"Because the abuser was a juvenile, everytime I saw a teenager I would get this feeling of hate," the mother said.

"And I was blanking out at the office. My mind is obsessed with this. Ten minutes would go by and I wouldn't know what had happened," the father said.

But there was more anguish in store for the young couple.

Even after a whole year of counselling for the daughter, the parents had not even learned half the story.

Their son, who was three years old at the time the abuse of his sister began, was acting strangely. "He would run under the couch and punch and punch at the springs," the mother said.

Little by little the daughter began to talk to her counsellor about her brother — first that he was in the room when the abuse was going one, finally that the toddler himself had also been abused.

Again Patricia Nigrelli came to the home. This time the mother was allowed to stay in the room.

"The only way my son would talk to Pat Nigrelli was by hiding under the table. He pulled his shirt up over his face, rocked back and forth and held his stomach," the mother said.

But from under that table came a story of hair-raising abuse. The small muffled voice told not only of molestation by the babysitter but by three other young teenagers, who were invited into the apartment.

The little boy reiterated the threats that his sister had told her counsellor.

"Even then, after Pat Nigrelli left, I knew there was something else — that they had not told me the whole story.

"We were sitting on the couch. I said to my daughter — 'I know there is something, honey, tell me'," the mother said.

"My son said —'Tell, Mommy, it will make your stomach feel better.'"

The daughter then told her mother that on one occasion all three boys took her into the bedroom. All "did something to her." And one raped her, the mother said.

"I went crazy for awhile that day. I couldn't tell my husband. Just a few days before, he had said — 'God help anybody if I find out anybody else has touched my little girl'," the mother said.

"If he learned about the rape, and that my son had also been abused, that there were three others, I was afraid he would flip out," the mother said.

She called the Braintree police and set up an appointment with a detective.

"We went alone without the children. The first thing the detective did was make me promise I wouldn't try to take the law into my own hands. I promised. Then they told me about the other abusers and the rape," the father said.

"If your child is raped, you are raped too," the mother said. "You go through the same pain. They took away my children's innocence. And they took away mine. I do not trust anybody anymore."

The detective set up an interview at the Braintree police department among Nigrelli, the parents, the two children and the detective.

Nigrelli explained to the parents that it would be better if the interview were held at the police station because it would be somewhat the same atmosphere of a courtroom.

"It was the worst two hours of the whole ordeal," said the mother. "The children were terrified. Even though they were sitting on our laps.

"They kept asking my children questions. And the children kept getting more and more upset," the other said.

"The children gave good descriptions of the abusers once and then became quiet.

"The police showed them pictures. They included the suspects. When my daughter came to one, she turned dead white and started to cry. But she would not identify the person.

"The scene in the Braintree police department set them back a whole year."

It was then that the parents decided they could not let their children take the stand in court.

They feel the Braintree police are not agressively going after the three alleged abusers.

"The police saw the way my daughter looked at one picture," the father said. "My relative also gave this person's name.

"The police then questioned this individual and decided, just by talking with him, that he had nothing to do with it. The individual said he would take a polygraph test, but the detective said no.

"Why should this detective take it upon himself to decide whether the accused was telling the truth or not? How could he find him innocent on the basis of his own intuition?

"Does this man have this right? If so, why don't we just forget about the court and trials?

"I have called this detective six times since my children were questioned, and my calls have never been returned."

"The police said my children would have to testify. They could not be videotaped. But they could sit on our laps. (There is legislation pending in the state legislature to allow videotapes to be used in courtrooms.)

"Sitting on our laps would not eliminate the fear that has been created in my children by these monsters.

"There is no way on earth they are going to sit in the same room with these sick-minded, cruel, inhuman people and not be nervous.

"My God, what has our system come down to when we can't even protect our children.

"We as a community might not be able to stop all the child abuse that is going on around us. Statistics show one in four children are abused.

"But we had better start protecting them.

"My children cannot go to court. It took us almost a year and a half to get the whole story.

"Does our system expect these children to go to court, be questioned by strangers and tell them it took so long for them to tell us?

"The bottom line is these people will get away with it. I think the people of Braintree have a right to know what's roaming the streets of their town.

"I can look out of my window and sometimes see these people just hanging around.

"If you are a parent, you should be able to imagine my wife's and my own rage at this injustice.

"We are victims of a cruel and uncaring system.

"We came to the newspaper to tell people to be careful of their children and to always listen to what your children are telling you," the father said.

"I have to choose between the well-being of my children and the punishment of their abusers."

"And I choose the well-being of my children. I will not allow them to be put on a witness stand and relive this in front of strangers. It would do too much harm to them.

"And anyway, even if they were convicted, they will just get a slap on the wrist.

"This is what my wife is finding out in her group therapy with other mothers of abuse victims.

"These animals will sit in front of a psychiatrist and tell how they were abused when they were young. They'll get therapy for six months and be put out on the streets again.

"And meanwhile look what has happened to my family," the father said.

"Three days a week, my wife bundles up the baby, we scrape up enough money for cab fare, and she takes herself, my son and my daughter to therapy. There is no end in sight.

"We lie to our friends about where we go. No one knows about this.

"My daughter has nightmares every night. She hasn't slept in her bed for two years. It will take a lifetime to bring her self-esteem back," the father said.

"When a child is abused, a mother wants justice," the mother said.

"And a father wants vengeance," the father said.

Nearly Native — by Darrell Berger

A Rose by any other name is special

By Darrell Berger
Special to the Mariner

Pete Rose recently broke Ty Cobb's record for most hits in a major league career. The similarities between Pete and Ty have often been pointed out, but to my knowledge no one has yet reflected on the similarity of their names.

Peter Edward Rose and Tyrus Raymond Cobb both are known to the public by two punchy syllables, names no longer than the singles for which they are known. Ty Cobb. Bang, bang. Off the second baseman's glove. Pete Rose. Grounder up the middle.

Two younger hitmakers also have short names. George Brett. Wade Boggs. Do short, stumpy names make for short, stumpy hitters? Not always. Consider Babe Ruth. Or even Jim Rice and Fred Lynn, both long hitters with short names. Or Cy Young, the pitchers' equivalent of Babe Ruth.

But there is something magical in a name. a rose by any other name might swing as sweetly, but would Adlai Rose or Merrill Rose have had what it takes?

The best baseball name of all time is Mickey Mantle.

His father had been an excellent semi-pro player, and he raised his son to be a big leaguer right from the start, naming him after star catcher Mickey Cochrane (whose real first name is Gordon). So thoroughly did the name stamp destiny on the Oklahoma lad, that seventeen years after his retirement, he still makes his living simply by being Mickey Mantle, or at least off once having been the Mickey Mantle of a generation of boy's fantasices. Would Chuck Mantle have made such a lasting impression?

Writer Brendan Boyd made a similar point some years ago in a book about baseball bubblegum cards. In discussing an obscure infielder named Foster Castleman he wrote, "Of course a ballplayer with a name like this is never going to amount to anything." He doesn't even have a chance for a good nickname. Foster "Night Train" Castleman? Foster "Big Daddy" Castleman? No way. It is the name of a philosophy instructor or an electrical engineer. Perhaps that's what he's doing now, since his lifetime batting average of .205 didn't bring him much fame or fortune.

Boyd continues to give credence to the relationship of name to accomplishment. He writes, "A center fielder named Wolfgang Amadeus DiMaggio stands about as much chance as a concert pianist named Peanuts Rubenstein."

Native Americans realized this long ago, and often waited until puberty to bestow permanent names on children. Having observed the youngster's talents and tendencies, they could discern a budding Crazy Horse, for instance, from a young Sitting Bull.

Hollywood has known the power of names for years and changes them as a matter of course. Would Tony Curtis have been as successful under his real name, Bernard Schwarz?

Aleister Crowley, a notorious occultist of the early decades of this century, believed the most powerful, successful names had a certain rhythm. That rhythm was, using poetic scansion, a dactyl followed by a spondee. In other words, a stress followed by two unstressed in the first name, two stressed syllables in the last. Crowley changed his first name from Alexander to conform to his belief.

Garrison Keillor, whose radio show "The Prairie Home Companion" has put him on the cover of Time recently revealed he elongated his first name from Gary. He thought the extra syllable gave him more standing. In doing so he conformed to Crowley's theory. Maybe Gary Keillor might never have made it.

All of which brings me to the unshakable reality that my name is Darrell. When I received it thirty-seven years ago, nobody in my family had ever heard of it. I was named after my father's commander in World War II, an officer and a gentlemen from Presque Isle, Maine.

When I started school none of my classmates were named Darrell. Worse, it sounded like Carol and wrought endless confusion in school as I constantly responded to questions and requests directed to girls.

I longed for a male name model. The only one I found was Darrell Johnson, a scrub catcher with a career total of two home runs.

As I became an adult I tried to convince myself that names didn't matter. Then, out of nowhere, people started to show up on the sports page named Darrell, or at least one of its many spelling variations. Darryl Dawkins, Darryl Strawberry, Darrell Griffith. Even better, most of them were incredibly gifted blacks. Suddenly Darrell wasn't just acceptible, it had soul.

The ultimate reward came this year, when Darrell Evans led the American League in home runs. He's about my age and surely experienced some of what I did in trying to accept a name nobody else had. Way to go, Darrell.

I like my name now. I think I had to grow into it. I'm glad it's a little different, yet no longer strange.

However, I don't think I'll ever get friendly with my middle name. I'm not ready to discuss that yet. Maybe in another twenty years.

The Dragon's Dungeon — By Claire McDonough

Are the high tech machines taking over society?

By Claire McDonough
Special to the Mariner

"This is too much!" the Dragon roared. "I knew high tehnology would be the downfall of our way of life as we know it, and this bears me out."

I glanced at the paper he was reading.

"You've bought another one of those supermarket newspapers," I accused him.

"Every time you do you just get upset, and you know they're not even accurate."

He pointed to the article he had been reading.

"Not accurate?" he fumed. "what we're dealing with here is factual reporting. Seems some poor woman plunked down $18.50 of her hard earned money for a Mattel See and Say and it sabotaged her family life."

"That's ridiculous," I replied. " I remember See and Say. Most of our kids had one when they were little. It's a plastic toy. You pull a string and the toy shows you a picture of an animal, then makes an appropriate noise. With a picture of a pig you get an 'oink.' With a cow you get a 'moo' and so on. Just a harmless toy."

"Sure," he retorted. "Only this one doesn't moo or oink. Whenyou pull the string on this See and Say you get swear words."

I was truly shocked. "No!" I told him. "Say it isn't so. Not See and Say."

He nodded. "Sad but true. Not only does this See and Say turn the air blue, but the words don't even match the pictures."

"Does Mattel have an explanation?" I asked.

He snorted derisively. "They claim if you drop your See and Say the sounds may become distorted and sound different. Forgive me if I appear cynical, but the thought of random distorted sounds that arrange themselves in curse words in the owner's native language boggles the imagination. Particularly when they're so clear that the little two year old refers to her possession as 'my (bleep) toy.'"

"I agree," I admitted. "It's sort of like some theories on the origin of the universe. The odds against something like that happening by chance must be astronomical.

"What do you think the explanation is? Do you suppose it's a communist plot?"

"That's always a possibility," he responded, "but personally I think it's bigger than that. My guess is that they're victims as much as we are. There's probably a little kid in Ninsk with a toy that says the same thing in Russian.

"My hypothesis is that we've created a technological monster. First we had the industrial revolution. We invented machines that would do a lot of our heavy labor for us. This worked out so well that we invented machines that would wash our clothes, cook our food, take us to distant cities and nations, even entertain us.

"Then we went too far. We gave the machines brains. You know you've told us that the computer you use at work is a better speller than you are. People everywhere own machines that are smarter than they are.

"How long do you think we could expect machines to continue to serve people with lower I.Q.s than theirs?

"Clearly they've decided to take over."

I shook my head. "Maybe I'm even denser than we thought, but I don't understand how toys that swear will help the machines take over."

"That's because you're not thinking," he told me. "Any manipulator worth his salt knows that if you want to take over civilization you begin by corrupting the young.

"Today it's a See and Say the curses and MTV that blasts weird lyrics over the air waves. Tomorrow it could be subliminal messages on "Mr. Rogers" that deaden the brain cells. After that, who knows?"

"You may be right," I agreed. "Do you suppose there's anything that can be done to stop it before it's too late?"

"Just possibly," he told me. "Fortunately the Summit Meeting is taking place at Geneva. Gorbachev and Reagan have a chance to really accomplish something historic. We can agree to dismantle Mattel and they can agree to do away with their largest computerized toy factory. We promise not to make any more cars that talk and they promise to take the electronic bugs out of hotel rooms. Little by little we eliminate electronic brains. Mankind is saved."

"Sounds good," I said. "Do you really think it will work."

The Dragon looked solemn. "If we can keep our plans secret. I only hope your microwave wasn't listening."

FROM THE KITCHEN

Thanksgiving treats offer banana bread & cream puffs

And now it begins — for most of us, that is. Some capable souls do clever things, like gift shopping all year long and spending rainy Sundays addressing Christmas Cards. But most of us (I like to think), come down to the wire and find it hard to set aside time for gift baking.

But do it we must, for Thanksgiving is late this year, leaving us less than a month till Christmas. If Amy Locke is to turn out her usual holiday gifts of 60 loaves of banana bread and 25 lbs. of fudge she's going to have to hustle. For the past month she and two sisters have had a breath-taking tour of the U.S. via AmTrak. The sound of a train whistle will forever conjure up visions of the 7,000 miles of scenery viewed from their train window.

She has her baking down to a science when it comes to turning out these large loaves by baking four at a time and having four ready for the oven. Amy follows a recipe clipped from the old Boston Globe "Chat Column" 25 years ago, sent in by a reader who signed herself "Fireman's Wife."

BANANA NUT BREAD

Heat oven to 325 and grease and flour large loaf pan.
Cream together:
1 C. sugar and
1/2 C. shortening
2 large bananas, or 3 medium, mashed fine
2 beaten eggs
Add:
1 tsp. ea. salt and baking soda, mixed with
3 T. cold water
Add:
2 C. flour
1 C. sugar
1 tsp. vanilla
Nuts, if desired

Her hobby of bird carving keeps Ellen Nelson on the go; in fact, she has just returned from the Wild Fowl Festival in Easton, Md., a crafts show held each year at the opening of fall duck hunting season. Ellen's hand-carved song birds are displayed in a Florida gallery which can't keep them in stock, which in turn keeps her busy.

When her turn came up on the hospitality committee at our garden club, she was looking for something quick and easy to prepare. At a neighbor's suggestion Ellen tried the recipe you will see below, one so good that Mary Anne Patrick called from Wareham to suggest using it in the column and to say she had served it at a luncheon that day.

STELLA D'ORO CREAM PUFFS

1 pkg. Stella D'Oro anginetti cookies
8 1/2 oz. can crushed pineapple
1 carton prepared whipped topping
3 oz. pkg. cream cheese
Drain pineapple. Mix whipped topping and cheese together for approx. 1 min. at medium speed. Add crushed pineapple and blend all three ingredients for one minute at low speed. Cut cookies in half. Place 1 T filling on bottom layer of each cookie. Replace topping and serve.

Busy people are the ones who get things done, and so I really appreciated it when Steve Keefe called the other evening to say he had just made Judith Whittemore's vegetable soup from the cookbook "True and Tried Recipes," and it was the best soup his family had ever had. Though a retired Air Force general now, Steve says he's working 12 to 14 hours a day, but still finds time to indulge his hobby of cooking.

It's a lucky household where there's a man whose favorite place to be is the kitchen and who likes to cook. Like Steve, Dave Shain gets a kick out of trying new recipes such as

SHAIN'S MUSHROOMS

2 lbs. large fresh mushrooms
1/2 C. crumbled bleu cheese
1 C. dry bread crumbs
1/8 tsp. minced chives
2 T butter
1/4 C. sherry
1/2 C. heavy cream
Remove stems from mushrooms. Place one piece of cheese in each cavity. Saute crumbs and chives in butter until coated. Add remaining cheese. Place layer of crumb mixture in buttered casserole. Add mushrooms, cavity side up. Sprinkle with sherry and remaining crumb mixture. Cover with cream. Bake, covered, at 375 degrees for 25 min.

Report from the schools: teacher's contract

By Michael Greiner

At this point, a large problem seems to be confronting the faculty of the Cohasset schools: the teachers are currently without a contract. Mr. Cisneros, science teacher at the high school and chairman of the teachers' negotiating team, explained to the Lamplight that the teachers have now been without a contract since the beginning of ths year. The town and the teachers have been discussing possible changes since last October. This process is now necessary, since the language in the old contract is now five years old.

Mr. Cisneros expressed some frustration in the fact that for nearly one year, there has been little progress with the negotiations. Currently, however, the town and the teachers are in the process of mediation with state mediator Marsha Hunter. Cisneros explained that there are still numerous bones of contention, but he feels quite pleased with the amount of progress accomplished within the past several weeks.

Eugene Crowell, superintendent of the Cohasset schools, also feels a new hope for these negotiations. He explained that "both sides have great respect for each other, and these reasonable people will be able to work out their problems." He mentioned that both sides now feel "guarded optimism" about the current negotiations and that he respects the "great teachers" in all the schools. Due to this fact, the town and the teachers are currently "optimistically working out their problems," Mr. Crowell explained.

At this point, neither party is allowed to disclose the details of the disagreement.

The big rake

Glen Hochkeppel

November. I know what that means. Autumn. Fall. A big northwind will come and knock half the leaves off the trees. They'll get picked up and tossed into the midst of an innocent, unsuspecting woodlands area, just in time for the southwind to come and knock the other half off the trees. These new arrivals will probably just sit there conveniently biodegrading. Then it will be cold. For about eleven or twelve years, cold. That is Northeastern America's idea of weather. It isn't pretty. Not to us, anyway. Observe:

At 8:06 one recent Sunday morning, I was quite nearly mowed down by a lurching aluminum behemoth of a tour bus barreling down my well forested private way. It stopped just inches past my toes. Stenciled on its sides in every color of the autumnal spectrum were the words "Foliage Tours." On a large spring on top of the bus was mounted a mammoth undulating maple leaf, whose own color, alas, had long been leeched from its peeling paper mache' mass, imparting to this genteel observer a sort of impressionist Cream-of-Wheat feel. Two figures emerged from the beast's gaping maw.

"Hi, I'm Ethel Cowychippy and this is Wendell, my beau (hennish cackle), from the Midwest where we're homespun folks who rise at four ever' day and grow tobacco and nothing for the government and we're here for the foliage. Where is it?" She was about 263 years old, and was bent double, probably because she had eight dozen cameras roped around her neck. Her hair was newpaper colored, and she talked very slowly, though not quite as slowly as her bespeckled "beau" was doddering our way. He too seemed to possess the spine of a candy cane, and the years of several Galapagos turtles, but carried only a small notebook and a fountain pen, his ink bottle swaying poetically on the chain about his neck. She continued:

"A shutterbug m'self. Enjaw capturin' the splendor and majesty of nature on film y'know. 'Tswhy me and Wendell are so perfect together" (they gummed their lips at each other tenderly, as the ancient are wont to do). "Me with the pictures and him with the words. Ain't that so Wendell?"

"Yup."

Wendell suddenly had new life, and scribbled aloud, "I think that I shall never see...aw, I'll finish it later..."

"Oh Wendell!" said Ethel, "He practically deifies that Joyce Kilmer."

"Shoulda' married 'at woman," murmured Wendell. I didn't have the heart to tell him. I said instead:

"Foliage Tours. How much does that run you?"

"Well, we sort of got a steal this time 'round. It's usually difficult to find anything bearable at under 87 hundred. But this is plush even. Indoor plumbing on board," she confided. "By the way, do you know when the evergreens change? We always seem to be late."

I was about to answer when the bus's C.B. burst in.

"This is F.T. Central looking for Big Rake. You copy?"

The driver affirmed, and from what I picked out, the "color intensity band" had just shifted due southeast, calling all F.T. units to respond accordingly. The Cowychippys were called in, but not before Ethel snapped several shots of my trees at nearly point blank range. I couldn't help but notice that the sudden burst of photons from the flashes induced most of the leaves to brown and fall lawnward. Mrs. Cowychippy spoke to me before she re-embarked.

"You have such a nice town. Absolutely nothing like that ocean sunrise we caught down at your beach. And we shall always treasure the sea water that nice man sold us on the way out. But we really have to be off'n catch the tail end of the color band. Oh, and we have to catch the shuttle to California in time t'see the ocean sunset! You know, there's absolutely nothing like..."

Exam exemptions

Juniors and seniors who have shown that they are superior students by receiving a B+ or better for all four terms in a course should be allowed to drop their final exam for that course. There are many arguments which help to support this proposition, arguments brought up by both students and teachers.

There are at least three solid arguments which help to support exam exemption. For example, the reward of not having to take a final exam is a great incentive factor for many students. Students would bring up their grades and keep them up throughout the year, if they had a reward to look forward to in the spring for all their hard work. Mr. Fortin, of the language department, strongly believes that exam exemption would succeed in improving his students' grades, especially those who are not working up to their full capacity.

For "B+" or better students, it would take a "D" exam grade or worse to lower their final grade by a whole grade. For example, if a student received an 89 for all four terms, and he/she received a "D" (65), on the final exam, it would only lower his grade to a "B-." It is most unlikely that a student who has received a consistent grade of "B+" or better for all four terms would get a "D" or lower on his final exam. Also, it is virtually impossible for a "B+" student to raise his/her grade by a significant amount. For example, if a student received an 87 for his grade, it would take a 99 on the final exam just to raise his grade to an "A-."

Furthermore, the time that is saved by not taking the final exam for a course in which he/she is doing very well could be productively spent studying for a course in which he is doing poorly. Ninety percent of the Honors students surveyed would prefer to maintain a "B+" average in all courses, rather than do very well in one course and neglect other courses.

The teachers would also benefit from this proposition, because they would have much more time to spend with other students if they did not have to correct meaningless exams. Many teachers agree with this proposition, such as Mr. Fortin, Mr. Leary, Mr. Hogan and Mr. Neundorf.

However, many teachers have brought opposition to the surface. Mr. Kite and Mr. Leary of guidance both believe that exam taking is a useful experience and skill, necessary for success in any college. Two recent college graduates, Geoff Thayer and Jeff Lyons, both feel that the exams they took throughout their years at Cohasset High School, helped them greatly at college, where much of the curriculum is exam-taking.

During a student's career at CHS, however, one would have taken approximately 48 exams, plus PSAT's, SAT's, IOWA's, SRA's, and Achievements. As a result of the proposed policy change, only ten exams, at the most, would be dropped in the Junior and Senior years, leaving 38 exams which would have been taken. Such a number is certainly adequate to set a solid foundation for exam taking.

Another argument that was presented, was that prestigious colleges may wish to see final exam grades for admission purposes. However, Mr. Leary, the guidance counselor, pointed out that most colleges do not take exams into consideration, because they do not represent day to day work.

Mr. Leary of guidance also brought up the point that exam exemption is unfair to many hard-working "C" students, because learning ability is a gift, not always an obtainable skill. However, students receiving a "C", do not completely understand the material, or do not do enough work to deserve exemption; therefore, the studying involved in a final exam would do nothing but benefit that student.

Exam exemption is a proposition that should be open to superior students. Of course, the student should evaluate all aspects before making a decision about an exam, but from the facts we have collected, most eligible students would not be hindered by exemption, and in fact could be helped.

RENT-A-PILGRIM DESCRIBES COLONIAL LIFE — Here, two sophomores model Pilgrim Fashion.

"What if . . .?"

We all know that almost all of the teachers of Cohasset High School have had a few good chances to put any one of us down, whether it was in or out of class. Do they have the right to do that? Many of us believe that if they do, then we, as students, should also. Therefore, we have decided to return the gesture. TEACHERS: Please understand that all of this is only in good clean revenge.

What if Mr. Hogan didn't wear chalk?
What if Mr. E. Leary's cheeks moved when he smiled?
What if Mr. Walsh wasn't Canadian?
What if Mr. Reade wasn't a Puritan?
What if Mr. Kelly didn't cut out newspaper articles?
What if Mr. O'Neil didn't have his beard?
What if Mr. Dunn explained the homework?
What if Mr. Neundorf answered a question?
What if Dr. Packard didn't wear a leather vest?
What if Mr. Sheehan didn't go to Boston College?
What if Mr. Kite wasn't the original "Mr. Bill?"
What if Mr. Hogan didn't smoke Marlboro cigarettes?
What if Mr. E. Leary found his moustache in his soup?
What if Mr. MacDonald didn't collect cans?
What if Mr. Hughes didn't wear sawdust?
What if Mrs. Schlieff didn't dress with the times?
What if Mr. Gill played football?
What if Mr. MacDermott didn't bounce on his toes?
What if Mr. Narkiewicz didn't dance on desks?

NOTE: Those teachers that happened to get their names in more than once, you are very lucky to have so many characteristic traits.

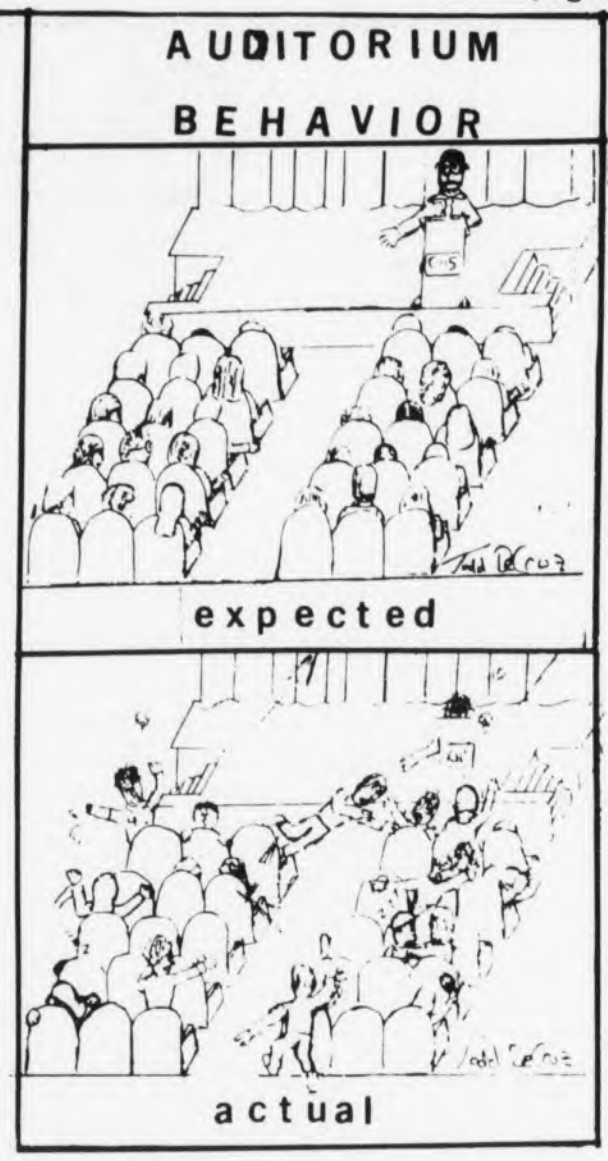
The double lab period, a new policy adopted by Cohasset High School, works well for the science teachers and some of the students; however, for the rest of the school, this situation poses many problems. First, many students miss other subjects once a week in order to attend the lab. Second, students spend much of the ninety minutes with nothing to do. This idle time could be spent much more productively. Finally, students not interested in a science field should not have to spend extra time pursuing knowledge in science. Students should be able to choose the subjects in which they wish to invest more time. In theory, the double lab period makes perfect sense; however, in practice this policy fails tremendously.



In the first place, many students end up missing other major subjects once every seven days because of scheduling problems. For example, Susan Riley, a junior at Cohasset High School, is absent from English class once a week in order to fulfill the requirements for her Physics lab. Similarly, because of her Chemistry lab, Melissa Shea, also a junior, must miss a class of Latin every week. These girls and others like them find that although they do well in their science courses, they fall behind in the classes they miss. Furthermore, both of the girls' teachers do not appreciate the girls' absences from their classes. The teachers of this school work hard to make up teaching plans that stay on schedule. This situation is almost impossible when students leave once a week. Therefore, the double lab period is unfair to both the students who miss majors and the teachers of students who miss their classes.

Secondly, the average high school class lasts about forty-five minutes. When the science experts make up lesson plans, specifically labs for courses, they keep this in mind. It is unreasonable for them to assume that the majority of schools could allow ninety minutes for an experiment. As a result, most of the labs used by a class generally run for forty-five minutes. Surely, some experiments run over the normal forty-five minute mark but usally only a mere five to ten minutes more. Therefore, it is safe to say that the science courses have been alloted too much time.

Finally, unless interested in entering a science field, students should not be compelled to spend extra time in science. If the administrators of this school feel this double period is absolutely necessary, then let the students choose the subjects which they wish to learn more about. Why should the science department get special treatment? Certainly, the teachers in other departments could find some way in which to use the extra time productively. If a student wishes to become a writer someday, he should channel his energies into English, rather than into science. This person could still take science in order to round out his knowledge, but it would not take up an extra period which could be used for pursuing his writing. If one wishes to become a concert pianist, one does not spend more time perfecting his tuba playing. Certainly, a little tuba playing helps to round out one's overall music ability, but concentrating on it will not help one to his goal. Therefore, students should choose whether the double lab period works for them.

The double lab period is a valiant effort on the part of the science department to solve the ongoing problem of too much material to cover and too little time to cover it in. However, all the teachers of this school feel this crunch for time and must cope with it. One would have to increase the school day to about twelve hours in order to accommodate everybody's needs. On paper the double lab period looks like a good idea; add up all the problems it causes, and it becomes clear that an alternative method is necessary.

Remo Williams- the adventure begins

By Lauren Kalita

A delightful new release featuring Fred Ward as an ex-police officer in New York City, Remo is a refreshing break from reality. In no way are Remo Williams and his earnest, yet irresistable side-kick "Chung" your average, everyday crime fighters.

Recruited by an almost non-existent government agency, Ward unwillingly goes into a stringent training program in Korean martial arts. Joel Greu, the aforementioned "Chung," is Remo's comical teacher. Grey plays the part of Chung perfectly. Living with Ward in intense training for countless months, "Chung" never has a compliment or friendly word for his frustrated apprentice. Yet, played with a touch of class, his somewhat "soft" side is shown several times while going to a carnival and watching his favorite soap operas.

As for action, don't expect a Rambo or Chuck Norris type movie. These two newcomers, Fred Ward and Joel Grey, have definitely started out on the right foot.

Dramatic duo

Two plays will be put on this season by Cohasset High. The first was a dramatic production of the play "Flowers For Algernon." Directed by Ron Emmons it tells the story of Charlie Gordon (Andrew Glasfeld), a lovable mentally retarded man, whose intelligence is tripled by an experimental operation performed by Professor Nemur (John Kuntz) and Doctor Strauss (Karin Anglin). Other members of the cast are Jenna Emmons, Laura Kuhn, Mary Beth McNamara, John Perreira, Jill Shockman, Phillip Mahoney, Michelle Carolaro, Glen Hochkeppel, Heather St. Onge, Liz Buckley, Felicia Barton, Carine Mortiaux, Mary McElroy, Jen Hynes, Jacqui Fahey, Chris Conklin, and Peter Kasperowicz. "Flowers" was performed on November 8 and 9 in the school auditorium.

The second play is the all-school musical, "The Pirates of Penzance" by Gilbert and Sullivan, which will be directed by Bryan Marks. In this operetta Frederic (John Kornet) finds that a carefully worded contract can destroy a carefully ordered life. The other major parts of the cast are John Pereira (Pirate King), John Kuntz (Major General), Peter Kasperowicz (Samuel), Glen Hochkeppel (Sergeant of Police), Michelle Meagher (Mabel), Cindy Bell (Ruth), Joy Turner (Edith), Heather Davenport (Kate), and Ann Marie Goggin (Isabel). The chorus is Celia Mullin, Laura Doherty, Carrie Ripley, Vicky Kelly, Laurel Collins, Amanda Sweeney, Kristen Green, Erica Ford, and Mary Beth McNamara. The pirates and police are Karl Becker, Matt Kuhn, Ian Sullivan, Mark McManus, Joel Whitman, Danny Farwell, Damian Wolfe, Andrew Glasfeld, Matt Silvia, Cliff Scott, Craig Carter and David Zaloga. "Pirates" will be performed on December 5, 6 and 7 in the Cohasset High School auditorium.

Please turn out and support Cohasset High dramatics this season. Not only will you be able to see the new lighting board and renovated auditorium but also tomorrow's Oscar, Tony and Emmy winners in action.

Ms. Lucas

By Katie Walsh

For Mrs. Lucas, teaching was a wonderful career choice. She's a person with a lot of enthusiasm, and believes in living every day to the fullest possible extent. Prior to coming to Cohasset, Mrs. Lucas spent two years in Cambridge at Mass. College of Arts. Wanting a change, she then traveled down to the Carribean where she resided on Vieques, a tiny island (4 mi. wide, and 20 mi. long) where "everybody knew each other." There, "La Rubia," as she was fondly called by the people, set up her own studio. She taught a few classes to villagers, who repaid her with dinner, or home made articles of clothing. After two years in the Carribean, Mrs. Lucas decided to continue her graduate work at U. Mass. at Amherst, where she was awarded a scholarship, and in return taught a freshman class in sculpture for two years.

Mrs. Lucas has many new and exciting things planned for the upcoming year. Her classes are doing a variety of different things, such as: creating original masks, full size portraits, charcoal drawings, water colors, ceramics, and even children's story books. Together with Mrs. Wood, they are doing the Literature and Arts Magazine. Another project within the school is the set and scenery for the "Pirates of Penzance." Another thing that really excites her is the walk-in classes, where students may get credit for attending art classes during a study hall.

Outside of school, one of her favorite hobbies, besides sculpture, is cooking. Her specialties are most definitely Mexican and Hot Chinese. Three years ago she put together a cook book of her own entitled, La Casa Cook Book. In it are a mixture of Carribean and Spanish recipes from her days in Vieque. She also has a wonderful cabin in New Hampshire, where she can "escape from the world." Mrs. Lucas is a great teacher, who tries to live life to the fullest, "I try to grab it, and do it all, take risks."

Dick and Jane

By J.K.

The boy strode down the halls of his high school. He wore the azure numbers of his athletic team. His friends were also on his team...all the time. He belonged. He thought — he felt he belonged. He belonged to them. That's the way it goes.

The girl stood by her locker — the one next to his. He was number 239. she was 241. The lockers looked exactly the same...

The girl was blond and portly. She wore heavy make-up and an expensive hair style. She wore acceptable clothes. She wore the azure numbers of her athletic team. She had many friends. She had popularity. She was fat. Her friends said she was "pleasantly plump." She had many boyfriends. The boy liked her very much. The boy day-dreamed of wisking this inflated Barbie Doll off her feet. He had nothing better to do. He thought the girl was fat. He was in love with her. That's the way it goes.

He opened his locker — number 239. A bell rang. The girl and the boy made hurried, frantic movements. They grabbed books. They slammed their lockers. They ran in opposite directions. It was a dance. They were "late."

The boy sat in detention. The teacher had yelled at him. The teacher had a musical voice. When she yelled, it sounded like an opera...a crescendo of a symphony...violins...French horns...Bizet...Dvorak ...building...climbing... The boy had not noticed. He did not know who Dvorak was. He did not listen. All teachers yelled. They did not belong. That's the way it goes....

The girl was in detention too. They sat next to each other. The girl had a Walkman.

"What're you listening to?" the boy asked pointedly.

"Madonna," she said wistfully.

The boy hated Madonna.

"Oh, she's great!" he said excitedly.

They had something in common.

"Would you like to go out tonight?" he asked her indifferently.

"With who?" she questioned demurely.

"With me," he exclaimed boldly.

"Sure," she said.

They made a date.

They were in love.

They had nothing better to do...

It goes like that.

He picked her up at her house that night. He was drunk. He hated the taste of alcohol. His friends said they loved it. He did, too. He drove a pea-green Porsche. He opened the door for her. He handed her a bottle. They had nothing better to...that's the way it goes.

The girl lit a cigarette. She didn't smoke. He kissed her as he spun out of her drive.

"His breath smells like throw-up," she thought.

"Her breath smells like throw-up," he thought.

That's the way it goes.

The boy could not see the road. He saw the telephone pole. The telephone pole was in the middle of the road. How did it get there? The boy didn't have time to think. The girl screamed. She had nothing left to do.

The car hit the pole.

That's the way...

But then again —

If only...

But it always seems that —

That's the way...

That's the way it...

It goes that way.

"Dear Gabby"

Dear Gabby,

I have a terrible problem. I like this guy in one of my classes. He is so nice and funny and cute, but the trouble is that he doesn't like me as a girlfriend. I would really like to get to know him, but I don't know how to tell him how I feel. Please help!

Heartbroken

Dear Heartbroken,

Why not try jumping on him before class starts? If that doesn't work, try playing it cool for awhile and see if he notices the change. That might get him to notice you as the girl you want him to.

Dear Gabby,

I have a drug problem. I'm in the ninth grade and when I go to parties others force drugs on me. I try to quit, but I'm addicted. I steal money from my parents and have cashed in all my bonds. I'm a small fish in the sea of drugs. What should I do?

Messed

Dear Messed,

Who are you trying to fool? Everyone knows that others can't force you to do things that you don't ever want to do. If your will-power is so bad that you find it impossible to resist drugs, then the logical suggestion is for you to become a hermit and to retreat from the world.

Dear Gabby,

One of my teachers is a wicked jerk. He hates me and is always giving me despairing looks as if to say, "where do I get them?" I have no problem with the work and I want to learn what the course is teaching, but this guy is a real loser. Should I drop the course or stick it out?

Confused

Dear Confused,

If you really like the course then my suggestion is to keep with it. Why not check with your guidance counselor and see if another teacher teaches the same course? If there is no other teacher, then I think you should stick with it. After all, maybe it isn't the teacher that is the problem. Have you checked your deodorant lately?

Confidential to Trooper,

Maybe you better consult with a psychologist about your problem. You are definitely not Rambo.

'I am determined'

Staszko won't back off plans for Rte. 3A store

The super Stop and Shop proposed for Route 3A is not dead.

The developer of the project rejected last week by the planning board, will file an appeal this week in Norfolk County Superior Court. Donald Staszko says he will continue to fight to see this project completed and constructed.

"Why did they (the planning board) reject this plan?" he rehetorically questioned. "Maybe it's because my last name is Staszko. Why am I being treated differently from everyone else?"

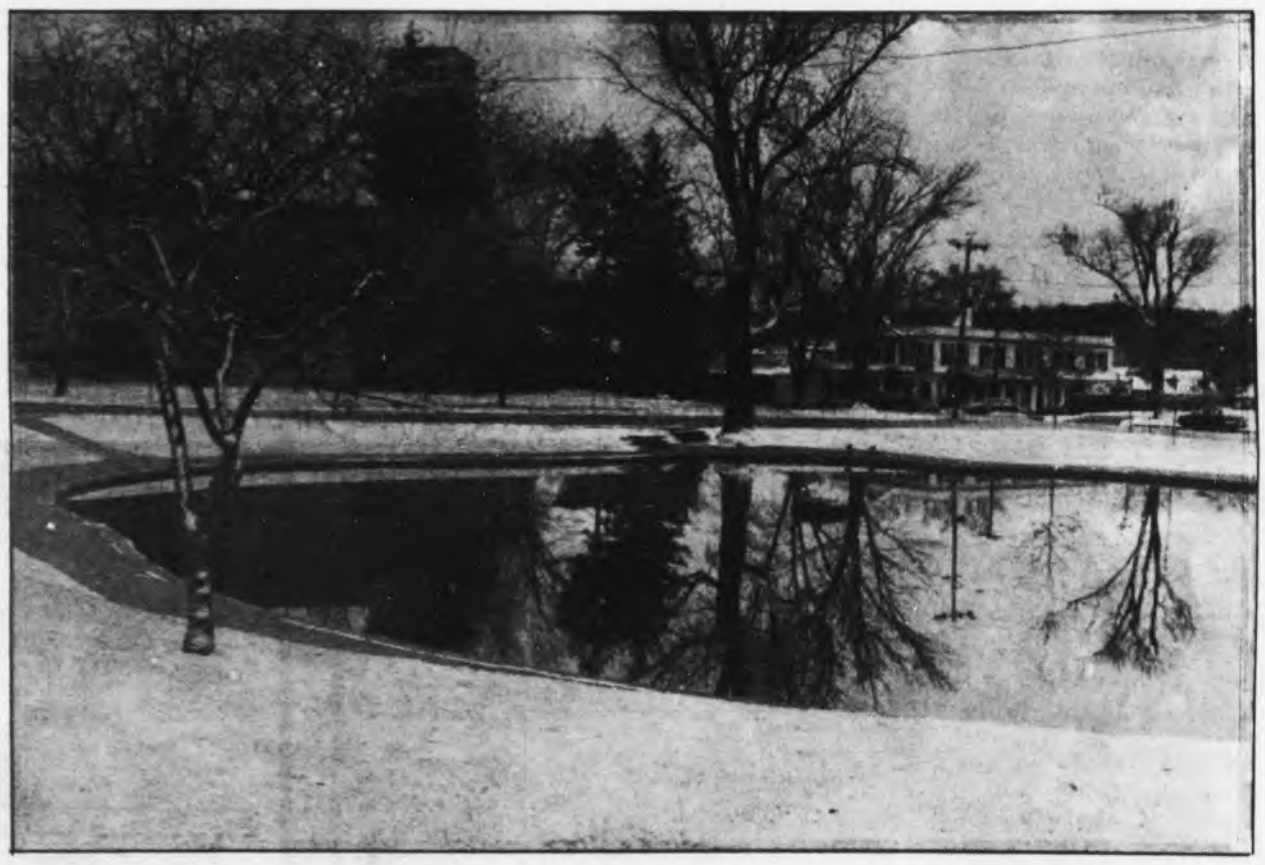
It's been two years since Staszko first proposed locating a commercial business on Route 3A. The location has been altered, as well as the dimensions of the original plan. What remained in the final version was a plan to construct one store, a super Stop and Shop, on property now housing the vacant Ford Motor Co. sales building.

The board denied it last week, saying they first needed approval from the state Department of Public Works (DPW) of a curb cut proposed by the developer on Route 3A. They refused to allow the plan to proceed, contingent on the DPW's approval of the traffic alteration.

Staszko said his attorney, Charles Humphreys, will be filing an appeal of that decision in court this week.

In the meantime, he is spending "hundreds of thousands of dollars" in excess of what he originally planned for the property. Additional attorney and engineers' fees have been necessary as plans for the property were revised ten times during the past two years, he says.

According to the developer, the curb cuts proposed in front of the store were changed to suit the planning board's requirements three different times. The final version was submitted to the state for its approval and was expected to receive final approval within 60 days.



"It was at the planning board's request that we moved the curb cuts three times," Staszko explains. "Now it's down to the final version and their consultant says it's okay, Mrs. (Jane) Cook's (abutter) consultant says it's okay, and the state has given us preliminary approval. We expect to be given final approval within 60 days. So we asked the planning board to make their approval conditional on the curb cut.

"But they denied us. So why didn't they deny Autohaus, Bergeson's, the Cohasset Heights Plaza (the Tarzia plan) and Seavey Engineering? They were granted approval before the state DPW approved their curb cuts on Rte. 3A. Why am I being treated differentlythan these other four projects?" Staszko asked.

When asked whether the project to relocate the Stop and Shop has been worth it, Staszko replies emphatically, "yes. I have worked for everything I have ever had. Between Vietnam and thinking I would never come back alive, I saw there what justice was like. I have lived in this town for 22 years and I have seen a lot of injustice. It rubs me the wrong way, and I will not give up."

He continues, "You would think we live in a Communist country. But this is the U.S. and this is what I fought for, alongside more men from Cohasset who died in that war than from any other town its size in Massachusetts. People don't know what

Meeting preview

Business 'curfew' brews a battle

By Jane Lane

There's a battle brewing and it may erupt on the floor of Town Meeting. Article 25 may be the issue that separates the rights of businessmen and the rights of homeowners.

The article, proposed by members of the Fair Oaks Homeowners Association, suggests that selectmen retain the authority to "establish reasonable operating hours for retail establishments" within the town. These regulations, according to the proposed bylaw change, will be enacted to "protect the health, safety, and welfare" of the residents of Cohasset.

The warrant article is raising tempers in the business community, and earned full endorsement of the Fair Oaks neighborhood. Selectmen have agreed to insert the article into the warrant, but have yet to decide whether to recommend the proposal.

Dan Leahy, general manager of Kimball's by the Sea, surmised the proposition as "one neighborhood's elevated fear that Stop and Shop might get in and operate a 24-hour business. So they've proposed that selectmen have the authority to regulate 'reasonable' operating hours for all the businesses in town. How selectmen can justify their qualifications for telling businesses when they can open, I don't know. I consider this article a direct afrontment to running a business in this community."

Leahy also took issue with the manner in which the article was reviewed and discussed at a recent selectmen's meeting. "A group of residents waited until the end of a meeting to bring this up before selectmen. It was not on the agenda, so no one knew it would be discussed that evening. And with little discussion, and no input from the businessmen in this town, selectmen allowed it to be placed in the warrant.

"To have selectmen respond to one neighborhood and make a decision at one meeting, is a flagrant affrontment to their previous statements of cooperation with the businessmen of this town," he continued. "There was planned little dialogue on the issue that night. The whole article amounts to a curfew of business hours. No one else in town was asked their opinion, and I believe there are other ways to ease the fear that businesses may cause concern for nearby residents."

Public hearing slated for Rte 3A lot

Selectmen have scheduled a public hearing Monday, Dec. 16 to discuss a proposal to locate a used car lot adjacent to the Winter Gardens skating rink.

Jim Hoban, owner of the indoor skating facility, has requested permission to have a 50-vehicle used car lot on the front portion of the three acres he owns on Route 3A. He and his attorney, Michael Georges of Marshfield, discussed the preliminary plans with selectmen Tuesday night. The board members explained that abutters must be present and a formal hearing must be scheduled before any decision is made on the request.

According to the owner, if the used car lot is not approved by the board, "I'll either sell the property, or the building will be turned into a warehouse. If the town is interested in keeping the rink, they must help me keep it and allow me to have another business on the land I own."

The reason for the request, Hoban said, is a tremendous and unexpected hike in the liability insurance for the rink. The rates have skyrocketed from $6000 per year, to $195,000, he said. When he purchased the property last February, he had "no idea" the insurance would escalate. "I had no idea until this past October," he stated.

Currently, the rink and parking lot occupy one acre of the land, he said. The proposed car lot would take up another acre of the property.

"If the town wants to keep the skating rink, I'm going to have to have another business to absorb

Cohasset's week . . .

Street opening policy

Reacting to a request from the highway surveyor, selectmen decided not to allow permits for street openings after Nov. 15 until April 15 each year.

The permits will be issued by the building inspector throughout the year if the situation is regarded as an emergency, such as a gas or water main break.

Highway Surveyor Harold Litchfield requested that a policy be adopted. After the cold weather in November, patching of a trench in the street is difficult, he said, because of the scarcity of asphalt. Temporary patches must be constructed in the cold weather, until a permanent replacement can be made in the warmer spring months.

The temporary patches do not wear well during the winter, he added, and it is difficult to plow over the rough, uneven surface during snowstorms. Litchfield requested a formal policy be adopted which would prohibit a resident or a utility company from obtaining a street opening permit during the winter.

After listening to Litchfield's arguments, selectmen decided this week to prohibit all street openings each year after Nov. 15 for five months. Only in cases determined to be an emergency by the building inspector will a street be torn open during the winter, they voted.

In the meantime, Selectmen Chairman Frank England and Litchfield will review the specifications the town will require before allowing a street to be opened. Many local towns require a $10,000 insurance bond to be posted prior to the digging of a trench.

The motion to prohibit the opening of streets was scheduled to begin Tuesday, Nov. 26 and extend to April 15. Selectmen approved a second vote which stated the ban on street openings would take effect each year on Nov. 15 until April 15, except in emergencies.

Edison priority sites

Selectmen will ask all department heads to review a list of critical town facilities which were cited on a priority list compiled by Eastern Edison.

The utility company provided the list to selectmen, stating the facilities would receive priority attention from the electric company in the event of an emergency.

Selectmen Chairman Frank England suggested that all town department heads review the list and add any locations they feel should be included.

The priority list of critical town facilities presently includes: police and fire departments and fire sub stations, the water department treatment plant, its wells and sub stations, the sewerage treatment plant, the Ripley Road Nursing Home, and the Cohasset Knoll Nursing Home.

EOCD commendation

The Executive Office of Communities and Development (EOCD) has reviewed the Cohasset Housing Authority's management checklist and concluded "the Authority has maintained the level of management practices in its operation as most recently rated by the Department. The Department has determined that the Cohasset Housing Authority be appropriately rated as 'eligible/qualified' for FY86, the highest rating under EOCD's Management Incentive Program.

The state office commended the local housing authority for its work during the past year and encouraged the board to work toward continued success.

School article approved

Selectmen voted this week to recommend one warrant article sponsored by the school committee. The board will wait for more information before they decide on a second article.

Both articles sponsored by the school committee deal with the new state education reform legislation Chapter 188.

Article 16 will request that all teachers' salaries be increased to a minimum level of $18,000. The salary increase will affect one teacher on the Cohasset staff, Supt. Eugene Crowell explained. Town Meeting vote is needed to approve that section of the legislation.

The second article seeks approval of state-funded grants to all staff teachers for two years in a four-part program. The first year's grants would total about $500 for each staff member, and the second year would mean $400 more for each teacher.

Supt. Crowell stated to selectmen, "speaking for the school committee, under no circumstances would they vote to recommend this article to Town Meeting unless the town votes not to build it into the salary base (of the teachers), so if the grant is eliminated in FY 88, the town will not be committed to this expense."

Supt. Crowell said he had discussed the proposal with the president of the Cohasset Teachers Association who told him it was the position of the Massachusetts Teachers Association that the grants not to be built into the salary schedules.

"The school committee will not settle a contract in which this is built into the salary base and commits the town to future expenditures," Supt. Crowell said.

Selectmen Chairman Frank England said he had specific questions to ask about the teacher contract negotiations and how this article will affect those discussions. He said he wanted to discuss the matter before voting whether to recommend warrant article 17.

Warrant review

Selectmen will review the Dec. 9 Special Town Meeting warrant articles at their meeting Tuesday, Dec. 2.

The sewer commissioners, who were scheduled to meet with selectmen this week, will discuss the two articles they have sponsored. Reacting to a request from selectmen, the commissioners recently submitted a list of funds they have spent to date on legal fees.

Selectmen are scheduled to review all the articles within the Dec. 9 warrant. They will also vote whether to recommend each individual article.

Winter Gardens car lot proposed the high costs of the insurance and to supplement the income from the rink," he added.

Hoban is requesting a license to sell used cars because he is familiar with that business. He formerly owned a used car lot in Hyde Park.

He bought the Cohasset Winter Gardens last winter from John Breen of Scituate. The indoor skating rink has been located on the Route 3A property for the past 20 years.

Hoban explained that liability insurance has increased for all recreational facilities throughout the state, including 400 skating rinks, and tennis and raquetball courts. Bars and restaurants have not been exempt from the astronomical increases, Hoban continued.

"I believe I should get the cooperation of the town," he added, "because they are in the same situation with their municipal insurance rates."

The Cohasset Winter Gardens, he noted, has never had a single liability claim against it in the past 20 years.

An engineer will now develop plans for the proposed lot, according to Hoban, which will be ready by the Dec. 16 hearing.

The Cohasset Winter Gardens has experienced a profitable year under new ownership, Hoban stated. "It's run right and it's a good, clean business here. I don't think the town of Cohasset would like to see this rink changed to a warehouse. But unless I can get that other business in here," I have no choice but to sell it," he said.

According to Hoban, between 12,000 and 15,000 patrons use the rink each week. Persons of all ages, from three to 70 years, participate in private and group skating lessons, figure skating competition, recreational skating, youth hockey programs, and high school and adult hockey games.

"We have 500 Seahawk members at the Winter Gardens," Hoban said. "Those are the youth hockey members from Marshfield, Cohasset, Scituate, and Hull. Without the Winter Gardens here, they wouldn't have a rink. If they didn't have the Winter Gardens, you'd have 500 upset kids and parents with no place to go."

Considering the dilemma other proposed Route 3A businesses have experienced, Hoban said he is aware the town may not support his new business venture. "I believe I should get the cooperation of the town," he said. "I believe I'm a different circumstance from the other businesses. We have operated here for 20 years. If they don't let us survive here, they're going to take away a lot of enjoyment from a lot of people."

Hoban moved to Forest Avenue last year. "It's been a very good year for the Winter Gardens and my business," he said. "I like the town of Cohasset, and I intend to stay."

Charles Davis fund

The Charles Davis Trust Fund was established recently to provide for the educational needs of the Davis children. Friends of the very popular Cohasset High School mathematics teacher felt that the trust fund would best honor the memory of "Charlie" during his family's time of great need. Mr. Davis died suddenly on Nov. 6. He was 48.

A teacher at Cohasset High School since 1961, Charlie Davis has served as chairman of the junior-senior high school mathematics department. During his eventful teaching career at Cohasset, Charlie has also, at one time or another, been a coach of track, cross country and basketball. One of the most popular teachers at the high school, he was recently eulogized as "a uniquely dedicated and compassionate human being." His untimely death has stunned the Cohasset educational community.

In its emotional appeal for funds, the trust fund committee said "Charlie's dreams for his children might be realized through your generosity." Charlie is survived by his widow Marie and children: Kim, a sophomore at the University of Vermont; Brian, a senior at Marshfield High School, and Glen, a freshman at Marshfield High.

Donors have been asked to make all checks and money orders to: Charles Davis Family Trust Fund c/o Cohasset Savings Bank, 13 Elm Street, Cohasset MA 02025 (donations are tax deductible).

REAL ESTATE GUIDELINES

By Norma Telesco
Home Center Realty

CHOOSING THE RIGHT REALTOR

If you're about to put your house on the market, finding a good realtor is an important first step. You'll want to consider both the firm and the individual agent, finding someone who's competent as well as someone you like and trust.

The size of the real estate firm you select is not as important as its presence in your neighborhood. You should check your "For Sale" signs, especially if they have SOLD on them. You might also check your local newspaper to see which companies advertise properties near yours. Visit a few Open Houses and watch the different agents at work.

You might select several possible firms and make appointments with several agents to come to your home to make listing presentations. Each one can present a Competitive Market Analysis that reflects his or her estimate of a good sale price, and a summary of what the company will do to market your home.

Before listing your home, please talk to Norma Telesco, our full-service realtor at HOME CENTER REALTY. Stop by our office at 57 Water Street, Hingham, or call us. You'll get a professionally prepared market analysis, and the package of services we offer will give your home a competitive edge in the marketplace.

Planners delay decision on Ocean Meadows

Linda Dagley
Mariner Correspondent

The planning board postponed a decision on the Ocean Meadows development until Jan. 10, until more detailed information about blasting, drainage and septic plans is submitted.

Abutters and neighbors attending the meeting opposed the lack of a decision.

An unofficial spokesman for the group was greeted with applause when he addressed the board.

"We have attended these meetings for many months now," he said. "At each meeting the board made it clear that there was a need for more information. Tonight is a repetition. The time has come to make a decision. It is the intention of Mr. (John) Roy to wear down the opponent."

Planning board Chairman Christine Bassett responded that when she makes a decision, she has to look at all aspects of the case in order to make the best decision.

The board considered a report submitted from Golberg -Zoino Associates geo-technical geohydrological consulting firm in Needham. The report stated that a hydrogeological study was not needed for the land, and that the property was able to support construction and drainage.

The firm was hired by the Roys after the board requested more information at the last meeting.

The board members were not completely satisfied with the report.

Member Bob Sturdy complained that the report was received too late to be considered.

"We have been asking for this information all along and we just get it now. I think it is too late," he said.

Mrs. Roy told him she contacted the firm the day after the last meeting when the board asked them to get more information.

The board's concern centered on the issue of sewage running into the groundwater and drainage systems which is prohibited under Title Five.

Bassett consulted John Modzelewski on the definition of seepage. She wanted to know if it meant any water coming from the septic system or only contaminated water.

"That particular paragraph is the decision of the planning board," Modzelewski said, "It would be wise to come to terms with a workable definition."

Town engineer position reviewed

By Linda Dagley
Mariner Correspondent

The Town Government Structure Committee began Tuesday night to look into the feasibility of establishing the positions of town engineer and town appraiser for the board of assessors.

Chairman John McNabb Jr. said he would like to have recommendations ready for the selectmen and for the board of assessors to prepare warrants for the annual town meeting in April.

Chartis Langmaid, Jean Cotton and Osbourne Ingram formed the sub-committee to research the establishment of the town engineer in response to a request from the board of selectmen dated Jan. 22.

Cotton said, "They are thinking in terms of the town counsel. The present engineer has his office in Boston and hasn't been hired with a retainer like town counsel."

Currently, John Modzelewski serves in the capacity of town engineer. According to McNabb it could be considered a formalizing of what has been taking place.

Cotton agreed to look into the internal uses of engineer services in the town while Langmaid and Ingram will collect data from other towns.

Chairman McNabb and John O'Donnell formed the committee which will look at the position of an appraiser. Looking in his field, McNabb said the committee has been dealing with the problems in the assessors office for several years now.

Feb. 7, the committee voted to support the concept of creating the position of a full-time appraiser in the board of assessors.

The board delayed action on this following an appropriation of $60,000 by the advisory board at the annual town meeting for a full reappraisal of the town.

The board felt that paying a full-time salary for an appriaser would be too much on top of that fee.

The board also felt that the person hired might be more effective if they came in after the reappraiswas done.

Langmaid commented, "It is perfectly obvious that the salary paid to that person would have been recouped in better money management."

The committee will meet again Jan. 14 to discuss the findings of the sub-commmittees.

Planners will decide Roy plan Jan. 10

Attorney Charles Humphreys opposed the planning board's concern with the septic system, which is the jurisdiction of the Board of Health, he argued.

"You are putting yourself in an impossible position as keeper of the Board of Health's trust," he told the board.

Bassett told him that considering what she knew already about the problems of the area, she did not feel comfortable giving her approval. Dan Cotton agreed with her, saying, "There is evidence that drainage in this case will take in septage."

Board member Patrick Plante disagreed with the others, saying "I have a little more confidence in the Board of Health."

The board voted 3-2 against denying permission for the development. Bassett said she did not believe the board could deny it based on the information they had.

"I want strong conditions written on the blasting and septic systems," Bassett said.

A motion by Plante to accept the plans was not seconded. The board decided they needed more substantial information to make a decision.

The Roys are expected to submit the necessary information by Dec. 28.

Staszko determined to fight town experiences I was put through in Vietnam (as a pilot), and I will not stop now.

"They're going to have to take a gun and shoot me first," he answers with a laugh.

The developer says he has "done everything to the letter" to follow the planning board's requests and requirements. This final denial will result in a court decision for Staszko, who says Stop and Shop officials are "with me all the way. They have made a substantial committment to this project and they're with me in all aspects. They saw the abuse I took last Wednesday night and they said there's no way I could have won. But they are determined and I'm determined, so we'll let a judge decide this."

'Here we go again," he says of his decision to appeal a planning board verdict in court.

"I think the planning board doesn't want to bring needed revenue into this town," Staszko continues. "I pay $8000 in taxes on land that could bring about $100,000 into the town each year. And it would not add one police officer, firefighter or single student to the school system. The permits which would have to be issued would increase the revenues into the town.

"From talking with many people over the past two years, I sincerely believe the majority of people want the store there. From other businesses in town I have heard the same thing. I feel that need to service the people who want the store there," he says. "I don't understand it, but apparently the planning board feels the need to treat me differently. Now it's going to be up to a judge to say whether the majority of the people in Cohasset can have what they want."

At their meeting last week, the planning board denied the store plans saying it was first necessary to obtain all state permits. The state DPW is responsible for reviewing and approving all changes to the configurations of state highways. Route 3A is under the jurisdiction of the state DPW.

At that meeting, Atty. Humphreys, representing developer Staszko, asked that the project be approved with the condition that it be okayed by the state DPW.

Planning Board Chairman Christine Bassett, citing Section 12.6.2 of the zoning bylaws, stated that one condition of approval is the safe movement of vehicular and pedestrian traffic within the site.

"I'm caught in the feeling that we're redesigning Route 3A," Bassett said at the meeting. "Parts of the project convinced me it is totally beyond my control what the DPW will recommend to the town. I would like to see them approve it first."

Humphreys replied, "Someone has to put their feet somewhere. We would like to go before them with approved plans."

Bassett said at the meeting that she did not want to lose control of the project. Atty. Humphreys assured the board that by granting conditional approval, they would not lose control.

"If we don't get that precise approval (from the DPW), we get nothing," he said.

Board member Dan Cotton agreed that conditional approval could be given, but that this particular condition was too crucial to the plans.

"I would like to see the DPW go first," he replied.

The board members also voiced concern over access to the Rosano property on King Street.

Member Robert Sturdy said, "It has a right to exist on the highway as a business all its own. We as a board can not do something to one property that impacts on another."

A Stop and Shop traffic consultant presented two plans that would give access to that property by developing an independent fully-directional access drive off Route 3A, or a more available option to locate a right turn into and out of the site.

Atty. Humphreys stressed to the board that the "DPW will not approve the plan if it precludes access to the Rosano property. If they approve it, they have found there is adequate access to it."

Board member Cotton suggested that the developer go back and solve the problems discussed that night and return once more to the board. Chairman Bassett insisted that a decision be made that night.

The board then voted 4-1 to deny Staszko permission to locate the store on his Route 3A property.

A Missing In Action flag was presented this week to Cohasset Veterans Agent Noel Ripley from Al Halenbrook of the Massachusetts Vietnam Era Veterans Association. (Paula Brackett)

☐ The preview audience was a difficult one; kids from ages 5-11; kids into video games; kids who judge lots of things by the excellence of Sesame Street.

How would a one-hour spot performance of "The Pirates of Penzance" be received at this level? After all, it is a comic operetta. Would the kids laugh at the right spots? Would they be bored? Producer and director Bryan Marks and performers agonized over the reception they might receive. This performance would be the true test of their worth.

Third Grader Jeremiah Stevenson said he liked "Pirates" "very much . . . especially the funny song with all those weird words the father of the daughters sang to all the pirates."

Kindergarten student Maggie Goedecke said "I sure would like to go" to the major production. While she liked the music and the costumes, she was not sure if it was funny. First grader Sam Goedecke said he found the production "good," but did not elaborate.

"The funniest part is about how Frederic's birthday only fell on Feb. 29th ," fourth grader Becky Golden said. She also "liked the songs a lot" and said "I'd like to go." Becky added she really enjoyed going to plays.

Billy Murphy, sixth grader, said "the funniest part is when the pirates threaten the girls with marriage and they all scream." On a scale of 1 to 10, Billy gives "Pirates" a 9, fully realizing they are still rehearsing for the debut Dec. 5.

"Good costumes; good music," said first grader Kathleen Fitzsimmons.

The first reviews are in, and Marks and his pirate crew can breathe a sigh of relief.

☐ The Soccer Boosters held their Break-up banquet this week, and it was a huge success as usual. Sure hope that their super loyal fan was mentioned... Richie Pratt went to every boys' soccer game, didn't miss one! Also a man that was present to cheer the teams on (all of them), Paul Brown. Everyone loves "Brownie," the man that used to drive the athletes to the games, and he sure loves them. Any game you mention, he was there, complete with his special chair and hat with built-in earmuffs.

☐ One last thing I've been asked to remind one and all, the PSO Sports Raffle. The drawing will be held this weekend (Nov. 30) and the prizes are spectacular... First is a sports vacation for two in Hawaii (compliments of Sheraton Hotels and American Airlines); Second prize is a steak dinner for two at New York's famous Gallagher Restaurant, and Third is Cohasset Sportsmarket T-shirts for the whole family (limit six). Chances are only a dollar, imagine that!!!

Be sure to find a PSO member to buy your ticket, then wait to hear the results (you need not be there to win)...good luck to you all, we will let you know the winners next week (in case you didn't hear the winners screaming for joy.)

☐ Cliff Dickson sure went through a lot of different emotions last week...- first he lost his old faithful dog that he loved so much, that was the bad news. The good news is that Tina Watson, Carmen and Peter Tague heard about it and got him one of Dean Harold's Golden Retriever pups. That's what I call a wonderful story, so nice to hear about people that care so much...

☐ Second Lt. Richard J. Young, son of Carole N. Tierney and the stepson of Joseph Tierney of 36 Stockbridge Street, has participated in exercise Exotic Palm in the Caribbean area. The exercise was designed to test unit responsiveness and involved special units drawn from military police forces representing the United States, Great Britain and various Caribbean countries. Young is a platoon leader with the 7th Infantry Division at Fort Ord, California. He graduated from Stonehill College in North Easton, Mass., in 1984.

☐ Another Cohasset serviceman who won't be home for Thanksgiving is David O'Connell, son of Mr. and Mrs. William O'Connell of Five Oak St. David is stationed in Japan (in a home complete with his own houseboy, can you stand it!), and they have it all planned so that he can at least talk to them on Thanksgiving...that sure is a long, lonely, way away when it's a holiday and you are alone in a foreign country. I'll bet he'd love some mail for the holidays, why not call his mom for his address. David would love it.

☐ The Community Center is offering a course that would be a nifty Christmas present for those who smoke! It is a five-day no smoking course, and it really covers everything that you hear about (what makes you want to smoke, how to get rid of nicotine from your system, how to prevent gaining weight, etc.). It starts this Sunday (Dec. 1) and goes through Thursday, from 7:30 to 9 p.m. and the cost is ten dollars. What a great way to start the New Year...

☐ Congratulations are in order for the following students John Periera and John Kornet, who both received all-state recommendation as members of the Senior High School District Band (Southeastern) and Chorus. The other music students that were selected are: Band: Heather Davenport (clarinet); Daniel Bliss (trombone). Chorus: Michelle Meagher, Amanda Sweeney, Glen Hochkeppel.

☐ Hope everyone read the article on the Trust Fund being set up for the Charles Davis Family, that is in the Mariner this week. Why not donate a few of your Christmas dollars to Charlie's family, what better way to get into the true meaning of Christmas...

☐ Happy Thanksgiving to all, be sure to send your Thanksgiving news to me. There should be a lot of it, what with everyone home for the holidays.

Chiropractic for HEALTH

by Dr. Kevin M. Neill, Chiropractic Physician

SUBLUXATED FACET JOINTS

There are basically three joints that are located in the lower spine. The large, broad joint that is on a parallel plane with the ground is the joint formed by the two neighboring vertebral bones. It is held apart by a disc which is a type of shock absorber. In addition, there are two small joints, one on each side of the back, which are called facet joints. Although these joints are held together with a very strong system of ligaments, they sometimes can slip out of place and dislocate. When the dislocation is not complete, it is called a subluxation. The facet joints are generally subluxated when a patient complains that he cannot move or straighten up after a minor injury. A spinal adjustment at the hands of a chiropractor can prove to be quite effective in these cases.

The science of chiropractic addresses the source of your problems and discomfort rather than merely dealing with symptoms. Whether due to injury, job related stress, athletic involvement or even day-to-day activity, you can learn a lot about how chiropractic can serve your needs when you call COHASSET CHIROPRACTIC OFFICE, 760 Chief Justice Cushing Hwy., Suite 12. Don't delay. Incolay Stone Decoration accessories, jewelry boxes, musical and decorator cases.

Incolay stone is a complex combination of quartz-based minerals such as carnelian, sapphire blue, sardonyx, and banded agate. The white art work is hand inlaid and the variegated background is hand stratified. Each piece is handcrafted in the United States and is the finest cameo-relief work available. These timeless heirlooms would make a very special Christmas gift.

Christmas mailing tips

The Officer-in-Charge of the Cohasset Post Office, Paul F. Farrell, would like to emphasize the importance of mailing holiday packages early, as well as offer some helpful hints in preparing your packages prior to mailing them.

Farrell stated that he "wanted to encourage our customers to mail early this holiday season, especially due to the fact that there are six less days between Thanksgiving and Christmas this year as opposed to last year. "With a little bit of care, holiday cards and packages can arrive on time and in good shape," Farrell stated.

In addition to mailing early, postal customers are urged to properly address cards and packages with the name, house number and street (or post office box) number, and the city, state and ZIP Code reserved on the last line. Use apartment numbers, if applicable, Farrell stated, to avoid delays.

"It is also a good idea to put a slip of paper with the recipient's name and address and your return address inside parcels, and be sure the addressing on the outside of the parcel includes your return address and ZIP Code," Farrell said.

Customers are also reminded to check the size of their envelopes before mailing Christmas and other holiday cards. Letter size standards require that envelopes be at least three and one-half inches high and five inches long to be accepted for mailing.

Parcels will arrive at their intended destination in good shape if you follow a few simple suggestions:

Cushion: Make sure contents are well-cushioned and there is no empty space in the box. Use crumpled newspaper around the item—including all sides, top and bottom. Commercially available foam shells or air pocket padding are also good cushioning materials. Padded mail bags are a good way to mail small items.

Don't Overwrap: Just use your carton. Brown paper and twine cord are not necessary. Paper can rip, and twine can become entangled in mail processing equipment.

Seal Properly: Close your parcel with one of the three recommended types of tape: pressure sensitive, nylon-reinforced kraft paper, or glass-reinforced pressure sensitive. Don't use cellophane tape or masking tape—they aren't sturdy enough.

Position Addresses Properly: Put the recipients address in the lower right portion of the package. Put your return address in the upper left corner of only one side of the package. Remove all other labels.

Use ZIP Codes: Be sure to include the ZIP Code in both the recipient's and your address. Remember, wrong ZIP Codes can delay the mail.

Apartment Numbers: Using apartment numbers or suite numbers, when you know them, helps the Postal Service deliver mail in large buildings.

Time It Right: Mail early in the month and early in the day.

Mr. Farrell would also like to remind the customers who use the Cohasset Post Office of the hours of operation for the customer window: Monday-Friday, 8:00 a.m. to 5:00 p.m. and Saturday, 8:00 a.m. to 12:00 noon.

Double standard

The planning board decided last week against the proposed super Stop and Shop on Route 3A. After more than two years of reviews of several different proposals, and revisions to the size, location and structure of the building, the board denied it.

What they determined, after mulling this plan over for months, is that the town could not approve such a plan without prior approval of a proposed traffic change from the state Department of Public Works (DPW). What has received preliminary approval from the state has ultimately decided the fate of this project. Without formal approval of that proposed King Street traffic pattern, the planning board would not jeopardize everything and okay the plan. What if the state rejected the proposed traffic pattern and the town had already cast its approval? The results could be devastating to the adjacent businesses and residences.

The attorney representing developer Donald Staszko sensed the board's reluctance to approve the project, and requested approval contingent on the state's endorsement of the traffic plan. Sounds logical. For such an overwhelming project, one that has cost this developer hundreds of thousands more than anticipated, it would be more humane than total rejection. Attach that one condition to the approval, Atty. Charles Humphreys asked, and we will be content to sit still until the state approves the plan.

But the planning board members said it was too crucial to the entire project and they voted to reject the plan in total.

That is within their jurisdiction, although it seems certain they will once again be challenged in court.

Seeing this case brings to mind a certain double standard being used in this town. Not necsssarily by the same committee, but by the "town" - our municipal government.

Here we have a developer who lives in town. He has worked tirelessly for the past years to attract some sort of business to the remaining parcel of commercial-zoned property in town. He sincerely felt that people desired a super-supermarket, and that is what he intends to locate upon that acreage. Earning a sizeable profit for himself was never an unattainable goal in this venture.

We have editorialized against this development, sensing too many people were against the proposal. Since that time, we have listened more attentively to the other side in favor of this plan. They have argued for the needed revenue it will bring into the only area of town properly designated for that type of business.

And now we see a new business come to town. It was wrapped in a fancy package and arrived loaded with public relations and goodwill to spread among the community - the Community Garden Club, the Chamber of Commerce and the South Shore Art Center, to name a few.

This project excited us and the idea of welcoming J. Bildner and Sons to Cohasset was easily embraced.

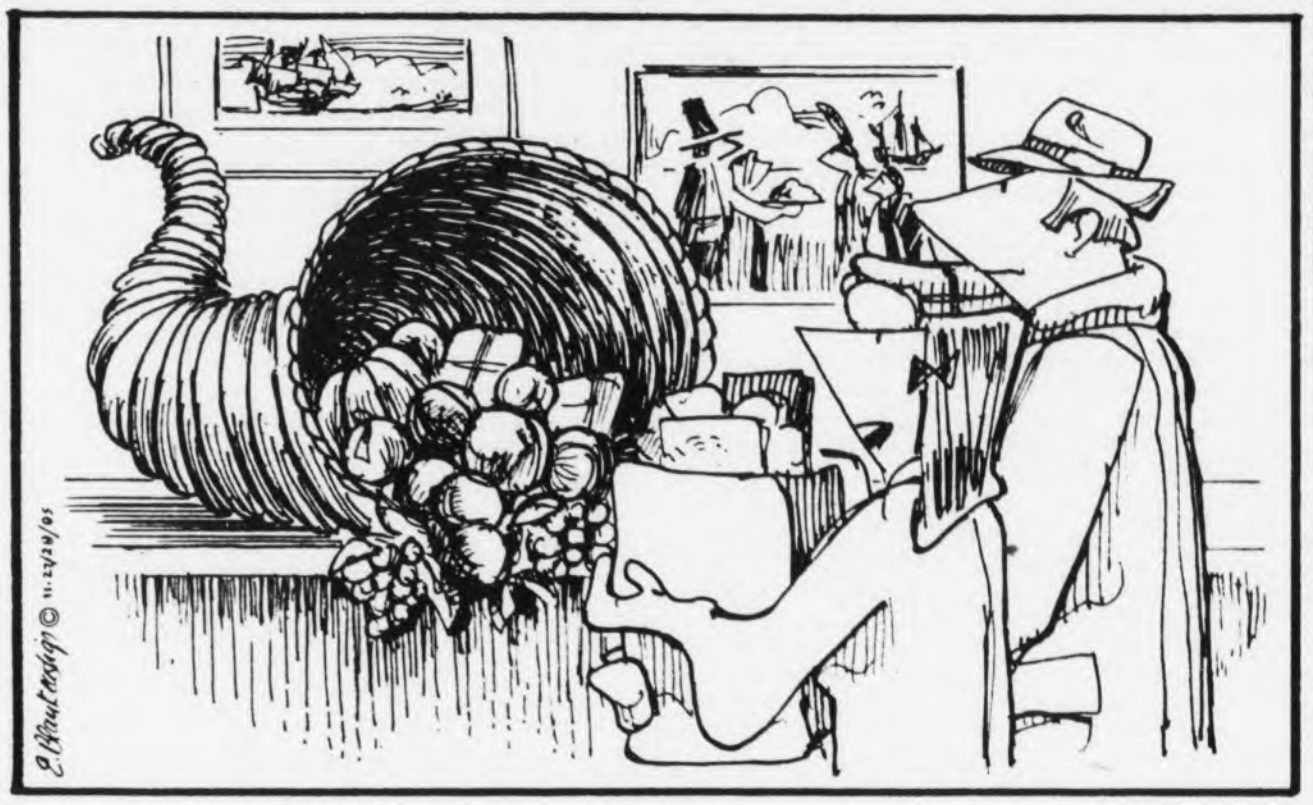
Perhaps this store will be the salvation of Cushing Plaza, a commercial area badly in need of revitalization. But as we lay out the welcome met, will someone please explain the double standard here?

There is no way J. Bildner's should have been allowed to open last week. There was no running water in the building. The parking lot resembled a battlefield as pipes were torn from the ground, and machinery and trucks were assembled around the area.

A few days before their scheduled opening, they requested a license to sell beer and wine from the Board of Selectmen. They were rejected, but that issue is far from dead as they will be filing a new license application within the next few weeks.

Why were they given the approval to open to the public? Why did our town boards and officials, who function to protect the public good and safety, allow them to open? And why were they pressured into these decisions as the store owners waited until the last days to apply for the permits?

It seems to us there is a definite double standard in the works here. One board is not willing to bend -playing everything by the book.



And then we have a business, being given the red carpet by most town boards who are willing to stretch the rules in favor of the new guy on the block.

We can't figure this one out. But it doesn't seem a fair standard to set. Use one set of rules for one person, and the other set for another.

And what makes this all the more intrguing is that two businesses are represented by the same attorney. We wonder how he can explain the justification.

Selectmen need to ask more questions

To the Editor:

The selectmen should question not only the accounting for legal services, but whether the counsel has helped lead us further into a morass which will require still more counsel.

For example, the current attempt to circumvent the definition of a small community, in order to obtain funding for small diameter sewers.

Note that the applicable Federal regulation 40CRF35.2005(b)(40) defines "small communities" to mean any municipality with a population of 3500 or less, or highy dispersed sections of larger communities, as determined by the Regional Administrator.

Not only are small diameter (2") sewers undesireable because they will be much more subject to blockage than conventional 4 or 6" sewers, but the proposed sewer service district is not a "highly dispersed area of a larger community," it is in fact the most densely populated part of our community.

The EPA determination of June 18, 1985, pages 8 to 12, dealt exhaustively with this matter, and specifically notes that the proposed sewered area is the most densely populated, and points out that highly dispersed is interpreted by EPA to mean sparsely populated. The Sewer Commission's assertions to the Selectmen on this matter, as reported in the Mariner, conflict with EPA's detailed explanation in support of DEQE's finding. That's not unusual, and it is why the Selectmen should have familiarized themselves with the details of the more important correspondence from EPA and DEQE.

To recommend revival of this issue, by placing it on the warrant for a vote at the town meeting, does not impress me as useful legal advice, unless of course our real strategy is to delay effective action until absolutely forced into it by the Courts. Whatever the town votes will not change the regulation nor the EPA/DEQE interpretation of it.

At long last, the Selectmen are asking some hard questions of the Sewer Commission, such as why the Town has been unresponsive to DEQE's requests for information.

It is not just funding limitations which inhibit Cohasset's response. Many of Cohasset's contentions are no more than subjective judgement, and bad subjective judgement, impossible to support by rational or quantitative analysis.

The Metcalf and Eddy plan was not subject to the same questioning, primarily because it was a common-sense plan which incorporated the conventional practices that have evolved through the test of time, and did not flout or flagrantly misinterpret reguations.

A long overdue question is the cost of the Hull connection, especially in comparision with what it would have cost to build our own highly funded plant. Note that Cohasset will be purchasing an unfunded share in the Hull plant. The Selectmen and the town should be informed of the price that Hull is asking; revealing that doesn't prejudice our negotiating position, to the degree we have one.

Yours very truly,
R. M. Campbell
Old Pasture Road

Is liquor store needed?

To the Editor:

Where do we draw the line? At present, six of our merchants within a two-mile radius carry wine and beer. You also can buy wine and beer by the glass in at least six other locations within this two-mile radius. Newcomer J. Bildner and Sons would like to add still another. Competition is one thing, convenience still another, but over-saturation of liquor sources is not in the best interest of the business community nor our children.

We are definitely NOT a community that depends on one-stop shopping! There is little reason to believe that this will change in the near future unless all the small stores are eliminated and one large operation is constructed to serve all our needs.

As vice-president of the Cohasset Chamber of Commerce, I work with a group whose primary goal is to preserve and protect the best interests of all our business people and the community as a whole. There is no evidence that a seventh liquor license would serve those interests.

Sincerely yours,
Cynthia R. Peters

Child Abuse Part II : What does a mother do?

by Cathy Conley

Where does a mother turn when her child has been sexually abused?

Who could possibly understand the feelings of isolation, guilt, rage and depression?

Her family and friends have a tendency to turn away from her.

Child abuse should never hit that close to home.

Three years ago, Coastal Community Counselling began a support group for the mothers of sexually abused children.

Here, and only here, can mothers unravel their skein of guilt, confusion and isolation.

Three such groups, each with six participants, meet once a week. A fourth group will be formed shortly.

Three of the mothers and the social worker who leads the group sit around the kitchen table in the home of one of the participants.

"No one is more sensitive in helping a mother deal with her feelings than other women who have been through the same ordeal," said the counsellor, who asked not to be identified.

"When you find out your child has been sexually abused, your life falls apart," said a young mother, who held her three-year-old son on her lap.

She told the story of the abuse of her oldest daughter Emily.

Sherry (not her real name) adopted Emily eight years ago.

Her biological mother was a cousin, who had already given up one child for adoption.

"At first my cousin asked me to babysit for an hour here and an hour there.

"The hours stretched into days. The days stretched into overnights.

"Pretty soon I was picking up the baby at her boyfriend's house.

"There were times I took her from a crib filled with spit-up," the mother said.

Finally the cousin asked Sherry to adopt the toddler.

Sherry was delighted. Papers were signed in 1977, with the adoption final in 1981.

But three months after the papers were signed, the biological mother wanted her baby back.

Sherry and her husband fought the action in court. And in a rare judgement in Massachusetts, the judge granted an open adoption.

This means that the adoptive parents retain the child, but the biological mother has visitation rights.

Sherry was concerned with this arrangement. Her cousin was an alcoholic and the biological father was a heroin addict, she said.

Emily visited her biological mother two weekends a month.

"When she came home she would either cry or sit in her room and stare into space for a whole day," Sherry said.

Sherry felt the reaction was confusion over the open adoption and began bringing her for counselling.

One Sunday after a weekend with her biological mother, Emily visited her grandfather.

"I have a boyfriend," the little girl said.

"Oh?" Grandfather mused, picturing another fresh-faced eight-year-old.

"How old is he?" Grandfather said.

"Twenty one," Emily answered.

"How come you have a boyfriend who is so old?" Grandfather asked.

"I can't tell you. It's bad," she answered.

The grandfather related the incident to Sherry.

"I took Emily for a walk in the park. I told her what her grandfather said. Her beautiful olive skin turned milk white. She put her head down and sobbed," the mother said.

"You won't love me anymore," Emily said.

After reassurance the little girl told her mother that a relative in the biological mother's house had touched her.

"I called the psychologist Emily was visiting. He told me not to question her, just let her talk if she wants to," Sherry said.

The psychologist suggested that Emily to go a therapist who specializes in sexual abuse.

Through dolls and other stuffed animals, the therapist got the little girl to tell her story.

The child related a tale of sexual abuse, which culminated one night when her stepfather's nephew abused her at a party, then later raped her at her biological mother's home.

The woman happened in on the scene, slapped the young man and made him leave.

But the child said he returned later that night, smashed a window, returned to her bedroom and raped her again.

"I could not believe what my child was telling the counsellor this man did to her," Sherry said.

Both the counsellor and the pychiatrist filed a report with the Department of Social Services (DSS).

"After the reports had been filed, I called DSS to tell them another visitation was coming up and they said they could not advise me to go against court-ordered visitation rights.

"But they said you do what you think is best for your child," Sherry said.

Emily has never visited her biological mother since that day.

"I don't even know if he had to have therapy. He got away with a slap on the wrist. He's back on the streets. And my child's life is ruined."

The parents filed charges in Middlesex District Court because the abuse had occurred in Somerville.

"My daughter has had to tell her story a half dozen times, to a half dozen different strangers in a half dozen different places," Sherry said.

"Just think of how many times my child had to relive this abuse — first to the therapists, to DSS, to the police, in the probably cause hearing, before the grand jury.

"Each time the wound opens again. It is never allowed to heal," Sherry said.

Emily's hardest time came at the probably cause hearing when she knew she had to be in the same room with her abuser.

"She went into hysterics. A court officer was very kind to her. He said I'll go with you. I'll stand beside you. If he tries to hurt you, I will arrest him.

"I will always be thankful to that court officer," Sherry said.

But the rest of the court proceeding was a nightmare. "I moved my seat so Emily could see me and they made my husband and me leave the courtroom. We had to leave her there alone."

Emily again had to tell her story before the grand jury.

Finally a trial date was set. But Emily did not have to take the stand.

The abuser was allowed to plea bargain if he pleaded guilty.

He was allowed to plea bargain because Emily became confused about the exact dates of the abuse, and he had an alibi for some of the times she mentioned.

He was given two years probation.

"I don't even know if he had to have therapy. He got away with a slap on the wrist. He's back on the streets. And my child's life is ruined.

"Who knows when she will get better? She has nightmares. She is afraid of men. She doesn't get along well with other children," Sherry said.

"She says she shouldn't have told anyone. She says she wants to die and might kill herself.

"I was desperate. Both the psychiatrist and the child therapist suggested that I join Coastal's mother's support group.

"I just wish I had found them sooner. The court system is terrifying if you have never been through it before," she said.

All three mothers who sat around the kitchen table feel that the court system is too lenient with child abusers.

"I had dreams about living in the Old West. After he pleaded guilty, they would have hung him," Sherry said.

"They are making too much about mandatory sentencing of drunk drivers yet someone who hurts our most precious possession, our children, is getting away with it. I think there should be mandatory sentencing for child molesters," said another mother, whose two children had been abused by a relative.

"There must be a way to make it easier on the children to testify," said the third mother, who also had a son and daughter who had been raped.

All three believe that video taping children's testimony would save untold horror and heartache.

"If I could talk to someone like a legislator, I would ask him to speed up the time between when abuse is reported and the abuser is brought to trial.

"Nobody can even begin to heal until that time," one mother said.

The three mothers also had the same experience with relatives and friends.

"No one wants to listen to what happened. They think if they block it out that it happened to someone close to them, then they don't have to deal with the fact that it could happen to them," one mother said.

My family gave the impression that it was my fault that the abuser got away with raping Emily," Sherry said.

When mothers begin in the support group, they feel isolation. They are absolutely obsessed with the abuse of the child, the counsellor said.

"The group forces the mother to focus on helping her child," she added.

"The abuse has become the focus of the mother's life when she comes to the support group," the counsellor said.

"The other mothers try to help her realize that she can take control again of her life, that she is not as helpless as she thinks she is.

"They help each other cope with the provocative behavior of the abused child, who will push his or her parents to the limit.

"In the support group, the mothers come to realize that they did not cause the abuse, they were not responsible for it. It does not mean they were incompetent mothers. They learn to deal with the isolation and guilt," the counsellor said.

The support group helps each mother deal with DSS and the courts.

The mother also views the abused child so vulnerable that it is difficult to parent in a positive way again, the counsellor said.

The mothers help each other to take the reins of parenting again.

"You feel guilty but you still must be a parent. You have this feeling your child will fall apart if you yell at her. But you cannot let them raise hell and get away with it," one mother said.

The counsellor sympathizes with the mothers' frustration on what they view as the court's leniency with child molesters.

"But in Norfolk County we are working very hard with the DA and the courts. There is a system in place. If people come forth and follow through, something does happen to the offender. There is either criminal prosecution or a diversionary program.

"It certainly is not what mothers want to see happen. From their point of view, no punishment is enough for what has been done to their child," the counsellor said.

Retaining walls variances on Heather Drive rejected

By Linda Dagley
Mariner Correspondent

In a meeting Monday night, the planning board denied variances from Title Five and the town by-laws to construct retaining walls on three lots on the proposed Heather Drive subdivision. The board also denied permits for septic systems on these lots.

Developer Joseph Crossen withdrew permit requests for three systems in the subdivision. Mr. Crossen indicated to the board that the matter will be taken up in court.

Dr. C. Michael Bliss and Chairman Barbara Kern, the only two members voting, said they did not see evidence of a manifest injustice and adequate protection for the environment, the two criteria for approving a variance.

Crossen and Attorney Theodore Wilburn claimed manifest injustice on the grounds that it was a developable piece of property that could not be developed until the variances were awarded. They also claimed the systems would cause no harm to the environment, and were accepted in many towns.

Kern responded that they were also not accepted in some towns depending on the nature of the soil.

The board and Crossen spent some time explaining to concerned abutters the reason the retaining walls were needed.

The water table on the lots for the proposed septic systems stands at ground level. Under Title Five bottom of the leaching system must be four feet from the groundwater level. Fill would be used to build up the level on these lots.

"Essentially it is a mounded system," Dr. Bliss explained.

Health Agent, Dr. Jospeh Godzik, explained that "Under Title Five there are certain slope requirements to prevent effluents from breaking out of the system."

To meet the slope requirements, the lot at 3 Drive, which is combined lot 15-16, would have to extend into lot 14. To prevent this the retaining wall is proposed which would be three feet at its highest point.

The walls must be at least 10 inches thick and of wood. Crossen said he could decorate them anyhe wanted. Similar walls were also proposed for lots 9-10 and 12-21.

As a result of the last meeting, the lots were combined to meet town standards. Written covenants been created to insure the construction of one dwelling on each combined lot.

"Do you think you can keep effluent within the without the walls breaking down?" Dr. Bliss asked the applicants.

"It is always a risk," answered Wilburn, "But we're more than confident that with this system, environment will not be harmed."

"That has not been the judgement of the board in the past," Dr. Bliss told him, "Why should it be different now? We are concerned with public health and that effluent will not reach the surface."

"I know of at least two retaining walls built in this town before the house," Crossen told the board. "I built one of them myself."

The board voted on a motion for each variance request. They denied each one for lack of sufficient evidence of a manifest injustice and lack of evithat it would protect the environment.

The board also voted to deny each septic system permit for each lot.

In other business—the board agreed to extend the period of appeal for Frank Wheelright to thirty days. He is appealing the denial of his request for a variance from the Board of Health building moratorium to improve his septic system.

Mr. Wheelright showed the board that the results of the report by Camp, Dresser and Mcgee, necessary to his appeal, would not be made public until after his appeal period ended.

The Board agreed to submit plans for the septic systems on lots 3 and 7 of the King Street subdivision to the town engineer for appraisal before reaching a decision.

The Board denied approval of septic plans for lot 8 because of inadequate water table information.

An emergency septic system repair was approved for Matthew Sullivan at 32 Nichols Rd.

An expansion and update of the abandoned cesspool at 288 King St. was approved.

Selectmen erred

To the Editor:

I think the Selectmen made a mistake in their selection of a new Fire Chief.

The Selectmen passed over a very highly qualified candidate whose only apparent liability was that he is from Cohasset and has worked for the Cohasset Fire Department for many years.

They not only passed over the top choice of the Fire Chief Search Committee, they refused to appoint the one candidate with personal knowledge of the town and the Cohasset Fire Department.

Once again the Selectmen have shown that town employees who have made a commitment to the town and have given many years of service to the people of Cohasset will not be rewarded for that commitment.

This decision is not only demoralizing for the men in the Cohasset Fire Dept., it also sends a message to all town employees that it is difficult, if not impossible, to move up in the ranks.

The appointment is made, and I hope that the new Fire Chief is effective and can work well with the firemen and with town officials.

Osgood PSO discusses plans and curriculum

Principal Jack Creamer and Osgood PSO Representatives Sue McNamara and Shelley Weier greeted an enthusiastic group of Osgood parents November 19 at the first of a series of parent-school forums planned for 1985-1986.

Among the topics at the round table discussion were parent-teacher conferences, volunteer opportunities, school buses, the science curriculum, budget requests and enrichment programs.

Concerning parent-teacher conferences, scheduled at Osgood December 12 and 19, parents were encouraged to ask direct questions about their child's progress and to alert the teacher to any problems the child may be having. Creamer outlined the special services available and the grading system.

PSO Volunteers Chairman Sandra Hahn reported that over 40 dedicated parents volunteer at Osgood School. Suggested volunteer activities were assisting with computer skills and videotaping, or helping monitor students on the playground and the buses. Hahn distributed the Volunteer Guidelines developed by Osgood teachers, Creamer, and PSO representatives last spring.

Janet Figueiredo, Bus Coordinator for Cohasset Schools, answered parents' questions about bus safety, discipline, the seat belt issue, and the condition of the bus fleet. Creamer explained that school policy dictates that disruptive students not be allowed to ride the bus and that parents are then responsible for transporting the student to school. Figueiredo stated that while state regulations permit a 20 percent standee allowance, Cohasset tries to keep passengers to maximum seating capacity. Buses are inspected every two months by the state.

Budget discussions included the School Department requests, related to the Educational Reform Bill, for the December 9 Special Town Meeting, which are minimum salary of $18,000 for teachers and professional development grants, both of which have been recommended by the Advisory Committee.

Creamer commented on several new items in the Joseph Osgood budget which will be presented to the School Committee beginning in January, an additional third grade teacher next year to keep the approximate 20:1 pupil-teacher ratio, an adjustment counselor for the two elementary schools to help students with personal problems affecting their ability to learn, and an enrichment coordinator, presently three days per week at Deer Hill, to include one day per week at Osgood.

In the area of enrichment programs, many exciting events are planned for Osgood students. December 9, Ken Pauley from the Museum of Science, will bring a traveling animal exhibit to the school for morning and afternoon shows.

In January, the Loon and Heron Theater will present two performances of stories written by children which encourage audience participation.

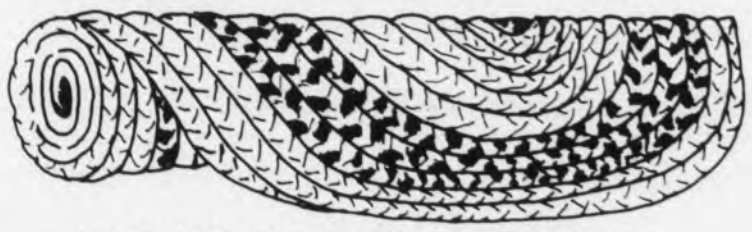
"Safety with Strangers" begins in January as will the Handicapped Awareness Program organized by the PSO Special Needs Committee to teach the children about blindness, deafness, physical and mental handicaps.

An eight week Great Books program for a group of second and third graders, successfully piloted last year and staffed and funded in part by the PSO, is scheduled for January and February. There was some concern that programs of this type were not reaching the "middle level" child, but it was explained that as a new venture, it had to be started in a limited way. A PSO goal is to reach all children eventually.

Barbara Hislop, co-chairman of the Literary Committee, described the third grade newspaper and school literary magazine she and several other parents have conceived as a way to encourage creativity and to stimulate a positive self-image in every Osgood child.

Their budget is estimated at $1500, and they have received a $250 grant from the Arts Lottery Council, as well as an additional $300 from donations at the Open House and through their monthy bottle/can collection (the next one is December 14). The PSO is very supportive of this effort and offers to help in any way the committee would like.

PSO fundraising conducted through the Osgood School has raised $168 from the raffle at Open House and another $360 from the spring book fair, which has been applied towards the purchase of materials for the Osgood library. Another book fair is planned for the week of December 9, for holiday book purchases. Sweatshirts with the charming Osgood schoolhouse logo will also be available in time for Christmas. Additional monies have been raised through the school pictures and the early release day movie, "Babes in Toyland," which netted over $200. McNamara stressed that all the fundraising done by the dedicated Osgood parents would bring concrete benefits to the Osgood School.



Curriculum concerns were highlighted by parents' statements that science deserved more emphasis. Parents would like to see more "hands-on" activities

House tour Dec. 12

The Community Garden Club of Cohasset will be presenting a "Christmas in Cohasset House Tour", Dec. 12 from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m.

Among the six homes which will be toured that day is an elegant colonial house near Cohasset Village. This home, originally a single-level cape-ranch, was converted into a colonial home with contemporary features.

There are many colonial features throughout, alongside contemporary flairs such as a green-house window in the kitchen and an open family room.

A garden entry is perfect for seasonal flower displays for that creative gardener.

Another home is an English country house that is described as both beautiful and functional. Stately high ceilings, marbled fireplaces and infusions of light and color greet each visitor at every turn.

The third tour home is a century-old structure moved to its present location many years ago by horse and wagon.

The livingroom is baronial, and the dining room features dark paneling from the "Rose Standish" ferry which was plucked from the ocean water near Nantucket many years ago.

A dramatic new kitchen and skylighted breakfast room set a striking pose in contrast to the old elegance of this home.

Another tour house will be a turn-of-the-century mansion revealing handcrafted details long forgotten in the homebuilding industry.

Rich paneling outlines the formal dining room, while the sun-splashed solarium contains a huge fireplace and a wall of leaded glass windows.

A fifth home is situated at the edge of a salt marsh, reflecting the peace and tranquility of its surroundings. Stone fireplaces fill the livingroom and the dining room which are flanked by huge glass windows.

There is also a balcony reflecting a dramatic view of the ocean from the home's master bedroom.

The final home on the tour features ocean views from this converted carriage house. A rainbow of pastels color the formal dining room, while the large family kitchen possesses its own eclectic charm.

There is also a unique wicker room and a special guest room filled with lovely antique furnishings.

Among the Community Garden Club members working on this Christmas event are: President Mary Larson; Tour Chairman Barbara Bowman; Hostess Chairmen, Carla Getto and Barbara Ericson; Tea Chairman, Mary Hickey; Decorators Chairman, Pam Henry; Ticket Sale Chairmen, Rita Strong and Denise Desmond; Boutique Chairmen, Jeanne Replogle, Joanne Haynes and Joan Shockman; and Publicity and Fosters, Arlene Ferreira.

Tickets are being sold in advance at Country House Antiques and Collectables, 818 Chief Justice Cushing Highway, and two Village locations, In Stitches on Brook Street, and Fleming's Hardware on Elm Street.

If you would prefer to have your tickets mailed, contact Mrs. Paul Desmond at 383-6446, or Mrs. Louis Strong at 383-0939. Tickets will cost $10 each.

Also featured from 11 a.m. to 4 p.m. will be "Palate Pleasers" at the Cohasset Historical Society's Lothrop House, 14 Summer Street. There will be a "Holiday Boutique" at the Lothrop House, featuring Chirstmas arrangements to decorate your "house beautiful."

Dukakis meeting

A meeting to organize the Cohasset committee for the 1986 Dukakis campaign will be held at the Lothrop House Monday, Dec. 2 at 8 p.m.

Anyone interested in working to re-elect Governor Dukakis is welcome to attend.

Holiday concert Dec. 12

Deerhill Chorus and Band members are busily preparing for their annual Holiday Concert to be held Thursday, December 12, at 7:30 p.m. in the Cohasset High School auditorium.

The students will be performing many festive numbers. The public is cordially invited.

Snowflake fair

The Beechwood Congregational Church will hold it's annual Snowflake Fair Saturday, Dec. 7 from 10 a.m. to 3p.m. at the Beechwood Congregational Church.

There will be a fish chowder luncheon from 11 a.m. to 1 p.m.

You may chose items from the many tables including fanciwork, bake sale, plants, wreaths, candy including the beechglass candy, white elephant, cabbage patch clothes and even a nurse on duty to check your blood pressure.

Gunstock ski trip

The Cohasset Recreation Department will conduct a Martin Luther King holiday ski trip to Gunstock, Guilford, N.H., Wednesday, Jan. 15.

The trip will be for all aged residents including all family members. Buses will leave the Town Hall parking lot at 5:30 a.m. and return at about 7:30 p.m. The cost for this trip is $22 per person and checks should be made payable to "The Town of Cohasset." Those who wish to rent equipment must indicate so at the time of registration. Please bring $12 cash with you if you plan to rent equipment.

If you are interested in going on this trip you may call the Cohasset Recreation Department office at 383-6791 for further details and registrations before Friday noon, December 20, 1985. Please do not forget to indicate your rental intentions when you call.

Knoll Christmas fair

The Cohasset Knoll Nursing Home, Rte. 3A, Cohasset, will hold a Christmas Fair, Friday, Dec. 13 from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m.

There will be craft items, baked goods and raffles. All proceeds will go to the residents council fund and donations will be greatly appreciated.

The public is welcome!

Take a chance at PSO Sportsraffle

"Aloha! Welcome to Oahu, Hawaii!"

That's what the lucky winners of the PSO Sportsmarket raffle will hear when they arrive at the Sheraton Surfrider for their seven nights and eight days in an oceanview room overlooking Waikiki Beach.

After their American Airlines flight lands, the winners will be transported to the Surfrider, greeted with flower leis, and given a Sheraton beach bag as well as the services of the Shertaon travel consultants to plan a special week of non-stop excitement.

Sound fabulous? Just what you need after a long, cold winter in New England? Treat yourself. Buy a sportsraffle ticket and you could be that lucky vacationer relaxing on the warm golden sands of Waikiki.

Second prize winners will find themselves enjoying a steak dinner guaranteed to satisfy an athlete's appetite at the famous Gallagher's restaurant near Madison Square Garden in New York City.

Third prize winners will receive a PSO Sportsmarket T-shirt for every member of the family. With logo designed by CHS sophomore Peter Kasperowicz, printed in white on a navy Hanes 50/50 shirt by Ronnie Goodwin of Goodwin Graphics, the whole family will look great at any sporting event!

And after you've purchased your raffle ticket, stick around and check out the used sports equipment which includes some almost-new hockey skates and children's skis, boots, poles, roller skates, skateboards, sleds, bikes, and even an exercise machine. The equipment can be previewed from 1 to 3 p.m. Friday, Nov. 29 when such activities as an aerobics class for children and soccer, football and cheerleading clinics will be offered.

On Saturday morning at 9 a.m. the sale will start and the auction is scheduled to begin at 11 a.m.

Here are just a few of the exciting sports items and sports-related services which will go under the gavel of auctioneers Jack Creamer and Gerry Schultz: kung-fu lessons at the Wah Lum Kung Fu Academy, a personal fitness consultation with Margaret Watson, sailboard lessons, waterskiing instruction a tail gate picnic from Laura Atherton, gymnastics with RuthAnn Sargent, a chance to go lobstering on the "Sally Marie," a gift certificate from the Good Sport, a pair of Sperry Top-siders from Gates Clothing, and a apres-ski wine and cheese basket from Sea N' Cheese.

The raffle drawing will take place at noon, following a Jazzercise demonstration. Bring the whole family, your Thanksgiving weekend guests, and plan to have a sporting good time. See you at Town Hall!

such as a beehive or ant colony and more than one hour per week devoted to science in the curriculum. Creamer explained that the basics of reading and math are the primary function of the curriculum at Osgood and science teaching is going on in an unstructured form as well as with the textbook methods.

The School Improvement Council is considering the building of an outdoor classroom and a nature trail (for science projects). Cream, McNamara, and Weier encouraged suggestions for the School Improvement Council, especially for their next meeting scheduled for December 5 at 2:45 p.m. in the school.

During the meeting many creative ideas were shared by the parents, representatives, Figueiredo, and Creamer. It is hoped that parents unable to attend this meeting will also feel free to share ideas with the Osgood reps and that Osgood parents will continue to maintain their deserved reputation as active and helping partners with the school. Please continue to watch the school menu for the latest news, meetings, and happenings.

A special thank-you goes to Mrs. Patricia Wunschel's Early Childhood students who provided babysitting and to the Unitarian Church for the use of the Parish House.

South Shore Coalition submits planning, study grant

By Marc Sperber
Mariner Staff

South Shore communities must "decide what they'd like to see the region become by the year 2000," a state planning official told representatives of the South Shore Coalition at its meeting last Thursday in Marshfield, if they are going to establish a regional agenda for planning, resource management and environmental conservation.

The group was meeting for the second time since it was founded by Sen. William B. Golden last month.

At the latest meeting, the representatives of the 10 towns which comprise the group — Weymouth, Hingham, Hull, Cohasset, Rockland, Hanover, Norwell, Scituate, Marshfield and Duxbury — voted to adopt the name "South Shore Coalition."

The coalition was originally known as the Metro South Planning Council, a name patterned after Metro West, a similar consortium of communities along Route 9 west of Boston.

The members of the group chose the name from a list of 12 suggestions, ranging from the "Old Colony Planning Commission" to "South Shore Regional Association."

Sen. Golden told the group it was important to find a name everyone feels comfortable with.

After the vote was taken, the group heard talk by Jean Christensen, an official of the Metropolitan Area Planning Council, the state-chartered agency designed to assist communities in formulating regional and cooperative planning and development strategies.

"It is time to get a sense of regional perspective from each town," she said.

Christensen was joined at the meeting by Martin Pillsbury, chief planner for the MAPC. The organization has assisted the South Shore Coalition since its inception, and was the primary author of two aid applications filed by the coalition with agencies for seed money to study the area's problems and hire a full-time staff member.

"We happen to think that the process of regional initiative is as important as the result it produces," said Christensen, who added that definitive solutions to planning, waste and transportation issues faced by the 10 towns may be several years away.

"We should not look at this in terms of restructuring counties," noted Pillsbury, but as an attempt to form more-focused regional and county efforts on particular issues.

A roundtable discussion among the representatives of the 10 towns disclosed that transportation was the primary worry of many communities.

Several coalition members suggested that a thorough study of existing transportation facilities in the region be conducted.

"The Southeast Expressway construction is completed," said Glen Rowland, a representative from Duxbury and a member of that town's planning board, "and yet it seems like we have more cars in this area than ever before."

Golden said that he would be speaking again with state officials in the near future about the possibility of resuming rail service to the South Shore in the near future.

The Old Colony Railroad at one time operated service in the area stretching all the way to Middleboro and Plymouth.

Golden added that a limited restoration of some lines might be feasible in the near future, but added that the Urban Mass Transportation Administration, a federal agency, has not looked favorably upon the idea.

"It is very important that we get that decision reversed," he said.

The cost of rail line restoration would run between $100 and $200 million, depending upon the extent of refurbishment of existing lines and the scope of service, Golden said.

In other business, the coalition heard a proposal from Weymouth representative Selectman Brian McDonald, to establish a purchasing consortium among the 10 towns of the coalition.

Weymouth's municipal offices burn 650,000 gallons of heating oil per year, McDonald said.

"I'm sure if we got together with other towns and bought, say, two million gallons, we'd all get a better deal," he noted.

The next meeting of the coalition will be held on Thursday, December 19, in Weymouth.

The January meeting, scheduled to take place in Rockland, will feature a status report on the aid applications filed before the state and discussion on forming a solid waste study proposal.

Search on for local ice dancers

Do you like to dance?

A group of South Shore residents is looking for adults from 18 to 80 who would like to learn to ice dance.

The group meets every Saturday night from 9:30 to 11:30 at the Cohasset Winter Gardens.

People who can roller skate can learn to ice skate, said Jim Jamieson, one of the organizers.

You do not have to have a partner, he said. There is a professional skater who donates time to teach a beginners' group lesson . He emphasized that you do not have to be an Olympic skater to join the group. There are no jumps involved, but just some simple turns.

"I started when I was 45 years-old," Jamieson said. "I had never skated before.

"I thoroughly enjoy it, and there must be others who would like to join," he adds.

Jamieson said that in addition to being good exercise, ice dancing also gives a person a goal and a sense of accomplishment when he or she learns to ice dance.

All ice dancing is in the "rhymthmic movement of feet on ice to music," he said. There is a variety of dances, including blues, European, American, Dutch and willow waltzes, canasta tango, swing dance, fiesta tango, foxtrot and 14-step.

Jamieson said that ice dancing is a dying activity on the South Shore. There are groups in Brighton, Boston and Brockton, but it is not a big sport on the South Shore.

He hopes that 35-40 people will take lessons and ice skate with others interested in this sport.

Anyone with questions should contact the Cohasset Winter Gardens at 383-9447.

Planners support moratorium article

By Linda Dagley
Mariner Correspondent

In a public hearing Monday night, the planning board voted to support a Water Supply Protection Building Moratorium as Article 21 on the Special Town Meeting Warrant for Dec. 9.

The moratorium includes the areas of the Elms Meadow well field, the Sohier St. well field and Lily Pond. The moratorium put into effect last year was declared unconstitutional by the state attorney general.

In section 94.5 part A, the article states "no building shall be constructed or substantially reconstructed, erected or otherwise placed or moved for any purpose until Jan. 1, 1987."

Part B states: "No topographical alteration that would result in the change of drainage patterns or the installation of impervious surfaces on private ways serving two or more residental and/or commercial buildings shall take place until Jan. 1, 1987."

Peter Pratt, Water Commission chairman, told the planning board, "We're asking for time for Camp, Dresser and McKee to assemble data and to bring it to the town meeting."

According to the preamble to the article, the engineering firm of Camp, Dresser and McKee has been hired "to provide relative data with regard to the town water supply area and to assist in the preparation of a water supply area protection by-law."

"We'd rather not see any major changes in topography before the engineer tells us what the regulation should be," Pratt said.

The boundaries of the moratorium are designated on the Water Supply Protection District Map, prepared, by Camp, Dresser and McKee and filed in the office of the Town Clerk.

The board also voted to insert as article 22, an amendment to the zoning by-laws regulating the height of fences.

Under this amendment, enclosing structures located on the perimeter or within a non-corner lot cannot exceed four feet in height within 40 feet of the front lot line and cannot exceed six feet in the remaining area of the lot.

An enclosing structure on a corner lot cannot obstruct visual clearance between three and 10 feet above the grade of the street.

Another section of the article limits commercial devices and structures other than flagpoles, ulility poles, mail boxes. An enclosing structure may be located 15 feet from any side or rear lot line, or within the permitted setback distance.

Happy Thanksgiving!

Neighborhood seeks tighter controls

Paul E. Quinton Jr., president of the Fair Oaks neighborhood association, disagrees the proposal has created a business versus residents situation.

"We are not anti-business," he said this week. "as a lot of people would make this out to be. We are simply pro-residents. We are more concerned that Cohasset remain the type of town we moved here for."

The article evolved, Quinton explained, from residents' concern that the proposed super Stop and Shop would remain open around the clock. "In a residential area, this causes safety problems with trucks, and noise pollution problems in an otherwise quiet neighborhood. And anytime you have a 24-hour operation, you have undesirables targeted into that one area. It might be fine to have a 24-hour store in the Southern Artery in Quincy which contains all business, but this store would be surrounded by a residential neighborhood."

The association president claimed that a small residential community does not justify the need for a 24-hour business operation. "If a business does need to be open 24 hours, then selectmen will have the right to decide that it will be open 24 hours. We are not against all businesses being open 24 hours, but if they must be, we want selectmen to have the authority to make that decision. We can't imagine too many needs, other than a commercial fisherman, when a business needs to be open 24 hours."

Quinton explained it was Town Counsel's determination that selectmen be the board appointed to regulate the hours of operation for businesses.

"Selectmen," Quinton responded," really know the town better than you or I and they run the town government, not the business community."

John Hagerty, owner of Cohasset Colonials, sides with Leahy in his opposition to the proposed bylaw change. "It seems a radical solution to a problem that doesn't exist yet," he said, referring to the planning board's denial of the super Stop and Shop plans. "The Stop and Shop has said that they do not plan a 24-hour operation and even if they did, they have the money to take the town to court and prolong this thing."

Hagerty added, "It frustrates me because it puts the control of the operating hours of a business in the hands of someone who does not run a business."

The longtime Cohasset businessman said he became aware of the warrant proposal "through hearsay. I wish it had been made known to the people it effects. But I plan to voice my opinion at Town Meeting. I don't live here, but I plan to attend as a Cohasset business owner."

Ninety-seven percent of Cohasset Colonial's business is completed through mail order. "But I would like to have the right to run my business without unnecessary constraints," he added.

John Bishop is another Fair Oaks resident in favor of the proposed bylaw change. "When Stop and Shop finally admitted to wanting a 24-hour operation, the homeowners association felt it was not conducive to a residential neighborhood. There is no zoning bylaw that empowers the selectmen or the planning board to do anything about that. And when we proposed this to selectmen, they said they had a similar situation a couple of years ago when they dealt with a noise complaint and had no bylaw to regulate it.

"We don't want to regulate everything," Bishop continued. "But in a situation which is not in the best interest of the town, it is best to have the authority to deal with it."

The association members had talked numerous times with the planning board members who advised them there were no current powers to limit the hours of local businesses. "We had a petition with 700 names against the Stop and Shop project. I don't know how they all feel about 24-hour businesses, but there is a strongly-held opinion of people I have talked with, against such businesses," Bishop explained.

The Fair Oaks Homeowners Association, who gathered the necessary information for the development of the bylaw change, comprises about 90 percent of the that residential neighborhood.

According to Kimball's manager Leahy, "this whole proposal suggests there's been a problem in town with the businesses here. I have attended all the candidate's nights and many other meetings, and I have never heard one town official complain about the operating hours of Cohasset businesses. I must ask, 'where's the problem, and how long has it existed?' "

The relationship between business and residents in Cohasset has always been cordial, he said, "and this suggests that isn't so."

According to the Cohasset businessman, "many of the businesses in town are owned by residents of Cohasset. I feel they are responsive to the needs of their town. This suggests they are doing something wrong. I want to know where that problem is. If this is preventative medicine, I wish selectmen had talked with the business community and allowed the businesses to participate in a decision."

Cohasset sees biggest hike

Easton proposes $3.4 million budget

By Don Merrill
Mariner Staff

Members of the South Shore Regional School Committee last week received a proposed budget for the 1986-87 school year which, at 7.6 percent above last year's costs for the vocational-technical high school, represents the absolute minimum needed to maintain school programs next year, the school's superintendent said.

"What you as committee members will be asking me to do is lead the school in stability or decline in the next year," Supt. Clifford W. Easton said. "But if you intend to cut the budget, we're talking entire programs."

The proposed 1986-87 budget is $3,490,531, up $246,641 from this year's budget.

Easton spent 90 minutes reviewing the budget in general terms with committee members. The budget "is not without a usual number of startling discoveries, but I don't think we'll be proposing any major changes," Easton said.

The school was caught in a financial bind this year because state general education aid was $149,000 lower than expected, and because the school must return $70,000 it owes member towns from the region's buildings and grounds account.

The vocational school also faces sharply-higher insurance premiums in some categories for the 1986-87 year.

"Many of these are fixed operating expenses which are simply out of our control," Easton said.

Easton's draft budget includes an unchanged state aid figure, despite the fact that the region was "shortchanged" by the aid-distribution formula for this year. Aid for 1986-87 should be higher, placing less pressure on the budget, he said.

"I think we'll be seeing more education aid, especially with the budget surplus the state has," Easton said.

Part of the problem with aid is that the state "has forgotten about (school) regions," he said.

"The Chapter 70 (education aid) formula takes enrollments and the relative affluence of the towns into account, and that tends to work against regional school systems."

Legislation is pending on Beacon Hill to correct the inequities, he added.

The proposed budget includes a 28-percent increase in assessments to member towns, largely due to higher enrollments this year. The towns will receive a $1,350,000 bill from the region for the current school year.

The eight member towns are sending 483 students to the school's Hanover and Abington campuses this year, up 24 from the 1983-84 year. Ten non-member towns send another 58 students for a total 1984-85 enrollment of 541.

Cohasset will see the largest relative assessment hike because it now sends 12 students to school in the South Shore region—double the students that attended in 1983-84. Hanover and Scituate are also sending more students this year, while Norwell's enrollment declined from 27 last year to 21 this year.

Marshfield's enrollment at the school is the largest of any non-member town. It now sends 26 students, up from 21 a year ago.

Committee members agreed to concentrate on Easton's draft budget now and wait until state aid figures are firmer, possibly by early next year, before setting a final budget figure.

"If we get the state aid back, then let it be a nice Christmas present to the towns — we can't count on in right now," Sciutate member Joan DeGeorge Schirmer said.

"We must be prudent, but we need not be fearful of the bottom line," Cohasset member David Chittim said. "Enrollments in many member and non-member towns are way up. It's resulted in 170 kids who have opportunities they might not otherwise have had."

Most department budgets were level-funded in the draft budget with the exception of equipment purchases for about half of the school's departments. Most departments acquire needed equipment in every other year's budget.

Much of the increase — $197,522 — is earmarked for the salaries budget, which is 9.3 percent higher than last year at a proposed $2,317,857.

Operating costs would increase about 7 percent under the budget, but some items in the category were reduced to make way for higher fixed costs. The business office budget, however, is shown to increase $90,000 tp $439,275, reflecting the higher insurance costs, Easton said.

Other higher fixed costs include a $55,200 bill from the county retiremnt system, up $10,600 over this year, and an $18,000 increase in rent to lease the Abington location, which will cost $218,000 next year. A new category — interest expense on loans — has a $45,500 budget proposed for 1986-87.

"These costs, plus insurance coverage like medical-/dental, unemployment and workmen's compensation, are all fixed costs which are completely out of our control," Easton told committee members.

The committee agreed to hear any teacher who wishes to attend coming budget meetings, but declined to invite all department heads to the meetings.

"If we need to make any cuts, we should look at all programs," Hanover member Dennis Blackwell said.

Department heads would do well to take an interest in the process, he added.

The committee was to begin sorting through the specifics of Easton's proposed budget this week.

'White Christmas' raffle

The Cohasset Chamber of Commerce is including a Santa's grab-bag raffle as part of 'White Christmas in Cohasset.'

Merchants are donating the gifts to be pulled in traditional grab-bag style from Santa's bag at 4 p.m. on the Common.

Among the prizes are a trip for two to Montreal donated by Lido Travel on Rte. 3A. This includes air fare on Delta Airlines and two nights and breakfasts at the Queen Elizabeth Hotel.

Additional prizes include $100 gift certificate donated by Cards and Shards in the Village, and a catered breakfast for two called "A perfect morning" by J. Bildner and Sons.

Tickets will be available at participating merchants.

Council on Aging grant

State Representative Mary Jeanette Murray (R) 3rd Plymouth district, has announced the award of a grant to the Cohasset Council on Aging.

The Cohasset Council on Aging grant of $2,042 will fund part of the salary of a fulltime Senior Center Director.

I am delighted that Cohasset will have a Senior Center and that we have been able to obtain a grant," Murray said.

Society's annual meeting

At its recent Annual Meeting, the Cohasset Historical Society elected the following Officers for the 1986 season: President, Mrs. Constance W. Parker; Vice President, Osborne Ingram and Noel Ripley, and Treasurer, Robert B. James.

Also elected were several new members of the Society's Board of Directors; Eleanor Bleakie, Charles Fink, Leona Pratt, Jeff Steele and Hubert Vanderlugt. Retiring members of the Society's Board Conrad Ericsson and Arnold Weeks were elected as Honorary Life Members of the Historical Society.

During the meeting, Society Board member David Chittim explained planning now underway to establish a permanent and improved base for the future funding of the Society. There has been a real need for dependable and increased funding to insure the long-term survival of the Historical Society in the face of increasing costs and expansion of the Society's facilities and programs.

The Society is working toward a solution to this need, and additional plans will be announced in the near future.

At its Annual Meeting, Society members and friends enjoyed a chicken dinner catered by Christine Gilmour. Featured in the evening's program were brief discussions of the Society's future plans; a description of the Society's extensive archives of local and area history by Burtram Pratt, a slide show illustrating the Society's museums, produced by Osborn Ingram and David Wadsworth, a presentation of artworks belonging to the Society now made available to the public in the form of high-quality print reproductions, and a "mini-fashion show" itself featuring Society ladies wearing gowns from the Society's extensive gown collection, with costumer Margy Erickson acting as hostess.

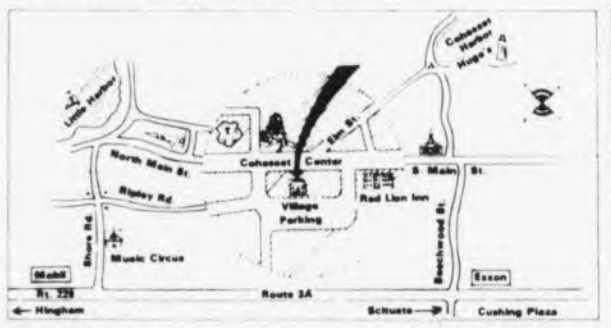
Nearly 100 members and friends of the Historial Society attended the evening meeting held at Trueblood Hall.

Health board workshop

Barbara A. Kern, Chairwoman, and Dr. Joseph R. Godzik, Health Agent, of the Cohasset Board of Health attended a workshop on legal responsibilities of local boards of health on November 14 at the Southeastern Regional Health Office in Lakeville.

The program sponsored by the Department of Public Health, Office of Local Health Services and Regional Operations, was devised to give local boards of health a better understanding of their legal responsibilities in discharging their mandated duties.

Included on the agenda was an introduction to resource materials by Chester Kennedy, District Health Officer; legal responsibilities presented by the Massachusetts Department of Public Health General Counsel; guidelines for drafting regulations by the District Health Officer; and enforcement and due process discussed by Robert Shea, Town Counsel for Plymouth followed by a question and answer period.



Mrs. Kern stated, "Participation in the program proved to be extremely informative and useful in the administrative and daily enforcement of protection of the public health of all Cohasset residents." This is one of several three hour workshops on various topics being offered throughout the year.

St. Stephen's

Dine Potluck in Advent - Advent potluck Dinners will be held on the Wednesdays of Advent, Dec. 4, 11, and 18 at 6:30 p.m. in Walton Rodgers Hall. Bring enough to share of your favorite dish. Children and adults will mix in programs that include "Secret Pal" gifts, making Advent wreaths, singing and more. Set aside your Wednesday nights in Advent for good fellowship and food.

A quiet day - A quiet day will be held Saturday, Dec. 14 from 9 a.m. to noon. Those who wish may stay longer. This will be a break in the Christmas "rush" to stop and look at what Christmas means to us.

Village Fair - The Cohasset Village Fair will be held on Saturday, Dec. 7 from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m. Green wreaths will be decorated at the Congregational Church each day from Monday, Dec. 2 through Dec. 5, from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. Please come by any time during those hours and give us a hand. Anyone with fresh greens we can use for swags should drop them at the church or we can pick them up. Please help.

Outreach - At a meeting of the Outreach Committee Oct. 29, we focused on the allocation of the remainder of our 1985 funds with the following recommendations: $200 - Kitty Whitley's education program for children in Fiji; $150 - field trip for youth group and others to visit housing projects in Boston supported by the Episcopal City Mission; $500 - for the renovation of First Parish Church, a valuable town landmark; $200 - Episcopal Churchwomen's parish assessment used for their grants programs; $26.62 - postage; $1,000 - St. Stephen's, Boston, towards extensive renovations to church and parish hall.

This list was compiled by the Vestry at their November meeting.

Outreach priorities - At an Outreach meeting Nov. 17, the committee began a discussion concerning our priorities for outreach in 1986.

This year we would like our policy to reflect the primary concerns of our parishioners. Do we see housing as the most pressing need in our diocese? hunger? Are children a priority? families? the elderly? Do we want to support programs that deal with emergency situations? street people? Do we want to suport longterm programs designed to prevent emergency conditions?

Our next Outreach meeting is scheduled for Sunday, Dec. 15 following the fellowship hour. We welcome anyone who would like to participate in the planning for 1986. We will not be considering programs to support, but an overall policy.

New Friends programs - of the Social Service Leagye of Cohasset acknowledges the feelings of lonliness we all experience at time and the need we all have for friendship, and realizes that because of age or for physical reasons, it is not always possible to get out to meet people. Therefore, the New Friends program introduces people who are in their homes to a new friend.

It is truly a rewarding experience and the program is constantly seeking new visitors as well as those people who would like to be visited.

For further information, please contact Bobbie Fowle, 383-1820.

Collecting used eyeglasses- Bring to the church or call Betsy Stevenson at 383-1777 and she will get them to the "Eyes for the Needy."

Colombian disaster relief - The volcano eruption has resulted in thousands of dead and homeless persons. Contributions may be sent to the Presiding Bishop's Fund for World Relief. These should sent directly to the Fund at Episcopal Church Center, 815 Second Ave., N.Y., N.Y. 10017.

Village Fair- With Dec. 7 just two weeks away, it is time to seriously think Village Fair! Mark your calendars.

Wreath decorating - Congregational Church, Monday, Dec. 2 through Thursday, Dec. 5 from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. Unexperienced welcome!

Bargain bazaar - Volunteers needed to price items Monday, Dec. 2 from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. and Wednesday, Dec. 5 at 8 p.m.

Please call Shelley Weier, 383-1590 or Joan Kovach, 383-6358. No more donations are needed for the Bargain Bazaar!

Food table - Donations of home baked goods such as breads, cakes, jellies, pickles. Please, no casseroles.

Plant table - Please hunt around your home and back yard for the following: large and small house plants, cuttings, fresh berbs, dried flowers and any other plant related craft you would be willing to give to the Plant Table. For those interested in workshops or making donations, call Sharon Costas, 545-4463 in the evening.

Christmas Concert - Our annual Christmas Concert will be held Sunday, Dec. 15th at 4 p.m. in the Meeting house. the program this year will be John Sebastian Bach's "Maginificat in D" and "Cantata No. 122." You will receive an invitation to become a patron of the concert. Please respond generously.

Reminder - There will be no church school Sunday, Dec. 1. Child care will be in the Carriage house during the service.

Grades 7 and 8 - Every member of the class is welcomed this Sunday morning. Come and lend a hand. I'll see you at 10 a.m.

Youth group - There will be no Youth Group Sunday, Dec. 1.

Second Congregational

Three ways to give thanks—Thanksgiving Sunday is suddenly upon us. Since one of the traditional and soundest ways to give thanks is to share our abundance, we present below a short list of projects which deserve your help. What can we give in return for the good things we are given? Help for the hungry, the homeless, and those who have no hope.

1. When you come to church this Sunday, bring along a grocery bag of non-perishable food—at least one item for each family member—to share with our nearby neighbors in need. The food will go to the Quincy Crisis Center. We will dedicate our gifts during the Thanksgiving Sunday service.

2. Write a check payable to "Oxfam America" and take it to the Cohasset Community Thanksgiving Service on Wednesday, Nov. 27 at 8 p.m. The service, featuring the choirs of all Cohasset churches, will be held at St. Anthony's Church. Oxfam America will use our gifts for food and development projects around the world.

3. Contribute to Colombian relief. After the devastation of a volcanic eruption, a flood of mud, and the loss of 25,000 lives, our neighbors in Columbia will need help to rebuild the towns and the lives of survivors. Your check, payable to the church and labeled "For Colombia," will be forwarded through Church World Service, which has already begun relief efforts.

Three ways to give thanks is perhaps too many—but when we stop to count our blessings, they number even more. It is a good thing to give thanks . . . "

Church School— All children will attend church this week with their parents. Be sure to notice the November bulletin board done by the pre-school and kindergarten children. It is in Bates Hall. Remember to bring food (see above) for hungry people. Happy Birthday to the following children celebrating November birthdays: Lydia Guild, Colby Lawrence, Jessica Jenkins and Anne Lindgren.

"The church's one foundation" was tested this past weekend when the Youth Group held their first dance. The rafters were shaking but there was a great turn out. About 60 young people sang and danced up a storm. Thanks to the Storys and Hahns and chaperones, the Lawrences and the Proodians for making the dance possible.

New Advent Event— The Messiah Sing will not be held this year. Our choir and a few extras are hard at work on a new Advent event, the presentation of a musical play, "No Vacancy." You'll hear more about "No Vacancy" in December. Be sure to mark your calendar: Sunday, Dec. 22, 6:30 p.m.

United Church

Sunday, Dec. 1, the first Sunday in Advent, the United Church of Christ of Norwell at the 10 a.m. worship service will celebrate Holy Communion and receive 22 people into church membership.

They have just completed a six-week Inquirers Course in preparation for church membership, dealing with basic Christian doctrine, the meaning of unconditional grace, the importance of worship, Bible, prayer, social action, and using one's own personal gifts for daily ministry.

The new members, representing nine different denominational backgrounds, are: Diana Moe of Cohasset; Marylee and David Muise of Pembroke; Kathi and Lee Wiggs of Cohasset.

Real hard-knock football players showed up Saturday

By Lisa Shumaker
Mariner Correspondent

Muscles bruised, bones cracked, and fingernails broke as the junior and senior girls of Cohasset High School showed the boys how to really play football during the annual Powder Puff football game held Saturday morning.

After four intense periods of play, the game ended in a 6-6 deadlock.

The score was a victory for both teams. The seniors came back from a six-point deficit to tie the game with three seconds left in the contest. The juniors could be proud of the fact that a junior team has neither tied nor beaten a senior team in over 10 years!

Those expecting to find a friendly little game of flag football were surprised to see girls blocking with the force of any 250-pound linebacker.

Karin Anglin, a junior, broke the ice as she returned a punt about 40 yards and scored the first touchdown of the game.

The contest then became a defensive battle with both teams gaining little yardage. Finally, with their pride on the line, the seniors managed to put together an excellent offensive series. First, quarterback Lee Sullivan hit Anne O'Leary with a pass which Anne ran for about 30 yards to about the five-yard line. Lee then carried the ball in herself, making the score 6-6.

People say that girls lack the physical ability to play football.

People say that girls lack the mental ability to play football.

People even say that girls lack the emotional stability to play football.

However, after watching the girls battle it out on Saturday, I think Coach Phil Pisano should seriously think about recruiting some of these players for next year's team.

The Law and You

by Richard Price, Attorney-at-Law

DISCOVERY PROCEDURES

A lawyer first learns the facts in a divorce case by following "discovery procedures." The "informal" discovery begins with an initial interview between the lawyer and his client. This conversation, and those that follow, provide information about grounds, assets, expenses and children. The lawyer also learns his client's priorities, plans and the the nature of the marital problems. If the client's spouse is co-operating in the divorce, his/her lawyer adds to the informal discovery by voluntarily providing requested information and documentation. "Formal" discovery involves legal procedures such as subpoenas, interrogatories, depositions and notices to produce documents. Formal discovery establishes the factual record upon which a settlement is based.

If you are formally separated or considering divorce, you should have someone to turn to for guidance. Even answers to questions like "Can I file for divorce if I don't know where my spouse is living?" or "How much support will I have to pay?" For the protection of all concerned, today as well as in the future, such legal steps are enhanced by utilizing one experienced with the operation of the law in such matters. LAW OFFICE OF RICHARD PRICE, SMITH, SMITH & PRICE, P.C., 202 Mill Wharf Plaza, Scituate, 545-6660. We are available daily by appt.

CHS presents 'Pirates of Penzance' Dec. 5, 6, 7

By the time you receive your next Mariner, "The Pirates of Penzance" will be within hours of giving their first community performance. The dates: Dec. 5, 6, 7. Ticket price: $4—available at CHS previous to the performance, at the door, or call Diane Pereira at 383-6094.

While no one really has "the lead" in "Pirates"—the role of the Pirate King was most coveted and produced an unheard of number of male competitors for the part. But when all was said and done—John Pereira (senior) landed the lead for lots of reasons, including the fact that he has the bass voice and range necessary for the role. He didn't always have that voice. Last year he was a baritone...and he started out as a tenor. These are the kinds of things which keep a choral director hopping.

In addition to his role in Pirates, Pereira played an excellent mean kid in "Flowers for Algernon" in which he had to trip and mock Andrew Glasfeld. "I felt bad about that, I really did." In any case, he was a good mean kid.

Like every other student in this production, Pereira is multi-talented and has many energies. He was involved in wrestling in 7th and 8th grade. And he played CHS Football from grades 8-11; and then this year he decided to quit football and be a varsity football cheerleader, something which he says "gives me a secret pleasure." Also, he plans to cheer for the basketball team. Musically, Pereira's in barbershop, chorus, and plays a little keyboard and guitar. But voice is his main musical thing. This year his new bass voice got him an All-State Recommendation at Districts.

OTHER DRAMATIS PERSONAE

Senior Annmarie Goggins is "Isabel" in this production. And she brings some serious experience to the part. For the past three years she had performed with the Boston Ballet in both "Sleeping Beauty & Garland Girl." She has also appeared in Hingham performances with Nan Keating. A student of ballet for seven years, she has also had instruction in jazz.

Seinor Heather Davenport appeared in the chorus of "Godspell," worked backstage in "Snoopy" and is a talented member of Show Choir. As "Kate" in this show, she does some excellent solo work. Davenport has studied clarinet and piano for nine years and is a member of District and Semsba. She went on a musical European tour last year. She is also a member of the field hockey team, debating club and AFS.

Seniors Glen Hochkeppel and John Kuntz have both appeared in all major musical and dramatic productions throughout their high school years. They were extensively profiled in the "Flowers for Algernon" articles for the Mariner, for their roles as Charly's father and a pompous scientist, respectively.

In "Pirates" Hochkeppel is "The Sergeant of Police." Kuntz is, in his own words: "The very model of a Modern Major General—Ha!"

A friend recently said of sophomore Joy Turner, "She's a sweet soprano, and Marks counts on her for lots of solo work." Involved in chorus since 4th grade, Turner is also a trained flutist and pianist, having taken extensive instruction at the Boston Conservatory. She is an active and talented member of her church choir, through which she will be involved in some playwriting this year. Hear her as "Edith."

Sophomore Peter Kasperowicz has been a member of the chorus since 7th grade. He is also a member of the barbershop group. A tenor, he is cast as "Samuel" which requires the tenor range. In "Flowers for Algernon" he was teenage Charly. He has also appeared in class plays. In adulthood, Peter would like to be something as exciting as a pirate.

New coalition seeks water study planning grant . .

By Marc Sperber
Mariner Staff

The newly-formed South Shore Coalition, in one of its first major acts in an attempt to institute a regional approach to the problems facing area communities, has submitted two grant proposals, totalling nearly $100,000 to state officials in order to begin the study of planning, growth and water facing 10 South Shore towns.

The South Shore Coalition, a consortium of officials and representatives from Weymouth, Hingham, Cohasset, Hull, Rockland, Hanover, Norwell, Scituate, Marshfield and Duxbury was formed in early October as Metro South by state Sen. William B. Golden. Member towns voted last Thursday night, at a meeting in Marshfield, to adopt the South Shore Coalition designation.

An Incentive Aid application, calling for the establishment of a planning agenda and the hiring of a full-time executive director for the Council, was filed with the state Executive Office of Communities and Development (EOCD) on November 14. The 33-page report calls for a first-year budget of $42,571.

A second application, filed one day later with the Department on Environmental Quality Engineering (DEQE), outlines a proposed three-stage study of the hydrological resources and potential water problems in the 10 towns.

The funds for such a project, which would involve data collection, regulatory analysis and implementation of recommendations, could be obtained from the U.S. government under Chapter 205(J) of the Federal Clean Water Act.

The South Shore Coalition, patterned after a similar consortium of western suburbs along Route 9, has received administrative and technical support from the Metropolitan Area Planning Council since its inception.

The MAPC is one of 13 state-chartered regional planning agencies charged with assisting Massachusetts' 351 towns and cities with planning and growth issues. The councils were created by a legislative act in 1963.

Of the 13 councils, the MAPC is by far the largest, with 101 municipalities under its aegis.

"If and when these funding requests come through, we will be able to make town-by-town analyses of complex issues," Golden said.

The first report, calling for a "management mechanism and process," outlines the planning issues facing the South Shore.

Until the 1950's, only two of the ten towns in the coalition — Weymouth and Hingham — had populations over 10,000. Six other towns had populations of less than 3800.

Overall, the population of the South Shore shot up by 230%, or 101,347 persons, between 1950 and 1980.

Town officials who gathered at the first meeting of the South Shore Coalition included Rockland Selectman Luigi Pace (foreground) and (L to R) Scituate Planning Board Chairman Robert Ladd, Scituate Selectman Gerry Dwight, and Cohasset Selectman Diane Sullivan. (Paula Brackett)

The report suggests that the need for regional initiatives since individual municipalities do not, as a rule, have the resources needed to deal with the intricate issues that face the region.

"The towns, which for so long had operated as individual actors," noted the authors of the study, "found themselves faced with regional problems they had no experience in handling... the idea for the establishment of a regional forum to address a multitude of pressing issues slowly emerged."

A process of assessment and implementation to identify, and then correct, problems facing the 10 towns, say the authors, must come from "a sub-regional effort that is not only linked to, but arises from and is vested in the participating towns."

A process of evolution and refinement of the scope of issues will be a key factor in establishing assessment and corrective measures. The "relatively diffuse" discussion of issues, noted MAPC official Jean Christensen, will become "more sharply focused" once a regional agenda is formulated and implemented.

The report does not outline specific issues, but notes that such functions must be defined by the towns themselves with assistance from the MAPC.

"A multi-town alliance," noted the report, "will literally be created, requiring commitment and a constantly growing body of knowledge. The South Shore suffers from a lack of sharp regional identity, and the establishment of (the) committee also can help to alleviate this difficulty. A sense of shared need and common concerns will emanate from the entire process... It is inefficient and inadequate to do nothing at all about regional problems or to address them with an authority that ceases to exist at the border of each town."

The second report, entitled "South Shore Water Resources Protection Program" suggests that a program of data collection, analysis of existing regulatory measures, and implementation of water resource protection measures be formulated and implemented.

Five of the towns comprising the coalition rely solely upon groundwater resources. Hull, in addition, has no water resources of its own, and relies on surrounding communities.

The report suggests that two of the towns (Scituate and Marshfield) will require a full-scale analysis of water resources, while three others (Norwell, Rockland and Hanover) will need to update existing data on their resources. Four other towns (Weymouth, Hingham, Cohasset and Duxbury) all have up-to-date hydrologic data for their own areas.

Cohasset to receive Scituate boats excise tax

There was good news for the Town of Cohasset this week. Thanks to ther efforts of Rep. Mary Jeanette Murray, Cohasset will collect excise taxes for boats moored on the Scituate side of Cohasset Harbor.

For hundreds of years, Cohasset Harbor has been bounded on one side by Cohasset, and by Scituate on the other. This is not a unique situation, as most Massachusetts harbors share two communities.

All boats within Cohasset Harbor have traditionally paid mooring fees to the town, while the recipient of the excise tax depended on what side of the harbor the boat was moored.

According to Harbormaster Harry Ritter, there were between 35 and 40 boats in the harbor that paid excise, or personal property taxes to the Town of Scituate.

With the new legislation, signed into law last week by Governor Michael Dukakis, those boats will now pay the annual tax to Cohasset.

The legislation was filed by Rep. Murray, who has served on the taxation committee for the past two years. According to the state representative, she had been attempting to have this law approved for the past six years.

Rep. Murray explained that Cohasset has spent hundreds of thousands of dollars to dredge and improve the harbor from 1968 to 1978. The town continues to maintain the entire harbor, she added.

Although Scituate can not be singled out, that town has traditionally accepted the annual excise tax, while Cohasset has maintained the entire harbor and collected all mooring fees.

Harbormaster Ritter explained the added revenue will be nice to have, and it will also make the assessors happy. That department is responsible for billing the boat owners and not having to make the distinction between Cohasset and Scituate-moored boats will make their task much easier, he explained.

The annual property tax is based on the length and age of the boat, Ritter said, and depreciates with the age of the vessel. It is similar to the state excise tax for automobiles, he explained.

The new tax, according to Rep. Murray, will take effect within 90 days. After that time, all boats within Cohasset Harbor will receive their tax bill from the Cohasset Town Hall.

Harbomaster Ritter said the two towns have discussed solutions to the perplexing problem, but the only answer was to have the state issue a decision. At one point, the town's harbor committees developed a solution, but it proved too costly and was never implemented. Although they had to wait longer for the state to make a determination, Ritter said it was the most appropriate solution to the situation.

"It was pretty strange because you could have one boat moored right on the town line, and they were being billed by one town, and claimed they should have been billed by another," he stated. But the state has mandated that whatever town the boat is moored in, that municipality must collect the excise taxes.

"I absolutely support this law," he said this week. "It takes a big headache away from Scituate in their billing process, and it gives Cohasset better control of our billing."

Harbormaster Ritter explained that Scituate was unable to maintain their section of Cohasset Harbor because it is inaccessible.

Cohasset Boy Scouts . . .

Troop 28

Troop 28 visited West Point and camped in an A-frame house on the recreation grounds by Lake Frederick. They watched the West Point vs. Memphis football game and cheered Army's 49-7 win.

It was a Switerland-like atmosphere with lake, mountains and snow! Chris McElroy led the Scouts to a waterfall at the far end of the lake and they hiked up the trails.

The troop is looking forward to a return trip next year.

Cub Scouts

All Scouts and their parents,brothers,sisters and friends enjoyed the Halloween party at the last pack meeting.

Thanks to all those who helped with the games including the den chiefs and parents, and Mr. and Mrs. Freeman, who helped to serve the refreshments and all those who brought and baked all those delicious goodies.

Welcome to our Bear den, Jason Whitman! He has also earned his Bobcat badge.

Congratulations to Earle Bestick, who earned his Bear badge. He has been working with his parents during the summer and now to complete his achievements required for Bear.

Congratulations to the new Bobacts! They are: Den I: Ryan Freeman, Matt Larson, Mike Lennon, Joshua Roth, Dan Silvia, Dean Volungis, Brian Sasso. Den II: Mark Beals, Brendon Kinchla, Jeff Littlehale, Mike Mulcahy, Brad Potolichlio, Dan Varisco and Kevin O'Donnell. From Den III: Trevor Cook, Herb Crehan, Tom Greco, John Hislop, Toby Horne, Chip Moore and Darin Northnagle.

Our Troop 28 Boy Scouts who are den chiefs are: Den I, Chris McElroy; Den II, Mike Lelecas; Den III, Nicholas Lelecas, Den. 4, David Farrag.

Committees for the Dec. 18 Christmas Party are: chairman, John Kinchla; Christams food basket, Karen Crehan; Christmas tree, Jeff Forsdick; and Christmas tree donations, Carol Bostick.

Future Info:

Dec. 4: Roundtable at South Jr. High, Rte. 228, Hingham, 7:30 to 9 p.m.

Dec. 7: Cohasset Christmas fair for all churches on the Common; each club is to make a craft decoration, etc., or bake something to donate to the fair. Bring donation to Town Hall, Dec. 7, 9 to 10 a.m.

Dec. 15: Cohasset Cub Committee meeting at Unitarian Parish House , 7:30 to 8:30 p.m. Den leaders and parents welcome.

Dec. 18: Christmas Party Pack meeting at Deer Hill School, 7 to 8 p.m. Tiger cubs are invited. Cubs will donate 1-2 non-perishable items for food basket, which will be donated to a local charity. Cubs will make or buy one decoration for the Christmas tree—the tree will be donated to the Ripley Road Nursing Home.

Dec. 30: District Cub Scout Rollerskating at Skatetown in Whitman, 6:30 - 9 p.m.

Job matching booth

Hanover mall employers desperate to fill full and part-time Christmas job openings for cashiers, sales clerks, stock clerks and counter attendants have asked the Division of Employment Security to extend the stay of the Job Matching Booth and Staff through Dec. 12.

The booth, located near the fountain in the center of the Mall, will be open and manned by interviewers Monday to Saturday from 10 a.m. to 10 p.m. and Sundays from noon to 6 p.m.

Michael P. Dabransky, the local Employer Services Representative for the Division of Employment Security, said: "I've never seen it like this before. Employers who usually have all their Christmas vacancies filled by Veteran's Day are still looking to hire help. There are definitely more jobs available this year. Anyone, whether it's a school kid, a housewife, a retiree, or someone else looking to supplement his or her income should stop by the booth at the Mall

Cohasset school news . . .

(The following report was completed as an assignment in Mr. Becker' sixth grade class. Mr. Becker felt Jason Hunter deserved special attention for his unusual gift for writing. —Ed.)

Assignment: All in a Sentence. Use each of the spelling words to write a short report about one of the following subjects. You may use Other Word Forms. Circle the spelling words and the other word forms you used.

"School Days"

My education has been the subject of conversation in my house lately. My parents generation gave some consideration to schooling but because of financial limitations, they chose their vocations early and set off to earn a living by their chosen occupations. Personally, I think, with my imagination, my destination is a bit more unsure. I have considered a career in aviation, but the uncomfortable sensation I get flying eliminated that thought. Office automation strikes my fancy, but through my association with my father's colleagues, I think the data processing field is too limiting and I prefer something that deals with the humane treatment of underdeveloped civilizations. Maybe, I should be a research scientist, where my notations would become quotations for world circulation.

In the meantime, before I choose, I had better study for tomorrow's spelling examination before the administration calls my parents and future plans would be down the drain.

Don't miss "Pirates"

The All-School Musical, "Pirates of Penzance", is in full swing.

"All-School" really describes this project because many students are involved in several different areas.

Students are building sets with Mr. Plante, painting scenery with Ms. Lucas, and sewing costumes with Mrs. Wunschel.

Others are working on lights with Dr. Packard; also a team is doing make-up.

Acting and blocking are headed by Mrs. Wood and Mr. Reade. And, of course, the all-important music with Mr. Marks.

Don't miss it! Dec. 5, 6, 7.

Osgood news

Thanks to all the parents who worked on the spring '85 book fair at Osgood School. The PSO presented a check for $360, the proceeds of the fair, to Elizabeth Glasfeld, Cohasset Schools librarian, for the purchase of books and audio-visual materials for the Joseph Osgood Library. It's heartening to realize that our hard work can make a difference, right now, in the enrichment of our children's education.

Please plan ahead for the Christmas book fair, scheduled for the week of Dec. 9, again for the benefit of the Osgood library.

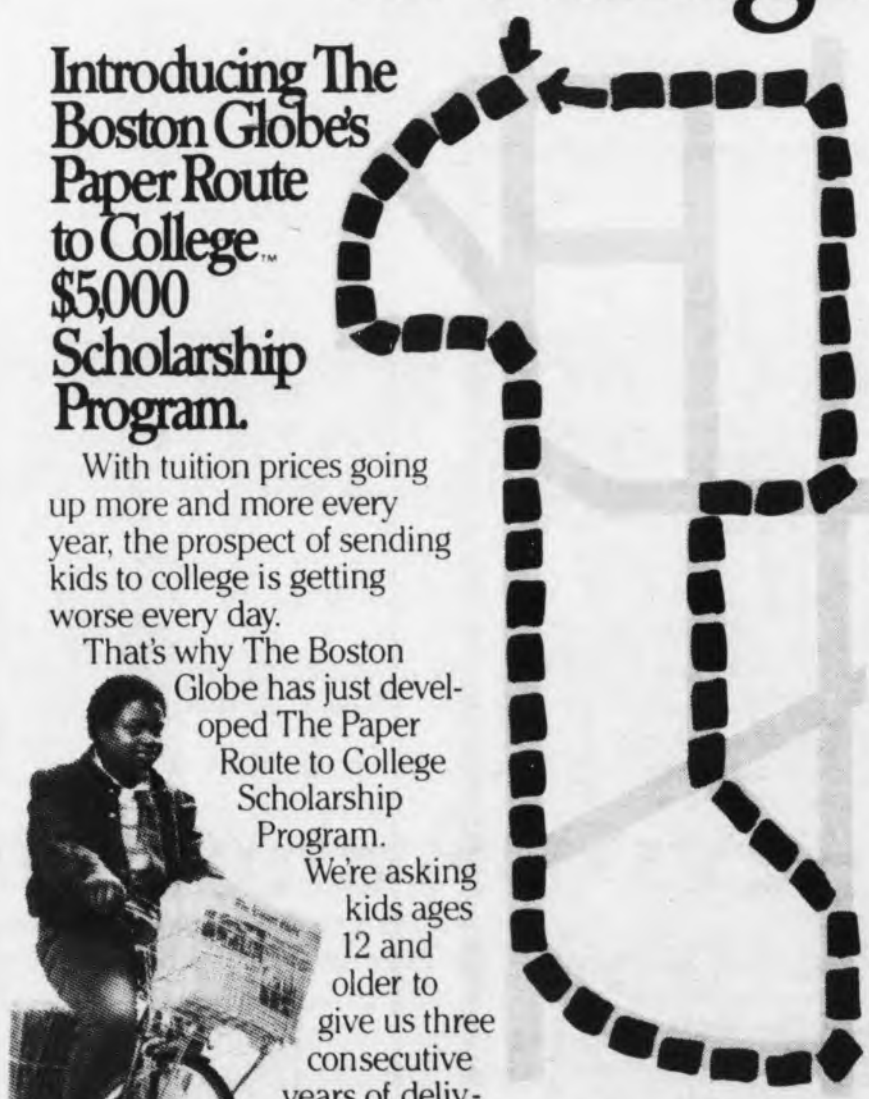
A whole new route for kids to take to college.



Introducing The Boston Globe's Paper Route to College™ $5,000 Scholarship Program.

With tuition prices going up more and more every year, the prospect of sending kids to college is getting worse every day.

That's why The Boston Globe has just developed The Paper Route to College Scholarship Program.

We're asking kids ages 12 and older to give us three consecutive years of delivering The Globe. And in turn we're giving them up to $5,000 toward one-year's tuition at an accredited school or college.

They'll also earn lots of other incentives along the way. Things like money for the papers they deliver, probably tips during the holidays, a radio, a trip to Disney World, a bike.

If you, or someone you know, would be interested, simply send in the coupon below for more information. We'll get a question and answer booklet out to you as soon as possible.

And before you know it your kids will be on a whole new route to college. The Paper Route to College. From The Boston Globe.

Remember the good of Charlie Davis

(This letter was sent to all Cohasset school staff members from Jim Franey and Clark Chatterton. Ed.)

Dear Colleague,

If the cynic would have his way, he would divide the population into givers and takers, idealists and pragmatists, dreamers and realists. He would compartmentalize all of us into boxes and convincingly hypothesize that each of us appropriately falls into one of those niches. How wrong he would be! Teachers defy categorization! We give our energies and take our satisfactions. We dream the big dreams in the full realization that only the students we inspire might achieve those dreams. We stick to the ideals of our professional commitments knowing that the real world does not really understand what makes us tick. By our very nature we are giving people.

We give to the United Way and magazine drives. We give to the Heart Fund and the Boy Scouts. We give to telethons, to community fund-raising campaigns, to school activities, to our alumni building funds, to our church, and to other worthwhile causes. When a worthwhile charity holds out its hand, we gladly contribute our money,our time and our talents and we often do so without seeing the tangible effects of our generosity.

Very recently one of ours, also a very generous man, left us. Charlie Davis gave of himself every day. He gave his humor, his knowledge, his time, and his energies. He enriched the students he taught and the teachers he worked with. Charlie was a giver. Like most of us, however, one thing that he couldn't give was economic security to his family in the event of an untimely death. His wife Marie and their three children probably have not yet come to the realization of the harsh realities of survival in an uncaring, laisez-faire society. There are difficult times ahead of them and we have an opportunity to soften the way. We have an opportunity to see in a very real and personal way the effects of our generosity.

There has been established the Charles R. Davis Trust Fund with Cohasset Savings Bank and we ask for your support. We ask that you give once again, but there is a difference this time.Charlie's dreams for his children might be realized through your generosity, his ideals to educate children for the future might be made possible to his own through your spirit of giving, and his bereaved widow might feel very much consoled that his colleagues and friends understood and cared enough to give of themselves.

Please consider giving once again but give this time in the knowledge that teachers can be givers and takers, dreamers and realists, idealists and pragmatists. With teachers these are not mutually exclusive terms. We can give to this fund and take the satisfaction that we are helping our own. We can dream our own dreams and make Charlie's dreams for his family become a reality. We can show the pragmatist that idealism works and that people care about other people.

Sincerely,
Jim Franey
Clark Chatterton

Council on Aging programs

CHRISTMAS SHOPPING TRIP –

The Council on Aging is sponsoring a Christmas shopping trip to Braintree Plaza Monday, Dec. 9. All Cohasset senior citizens are invited to go. The bus will leave Town Hall at 9:30 a.m. and return at 3:30 p.m.

For reservations call 383-0771 or 383-1130. The Council suggests people sign-up early.

SILVER PAGES

Sign-up times for the senior citizens discount program, Silver Pages, will continue for two more weeks at the new Senior Center office at the Community Center. Residents 60 years or age or older may stop by to receive their identification cards, Wednesday, Dec. 4 or Friday, Dec. 6 from 10 a.m. to noon.

The Silver Pages is a complete directory of busineses which offer discounts and special services to senior citizens. The Silver Pages and identification card are free of charge.

The Cohasset Council on Aging encourages participation because of the potential savings. The council will recieve a small amount of money for each senior registered. The money will be used for the new Senior Center.

If you are unable to come to the Senior Center on the designated days, or if you are unable to leave your home, call the Social Service League office to arrange for a home visit, 383-0771.

FULL ASSISTANCE

Cohasset residents may apply for participation in the South Shore Community Action's Fuel Assistance Program by appointment (call the Social Service League office, 383-0771), or at the Scituate Senior Center Tuesdays from 9 a.m. to 1 p.m. or Wednesdays at the Hull Town Hall from 9 a.m. to 2 p.m.

More than gifts at Dec.7 Village Fair

Balloons, popcorn and face-painting will add the extra touch, but hand-crafted holiday gifts and decorations will again be the basics to attract hundreds of holiday shoppers to Cohasset's Village Fair on Saturday, Dec. 7 in buildings around the historic Common.

In church meeting rooms and private homes around town, gifted energetic volunteers from the five participating churches are busy in work groups or individually putting the final touch on scores of articles that will go on sale the day of the Fair.

When displayed in the Town Hall on tables or racks overflowing with items featuring the traditional red and green of Christmas, these articles will firmly establish the holiday motif.

Throughout the days immediately preceding the Fair, the ladies of the wreath table will take over the vestry of the Congregational church, working on the dozens of these holiday decorative rings that historically have been a centerpiece of the Fair's offering. Under the leadership of Jean Manganaro and Ginny Riley, the ladies in recent weeks have been fashioning the bright red velvet bows and assembling the adornments of evergreen cones, dried grasses and flower pods, and rose hips that will be attached to the wreaths in this final week to make the finished products very special. Raw materials for these decorative items have been accumulated over a period of months.

Similarly, workers for the plant table under the direction of Sharon Costas have been soliciting and assembling a variety of plants they will put on sale at an adjoining Town Hall location. The Plant table is still seeking donations of all types of large and small house plants, cuttings, fresh herbs, dried flowers, containers for terrariums and any other plant-related items. These are always popular items at the Fair and like the wreaths are often sold out before closing time.

Perhaps the longest and most intense preparation period has been carried out by workers for the Boutique, a feature that occupies a large area of the Town Hall auditorium. Each of the churches has organized its own work program for the Boutique, but Monday night workshops have been held over a period of months in the Congregational church by a group that includes Carol Sandblom, boutique co-chairman; Marsha Silvia, Linda Campbell, Debbie Anderson, Dot Parmenter and many others. Sharing the chairmanship responsibility for the Boutique is Lucy Marsac of the First Parish.

Embracing several other standard features of Fairs of the past, the Boutique has taken over the roles played by the apron table, the Kitchen Crafts table and others. These items, as well as the novelty gifts of stuffed animals, wall placques, hand-made bric-a-brac, decorative household novelties, will swell the store of merchandise on sale.

The holiday mood of the Fair will again be set at the very entrance of the Town Hall lobby where a Christmas tree decked out with labels citing the name of each of the scores of workers for the Fair is being arranged by Annette Sawchuk.

Sharing the spotlight with the Boutique in the Town Hall will be the Children's Table, featuring a wide range of children's clothing and novelties crafted by ladies organized by Barbara Mullett as chairman, assisted by Adeline McGrath, Frances O'Toole, and Goldie Langel of St. Anthony's Church, and Kathy McGrath of the Panagia Greek Orthodox church. From these workers has come a range of articles that includes dresses for tots, sweaters, doll clothes, crib blankets and stuffed animals.

Gail Bell of the First Parish is General Chairman of this year's fair, heading a Central Committee that includes: Shelley Weier of the First Parish, Annette Sawchuck and Ruth Nedrow of the Second Congregational; Maria Barber of the Greek Orthodox; Dot Gammon of St. Stephen's; and Frances O'Toole, Adeline McGrath and Goldie Langel of St. Athony's. Dolores Roy is Fair Secretary, and Charles Costas, Treasurer.

Cabbage Patch dolls and stuffed animals are some of the delights for the sale at the Dec. 7 Village Fair.

Planters or magazine racks have been magically transformed into Canadian Geese for the Village Fair Boutique. Debbie Anderson (L) and Linda Campbell (R) deck the items with bows.

Officials discuss protection of water supply

The continued protection of Cohasset's water supply and its surrounding land, is of vital concern to many town officials.

Board of Health Chairman Barbara Kern, Water Commission Chairman Peter Pratt, and Watershed Area Protection Committee Chairman Tom Cook, discussed their concerns with members of the League of Women Voters last week. Their concern centered on the need to retain a quality water supply for Cohasset, and the methods they must follow to assure that continued growth and development does not encroach on that supply.

Prior to the three speakers, the League presented a slide show depicting how North Shore communities have regionalized their efforts to maintain the areas containing their watershed land. A watershed, as explained in the slide, is the source which contains the community's ground water. That water eventually ends up in the town's reservoir or wells.

As one person noted in the slide presentation, "water is the environmental problem of the next fifty years."

The program, according to League President Deborah Cook, coincides with their study of growth and management, looking toward regionalization. The issue is also important to the community, she said, because voters will be deciding whether to once again approve a construction moratorium at the Dec. 9 Town Meeting. A watershed bylaw will probably be put before voters at the April annual Town Meeting, she added.

Watershed Committee Chairman Cook explained that engineers recently completed a water resources management plan for Cohasset. Money for that study was appropriated at the 1984 Town Meeting, he said, and its goal was to "define the watershed and evaluate the impact of development on the water supply and draft bylaws to implement the protection required."

A draft of the study and recommendations were submitted to the committee, he said, and the members have provided their comments to the engineers, Camp, Dresser and McKee. That group is now awaiting the final draft of the year-long study which will define the boundary, and supply proposed bylaws to protect the town's water supply.

The study concluded that the "water quality of Lily Pond and the Aaron River reservoir (the town's water supplies) is not in much trouble," Cook said. "But we have to provide protection against pollution sources."

CDM had three recommendations, Cook said, including a zoning bylaw change to create a water resource district which would run into Hingham, Norwell and Scituate. As Cook mentioned, "a considerable amount of our watershed is in other towns."

The report does not recommend prevention of further development, but outlines restrictions of the use of watershed land. Those uses prohibited in the area include storage of underground oil and petroleum tanks, manufacturing businesses, storage of toxic materials, auto repair or service stations, and any businesses using hazardous materials.

"What happens on Route 3A is crucial to protecting our water supply," Cook stated.

A second recommendation of the study is the development of a hazardous materials bylaw which would require the registration and monitoring of all hazardous materials located on the site. A third recommendation is a couple of minor zoning changes, including rezoning the commercial area of Beechwood and Doane Streets to residential. None of the residences there now will be affected by the change, Cook noted.

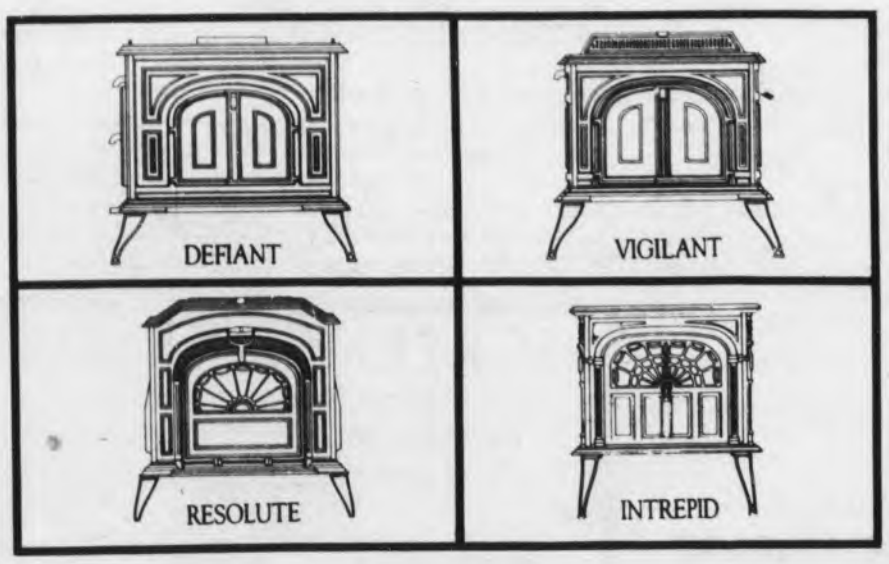
The report also stated the area containing the Elms Meadow wells should be changed to residential zoning.

In her comments to the League, Health Board Chairman Kern outlined that group's efforts to enact a moratorium on the construction of septic systems in the watershed area.

That moratorium was recently extended to June 30 until a permanent zoning bylaw is adopted by the town and legally in place, she said.

"The main concern of the Board," she said, "in protecting the water supply, is through the proper installation and maintenance of septic systems."

The moratorium, she added, has been well accepted by the town. It includes an appeal process, in which residents and developers may argue against the proposal.



"Within the next month," Kern said, "we will be looking at a couple of septic systems within the watershed district. They were submitted prior to the moratorium. We will look carefully and considerably different from those outside the district."

The whys & why-nots of the new 1986 seat belt law

(These questions and answers were compiled by the Governor's Highway Safety Bureau. They are commonly-asked questions regarding the state's Seat Belt legislation, scheduled for implementation Jan. 1, 1986. Ed.)

1. Q. Who has to wear a seat belt under the law?

A. The driver of any motor vehicle and all passengers five years old and up must buckle up in both the front and back seats. Children under the age of five must be secured in an approved child seat or with a properly-adjusted seat belt.

2. Q. What happens if there are more passengers than there are seat belts available?

A. The extra passengers are exempt from buckling up.

3. Q. What happens if I can't wear a seat belt for medical reasons?

A. The law exempts people who are physically unable to use seat belts provided that the physician states the nature of the condition as well as the reason that use of seat belts is inappropriate. This certification should be in writing and in your possession in the car should you be stopped.

4. Q. Do I have to buckle up while riding in a taxi?

A. All taxi occupants must wear a seat belt.

5. Q. Do I have to buckle up if I drive in a truck, van, jeep, wagoneer, etc.?

A. The basic rule is if your vehicle was manufactured with a seat belt as original equipment, you have to use it.

6. Q. Is anyone else exempt under the seat belt law?

A. The other exemptions are: (1) any vehicle manufactured before July 1, 1966 or one not equipped with seat belts as original equipment; (2) any rural mail carrier on duty; (3) any police officer on duty; (4) any person who makes frequent stops and leaves the motor vehicle if the speed of the vehicle between stops does not exceed 15 miles per hour; and (5) passengers in a bus.

7. Q. What if my seat belt is missing or broken?

A. You must get it fixed or replaced. Seat belt inspections will be part of your car's annual safety sticker inspection. If the belts are not there and working, your car will fail the inspection.

8. Q. I can't wear my seat belt because I'm too heavy. Am I exempt?

A. No. There are seat belt extensions available. Check with several car dealers.

9. Q. I am too short and the seat belts cut across my neck. Am I exempt?

A. No. Seat belt comfort clips or other modifications are available that help change the angle of the shoulder belt. Check with your car dealer for their availability.

10. Q. How will be seat belt law be enforced?

A. There will be what's known as "secondary enforcement." You can only be cited for failing to obey the seat belt law if your car is stopped for some other violation of the motor vehicle laws. An estimated 6,000,000 cars are stopped every year in Massachusetts for traffic violations. So, your chances of being stopped and being fined for not wearing a seat belt are greater than you think.

11. Q. What is the penalty for not buckling up?

A. There is a $15 fine, but no car insurance surcharge.

12. Q. Who is responsible for paying the fine, the driver or the passenger?

A. The driver is responsible for himself and all occupants under the age of 16. Passengers who are 16 years or older will receive their own tickets. Passengers will be required to give their name, address, and age if requested.

13. Q. If I am in an accident and I'm not wearing a seat belt, can that be used against me?

A. No. Evidence of not wearing a seat belt cannot be used in any civil action. It will also not be considered a moving violation for purposes of determining car insurance premium surcharges.

14. Q. What do I do if I feel I was given a seat belt ticket wrongfully?

A. As with any other motor vehicle violation, you may contest the ticket in court.

15. Q. If I am in an accident while wearing a seat belt and get hurt, can I sue the state?

A. A court of law would rule that the primary cause of the injury was the accident itself and not the seat belt. Only in the rarest of accidents does a seat belt aggravate an injury. Most times it saves your life and reduces the severity of any injuries.

Christopher, a DARE child, needs a home

(DARE Family Services Greater Boston Region, a private social service agency, is looking for quality foster homes in the South Shore area. Here is a specific article about Christopher. Another child, looking for a home, will be published next week. Ed.)

CHRISTOPHER

Christopher is a helpful, cooperative and confused sixteen year old boy with no stable home life. For the past six months, he has bounced around temporary shelters, a residential school, and a short stay with his mother. These placements have not worked. Some places are too restrictive while other places do not have the permanence, warmth and special attention that Christopher desperately needs and deserves.

Christopher's life has been put on hold. It is unfair. Christopher's expectations are not unusual or unlike a typical adolescent's. Christopher wants to get on with his life. He wants to stop running away from commitments and bouncing around. His trouble with drugs is behind him. Now he wants a stable home, girlfriend, to finish high school, a part-time job and to some day join the service.

Christopher loves all sports. He loves to swim, play hockey, soccer and basketball, and to lift weights. Also, Christopher enjoys cooking and can be helpful around the house. Most of the time he gets along well with others. His trouble with peers arises when he lies and makes up stories. Christopher would benefit from an attentive, active and loving individual(s) who will boost his self-esteem and establish a solid, consistent relationship based upon honesty, mutual respect and trust.

If you have room in your home and your heart for an adolescent like Christopher, please call Don Moskowitz of DARE Family Services, at 628-3693. Professional training and support together with medical coverage and financial reimbursement are available.

THE DRAGON'S DUNGEON — By Claire McDonough

To summit all up: What did they wear?

"According to the Patroit Ledger News Service," Breida observed, "when the Reagans and the Gorbachevs had dinner at the Villa Rose, 'Nancy Reagan wore a two-piece brocade dress with a v-neck and Raisa Gorbachev wore a black dress. It was the third time each of the first ladies had changed clothes during the day.'

"What I want to know," she continued, "is what Soviet Leader Mikhail Gorbachev and President Ronald Reagan were wearing. From the newspaper pictures it would appear that Mr. Gorbachev was in a pin striped suit with narrow lapels and a black tie with lighter diagonal stripes, while the American President was a vision of sartorial elegance in a dark suit set off by a silk tie with a small patterned design, but I can't really be sure. And how many times did the guys change their shirts?"

"Don't be snide," Skip told her. "The press has to tell us what the ladies wear because women don't understand missile throw-weights, or arms races, or human rights, or Afghanistan, or stuff like that. What they understand is whether Mrs. Gorbachev's shoes match her bag.

"The White House Chief of Staff said so in an interview with the Washington Post," he added, "so it must be true."

Breida assumed an expression of idiocy. "Duhnh," she said, "what's an arms race? Do you do it on one leg or two?"

"I think," Maureen responded, "you do it standing on your hands. That's why they call it an arms race. What's an Afghanistan?"

"I'm not sure," Breida told her. "It's either a crocheted blanket or one of those big dogs with long hair."

"Do you suppose," I asked, "that the fact that there's a complete news blackout on everything but what people are wearing has anything to do with this?"

"Of course not," Breida told me. "If that were the case we'd know whether the President's shoes clash with his pants. And whether Gorbachev wore one of those darling fur hats.

"No, if Donald Regan says 'most women would rather read the human relations stuff of what happened,' then there must be more at stake than meets the eye.

"Clearly there has been a haute couture weapons build-up that we weren't even aware of. It's high noon for Nancy and Raisa, and world fashion opinion is at stake. Do you think we should be concerned?"

I shook my head. "No way. They may give Raisa 'Miss Congeniality' just to make her feel good, but when it comes to the evening gown and the talent competitions, Nancy can beat her hands down."

"I'm not sure," Maureen frowned. "I never did trust the Communists. They probably have a whole team of designers working on Raisa's wardrobe. People in the free world are open and honest. Anyone who wants to know what Nancy's wearing just has to pick up Women's Wear Daily. But what if Raisa comes up with something completely innovative in daytime attire?"

I snorted. "Don't make me laugh. Nancy will tell her, 'Make my day.'

"Free enterprise and an open market can outstyle, out-fashion and out-couture anything produced by forced labor behind the Iron Curtain."

"I don't need all this sarcasm," Skip interjected. "Am I to understand that the distaff members of this family don't think anything substantive will happen at the Summit?"

"We didn't say that," Maureen replied. "And Mr. Regan could be right. Probably most women don't understand the logic behind the arms race. Most likely most men don't, either. In many ways it strains credulity. If each side can destroy the other several times over, what difference does it make who can destroy the other more times?

"But there's one race men and women and politicians, and presidents and Soviet leaders and even little kids all understand and care about, and that's what makes us hopeful that the Summit really can be the first step on a long and difficult road to peace."

"Right," Breida agreed. "The human race."

'A Christmas Carol' opens Dec. 3 at Nickerson

"A Christmas Carol" Charles Dicken's classic tale of Christmas, adapted for the stage by Larry Carpenter, will open Tuesday, Dec. 3 and continue through Sunday, Dec. 22 as the special holiday production at the Nickerson Theatre in Norwell.

Staged by Boston director, Nora Hussey the cast includes: Troy Seigfreid as Scrooge, Eric Torvi as Tiny Tim, Bob Bouffier as Marley Ghost of Christmas future, Peter Haydu as Bob Cratchit, Lisa Foley as The Ghost of Christmas Past, and John Adair as The Ghost of Chirstmas Present.

Others in the large cast include: Sally Campbell, Jessica DelGizzi, Marge Hammond, Ted McAdams, Ingrid Sonnichsen, Jared Waye, and Bernard Zilinskas.

Dicken's famous story of Christmas was written in 1843 during a decline of traditional Christmas values. Dickens has been credited with reviving the 'spirit of Christmas' and the old holiday customs. He possessed a wonderful ability to express, better than anyone proceeding him, the spirit of the holiday season. One of the World's most popular novelists, Dickens' most famous works include: "Oliver Twist," "Nicholas Nickelby," "Pickwick Papers," and "David Copperfield."

Larry Carpenter, who adapted this production of the Nickerson Theatre "A Christmas Carol," is currently the Artistic Director of the American Stage Festival, in Milford, New Hampshire.

Performance times for "A Christmas Carol" are Tuesday through Thursday at 8 p.m.; Friday at 8:30 p.m.; Saturday at 4 and 8:30 p.m.; Sunday at 2 and 7 p.m. Friday and Saturday prices are $16 all other performances, $13.

Telephone charges call: 871-2400. For mail orders or a detailed brochure, write the Nickerson Theatre, 30 Accord Park Drive, P.O. Box 272, Accord, MA 02108. For Group-Discounts call 267-9022.

Design a poster for Reed Ski Shop

Frederick Leighton, president of Carroll Reed Ski Shops, Inc., has announced a Poster Design Competition in celebration of the company's 50th year. The competition is open to high school and college students throughout New England.

Entries must depict some facet of Carroll Reed. Artists may draw upon the company's retail and/or catalog divisions as the theme for their renderings.

"As our 50th Celebration progresses," said Leighton, "we remember those wonderful events, like our support of the arts, that helped us to become what we are. We know that there are many young artists in New England we want to recognize some of that talent."

A $500 scholarship will be awarded to the artist whose work is named the Grand Award Winner. That entry will be reproduced as a limited edition poster and will be available to the public.

A $250 scholarship will be presented to the second place entry. A $100 scholarship will be awarded to the third place winner.

A panel of judges from the art community will select the winning entries in December.

A brochure which details the competition rules and guidelines is available at any Carroll Reed Ski Shop in New England and in Albany, New York.

South Shore supports Tom Rush & folk music

By Judith Montminy
Special to the Mariner

"SOLD OUT"

Those two words are every producer's dream and don't come about by chance. Friday, Nov. 22, Michael Pevzner, director of the Fine Arts Center at Massasoit (the community college serving this area), was able to tell South Shore folk music afficionadoes that both performances of Tom Rush's concert were sold out.

The concert was one of the last major events during the Plymouth County Tercentenary celebration.

Pevzner is one of the first to admit that he had a little help from his friends. He credits President Ed Nute and the South Shore Folk Music Club for their co-sponsorship and promotion of the concert, and for the support from their members who live in just about every town on the South Shore.

High on his list of "thank you's" came Dick Pleasants, host of Marshfield's acoustic music radio program on WATD, "Something Different."

When he found out Dick Pleasants was going to be the emcee, Tom Rush said he decided to do the show at Massasoit. "Dick Pleasants, to a large degree, is responsible for the fact that there is a folk scene in this part of the world," Rush said.

In addition to playing acoustic music every Monday through Friday 7 p.m. to midnight on WATD, Pleasants also hosts "Folk Heritage" Saturdays 12:30 to 5 p.m. on WGBH.

His local audience stretches from the Cape up through all the towns served by Mariner Newspapers.

After "Something Different" had been on WATD for a year, Marshfield resident Mark Ryer and Pleasants discussed the need for a coffeehouse on the South Shore.

In 1978, Pleasants and Ryer joined forces with local residents Barbara Hall, Ed and Chris Nute, Ian and Allison Geddes and others to form the South Shore Folk Music Club.

For the first nine months, the club used Trinity Church in Marshfield Hills, but soon outgrew its quarters and moved to the Beal House in Kingston where it is located now.

Marshfield's radio station often broadcasts live Friday night concerts from the Beal House, reaching more than the 250 people who can fill the hall.

The South Shore Folk Music Club has become a major force in the folk music circuit in New England. To show their appreciation for all Pleasants has done for folk music on the South Shore, Nute and Pevzner conspired with State Senator Ned Kirby to cite Pleasants for his contributions.

Before the second set of the second show at Massasoit, Tom Rush brought Dick Pleasants on stage where Mike Pevzner presented him with the following official citation from the Massachusetts State Senate:

"Be it known, that the Massachusetts State Senate hereby extends its congratulations to Dick Pleasants in recognition of promoting and preserving folk music on the South Shore. Signed, William Bulger, President of the Senate; Edward O'Neill, Clerk of the Senate; Edward Kirby, State Senator from Whitman."

Pleasants, on the other hand, maintains that Tom Rush is one of the major forces behind the resurgence of folk music today. According to Pleasants, today's music is more "grass roots" and less political than that of the 1960's.

He says Rush has shown when the audience is identified, folk music can become a viable business venture.

Here is Dick Pleasants of Marshfield, host of 'Something Different,' aired on radio station WATD and 'Folk Heritage' on WGBH.

Through his company, Maple Hill productions, Rush has begun to produce his own shows and to showcase new artists. He brought Bill Morrissey, Eric Lilljequist and Dean Adrien to the Massasoit concert and is currently preparing for another late concert series at Symphony Hall

Long time acquaintance Dick Pleasants emceed concerts there in 1983 and 1984. Pleasants produced the National Public Radio show of the Symphony Hall concert and was an associate producer for Rush's album based on the show, "Late Night Radio."

Rush and Pleasants met each other when Tom was a student at the Groton School where Dick's father taught. They came from similar backgrounds (Rush's father taught at St. Paul's School in New Hampshire). In 1970, when Pleasants was living on Martha's Vineyard and working in Falmouth at WCIB (then owned by WATD's owner Ed Perry), he renewed his acquaintance with Rush and convinced him to do radio interviews.

Since then, Pleasants has promoted Rush's concerts on the air. Their paths continue to cross since both men are vitally interested in the future of folk music in this area.

Pleasants bemoans the fact that there is no good performance club on the South Shore anymore. In the early 1970's, Scituate's Bell Buoy showcased artists such as Rush and Jonathan Edwards. Pleasants said a successful venture must see itself first as a good performance club, then as a bar.

"I think the South Shore can support it." The sold out performances at Massasoit are offered as an example of the tremendous support for folk music here.

Pleasants has found that South Shore listeners have become involved with his show. "The nice thing about this kind of radio is you get a lot more feedback. People make requests and talk about the type of music they like. Folk music radio, more than any other radio, is considered alternative music because it's just not on the air. It has a very distinct audience, but the audience is growing all the time. And the audience is loyal."

Demographic surveys have shown the South Shore folk music audience tends to stay for a long time and listens three or more days a week for three or four hours a night. "That is really considerable."

In very general terms, the audience (29-55 years old) was introduced to folk music in the 1960's, although some listened to the Weavers in the 1950's. "A lot have grown up to make good money, but some are artists. It (folk music) really attracts people from all ranges." Pleasants sees tremendous cooperation between all levels in the folk music community—clubs, radio people, audiences. "The folk music community is a wonderful extended family."

"My number one wish is that folk music be something that is available at all times to all people on all levels, and that performers involved be able to make a living. They should get more help from arts councils or maybe more government support."

Some of Pleasants' wish is being realized already. The Tom Rush concert was supported by Massasoit's administration and board of trustees and was funded in part by grants from New England Telephone, and the Massachusetts Council on the Arts and Humanities through the New England Foundation for the Arts. Additional help came from the Plymouth County Development Council.

FROM THE KITCHEN

by JOAN PINKHAM

A scrumptious fare for the Thanksgiving activities

If "over the river and through the woods" for Thanksgiving at Grandma's is for you, preparing the traditional meal is usually a shared venture. Pumpkins, cranberries, golden brown turkey are native fare for which we can all be thankful, and to arrive with your offering for the meal, you help lighten the burden for the busy hostess. Some of us feel that the leftovers are a most scrumptious part of the holiday meal and that when we recover our appetite, nothing can quite compare with a cold turkey sandwich. But before the sight of the turkey carcass begins to pall, you might want to serve this casserole called:

BAKED TURKEY SURPRISE

4T butter or margarine
2 medium green peppers, cut in strips
6T flour
3 c. hot chicken stock
1 lb. cooked turkey, cut in strips
1/4 lb. smoked Virgina ham, cut in strips
1T chopped parsley
1/2T Worcestershire sauce
Salt and pepper, to taste
1 c. milk
10 oz. thin noodles
2T grated cheese
6 saltine crackers, crushed

Melt butter in 3 qt. saucepan. Add green pepper and simmer covered for 5 minutes. Add flour, stir well. Add stock and bring to boil. Cook sauce for 5 min. or until smooth. Add next five ingredients, bring to a second boil and add milk gradually while gently stirring. Simmer 5 min. Cook noodles 7 min. and drain. Place in greased, shallow casserole. Top with turkey mixture. Sprinkle with cheese and cracker crumbs. Bake in 375 oven for 20 min. or until lightly browned.

There's a certain warmth and glow to the holiday season that begins with the cracking of the first Thanksgiving walnut and lingers on through New Year's. It is a very special feeling kindled by the gatherings of family and friends and special holiday foods. Punches and drinks are also a part of holiday entertaining and a sip or two of this Swedish punch is one way of feeling a little glow.

HOLIDAY GLOGG

1 qt. each: dry red wine, Port wine
3" stick cinnamon
12 whole cloves
1T grated orange rind
1/2 lb. each: raisins, blanched and slivered almonds, lump sugar
1/2 qt. brandy

Pour two wines into a chafing dish. Tie cinnamon, cloves and orange peel into a bag made of cheesecloth. Add bag to wine and simmer over low heat—do not let it come to a boil—for 10 min. Remove bag. Add raisins and almonds. Put into hot wine all but 3 or 4 lumps of sugar. Stir to dissolve. Now, put remaining sugar lumps into a sieve. Heat some of the brandy in a long-handled ladle with a match, or candle. Ignite brandy and pour it flaming over sugar lumps in sieve. Sugar will melt and fall into wine mixture. Pour the rest of brandy into mixture and put the flame out at once or all the alcohol will be burned off. Serve warm or cold.

Long before the Pilgrims ever saw a cranberry, the Indians used what they called "crane berries" to dye their colorful robes, treat arrow wounds and make pemmican by combining venison, fat and crushed berries. Today, in "crane berry" country, a trip to the supermarket offers the fresh berries usually in 1 pound bags, or canned or whole berry sauce. Cranberries are a fair source of Vitamin C and are low in calories. They are so tangy and versatile that we use them year-round. Good quality fresh berries may be stored in the refrigerator for one to four weeks and frozen for up to a year. So, any time is a good time for Mary Bell's

CRANBERRY ORANGE MOLDED SALAD

1 3-oz. pkg. raspberry gelatin
1 c. hot water, 1/2 c. cold water
2 c. fresh cranberries
1 orange
1 c. sugar

Dissolve gelatin in 1 c. hot water. Stir to dissolve. Add 1/2 c. cold water and set aside to cool. Put raw berries and orange (quartered and seeds removed) through food chopper. Add sugar and mix well. When gelatin begins to thicken, fold in cranberry-orange mixture, pour into large mold, or individual smaller molds, and chill until firm. Serve on lettuce leaves. Serves 4 to 6.

HAPPY HOLIDAYS FROM OUR KITCHEN TO YOURS!

Mrs. Massachusetts deadline is Dec. 6

The deadline for the 1986 Mrs. Massachusetts pageant is Friday, Dec. 6. The pageant is the official preliminary to the Mrs. America pageant to be nationally televised in 1986. The Mrs. America pageant is the only nationally televised pageant dedicated exclusively to America's 54 million wives.

Contestants must be a U.S. citizen, married at least one year, of qualifying age and at least a six-month resident of Massachusetts. The 1986 Mrs. Massachusetts will receive an all-expense-paid trip to the Mrs. America pageant and many other prizes.

For entry information, phone pageant headquarters at 657-4646 or write Mrs. Massachusetts-America Pageant Headquarters, 52 Main St., Wilmington, MA 01887.

MUSINGS — By JOHN H. CUTLER

☐ The UN has been described as an umbrella which folds up whenever it rains.

☐ It costs $226,000 a year to educate one ca det at West Point. With tongue in cheek, one West Point graduate suggested that the West Point barracks be turned over to New York State as a prison facility.

☐ Many newspapers, corporations and others are learning the truth of this observation: People don't sue to win, they win by suing.

☐ Socrates' wife, Xantippe, was a shrew who sometimes wept after ranting and raving. Said Socrates: After the thunder comes the rain.

☐ Sean O'Casey, the great Irish playwright, called one of his characters the illegitimate son of an illegitimate son of a Mexican corporal. I think a worse insult would be to call a person a simpering wimp.

☐ Any truth to the proverb, "Going to rain if horse falls over?" You bet there is, says National Wildlife magazine. Animals often get edgy long before a storm hits because they're able to hear the low frequency sound waves given off by approaching storms.

☐ George Washington (and not Thomas Jefferson) was the first American President to use the phrase "entangling alliances." President John Kennedy and his brother Robert should have been warned to avoid entangling dalliances.

☐ Bobbie had a charming grand-aunt who was unbelievably old-fashioned. She once said to me, "Not Hornblower and Weeks. What's the name of that other investment firm?" She was thinking of Lee Higginson, but of course there were scores of other firms.

☐ Time magazine erred in a recent issue when it wrote: "The old joke about the Midwest in Boston, the Hub of the Universe, used to go 'Ohio? Here we pronounce it Iowa.'" Wrong! The dowager who was a proper Bostonian said, "Ohio? Here we pronounce it Idaho."

☐ Gore Vidal, who is homosexual, once wrote: "Never have children, only grandchildren."

☐ Long before her daughter wrote that nasty book about her, Bette Davis said, "If you have never been hated by a child, you have never been a parent."

Water - 'environmental problem of next 50 yrs'

Water Commissioner Pratt explained that the town's water supply area actually belongs to a region including Cohasset and its adjacent neighbors. But legal control of that area belongs to the local Water Commission.

"Water supply strategy was an expensive decision of the 1970's. But it is paying off in economic development, health benefits, and it will give us stabilized rates in the future," Pratt stated," unless we do not properly plan for an overall strategy."

One of the most crucial issues to Cohasset, he said, is the pressure we will be feeling from surrounding communities as more and more they institute water bans. "We must start thinking about how we will cooperate with the state and with these towns so we can withstand the pressures from within this water ban area," he said.

Cohasset town officials, Pratt noted, are entering protection in a "reactive basis. We had been in the 19th century as far as water protection is concerned," he added, explaining how a previous Board of Selectmen (which included a former Water Commission member) allowed a commercial landfill to locate in the watershed area and the town permitted development of the Beechwood area without proper setbacks from the watershed.

"The entire course we are on will be decided if we are successful at Town Meeting," he said. "We will then prevent the mistakes of the future by ensuring protection of that area, and by an intercommunity direction to protect our water supply."

In answer to a question from League member Chartis Langmaid, Commissioner Pratt explained there has been no serious degradation to the town's water supply, "but we are beginning to see a potential degradation of the Lily Pond water as development continues." He predicted that in two or 3 years,the town may request a concentrated look at how the water is treated and residents may decide to update that continually-changing technical process.

In answer to another question, Commissioner Pratt stated, "CDM has said it was atrocious policy to allow a landfill within the watershed. Governor Dukakis sees an eminent expansion of landfills in the metroplitan Boston area. Rarely do we see those two issues clash as we have seen here."

When asked what effect the building moratorium and subsequent bylaw will have on Cohasset Heights, the private landfill, Cook answered, "It will have zero effect on an existing use, although there might be some monitoring regulations, but not enough to close it down."

"The question of the moratorium and bylaw," Pratt said, "would come into the expansion (of the existing landfill)."

The town officials also discussed the need for residents to be aware of household hazardous wastes, and to pressure town officials into sponsoring more household hazardous waste days. An event held last year by the town was successful, but Health Board Chairman Kern said the costs have become prohibitive. A similar event will now cost the town about $10,000 - $12,000, she said.

TIC offers speakers bureau to service groups

The Talking Information Center has a speaker's bureau available to service groups, church groups and schools in the greater Boston area. Speakers will address a group and show a 15-minute video tape telling the TIC story.

The Talking Information Center (TIC) is a non-profit radio reading service for the blind and print-handicapped residents of Massachusetts.

For seven years TIC has broadcast newspapers, magazines, current literature and consumer information via radio 17 hours a day, seven days a week. In other words, thousands of TIC listeners use their radios to "read" printed material that would not otherwise be available to them. And, in a print-oriented society, access to the written word is critical to any individual attempting to function in the maintstream. The link TIC provides is so crucial that one listener wrote to TIC, "It's like being able to see again!"

It may surprise you to learn that interest rates may look alike . . . . but interest payments may NOT all be alike!

The method a bank uses to compute its interest may make a significant difference in the amount of interest payment you receive.

Take this very typical example (let's use an 8½% Annual Rate for comparison):

Annual Rate	EFFECTIVE ANNUAL YIELDS
	Compounded Daily (ROCKLAND TRUST METHOD) 365/360	Compounded Daily (360/360, Method)	Compounded Weekly	Compounded Monthly	Compounded Semi-Annually
8.50%	9.00%	8.87%	8.86%	8.84%	8.77%

The moral is simple: Be sure your bank is paying daily interest on the 365/360 method or be sure your account is at Rockland Trust!

It looks like we finally have a sewer plan

After months of sparring with the state and federal government, the sewer commission has seen the light at the end of the tunnel. With fingers crossed, attorneys for the commission informed selectmen Tuesday night that the town and the state have reached an agreement on a wastewater treatment plan.

In a meeting Nov. 1 between local and state officials, attorneys for both sides worked out a tentative agreement for a wastewater plan for Cohasset. Atty. Allan van Gestel, representing the Cohasset Sewer Commission, told selectmen the agreement was all but signed that day. Since that time, he had expected to receive a final copy of an agreement from the state, but he had yet to hear from the Department of Environmental Quality Engineering (DEQE) commissioner.

Until the state submits a final resolution to that preliminary agreement, Cohasset remains close to concluding its negotiations with the state, but there is no guarantee.

"I think we do have the makings of an agreement, I have heard nothing to the contrary," van Gestel told selectmen. "Sen. William Golden (who attended the Nov. 1 session) believes there is an agreement, which is a modification of the Ward plan.

"We look at the state's silence affirmatively," he added.

Sewer Commission Charles DeSantis reiterated the attorney's comments, adding, "I believe we have an agreement. I'd be very surprised in our public servants if they come up with anything short of an agreement."

SUMMARY OF AGREEMENT DRAFT

Included in the proposed agreement between the DEQE and Cohasset, the town will prepare and the state must approve and forward to the EPA for its approval, a revised facilities plan for design and construction of wastewater treatment facilities having the following:

Water Commission renews call to close dump

By Jane Lane
Mariner Staff

Frustrated by the lack of communication between town officials, the Water Commission is renewing their call to shutdown Cohasset Heights landfill.

Last September, the commission requested legal assistance to issue a cease and desist order against the privately-owned landfill. An engineering study completed last February concluded that tracings of leachate are egressing from the landfill to Brass Kettle Brook, a tributary of Lily Pond.

Since that order was issued last summer, the commission has received no action from special Town Counsel Michael Leone, nor further communication from the Board of Selectmen or Board of Health.

A commission meeting will be scheduled Wednesday, Dec. 11 with Special Town Counsel and Town Counsel Richard Henderson to discuss the procedure for issuing a cease and desist order.

"If there is not an order forthcoming the morning of the 12th, the Water Commission will request a criminal investigation of the matter from the Norfolk County District Attorney's office," according to Water Commission Chairman Peter Pratt.

"We are absolutely frustrated in this," he said this week. "My colleagues and I discussed the matter this last weekend, and decided if there is not an order to close down Cohasset Heights landfill next Wednesday morning, we will put in a call to District Attorney (William) Delahunt."

The commission chairman added, "Someone does not want us to close down that dump. I know that is a strong statement to make, but the elected officials of this town have not done what we have asked them to do. There are questions which need to be asked, and we plan to ask them the night of the 12th."

In September, the commission voted during a special meeting to obtain injunctive relief against Cohasset Heights Ltd., the privately-owned landfill located within the designated watershed area.

That order was issued after months of non-communication between boards, according to Pratt. The commission was under the impression that certain regulations and conditions were being developed between the Board of Health and the state Department of Environmental Quality Engineering (DEQE) regarding the landfill's operations. But when the regulations were not forthcoming, the commission voted to enact a cease and desist order against the operation.

At that time Pratt stated, "we just don't know what's going on there. We thought everything was going to be resolved months ago, but we just learned it's going full blast over there and no one seems to know what is going on."

Using the police powers granted the water commission under state law, the members voted to "seek the cessation of such operation ... against the continued operations of the sanitary landfill." Since that order was issued in September, Pratt said the commissiom has received little or no information or direction from special town counsel, selectmen or the Board of Health.

The only material to be submitted to the Water Dept. has been results of tests recently conducted at the landfill.

School - police

There's good and bad news

There's good and bad news this week in the town's contract negotiation department.

The school administration and teachers' association have agreed to a new three-year contract. A final meeting to work out the contract language is scheduled this week. The document is slated for ratification by teachers Tuesday, Dec. 10. The school committee will ratify the contract at an upcoming meeting.

The bad news is that negotiations between the town and the police union continues in a stalemate. No further negotiations are scheduled as the town prepares to request appropriations to fund a five percent pay increase at the Dec. 9 Special Town Meeting.

The union has not agreed to accept the five percent increase, and has publically stated it's opposition to the arrangement proposed in the town meeting warrant.

"This is no agreement between the town and the police union," Officer Brian Noonan stated this week. "We have never agreed to such an arrangement. We have not signed any contract and there is no agreement or settlement."

Teachers' contract

Both Supt. Eugene Crowell and Cohasset Teachers association President George Fortin expressed satisfaction with the new contract. The Cohasset public school teachers have been working without a contract since the end of June.

"It looks good," Supt. Crowell said Monday. "Hopefully, we'll have a meeting to finalize the wording of the contract and both sides can ratify this. We'll know in the next day or so if all the language can be worked out. Then it's just a matter of signing the document."

The prospect of a final contract signed "is imminent," the superintendent said after he left a meeting Monday with Fortin. "We have decided that for prudence's sake, it would be best to make sure all the wording is precise before signing the contract. Basically we are in accord between all parties. But the contract must be ratified before it is completed."

Fortin agreed that after more than a year of negotiations, the two sides "have come to an understanding."

Scrooges stay away from Cohasset!

You would have to be Scrooge not to appreciate the festive atmosphere that will surround Cohasset this weekend.

Perhaps with a bit of luck from nature, Cohasset will be transformed into Santa's village - covered with a thin layer of snow. No matter what the weather, the merchants and residents of Cohasset are looking forward to a weekend filled with Christmas merriment, cheer and smiling faces.

Saturday, the churches surrounding Cohasset Common will be bustling with activity as smart shoppers seek wise purchases. The annual Village Fair will begin at 10 a.m. and conclude later that afternoon at 3.

The following day, Dec. 8, beginning at Cushing Plaza, the Chamber of Commerce will begin their White Christmas in Cohasset celebration. Santa will arrive at the plaza at 11 a.m., kicking off a full day of song, food, and lots of fun.

It will be an exciting weekend of activities for the youngsters, and a variety of foods will be prepared for all those hardworking, hungry shoppers.

Saturday will mark the 45th annual Village Fair -the only tradition in which all five churches and their members participate.

Gail Bell is this year's general chairman. After directing a similar effort last year in Boston, Bell described this event "a piece of cake." But the last minute headaches have arrived, she said this week, as they always do.

"Actually," she stated, "things are really shaping up. It gets pretty crazy about now, but that's to be expected."

One of the largest problems the Fair had to overcome is the new state regulation that requires a

Harbor meeting

A meeting of the Harbor Study Committee will be held on Thursday, Dec. 5 and will convene at 8 p.m. at the Town Hall.

David Gaffey of Mill River Marine will be on the agenda to discuss relocating a float and putting in seven boat slips.

System construction policy

The Cohasset Board of Health wishes to clarify its policy regarding what constitutes complete construction of a septic system. Complete construction means that the septic tank and the leaching area are constructed properly, and that there is complete installation of the sewer pipe from the complete foundation of the building to the septic tank.

Builders have two years from the date of the approval of their septic system plan and Disposal Works Construction Permit (DWCP) to complete construction.

The following policy is effective with the publication of this notice: Septic systems which have the septic tank and leaching area in the ground have one year to complete construction as defined above.

Disposal Works Construction Permit holders whose permits expire in less than one year also have one year to complete construction form date of this notice.

Memorial award

The board of directors of the Cohasset Chamber of Commerce has announced that the nomination ballots for the first annual Forrest E. King Memorial Award have been mailed to Chamber of Commerce members.

The King award committee and the board of directors are urging all Chamber members to cast their ballots for a nominee of the award.

The three nominees receiving the most votes will be placed on a final ballot to be mailed to members in January. Nominee ballots must be mailed back to James Kearney, treasurer, no later than Dec. 7, in order to be counted.

The Forest E. King Award, named for the late Forrest E. King, long-time proprietor of King Jewelers of Cushing Plaza, Cohasset, will be presented annually to the member of the Cohassset Chamber of Commerce (either an individual or other entity) who has demonstrated during the previous year the highest standards of business ethics, management, employee and public relations and civic responsibility consistent with the goals of the Chamber of Commerce, and whose actions have reflected favorably upon the membership and to the credit of the member, their business organization and the Cohasset community.

Frederick Wood, president of the Cohasset Chamber of Commerce, stated, "We hope to have full Chamber participation in the selection of the winner of the King Award. Certainly there are many members who qualify. We are proudly and anxiously awaiting the results of the voting which will be complete in January and we are looking forward to presenting the award at a dinner dance ceremony in February, at Kimballs by the Sea."

Chamber members who have not received a ballot or who wish more information may call Valerie King, 383-1755, Dan Leahy, 383-6650 or Joe Quinn, 383-9753.

Commission seeks closure . . .

"We feel," Pratt said, "that a lot of information passes along without us knowing about it. We continue to ask the Board of Health for information and letters, and Ben Curley (Water Dept. Supervisor) has received nothing."

The situation was further aggravated in late October when a truck carrying toxic materials was stopped by police and fire officials from entering Cohasset Heights. Angered by the incident, Pratt at that time said the landfill should be legally shut down, either through the courts, or from an executive order from Governor Michael Dukakis. It was slated as a showdown between the governor's familiar promise to restore and retain water supply properties, and his quest to find needed landfill areas throughout the state.

Rather than request the state executive's intervention, the commission was reassured that special town counsel would continue to seek the closure of the private landfill. But since that time, the commission has received no definitive statement or action from Atty. Leone or the Board of Health.

The local health board is responsible for monitoring the procedures of all landfills in the community. Although the DEQE retains utlimate jurisdiction over landfill operations, the local health board is responsible for ensuring that all procedures are followed.

Since the October landfill incident, town officials met with the owners of Cohasset Heights Ltd., the Barry Brothers. Although the meeting was amicable, Commissioner Pratt reiterated at that time the water commission's intent to follow through on a legal order to close the Crocker Lane operation.

The need to shutdown the facility, Pratt has stated, is outlined in the Camp, Dresser and McKee (CDM) report finalized last winter. Tracings of leachate into Brass Kettle Brook have already been located, and a lack of immediate action will only increase the chance of more significant contamination, he noted.

"We were angered before in September. Now the commissioners are absolutely frustrated," Pratt said. "We will tell attorneys Leone and Henderson we want them to get an order enforced immediately. It has been a constant battle to get any information. Either we get that court order to shutdown Cohasset Heights, or we will be asking for a criminal investigation as to why nothing has been done."

Again citing the police powers entrusted to the commission under state statute, Pratt said the commission is legally justified to protect the public water supply from documented contamination.

"The way we read CDM's report, some type of regulation is needed to protect the water supply because leachate is getting into Brass Kettle Brook which feeds into Lily Pond. That's why the Water Commission has ordered the shutdown of Cohasset Heights and that's why we intend to follow through on that order," he concluded.

"Since there's been no abatement of the leachate contamination and and the report by CDM has stated there are tracings of leachate from the landfill into the brook, we have wanted the landfill to cease and desist. But zero has happened," Pratt added. "Someone does not want us to close down that dump."

Car insurance concerns

Representative Mary Jeanette Murray (R) Third Plymouth District is concerned that members of the Insurance Committee voted this week to delay a motion on a bill that would lower 1986 car insurance rates by at least 2½ percent, sending the legislation to a study instead.

Rep. Thomas W. McGee, who filed the bill, said he was filing it so expected savings to insurance companies from the mandatory seat belt law would be immediately passed onto consumers.

When the seat belt law was passed, it contained a provision requiring the Insurance Commissioner to take into account the lower hospital and medical costs to insurance companies when people start using seat belts. Expected from this are lower car insurance rates. House Committee chairperson Francis Woodward (D-Walpole) said he opposed the bill on the grounds that it would "tie the hands" of the Insurance Commissioner. A spokesperson for Commissioner Peter Hiam also opposed the legislation.

Rep. Murray said, "As far as I am concerned the reduction as stated in the Seat Belt legislation is mandatory and the Insurance Commissioner must abide by the law."

Good-bad contract news . . .

Although he could not discuss the terms of the new contract,Fortin assessed the document as "fair" to the teachers. "We have settled all our differences. Now it's a matter of having a meeting Tuesday night to ratify it," he added, noting it is a three-year contract.

After the contract is completed, the teachers association must meet once more with school administrators. If the Special Town Meeting votes to accept a grant proposal from the state, the association must negotiate the method of distributing the four-part grant program.

"We don't expect any problems," Fortin said. "It's just a matter of distributing the state monies."

The superintendent stated to selectmen last week that the school committee will not allow the grants to become part of the teacher's salary base. If the grants are eliminated in future years, the committee does not want the town responsible for those salary commitments. Supt. Crowell said that was also the opinion expressed by the Massachusetts Teachers Association and its Cohasset affiliate.

Police contract

Article 11 of the Special Town Meeting warrant requests that the town accept a collective bargaining agreement between the town and the Cohasset Police Association. The five percent salary increase would be retroactive to July 1, 1984.

Officer Noonan, who has been working on the contract negotiations for more than a year, said the wording in the warrant article is incorrect. "There has never been any agreement between the police and the personnel board. We never agreed to a five percent raise.

"If the town accepts the raise, and it's put in our paychecks, we'll cash them. But we have never signed a contract or agreed to any offer made by the town. We are opposed to this five percent increase," he stated.

In the meantime, the police union has filed an unfair labor practice complaint against the town for ending the negotiations without conclusion. That complaint has been reviewed by the state Joint Labor Management Committee and an outcome has not yet been determined.

Regarding the contract, there has been no meetings between the union and the town since Nov. 20. There has been no further communication between the personnel board and the police union representatives since that time, Noonan added.

"The union members do not want Article 11 to be approved," he stated. "We have notified (selectmen) them of that decision. We have not signed a contract and there is no agreement. They have imposed this agreement upon us. Nobody would agree to this arrangement."

Red Cross child car safety

If you are expecting out-of-state visitors with young children for the upcoming holidays and will need a child's car safety seat, the Red Cross can help.

Child car safety seats can be rented from the K.I.S.S. (Kids In Safety Seats) Program at the South Shore Chapter, American Red Cross of Massachusetts Bay, 1245 Hancock Street, Quincy.

This program offers a short-term rental of infant and toddler seats for a maximum of three weeks, a $5 fee plus $5 refundable deposit.

The infant seat is designed for babies up to 20 pounds and the toddler seat for children up through four years.

Merle Jones Lindsay, Regional Director of Red Cross Community Services said, "All states now have child passenger safety laws requiring young children to be restrained properly while riding in motor vehicles. Therefore, out-of-state visitors are probably use to securing their children in safety seats and may need a rental upon arriving in this area."

State and town agree on sewer plan an interconnection to the existing publically owned treatment works in the town of Hull, contemplating no less than a 300,000 gallon per day average flow of sewage effluent from Cohasset; an expansion of the town's existing sewer service area accomplished through fundings under the Mass. Collector Sewer Grants program, with total Cohasset funding share for design and construction of small diameter 'alternative' collector sewers not to exceed $308,000. That is approximately 50 percent funding rather than the 94 percent originally anticipated; utilization of on-site rehabilitations as needed throughout the rest of Cohasset, with design of systems to be funded by the state and construction to be funded either under federal grants or jointly by Cohasset and individual homeowners;

Cohasset may apply to the EPA for a planning grant amendment to obtain reimbursement for preparation of the Ward Plan and its revisions. The commission is thinking of reimbursement as high as 90 percent of the $96,000 it cost for the study. But that issue will be pursued at a later date, they stated; although the dates may be revised, on or before Jan. 31, 1986, Cohasset and Hull will submit to the state a proposed intermunicipal agreement. And the state will notify the communities whether it is approved by Feb. 14, 1986.

the state will approve the revised facilities plan and intermunicipal agreement by April 1, 1986;

Cohasset will submit the revised facilities plan and intermunicipal agreement for town meeting approval at its next regular or special town meeting within the fiscal year 1985-1986. Hull will do the same in regard to the intermunicipal agreement; the state will then make a design advance to Cohasset to design the facilities described in the plans;

Cohasset will move forward on the design of the Hull interconnection for approval before Aug. 31, 1986; design of the sewer service area expansion before Dec. 31, 1986, and design of the on-site rehabilitations before June 30, 1987;

within 15 days of the state's receipt of those plans, they must advise whether they are approvable; within two years after authorization to proceed with construction, Cohasset shall complete construction.

Another portion of news brought to selectmen Tuesday night included a letter from the chairman of the Hull Sewer Commission, relating their continued interest in accepting Cohasset's wastewater.

The state had expressed some concern at the Nov. 1 meeting, whether Hull remained interested in the interconnection. DeSantis assured selectmen the town is still receptive to the implementation of the plan.

Commission Chairman John Struzziery reconfirmed Hull's interest in the plan. He noted in the meeting that an intermunicipal agreement should be ready for town meeting vote in April, 1986.

In the meantime, the Cohasset Sewer Commission will likely withdraw article 19 which requests the development of a small sewer service district in town. Since a tentative agreement has been reached, there is no need to vote on this article, DeSantis explained.

Selectmen decided to keep it in the warrant for the Dec. 9 Special Town Meeting, in case the town is handed bad news on the agreement from the state before town meeting begins.

Council accepts gift for center

John Lennon, representing the Cohasset Rotary Club, Tuesday night presented the Cohasset Council on Aging with a check for $3850.

This is the amount needed to cover the remaining operational costs of establishing a senior center. That amount had been included for appropriations at the Dec. 9 Special Town Meeting.

Lennon noted that the Rotary gives scholarships to deserving high school graduates each year. "This is something we believed should be funded because senior citizens are equally valuable citizens of this town," he said.

The presentation of the Rotary check was made at the selectmen's meeting to Karin Bartow, who represented Council on Aging Chairman Rev. John Keohane. In behalf of Father Keohane, she thanked the Rotary for support of the Council's endeavors.

It was a soggy but successful game

By Lisa Shumaker
Mariner Sports Correspondent

The football team certainly had something to be thankful for as they defeated Hull, 12-0, last Thursday, and thus clinched a championship spot along with East Bridgewater and Norwell in the Small Schools Division.

Rumor has it that the Cohasset football team has not held this title since the early '70s.

The victory was not only exciting but also soggy as the boys slipped and slid in the cold downpour which drenched the field. However, these horrendous conditions did not stop Cohasset from dominating almost the entire game.

The Skippers kept the ball down Hull's end throughout most of the first three quarters. But it was not until about nine minutes remained in the fourth quarter that Bobby Durkin made a 55-yard run to put Cohasset ahead for good. With about one minute left in the game Peter Sandblom ran the ball in from about 15 yards out to insure the victory for Cohasset.

Although Cohasset's offense came through in the end, it was Cohasset's superb defense that kept them in the game. Both Dereck Lacks and Jeff Soltesz picked up an interception. Liam Stanford, Bobby Durkin and John Hall all had strong games defensively as well.

Bobby Durkin led the Skippers offensively with over 100 yards rushing.

The team ended up overall with an impressive record of 7-3. Cohasset had the most victories in the South Shore League. Although the team will be losing some valuable seniors, they will undoubtedly be a tough team to beat next year as well.

Dawn Meehan excels in swim meet

On Sunday, Nov. 17, the Swogjan Synchronized Swim Team participated in a sculling playday held in Nashua. This meet was the first of the season and was attended by nine Swogjan girls.

In the ten and under age group, Dawn Meehan of Cohasset and Laura Ulmschneider of Hanover tied for second place. Susan Micci of Norwell received 64½ points to put her in twelfth place.

In the 12 and under age group, Laura Furman of Scituate came in second place with Heather Cassassa of Scituate coming in third. Alician Mirgram received 60½ points to put her in fifteenth place.

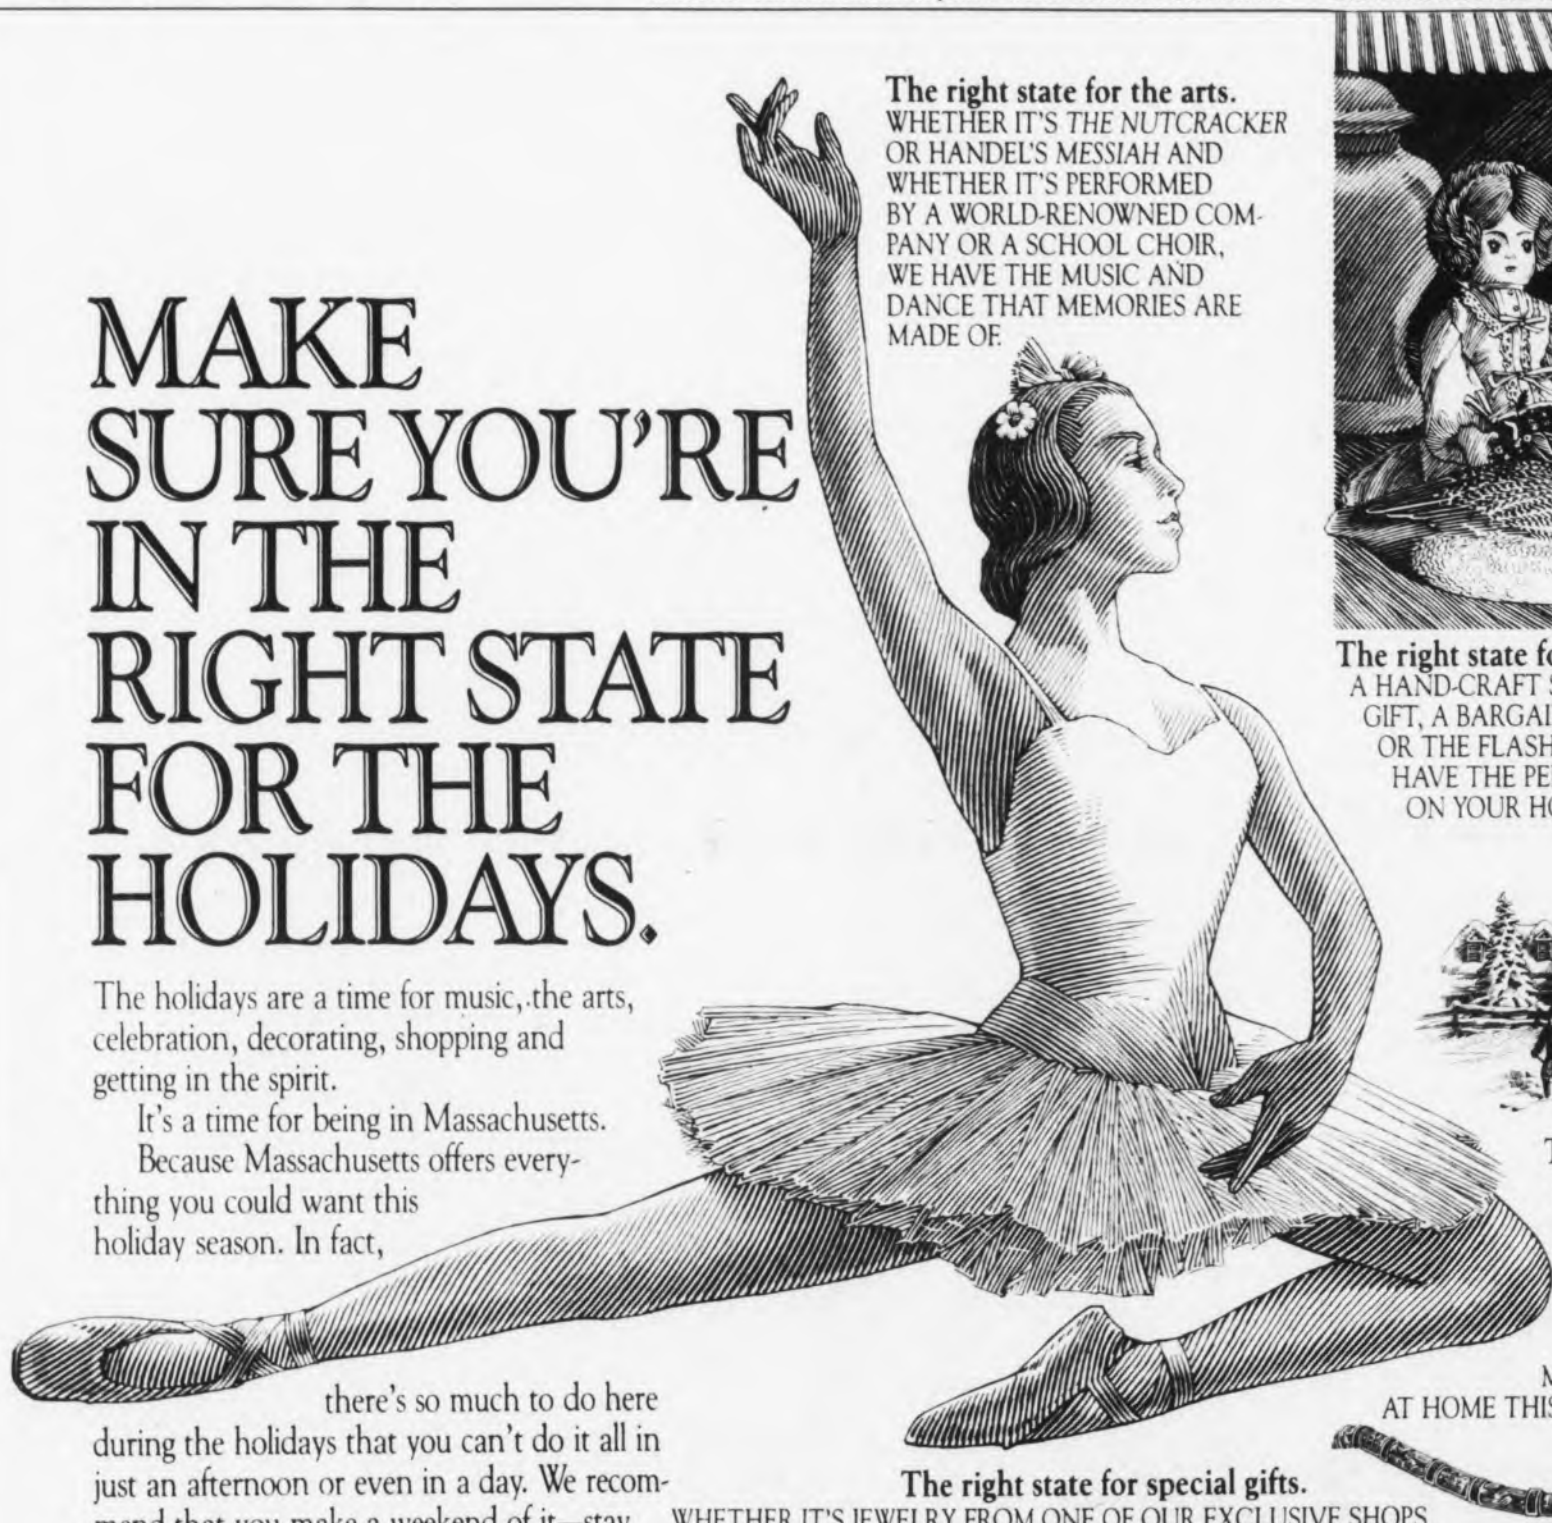
Robbin Hooper of Norwell came in second place in her 12 and under age group doing a group of different stunts.

Shannon Hynes of Hanover came in second in her 14 and under age group with Stacey Willis of Hanover coming in fourth in the same age and stunt group.

The next meet will be held at Wheaton College in Newton on Dec. 7.

MAKE SURE YOU'RE IN THE RIGHT STATE FOR THE HOLIDAYS.

The holidays are a time for music, the arts, celebration, decorating, shopping and getting in the spirit.



It's a time for being in Massachusetts.

Because Massachusetts offers everything you could want this holiday season. In fact, there's so much to do here during the holidays that you can't do it all in just an afternoon or even in a day. We recommend that you make a weekend of it—stay in one of our fine hotels or country inns, take advantage of one of the special holiday packages that hotels are offering, explore the different holiday activities, do your shopping. You'll enjoy it more because you'll be relaxed.

And as far as we're concerned, there's no better state to be in during the holidays.

From the countryside to the cities to the seashore, Massachusetts is ready to celebrate. For complete information on holiday activities, call 1-800-632-8038 (in Mass.) 1-800-343-9072 (outside Mass.).

Selectmen reject business regulation

About twenty business owners convinced selectmen Tuesday night not to support a warrant article calling for the regulation of operating hours for businesses.

Although Selectman Diane Sullivan stressed the need for such a bylaw to deal with specific problem cases, the remainder of the board felt the article deserved further review, and that its present definition was "too broad."

Chairman Frank England noted at the beginning of the discussion that article 24 was worded incorrectly, and should read that selectmen have the authority to "establish operating hours for all commercial establishments in town." England said the new wording was needed so that officials would have needed regulatory powers over the times when construction may start in the morning.

More than twenty Cohasset business owners attended the meeting and expressed their opposition to the article. The advisory committee has also issued its opposition to the request.

Selectmen Sullivan repeated the article was not inserted into the warrant by one group of neighbors. This issue of regulating business hours and delivery times had been a concern of town officials for many years, she said. Recently, the executive secretary had been discussing the matter with town counsel, she added.

Bob Davenport of Sohier Street termed the proposed bylaw change "a nuisance." He warned the board that future selectmen may not view the bylaw in the same fair manner as the present board, and may use it to close down local businesses at their discretion.

Dan Leahy of Forest Avenue, general manager of Kimball's By The Sea, argued that the proposed bylaw change was a cure intended for one isolated, specific purpose - to prohibit a 24-hour supermarket in town.

He emphasized there has been no problem in town with businesses remaining open too long. A construction site, he noted, "is unique from a public service commercial business." Leahy termed the bylaw change " a curfew of businesses where there has been no infraction."

Sullivan contended the board members "are not anti-business. The town is using a little judgment to counteract something before it happens." She reminded the audience of the circumstance Stoughton became involved in a few years ago when there was no restrictive bylaw to prevent a pornographic movie theatre from locating within that town.

Selectman Cliff Mitman agreed this may be one way to prevent similar incidents such as the noise level problem which occurred during the construction of 100 Pond Street, "but I have a little trouble figuring out the enforcement of this. This may be a little too broad."

Selectman Mary Jane McArthur agreed enforcement of the bylaw would be difficult, "and we have not reviewed it long enough. I'm not sure this would even regulate construction."

Selectman Sullivan argued the proposal was nothing more than limiting the hours of a business such as when the board issues a liquor license.

Sine Pounder, proprietor of the Bread Shop on Elm Street, opposed the use of the word "regulate" in the bylaw. She suggested selectmen should have authority to effect change, but not to regulate business hours.

Selectman Sullivan reiterated her support of the warrant article, saying if a problem does develop in town that effects its residents, selectmen will be empowered to stop it. "If there are no problems," she added, "we'll be content." She also warned the business owners that no businesses in town would be "grandfathered in" regarding the bylaw change. All current businesses would be included in any bylaw regulation approved by town meeting.

Bob Dwyer of Chief Justice Cushing Highway, told selectmen "it's important that we have a mechanism for affected people to be heard - there is a need for evenhandedness."

The board then voted 4-1 not to recommend Article 24 in the Dec. 9 warrant. Sullivan voted in opposition.

In other action Tuesday night, selectmen decided 3-2 not to recommend Article 27 which would add a an excise tax up to four percent on motel and hotel rooms.

Leahy, general manager of Kimballs By The Sea, argued against the tax levy which was defeated Monday night overwhelmingly by voters in Scituate. During the discussion of the article, Executive Secretary Donald Andrew noted it was included in the warrant at the request of Scituate selectmen.

John and David are graduates of Cohasset Junior-Senior High School and the sons of Mr. and Mrs. Christopher Kierce of 189 S. Main St.

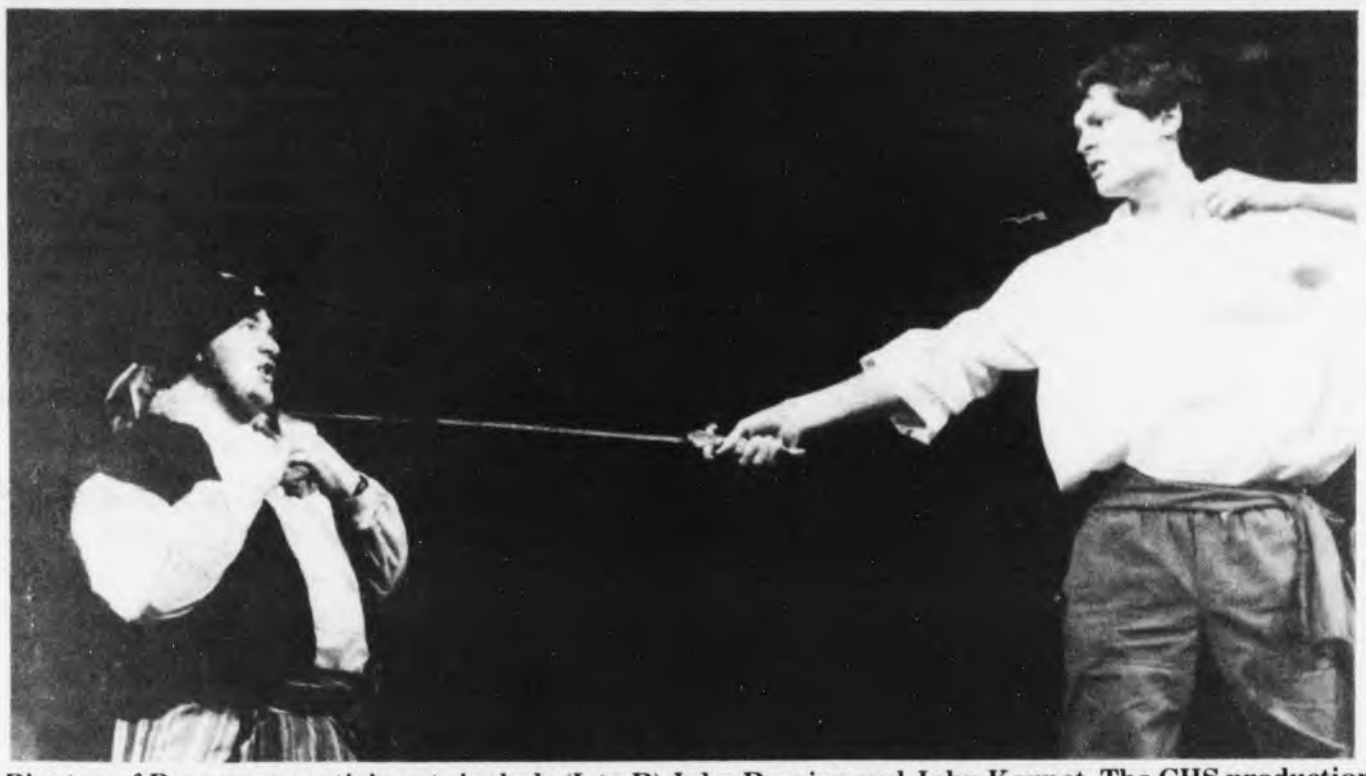
Ms. Ciciotte, a graduate of Cohasset Junior-Senior High School is the daughter of Robert and Carol Ciciotte of 54 Linden Ave.

☐ Eric Carlson of Cohasset won first place in the Americanism Essay Contest sponsored by the Fleet Reserve Association at Thayer Academy.



This year's topic was "America's Place in the Family of Nations." Three prizes were given at Branch level for each grade, 7-12, for first place $25; second place, $15; and third, $10.

☐ Jeffrey C. O'Neill, son of Mr. and Mrs. Donald J. O'Neill, received a varsity letter in football. He was chosen All League honorable mention defensive back. He attends Belmont Hill as a five-day boarder, a program which permits students to live at the school from Monday through Thursday and to be with their families on weekends.

☐ Robert Ripley, creator of wooden toys and household items, will be among the featured artisans at the Dec. 7 and 8 annual Crafters Arts and Craft Show at the Governor Winslow School, off Rte. 139, in Marshfield. Admission to the Craft Show will be 50 cents; show hours are from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m.

☐ Stanley and Debra (Lang) Bates, and David and Julianna Hassan both have wonderful reasons to celebrate the holidays this year! The Bates had a brand new baby boy last month (Nov. 20 at South Shore Hospital) and the Hassans had a baby daughter on Nov. 20 at South Shore Hospital. Imagine the fun Santa will have at those two houses,

Pirates of Penzance participants include (L to R) John Pereira and John Kornet. The CHS production will be held Dec. 5, 6, and 7. Tickets are available at the door. (Bern Caughey photo)

☐ Congratulations to Mike DeSantis of 260 Forest Avenue, and his teammates at Washington University who will be playing for the NCAA Division III soccer championship on Sunday, Dec. 8. The Washington Bears will be hosting University of North Carolina (Greensboro) at St. Louis for the national championship. Mike, a 1985 graduate of Cohasset High School, has had an outstanding year at forward, and scored goals in the quarterfinal against San Diego and the semifinal against Glassborough. He and other teammates appeared on the cover of the Nov. 21 issue of Soccer America magazine.

Mike is the son of Dee and Charlie DeSantis.

☐ Remember the Coady family that used to live on Nichols Road in Cohasset, then they moved to Scituate? There were at least nine children . . . well, news comes of one of the boys, Sean, who is 28 years old now. He is the new assistant hockey coach at Princeton under Jim Higgins. He coached Archbishop Williams last year. Sean played hockey for University of New Hampshire, and was a captain for two years while he played there. Good luck at Princeton, Sean.

☐ Hats off are in order for Leo and Mary Fiori, who recently donated two POW flags to our town. One of the flags is flying at the fire station and the other flag is flying at the Veteran Memorial, located in the harbor (in front of the motel). What is more patriotic than a flag, and what a nice way to show everyone how much you think about the town in which we live! Instead of just taking it for granted, people like Leo and Mary do something to say how much they care! Thank you.

☐ While on the subject of gals in sports, how about that Sue Dalrymple? Word has it that not only is she a great tennis coach for our CHS team, she is earning a name in the tennis world as a player herself! Sue is a member of the 1985 All-Conference Women's Tennis Team, representing Bridgewater State College. Sue is on the Singles Women's Tennis Team and the Doubles Women's Tennis Team with her partner Jessica Sullivan, also from Bridgewater College. Included in the Mass. State College Athletic Conference are Bridgewater State, Fitchburg State, Framingham State, Mass. Maritime Academy, North Adams State, Salem State, Westfield State, and Worcester State. Congratulations to you Sue.

☐ That is the news from here; be sure to let us in on your news . . . should have tons after the holiday—share all of it with us.

Warrant watch

Special Town Meeting will begin at 7:30 p.m. Monday, Dec. 9. at the Cohasset High School auditorium.

There will be less than the 29 articles currently contained in the warrant. A few have been withdrawn.

But there is still plenty to keep you interested for a night or two. For a special town meeting, the second held this year, this is a fairly interesting warrant.

Looking through it, we see certain issues bound to raise the curiosity and questions of Cohasset taxpayers.

There will be a first look at some improvements planned to the police and fire station, and money requested to hire an architect.

Article 11 requests the town accept a collective bargaining agreement made between the town and the police union. That's not quite accurate, for the union is dead against this particular salary offer and has publically stated its opposition to this article. The selectmen and personnel board have halted contract negotiations and are asking the town to approve a five percent pay increase. The union has declared its opposition to this contract offer and has filed an unfair labor practice complaint against the town.

A test of the town's new 100-voter quorum may occur during this article. It will be interesting to see if either side "stacks" the meeting with its proponents.

Article 14 is bound to be controversial, but it is unfortunately unnecessary. The town's budget is being worked around this request for additional appropriations for municipal insurance coverage. Other communities throughout the state are making similar requests at their fall special town meetings as liability insurance skyrockets.

Early estimates put this request at about $200,000, although no figure will be final until all insurance bids are reviewed in January.

And as with all municipalities, Cohasset will be asked to raise teacher's salaries to a minimum of $18,000. This will affect Cohasset minimally, according to the school committee, but will make us competitive with other communities adopting the higher pay scale.

The sewer commissioners have authored an article to establish a sewer service district within the town in order to obtain federal funding for the alternative wastewater treatment plan. The commissioners are attempting through this measure, to find a source for funding which has been denied thus far.

The commission is also requesting an additional $30,000 which was incurred in legal fees in FY86. The appeal process and search for alternative solutions have resulted in legal expenses above the previously-appropriated amount, according to the commissioners.

The planning board, water commissioners and watershed protection study committee are sponsoring another water supply protection building moratorium. Although a similar bylaw was approved by town meeting in June, the attorney general's office denied it because of a snag in the procedures followed by the town.

According to the water commission, everything has been carried out in precise order and this bylaw should stick, if approved. There are some revisions to this law which will result in a stronger bylaw.

There's bound to be some lively discussion on article 24 which will give authority to selectmen to restrict operating hours of retail businesses.

Many local merchants are strongly opposed to this proposal which originated from the Fair Oaks Homeowners Association. It was developed to protect that neighborhood against the operation of a 24-hour supermarket along Rte. 3A.

The business community sees this proposal as a curfew imposed by town officials against the town's merchants. They plan to speak in opposition to this article.

It will be interesting to see how many voters attend this Monday night meeting. And it will be equally noteworthy to see if proponents of one issue gather their forces together to fight for one article. If you witness a mad exit of people after one vote is tallied, you know the 100-voter quorum has just experienced a "stacking" of the meeting.

Explanation of sewer articles

Letters

To the Editor:

The sewer commissioners have submitted two articles for Monday's special town meeting. I wish to discuss these articles, bring you up-to-date on the status of our facilities plan, answer some important questions raised and correct some statements made by a prolific critic, and finally, to explain the necessity for continued legal representation.

Article 19 creates a sewer service district. This district, taken from our facilities plan, is designed to assist us in obtaininig federal funding for our collector sewers. Such funding would reduce our cost of sewering up to $1.6 million. Without such funding our sewer service area is prohibitively expensive.

Our second article requests funds for legal and related expenses for the remainder of the fiscal year. These funds will be used to facilitate the approval of our facilities plan or for the adoption of a negotiated amended plan with the state. Additionally and most importantly, these funds will be required to ensure a satisfactory termination of our agreement for judgment.

As a result of our appeal to the EPA regional administrator, certain aspects of our plan have been approved, including funding. Other parts approved but funding is delayed, and one aspect of the plan, alternative 94 percent funding for our collector sewers, has been denied outright.

The town's achievements are as follows: (1) No new sewer plant will be built in Cohasset. Instead Cohasset will connect its sewer service to Hull's modern plant pending completion of a study by Hull's consultant and the adoption by both towns of an intermunicipal agreement. Funding for this program has been approved by the DEQE, DWPC and the EPA. (2) No ocean sewer outfall off Sandy Beach. (3) Our onsite rehabilitation program has been approved by both the DWPC and the EPA. But funding has been postponed by placing these projects on the DWPC's extended funding list.

As noted above, favorable funding for our sewage collectors has been denied and sustained by the EPA Region I. Approval of federal funding for our sewer service area and onsite program are the goals of our appeal and negotiations. Without such funding Cohasset will be forced to reduce the sewer service area very substantially.

I note a recent letter to "the Editor" indicates that Cohasset is attempting to "circumvent" the regulations by creation of a sewer service district. This is not so. All we seek is equal administration of the law. Over 205 towns have completed alternative, small diameter, 94 percent funded waste water collection projects. We have evaluated 21 of these projects in four states and two EPA regions. Every project has a population density comparable to, or greater than, that of Cohasset's proposed sewer service district. Over 80 percent of the towns evaluated have total populations greater than 3,500. Every engineer approached by the sewer commission states that collector sewers in areas with population densities less than 1.7 persons/acre are cost prohibitive. Despite overwhelming data to the contrary, the DWPC maintains that these systems are ineligible for funding. Only, Massachusetts has denied the benefits of this program to its small towns, including Cohasset. We ask why? For whom does this denial benefit? Can we allow a handful of appointed officials to misapply the law? The regional administrator's counsel writes in his determination that "in the absence of express national guidance, different regions may interpret the same regulations in different ways." We disagree. There's one law, one country. This is the type of fragmented logic that successful appeals are built upon.

A recent letter to the editor indicated that Cohasset's "contentions" are no more than subjective judgment." Cohasset cannot field test the engineer's proposals. However, the EPA has their conclusion: small diameter sewers are not only less costly, but more effective, and longer lasting. But in addition, they eliminate infiltration. Our engineer was selected partly because his first community project reduced a $10,000,000 gold-plated monster to an $800,000 small diameter sewered community subsurface disposal project with relatively insignificant yearly O&M costs. Additionally we collected 20 actual contract awards for small diameter sewers in various states with towns of similar topography whose cost averaged less than $18/foot. This compares to a projected $80-$100/foot cost for conventional sewers in Cohasset. We believe that these documented projects constitute substantially more than "subjective judgment."

Mr. Campbell indicates that the commission, the town's engineer, the citizens' advisory committee, and the town meeting are "flouting" or "flagrantly misinterpreting the regulations." I resent this. Cohasset has — at its own expense — compensated for the gross omission of the M&E plan by evaluating and selecting the appropriate cost effective solutions at a saving of over $22 million compared to the M&E plan while serving the entire town, rather than one-half of the town. It was the M&E plan and the DWPC's approval of same that "flouted" the regulations and made a mockery of cost effectiveness by relying on the big city over engineered solution for a small community's problem.

Cohasset is in the home rule state. This legislation recognizes that decisions that impact the future and fiscal viability of towns are to be left to the community's judgment. We have developed, as required by law, a plan that is "implementable from legal, institutional, financial and management standpoints." To date, the DWPC has disdained our local political process and has blatantly attempted to

Recommended.

Needed to cover steep increase in costs of insurance.

ARTICLE 15

Payment of unpaid bills.

Recommended.

Town is obligated to pay these bills.

ARTICLE 16

Accept state grant to raise teacher's minimum salaries to $18,000.

Recommended.

Supports state's goal of attracting young people to teaching profession. State grant covers costs for at least first two years; financial impact on Cohasset after that period will be minimal.

ARTICLE 17

Accept professional development grant for increasing teacher compensation.

Recommended.

Incentive grants will be distributed to teachers only as long as the state provides funding.

ARTICLE 18

Classification changes for positions in Treasurer/Collector's office.

Not recommended.

In the interest of fairness to all departments, it is best to maintain a consistent policy of making classification changes only at the annual Town Meeting. Such a policy is implied by Town Bylaw XI.4.g: "Classification changes shall take effect the July 1st following their adoption by the Town Meeting."

ARTICLE 19

Establishment of a sewer service district.

Recommended.

Will help the town qualify for federal funds to implement the wastewater management plan voted by the Town (the Ward plan).

ARTICLE 20

$30,000 for legal fees relating to pursuit of alternative solutions to Town's wastewater management problems.

Recommended.

These additional funds are necessary to appeal the state's rejection of the Ward plan.

ARTICLE 21

Addition of Water Supply Protection Building Moratorium District to Town Zoning Bylaw.

Recommended.

Necessary to protect Town's water supply while water supply area protection bylaw is being developed.

ARTICLE 22

Perimeter fence bylaw amendment.

Not Recommended.

Not clear why this is needed in addition to current Zoning Bylaw 5.2.6, which allows a perimeter wall, fence, or similar enclosure of five feet.

ARTICLE 24

Regulation of operating and delivery hours of retail establishments.

Not Recommended

Such regulation does not seem justified by town's experience with retail stores.

ARTICLE 25

Change in due date for mooring fees from June 1 to April 1.

Recommended.

Allows time for reassignment of moorings early in boating season.

ARTICLE 26

$2,175 as Town's share of matching funds for training of department heads in employee evaluation.

Recommended.

Will help department heads to recommend salary increases and promotions on the basis of merit.

ARTICLE 27

Local room occupancy excise.

Recommended.

Will provide needed revenue for the Town.

ARTICLE 28

$10,000 for Planning Board Engineering Services.

Recommended.

Entire amount will be reimbursed to the town.

Selectmen back businessmen . . .

The tax, which Leahy said originated from the state's attempt to rejuvenate the Hynes Memorial Auditorium in Boston with state tax dollars, would put Cohasset at an uncompetitive disadvantage. The large conferences and conventions which provide the greatest income to the motel in the winter, would not accept a four percent sales tax hike in the rates.

Large bookings would look elsewhere, including Scituate, for less expensive accommodations. If they are not willing to come to Cohasset, Leahy said, the motel would not survive the nine months of the year when tourists are not in town.

Local business owners emphasized that the motel's business generates business for them in the winter when persons attending these conventions shop in local stores and eat in the restaurants.

"You are asking one business to generate four percent more from their customers and that is not fair," Leahy said.

Selectman Mitman said taxes are levied at different levels for different services, but agreed with Leahy that the town should explore alternate means of generating needed revenue.

The board voted 3-2 (Selectmen Sullivan and McArthur in opposition) not to recommend Article 27 at the Special Town Meeting.

manipulate it on a number of occasions. It has threatened us with fines for evaluating appropriate technology as required by law. In effect, the DWPC has told Cohasset: evaluate your own plan through your political process, but if you want any federal and state funds for construction, you must build large, conventional facilities that you can afford neither to construct nor to operate. Unfortunately, we must appropriate legal funds to protect ourselves from these encroachments on our right of self-government.

Murray's district bears the noise brunt

(This letter was sent to the Director of Massport from Rep. Mary Jeanette Murray. Ed.)

Dear Director Davis:

I have read that you have made plans to reduce the noise at Logan Airport. You are to be commended for this attempt. Many of us on the South Shore have waited a long time for your action.

Your plan may assist us. However, until the routes are changed, we will still be concerned about the noise pollution from airplanes.

I told you, several years ago, when I discovered you had added more airlines to come into Logan, that I was very disturbed this was allowed.

My District which covers Cohasset, Hingham and Hull bears the brunt of the noise from airplanes from Logan.

It would be appreciated by the people in my district if you would cut down on the number of flights to and from the airport.

Thank you for your time and consideration.

Sincerely,
Mary Jeanette Murray

Hour setting violates free enterprise system

(This letter was sent to all Cohasset business owners. Ed.)

Re: Article 24. . . . "to allow the Cohasset Board of Selectmen the authority to establish . . . operating and delivery hours for retail operations in Cohasset."

Dear Fellow Businessman:

On Monday, December 9, the attendees at the Cohasset Special town meeting will be asked to vote and approve Article 24, that has been submitted and sponsored by the Cohasset Board of Selectmen. This Article, in essence, would give the Cohasset Board of Selectmen the authority to "legislate the retail operating and delivery hours of any business that operates in the town of Cohasset".

We, the Board of Directors of the Cohasset Chamber of Commerce, feel that this is in direct violation of the free enterprise system and intrudes enormously on our ability to conduct our business' properly and profitably.

On Tuesday night December 3 at 7:30 at Cohasset Town Hall the Board of Selectmen will conduct a public hearing to review most articles on the pending warrant to make a determination of their recommendations. We strongly request that you attend this meeting on Tuesday in order to adequately express your opinions and feelings regarding this proposal. Article 24 is a "Town By Law Change", and therefore, will effect every business in Cohasset regardless of your tenure in our community. We hope you realize the potential ramifications that this proposed legislation may have not only immediately, but in years to come. It will literally give a third party the ability to curfew your business without recourse! Tuesday night will be the only opportunity you will have, prior to town meeting floor, to voice your observations. Your input and action on this issue could effect the destiny of your commercial survival in this town.

Respectfully,
Board of Directors
Cohasset Chamber of Commerce

Know Town Hall

Meet the people who run the selectmen's office

You climb the stairs to the second floor of the Town Hall. At about the first-and-a-half floor, you will discover the selectmen's office.

Although it seems haphazardly crammed in between floors of the building, this is one of the busiest departments in town.

There, three office workers process the daily business of Cohasset's government. All three workers act as the liason between the public and their elected officials, the Board of Selectmen. They are the day-to-day representatives of town government.

The first to greet the public from the selectmen's office is assistant administrative secretary Florence Kelley. Her office is conveniently located in a small area adjacent to the executive secretary.

Florence works a 20-week where she answers incoming calls to Town Hall, and completes all licensing forms for the town. These licenses include alcoholic beverages, common victualler's, and all used car licenses granted Cohasset businessmen from the Board of Selectmen.

She helps develop the agenda for the weekly selectmen's meeting, and assists in the preparation of informational packets for selectmen and the press.

Florence has been with the selectmen's office for almost two years on a part time basis. She calls herself a receptionist for the selectmen, directing the public's inquiries regarding town policies. If a resident has a problem pertaining to municipal government, Florence will direct them to the proper department.

On a daily basis, Florence handles numerous phone calls, and a variety of requests. The selectmen's office is the "home base" for a number of other town officials, including the tree and park supervisor, and the wiring inspector.

Florence and her husband Richard have lived in Cohasset the past 28 years. A past president of the Cohasset Dramatic Club, Florence is a member of the South Shore Art Center and FISH.

For nine months last year, Florence served as acting administrative secretary for selectmen. That was when the town was without an executive secretary.

During those months last winter, Janet Chalke served as the town's acting executive secretary. Now that the position is filled, she is back in her familiar role as the selectmen's administrative secretary.

Florence and Janet work together much of the time. They both serve as conduits of information from the public to the selectmen.

Each week they process the town's bills, and develop the selectmen's meeting agenda.

Their duties range from helping direct a resident to the proper town department, assisting someone who would like to speak to a selectman, to scheduling organizations which request use of the Town Hall facilities.

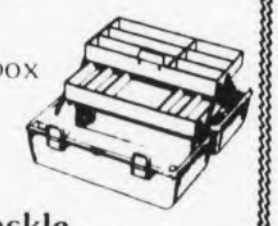
Donald Andrew

Janet sees her position as a liaison between the public and the five selectmen. She is the secretary to the board and attends the weekly meetings. Following those sessions, it is Janet who ensures that all actions proposed by selectmen are immediately completed.

She types the correspondence from the selectmen's office and she oversees the billing from that town department. Before routine matters are brought to the executive secretary, Janet reviews the request and often resolves the matter.

"My job is primarily one of public relations between the Town Hall and the public," she summarized. Janet and Florence handle most of the incoming calls from the public and can field most inquiries and requests within the Town Hall offices.

Janet and her husband Phillip reside in Scituate with their seven children. With children in college and graduate schools, Janet's three youngest attend Scituate High School.



For several years the Chalkes were active participants at Kramer's Barn in Weymouth. Square dancing enthusiasts, she and Phillip are past presidents of the Lofty Squares and were members of the South Shore Buckaroos.

Executive Secretary Don Andrew has been in Cohasset since the end of June. A 34-year resident of Brookline, Don served as assistant town accountant for that town and was executive secretary/town accountant for Oak Bluffs on Martha's Vineyard.

Don sees his role as the selectmen's day-to-day representative in town government. Because it is

Selectmen endorse concept

After reviewing plans proposed by developer Donald Staszko to realign the southern King Street intersection at Rte. 3A, selectmen agreed he may bring it before the state for its review.

The selectmen did not approve the traffic change proposal, nor the supermarket proposed by Staszko. Their vote Tuesday night will allow Staszko and his traffic engineer, Frank O'Callahan, to forward the plans for review by the state Department of Public Works.

Because the realignment will affect town-owned property on King Street, and includes the installation of safety islands at the intersection, the developer needed the town's approval to seek the state's endorsement of the plan. The developer will pay the costs of all traffic changes proposed in the plan, an amount estimated at $100,000.

Some members of the board agreed the proposed changes to King Street at the intersection will approve the situation there, but they did not officially endorse the proposal.

Martha Gjesteby of Old Pasture Road, a representative of the Metropolitan Area Planning Council (MAPC) warned selectmen after their decision that allowing Staszko to present the King Street realignment to the state may jeopardize the planning board's position in court. Two weeks ago, the planning board denied the site plan review of the supermarket. Since that time, Atty. Charles Humphreys, representing Staszko, has filed an appeal of the decision in Norfolk County Superior Court.

Selectmen reiterated several times that although they liked the proposed change to the southern intersection of King Street, they never endorsed any specific plan.

The proposed change would create an intersection directly from King Street across Rte. 3A into the proposed shopping area. An area of King Street would be cut to give drivers a straight access onto Rte. 3A. There would be safety islands on the state highway at the intersection, with traffic channelization.

Although selectmen agreed the proposal would improve the exit from southern King Street, Selectman Rocco Laugelle questioned the effect it would have on traffic exiting Sohier Street. The traffic there, about 520 feet from the proposed intersection, would be stalled even further than at the present time, he said. Traffic exiting that street, specifically during peak traffic times in the summer, would be further aggravated at the area, Laugelle said.

O'Callahan noted that DPW engineers have reviewed the plans in an informal meeting, and have given preliminary approval to the design. Ninety-nine percent of the supermarket traffic will not back up to Sohier Street, he said. The planning board's traffic consultant gave his approval of the proposal. The planning board, he noted, would not approve the entire site plan until the state DPW gave its official endorsement of the curb cuts proposed along the state highway.

Atty. Humphreys requested the board's approval of the concept of rearranging King Street. Without selectmen's approval of that concept, the state will not review the proposal, he said. Humphreys also noted that the state will be reviewing the northern King Street intersection in association with this plan.

Once selectmen endorse the concept of the change, Staszko can formally apply for the DPW review of the traffic proposal. Selectmen agreed Atty. Humphreys could write the letter to the DPW, which will then be read and reviewed by town counsel. The letter will state that selectmen are in agreement that something should be done to the King Street intersection at Rte. 3A, and that they have no objection to current plan proceeding for DWP approval.

Flouridation award

State Representative Mary Jeanette Murray (R) Third Plymouth District has been informed that the Town of Cohasset has been awarded a grant of $1,010.58.

This money represents 43 percent of the town's cost for fluoridation for fiscal 1984.

"The Department of Public Health appropriation is to award cities and towns that fluoridate their water supply with additional local aid. Fluoridation has been shown to reduce expected tooth decay up to 60 percent," Rep. Murray said.

Every dollar spent on fluoridation saves the consumer up to $50 in potential dental bills, according to D.P.H.

The Department also awards these grants to encourage communities not using fluoridation to do so.

Meet the selectmen's office workers

Florence Kelley

Janet Chalke

not a fulltime board, the selectmen have hired an executive secretary to serve the public in their absence.

Don handles the daily communications between town departments and employees. He troubleshoots any personnel problems that might arise, and informs selectmen of his decisions on a daily basis.

His office is located to the rear of the administrative secretary's, in the corner of the building.

He is often spotted in other Town Hall offices, helping other employees with problems, or lending his assistance. During the time of tax preparations, Don, who was serving as acting town accountant, worked many hours with the town treasurer to process the tax bills.

Don is single and his hobbies include refurbishing antique cars. The Mariner has also witnessed his addiction to junk foods and diet colas (there's a collection of empty cans in his office).

"WHIPLASH"

Most "whiplash" injuries occur when the victim is suddenly snapped in one direction then the other. At first, there may be no pain. After a few hours, there may be stiffness. The next day, there may be more stiffness and a headache. Usually after two days the shock produced from snapping the body back and forth begins to result in major symptoms. There may be a pounding headache accompanied by nausea and dizziness. Pain may be experienced in the shoulders, arms, chest back and pelvis. Because the injury is mostly to the ligaments, muscles, tendons and joint capsules, whiplash injuries may not show up on x-ray film. The extent of the injury can be determined by a chiropractor. He will feel the muscles with experienced hands while checking for muscle spasms, reflexes, loss of motion, pain and loss of sensation.

Such type of injury and discomfort often respond favorable to chiropractic applications. At the COHASSET CHIROPRACTIC OFFICE, 760 Chief Justice Cushing Hwy., Suite 12, we offer an experienced approach to your particular situation and needs. We invite you to call us today and learn how such procedures can have a favorable effect upon suffering and discomfort in such situations. Chiropractic is a natural approach to addressing your discomforts. Tel. 383-1211, 1214. Daily by appt.

HINT:

Ninety percent of whiplash injuries are the result of rearend auto collisions.

Inspector prepares plans for police-fire station

Special Town Meeting will be presented with preliminary plans to renovate the police and fire station complex. Actual construction costs have not been estimated, but the plans were developed for free.

The warrant article (No. 4) requests $20,000 to hire an architect to finalize those plans and develop specifications for the award of a contract.

Building Inspector Edward Poskus, a certified architect, was requested to draw some preliminary sketches of renovations to the Elm Street complex.

The plans have been completed, according to Poskus, although it will now be up to a selected architect to finalize the plans and gather estimated costs. Poskus said he would be unable to estimate construction costs without having final approved plans for the repair project.

The services provided free by Poskus, who was a former partner in the Boston architectural firm of J. Williams Beal and Sons and Poskus, would have cost the town about $10,000 had they searched elsewhere.

The building inspector previously developed sketches for the town. Poskus was responsible for drawing preliminary plans to renovate the Bates Building, and he devised a handicapped ramp at Town Hall.

According to Poskus' plans, there will be no renovations seen from the street level of the fire and police complex. Although a second story addition is planned over the Fire Department's vehicle parking area, the changes will be unrecognizable from the street level, he insisted.

The major change to the police department will be a locker room and toilet facilities for female officers. There is one woman police officer on staff now, and there are no separate facilities to accommodate her, Poskus said. The new area will be located in the rear of the complex, and will include shower and toilet facilities and a dormitory and changing area.

The dispatch area will be slightly renovated and there will be an enlarged kitchen area in the rear of the building.

A new garage area to store one additional vehicle will be constructed in the rear of the present building. That will free some of the area in the alarm room which is also used extensively for storage of materials found by the patrolmen. The alarm room contains all the security alarm systems connected to homes and businesses throughout town. Since there are many more systems being installed, there is a demand for a larger area within the station, Poskus said.

Also, a new records room will be added into the existing building for the police department.

The fire department will have another parking bay to store one additional vehicle. That will free the apparatus room which is currently used to store the rescue truck.

A storage room for the department's volatile liquids will be added to the rear of the complex.

The present locker room and dormitory will be

Bay Coast Medical hosts open house

Bay Coast Medical Center hosted its official Open House last Sunday, Nov. 3, attended by over 200 invited guests.

All three floors of the newly revitalized medical facility were buzzing with activity as guests met the numerous doctors now practicing at the Medical Center.

Bay Coast Medical Center was opened less than four months ago and has become a busy place. The Center is located in the Town Parking Area alongside the Red Lion Inn.

Dr. Steven T. Golden has moved his practice of Family Medicine to the Center and continues to see patients by appointment. He was trained at Harvard and Syracuse Universities and is on the staff at South Shore Hospital with privileges in medicine, pediatrics and obstetrics.

Dr. Ronald H. Goldenson, a long-time resident of Scituate and staff member at South Shore Hospital, continues his practice of Internal Medicine at this new location and heads the Walk-In Medical Care Facility at Bay Coast Medical Center.

In the Walk-In unit, patients are seen for lacerations, sprains and minor emergencies of all sorts between the hours of 9 a.m. and 7 p.m. weekdays and 9 a.m. to 1 p.m. Saturdays. Dr. Goldenson's credentials include education at Princeton University, Harvard Medical School and the Peter Bent Brigham Hospital, now Brigham & Women's Hospital. For the past seven years Dr. Goldenson has worked in the Emergency Room at South Shore Hospital.

Ronald J. Messer, M.D., also trained at the Peter Bent Brigham, is radiologist in charge of the new X-ray unit at Bay Coast Medical Center. The X-ray unit and the diagnostic laboratory at Bay Coast Medical Center are both open from 9 a.m. to 7 p.m. weekdays, and 9 a.m. to 1 p.m. on Saturdays, the same hours as the Walk-In unit.

Also at the Center are Mar Vista psychological associates, a group of experienced mental health professionals including Hyman L. Kempler, Ph.D., Bernard O'Brien, Ph.D., and Charles F. Mundhenk, Ph.D. Their services include psychotherapy for children, adolescents, adults, couples and families.

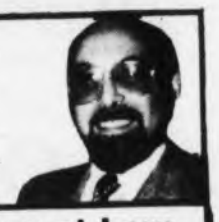
Richard A. Alemian, M.D., provides expertise in orthopedics, sports medicine and arthroscopic surgery. He is on the staff at South Shore Hospital and a resident of Cohasset.

Kenneth Reed, M.D., is a new dermatologist to be joining Bay Coast Medical Center within the next several weeks. Dr. Reed trained in the Harvard Medical Dermatology program at the Massachusetts General Hospital and is associated in Quincy with Dr. Philip L. McCarthy. In addition, Dr. Reed is Director of Dermatology and Cosmetic Procedures at the Boston Evening Medical Center.

The most recent doctors to join the staff at Bay Coast Medical Center are Rob Roy McGregor and Robert Benker-Ritchey, both podiatrists strongly interested in sports medicine and athletic injuries in addition to traditional podiatry. Dr. McGregor is Chairman of the Governor's Committee on Physical Fitness and Sports. He is best known for his regular spot on Evening Magazine, called "Health Tips for Physical Fitness and Sports."

He has written extensively on preventing injuries in athletics, and most recently is working with Dr. Benker-Ritchey using video recording to analyze athletic movements and the prevention of injury.

Home Center winner



Home Center Realty, 57 Water St., Hingham recently announced the winner of its sales and listings contest, and the recipient of the first prize trip to Bermuda for two for 6 days.

Gail Petersen Bell of Cohasset, a realtor at the firm since April, 1984, earned in commissions well over the contests' prerequisites of a $10,000 minimum within a six-week period, thereby taking first prize!

Christian A Stannard, a realtor at Home Center for almost a year, won a $500 bonus as first runner up.

Gail Bell lives in Cohasset with her husband, Bill and son, Christopher. They recently returned from a "second honeymoon" in Bermuda.

The Law and You

by Richard Price, Attorney-at-Law

ACCIDENT OR NEGLIGENCE?

The word "accident" implies that a collision between two cars occurred by chance. However, most so-called accidents can be traced back to the negligence of some individual. It is this fact that often allows one of the parties involved in an automobile accident to recover money from the other party for damages resulting from that accident. If the collision were, in fact, accidental, then there can be no recovery. Neither party in the collision would be negligent. Thus, what must be proven in order to be able to recover for damages resulting from a collision is that the collision, strictly speaking, was not an accident. It must have resulted from the defendants negligence rather than from a combination of chance factors.

Citizens for Life plan direct leaflet campaign

By Don Merrill
Mariner Staff

Concerned about presenting both sides of the abortion issue to students, the South Shore chapter of Massachusetts Citizens for Life plans to begin a direct leaflet campaign soon outside high schools from Bourne to Quincy.

The leaflet campaign is to begin next week and will continue for the rest of the school year, according to campaign coordinator Paul DiPersio of Duxbury.

"State and federal governments go to great lengths to warn pregnant women about the risks of smoking, alcohol and other drugs to their unborn child," he said in an interview last weekend, "but no one's talking about the dangers of abortion."

Citizens for Life wants young women to know the facts, such as that abortion is the sixth-leading cause of maternal deaths.

And, abortions may be even higher on the list, because as many as half of such deaths are never reported to the Centers for Disease Control in Atlanta. Citizens for Life also believes abortion significantly contributes to the teenage suicide rate, DiPersio added.

"We believe many young women are ignorant of the physical and psychological consequences of abortion because they haven't had exposure to both sides of the issue."

Members of the South Shore chapter were to meet Monday night to decide where the campaign will begin next Tuesday.

DiPersio said Citizens for Life volunteers will likely stand outside schools at the end of the school day.

"Everyone leaves school at the same time — it's a way of getting to see a great number of students in a short time," he said.

The group has contacted police departments in a number of towns, and DiPersio said they have not encountered any serious restrictions in planning for the campaign.

However, area school administrators say it won't be that easy for the organization to conduct the campaign on school property.

"We don't allow that at all," Pembroke Supt. Paul A. Squarcia said. "The school committee has rejected such requests from charitable groups, such as the March of Dimes, and they (Citizens for Life) can't expect to be treated any differently."

Hanover Supt. Robert Fox indicated it would be difficult, though not impossible, for the anti-abortion group to distribute leaflets outside Hanover High School.

"We have no control over it if (the group) wants to stand on the sidewalk — that's a matter for selectmen," Dr. Fox said.

But a group representative would have to sit down with Fox and high school Principal Donald B. Virtue to discuss the proposal before permission for soliciting on school grounds could be granted, he added.

Standing on the sidewalk means different things at different schools, however. While Hanover High is located about 50 yards from the street, other schools are much closer or further away. Fox noted the campaign could be successful outside a school like Quincy High School, located directly on a sidewalk.

Squarcia, who is also superintendent of the Silver Lake region, noted the high school's Pembroke campus is located nearly a quarter mile from a public way, and that school property extends down to the street. Also, most students ride buses to and from the school, he added.

DiPersio said the group will avoid "scare tactics" in its literature. Medical authorities will present the dangers of abortion in a "tasteful" format.

This is not the Citizens' first leaflet campaign, he added. A similar campaign was conducted last year at high schools in western Massachusetts.

"We hope the campaign will also foster responsible attitides toward sexuality, and that it might provoke schools to present all sides of the issue in health and sex-education classes," DiPersio said.

But school officials are likely to receive complaints from parents no matter how tasteful the literature or how worthy the cause is, Fox said. He suggested that the highly-charged abortion controversy might only aggravate parents further.

"The problem is, kids have been used as middlemen for solicitors in the past, and that's what generates the parent complaints. I won't put kids in the middle like that."

Squarcia said the school committee would have to approve such a request, and he doesn't know whether the regional panel would be favorable to the leaflet campaign.

"I can't speak for the school committee," he said.

The anti-abortion group's only alternative at Silver Lake would be to request a general school announcement about the availability of the pamphlets, which could be done, Squarcia said.

"If they were handing out leaflets at Fernandes (a store in Pembroke Center), then we could announce that over the PA."

All school officials interviewed said anti-abortion activists would probably not run into counter protests from those who beleive in pro-choice.

The Citizens' ultimate aim, DiPersio said, is to get the number of abortions funded by tax money reduced or eliminated altogether in Massachusetts. More than 8,400 such abortions were performed in 1983, the last year for which figures are available.

"None of these abortions — not one — was performed because the mother's life was threatened," Di Persio said.

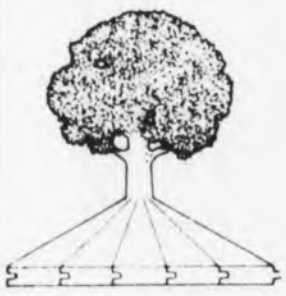
SBA loans available

Robert J. Boulay, Director, Massachusetts Civil Defense Agency recently said low interest loans for damages and-or losses incurred as a result of Hurricane "Gloria" are still available for residents and businesses located in Plymouth County.

Examples of loan purposes are landscaping, tree removal from private property, patio damage, driveway damage, waterfront property, clothing losses, insurance deductibles, insurance depreciation, etc.

Additionally, any other losses suffered either directly or indirectly as a result of "Gloria" may be eligible for low-interest Small Business Administration loans.

Information and applications may be obtained by calling the following toll-free number, 1-800-221-2093 (8:30 a.m. to 5 p.m.).



Applications may be filed until Dec. 30.

La Leche League meets

The LaLeche League of the Scituate-Norwell area will meet Tuesday, Dec. 10, at 7:30 p.m. at the home of Diane Grieco, 55 Holbrook Ave., Hull.

The meeting plans to discuss nutrition and weaning. New members are welcome.

For more information or for help with any breast-feeding problems, call in Scituate, 545-0815, or in Norwell, 659-1345.

converted into a training room and a shift officer's room. This will free the fire prevention office in the front of the building of all files contained there.

The new second floor will be constructed atop the flat roof of the existing building. According to Poskus' preliminary plans, the second story will be attached above the present apparatus room, and will be seen from the street.

The second story will house the dormitory, toilet facilities and a lounge for firefighters. There will be separate facilities for female firefighters.

The facade of the building will not be altered in any manner, Poskus noted. "All the work will be inside and towards the rear of the building. You won't be able to notice the changes by looking at the complex from the street," he said.

According to Poskus, these preliminary plans could have cost the town $10,000 if they had hired a private architect. He completed the work for free.

"Selectmen requested this fall that I prepare the plans," he explained. "The plans are now ready for review at the Dec. 9 Special Town Meeting."

Voters will review those plans and vote whether to appropriate funds to hire another architect to finalize the drawings. Once the plans are completed, that architect will prepare bids for specifications and receive proposals for construction costs. Another town meeting would be asked to fund the construction costs.

"I have no idea what the total cost of the renovations will be," the building inspector said. "These plans are not detailed, they contain no elevations. That's why town meeting is being asked to fund an architect to finish the drawings. Rather than appropriate X-amount of dollars toward the total project, selectmen decided to take it one step at a time.

"That's wise. In a project like this, you could get in trouble appropriating everything at once. In Quincy, voters appropriated $150,000 for a new fire station, and later found out the project would cost an average of $255,000."

In order to devise the plans, Poskus toured the police and fire complex with selectmen and the two department chiefs. The main thing in both departments was to obtain separate facilities for female officers. The dispatch areas had to be revised and a new kitchen area was needed, Poskus stated.

Santa hotline

545-4000: That's the "hot line" number for youngsters to call to talk to Santa Claus Monday, Dec. 16, through Thursday, Dec. 19, between 5 and 9 p.m.

Arrangements for the "hot line" to the North Pole were made by Robert P. Magher, Jr., second vice president of the Scituate Chamber of Commerce, sponsor of the Christmas activity. In past years, Santa has talked to more than 3,000 children from the North and South Shores and metropolitan Boston during the 16 hours Santa has agreed to be beside his telephone. Assisting chamber members will be the Kiwanians.

Area residents to sing in 'An Italian Christmas'

The Choral Art Society will present "An Italian Christmas" for its concert Saturday evening, December 7, at 8 p.m., in St. Luke's Episcopal Church, Rte. 3A and First Parish Rd. William C. Sano, music director, will conduct chorus and orchestra in Vivaldi's Magnificat, Mary's song of joy and praise; Gian Carlo Menotti's "Shepherds' Chorus" from his Amahl and the Night Visitors, the first opera commissioned for television; and Ottorino Respighi's Laud to the Nativity, a dramatic telling of the angel's proclamation to the shepherds, and their visit to Mary and the infant Jesus. The orchestra, Dorothy Bales concertmaster, will play Corelli's Christmas Concerto, written for the Nativity Eve.

Soloists in the Vivaldi are Andonea Guilbault, Norwell; Lenae Badger, Scituate; Lincoln Bloomfield, Cohasset; Linda Healy and Theresa Howard, Duxbury; and guest tenor Lewis Brindle of Boston. Brief solo roles—descant voices and the Three Kings—in the Menotti are sung by Paula Clough and John Stevermer, Marshfield; Mary Duffey, Owen Fryling, and Bradley Stark, Scituate; Lincoln Bloomfield, Cohasset, and Mercy Goin, Duxbury. The taxing roles in the Respighi are sung by soprano Paula Carroll, Scituate, as the Angel; Judith Reiman, mezzo-soprano, Duxbury, as Mary; and Lewis Brindle, tenor, the Shepherd.

Tickets are $5, students and elders $3.50, and are available from members of the chorus and at the door.

Cohasset singers include Lincoln Bloomfield, Rita Burke, Linda Henderson, Carl Hurtig, Millard MacNeill, Barbara Mullett, Karen Spencer, Peter Tolman and Nancy White.

Hingham singers include Janis King, Phyllis Morse, and Charlotte Krouner, who wrote the program notes on the Menotti and Respighi works.

Scituate singers include Lenae Badger, Ann Bertone, Joan Carr, Paula Carroll, Joan Dorr, Mary Duffey, Ellen Ford, Owen Fryling, Ada Kahl, Phyllis Ketter, Robin MacFarlane, Diane McCarthy, Carol and Paul Miles, Mary-Jean Miner, Philip Morin, Marie Schlag, Muriel Smith, Bradley Stark, Marguerite Stout, Gail and Henry Webster, and Judith Whittemore.

Logan airplane noise

South Shore residents are invited to attend a meeting on airplane noise on Monday, Dec. 16, at 11 a.m. at the Logan Airport Hilton Hotel.

The meeting is sponsored by Massport which plans to curb airplane noise by Jan. 1, 1988, by reducing the number of noisiest aircraft going in and out of Logan Airport.

Massport also plans to curb certain aircraft during nighttime hours, and a new noise monitoring program is being proposed.

Local legislators Sen. William Golden of Weymouth, and Reps. Mary Jeanette Murray of Cohasset and Frank Hynes of Marshfield urged residents to attend.

"I think Massport officials are really responding to the needs and concerns of people as far as trying to reduce airplane noise," Sen. Golden said.

"Logan Airport is one of the busiest airports in the world, and the increased traffic is certainly a concern for residents in communities along flight paths," he said. "I'm pleased to see Massport addressing the situation in an effective way."

Rep. Murray added, "We have been working to reduce noise levels at Logan Airport for quite a few years. Although it's long overdue, I'm delighted that Massport has finally responded to the people in our districts. I'd like to urge people in my district to attend the meeting and provide me with feedback."

Rep. Hynes stated, "As a member of the legislature's transportation committee, it pleases me to see Massport taking aggressive steps to limit noisy aircraft.

"This policy is a positive indication of Massport's concern for the quality of life of all people in the greater Boston area," Hynes said.

Massport officials already have held meetings at the State House to inform legislators about the proposed guidelines and monitoring program and are asking concerned citizens to attend the Dec. 16 public meeting.

Notre Dame programs

Two Christmas programs will be presented next week at Notre Dame Academy, 1073 Main St., Hingham.

On Monday evening, Dec. 9, at 7:30 p.m., the Notre Dame League will present a lecture and slide program entitled, "Antiques of the Christmas Season." The speaker will be Henry Callan of Marion, a recognized expert and lecturer on antiques. His presentation will trace the history of many Christmas symbols and customs including the origin of the tree, early lighting, the figure of Santa Claus and the sending of greeting cards.

Members of the League, their guests and residents of the area who are interested in the topic are welcome to attend free of charge. The program will be held in the school cafeteria and refreshments will be served.

Senior citizens are invited to attend a Christmas program of music, song and dance on Wednesday afternoon, Dec. 11 at 3 p.m. in the school auditorium. This annual concert, presented by the music department, is entitled "Twas the Night Before Christmas." There will be a two-part program featuring sacred and secular seasonal selections.

The concert will be directed by Sister Mary Frances Hurld, S.N.D. and performing will be 135 students from the senior glee club, freshman glee club, a capella choir and instrumental ensemble.

Each senior citizen attending the free performance will receive a complimentary corsage or boutonniere.

The Christmas concert will be presented for the public on Friday evening, Dec. 13 at 8 p.m. in the school auditorium. Tickets, priced at $3, are available at the school. There will also be tickets sold at the door.

Evelyn Murphy to talk

Massachusetts Secretary of Economics Affairs Evelyn Murphy will be the guest speaker at the next COOP-6 Brunch being held Sunday, Dec. 15, from 11 a.m. to 1 p.m., at the "99" Restaurant in Norwell.

COOP-6 is an association of six local Democratic Town Committees—Cohasset, Hingham, Hull, Marshfield, Scituate, and Weymouth. The Hingham Democratic Town Committee is the host of this breakfast.

Anyone who would like to attend call Margo Cartwright, 749-4958, Mary Sofis, 749-3830, or Jane Malme, 749-1661 before Dec. 9.

Dance program at high school

Ross Clay, director of the Movement Consort of Boston and his percussion accompaniment, Frank Molina, have been welcomed by the physical education department at the senior high school where Ross is teaching modern dance as an art form.

Modern interpretive dance classes are being taught as an elective to all interested high school students periods three through six as an option to the regularly scheduled units of activity.

Ross performed at the school last year when he and Stephen Malkus presented an all-day workshop to students and followed up with an on-stage presentation combining Cohasset students with the dancers of the Movement Consort.

Ross brings with him a varied background of experience which ranges from extensive studying and performing abroad in the Boston area to teaching at area public and private schools.

The Cohasset students are learning basic dance skills in hopes of developing an awareness and an appreciation of dance as an art form.

The program is sponsored by the physical education department and the parent-school organization. Funding is provided by the P.S.O. and a state block grant for the arts.

Beginning a newspaper

The entire Osgood School third grade is busy learning about the building of a newspaper. They have had a workshop recently in which they reviewed a large newspaper and identified the different sections and their content. They saw the paste ups, and the plates and they started to understand that they are newsworthy and how to gather that news and report it.

Presently under the direction of their teachers and several volunteers they are beginning to find and write articles for a publication to come out in February. The children seem excited and their ideas for articles are wonderful. We can hardly wait to read the paper. Good luck, third graders!

Bottle and can drive

A redeemable bottle and can drive will be held the first of each month, sponsored by the Osgood Literary Committee.

In an effort to raise funds to publish works from each Osgood student, the committee will be holding a bottle and can drive Dec. 14 and Jan. 4 at the Osgood School parking lot. It will be held from 9 a.m. to 11 a.m.

The literary committee has been formed to help the teachers and students put together a publication of at least one piece of work from each child at the school. Hopefully, the magazine will be published in June with a copy for each student.

All contributions from the bottle and can drive will go towards this publication and will be greatly appreciated.

Chittim at meeting

South Shore Vocational Technical High School Committee Member David Chittim recently attended the 21st Annual Joint Conference of the Massachusetts Association of School Committees and the Massachusetts Association of School Superintendents.

School Committee Member Chittim, who represents Cohasset in the eight town region, reported that the conference in Hyannis attracted well over 1000 school committee members, superintendents and educators.

Panels covered a wide array of topics including goal setting, policy setting, staff development, teenage suicide, curriculum evaluation and the Hatch Amendment Regulations/Equal Access Law. Whitman School Committee Member Lloyd Patriquin Superintendent-Director Dr. Clifford Easton also attended the conference.

"Each day school committees face increasingly complex problems," Chittim reported. He added, "The conference gave us the opportunity to discuss important issues with school committee members across the state.

The best card all around.

The REDi-CA$H/24 Card is now accepted at over 600 banks and supermarkets all around Massachusetts and New Hampshire.

If you've ever been caught short of cash. Or, if you've ever sacrificed a lunch hour standing in line at your bank...you're ready for our REDi-CA$H/24 Card.

Quincy Savings Bank introduced its REDi-CA$H/24 Card 12 years ago. It was one of the first Automated Teller Machine cards offered in Massachusetts.

It was designed to provide our customers with an extra measure of convenience, confidence and peace of mind. And it has. Now you're invited to join them.

Bank around-the-clock.

You can use your REDi-CA$H/24 Card anytime, day or night, 365 days a year.

Deposit your paycheck at midnight. Make your car loan installment payment on a Sunday afternoon. Transfer funds from your savings to your checking account before breakfast some morning.

And, of course, with a REDi-CA$H/24 Card from Quincy Savings Bank, you can always get cash. Up to $100.00 per day.

Bank around-the-block.

You'll find Quincy Savings Bank REDi-CA$H/24 Automated Teller Machines conveniently located in Braintree, Hanover, Hingham, Norwell (Queen Anne Plaza), North Quincy, Quincy, Quincy Point, and South Quincy.

All you do is insert your card and enter your secret Personal Identification Number. The REDi-CA$H/24 Machine will guide you through your transaction and even provide a printed receipt. It's that simple.

Bank around-the-state.

Quincy Savings Bank is a member of the REDi-CA$H/24, tx and CA$H networks. Your REDi-CA$H/24 Card will be honored at any machine bearing the REDi-CA$H/24, tx or CA$H Network symbols.

That means that you can get cash in an emergency at more than 600 locations across Massachusetts and even in New Hampshire. The machines have been placed in banks, supermarkets and freestanding kiosk units for your added convenience.

We're not stopping here. Future affiliations are planned that will further expand the total number of REDi-CA$H/24 ATMs.

Yours FREE. The all around convenience of REDi-CA$H/24.

From Braintree to the Berkshires, Norwell to New Bedford, Hingham to Harvard and everywhere in between, you can enjoy the convenience, confidence and peace of mind that REDi-CA$H/24 banking offers.

- A FREE Service
- Available 24 Hours A Day
- Available 365 Days A Year
- Over 600 Locations across Massachusetts and even in New Hampshire.

Additional prizes include $100 gift certificate donated by Cards and Shards in the Village, and a catered breakfast for two called "A perfect morning" by J. Bildner and Sons.

Tickets will be available at participating merchants.

Ply. Orch. receives bank gift

The Plymouth Philharmonic Orchestra recently received a major contribution from Rockland Trust Company.

The gift is the largest corporate contribution the orchestra has ever received in support of its general programs.

"We are pleased to recognize Rockland Trust Company's gift to the Philharmonic's 70th Birthday Season," said Managing Director Roberta Otto.

"Rockland Trust Company has been a generous supporter of the orchestra for many years and its increased help in this season is an affirmation of the bank's belief in the quality and importance of the Philharmonic's programs."

In the 1985-86 season, the Plymouth Philharmonic Orchestra will present six subscription concerts, an In-School Performance Series to seven area towns, a scholarship program for talented young musicians, and a number of additional special events.

Republican Club program

The Marshfield High School choral group will present a Christmas program at the meeting of the South Shore Republican Club Monday, Dec. 16, at 1 p.m. at the First Parish Church Hall, Norwell Center.

Scituate members will be hostesses during the social hour that begins at 12:15 p.m.

The annual Christmas boutique, the club's only fundraising event, will be open before and after the meeting. Members are asked to contribute baked goods, candies, preserves, handcrafts or saleable white elephants.

Kit and Kaboodle display artwork

By Bob Fessler, owner
Kit and Kaboodle

Popular South Shore artists B. Spencer Green and daughter Donna Green, are showing their latest paintings at Kit and Kaboodle in Cohasset Village.

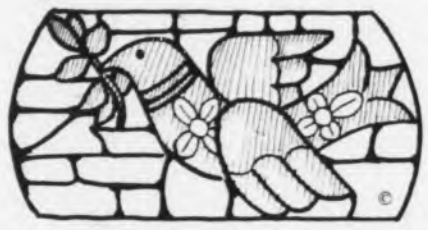
The charming character, coloring and detail that has delighted residents and visitors in recent years is highly evident in their newest works. However, each new group of paintings shows subtle differences that result from an artist's growth and gradually increasing powers of observation and creativity.

An example is the changing concept of B.'s primitives. Many artists doing primitives have been content to reproduce the old, naive character which mostly ignored perspective and relative proportions of the subjects painted. B. has actually created a new concept, retaining the charming practice of painting everything that exists behind the hill or over the horizon, whether or not it is visible, but drawing in proper perspectives and keeping subjects in proportions.

Donna too, has changed subtly but noticeably from her earlier whimsical, highly imaginative, very colorful paintings to a greater appreciation of realism. Her work now reflects something of both styles, and a lot of love thrown in the balance.

Most of Donna's past and recent works have been exhibited through a fine gallery in Edgartown in the company of Andrew and Jamie Wyeth, Caroline Bliss and Ray Ellis. and have gone into private collections in New York, Pennsylvania, Chicago, and the West Coast. Now the Kit and Kaboodle Gifts and Gallery has an exclusive collection of Donna's paintings. She would like people in this area where she lives to be aware of the changes in her paintings in recent years.

In addition to a broad representation of B.'s and Donna's originals in oil, acrylic and watercolor, Kit and Kaboodle also has limited edition signed and numbered prints by both Greens, available unframed or with double mats and framed.



A framed portrait of whichever subject is desired will be given to the holder of a lucky ticket on Saturday, Dec. 14 at 5 p.m. This has a value of $150.

A ticket will be given with every purchase that totals $10 or more starting Friday, Nov. 29 until the time of the drawing, 5 p.m. Dec. 14. It won't be necessary to be present. Kit and Kaboodle will notify the fortunate ticket holder.

The current exhibition is well worth visit to the shop on Main Street, Cohasset Village.

Child abusers need years of counselling

By Cathy Conley
Mariner Staff

The stark grey walls are almost bare in the small room where eight men will soon sit in a semicircle, with their group leader Robert Wald.

Each of the men hassexually abused a child and has been remanded to Coastal Community Counselling for therapy.

Before the weekly, 90-minute therapy session begins, Wald puts two sets of posters up on the walls.

One set gives each man's name, the abuse he is accused of, the victim, the frequency and the legal status.

"These serve as a visual reminder over the long-term therapy. Offenders have a tendency to deny or minimize the problem," Wald said.

The second set of posters enumerate the goals of each offender in his own words.

Most offenders have as their primary objectives reunion with their families and repairing their relationship with the victim.

The road from one poster, the abuse, to the second poster, the cure, is paved with two to three years of gruelling therapy sessions during which time the offender must lay his emotions bare.

Coastal has four adult offender groups, three of which are led by Wald.

One teenage group is conducted each week, with another in the offing.

All offenders have been mandated to attend by the Department of Social Services (DSS) or the courts.

"It is absolutely essential to have these men mandated to counselling," Wald said.

Most are sent to counselling in a pre-trial diversionary program.

If they are cured in the eyes of Wald, and a second therapist chosen by DSS or the courts, then they never go to trial and are released by the District Attorney.

Such a cure usually takes three years of specialized counselling.

Coastal does not accept all offenders sent to them.

Wald screens offenders before they are accepted into the sexual abuse treatment therapy.

"About 20% are deemed untreatable. We choose only those who are safe enough to be in the community during therapy," he said.

"We do not take any rapists, anyone who is overtly violent, or any offender where there is even a slight chance of repetition of abuse.

"Our first priority is the safety of the people in the community," Wald said.

The program is one of group counselling, supplemented by some individual therapy.

All offenders attend group therapy, unless there is some special problem, for instance, if the man is diagnosed as retarded or cannot speak English.

"There are three underlying priciples of the program — separation of the offender from the victim, legally mandated counselling and total waiver of confidentiality," Wald explained.

Sixty-five to 75% of the offenders molested a child in their own home. They are either a father, a stepfather, a grandfather or an uncle.

Most offenders are forced to move out immediately and are not allowed to return until specific goals are attained, Wald said.

The offender must acknowledge he has committed the offense.

He cannot project responsibility on some external factor, such as intoxication or victim provocation.

He must be held accountable for his actions and some form of restitution must be made.

He must become sensitive to the chain of behavior that led to his sexual involvemement with children so he can detect early warnings.

The offender must develop an alternative mode of self-expression and impulse management.

The molester then must apologize to the child and make it clear that it was not her fault.

"Victims feel very guilty about the abuse and about disrupting the home," Wald said.

If the offender is allowed back in the home, for six months to a year the mother must shoulder the burden of treatment.

"She must monitor the offender's behavior and tell Coastal therapists if he is becoming abusive again," Wald said.

"She has a checklist of questions — Is he drinking? Is he wasting money? Is he emotionally withdrawn? Is he making lewd jokes, flirting with the child or guilt-tripping?" Wald said.

"This is a different role for the mother. She doesn't want to be a cop to her husband," Wald said.

If an offender is going to return to his family, it will happen in the first six months to a year, if it happens at all, Wald said.

The more recent or more serious the abuse, the more time it takes for the family to get over it.

Coastal works on a team theory. While the offender is undergoing therapy, the rest of the family is also involved in counselling.

Wald has been involved in sexual abuse therapy since March 1984. A social worker, he began working with abusive men in 1977.

Sexual child abuse is not new, Wald says.

Sigmund Freud, at the turn of the century, saw so many troubled women who told of sex abuse as children that he invented the incorrect theory that women fantasize about abuse from their fathers, that never happened, Wald said.

"He viewed the women as hysterical females," he added.

"I wish Freud could sit beside me in some of my therapy sessions and listen to men tell about what they have done to children and females," Wald said.

Wald credits the feminist movement as the reason that sexual child abuse is now being reported by families and youngsters themselves.

"Feminists began to listen to women. They did not treat them as hysterical females when they said they were abused as children.

"And they found out that millions of women were saying the same thing," Wald said.

It has only been in the past ten years that the courts and law enforcement agencies started believing women, he added.

Men have always exerted control over women, Wald said.

"In abuse, the offenders have carried the social norm of men's control over women to the extreme," he said.

"The norm is that men control women. They just do not molest them. But this norm of male control is slowly changing," he said.

Molesters in counselling at Coastal range in age from early teens to 65.

All knew the victims they accosted.

"The offender feels bad — just like we all feel bad sometimes.

"They do not relate well to their female peers so they turn to children — first for friendship, then affection and eventually sex.

"They want a sense of power. They are insecure and socially awkward so they turn to children under stressful conditions," Wald said.

Ninety-five percent have a history of sexual abuse, physical abuse or severe neglect as children.

REAL ESTATE GUIDELINES

By Norma Telesco
Home Center Realty

THE "FOR SALE SIGN"

When our agents meet with clients to discuss marketing their homes, some clients resist the idea of having a "For Sale" sign placed in the front yard. They don't want the neighbors to know they're moving, or they may be concerned that complete strangers will knock on the door to ask about the house. For the most part, however, the advantages of a sign far outweigh the possible disadvantages.

First, that sign will make our phones ring. Many of our customers come from sign calls. We've also found that neighbors often sell houses for us, recommending their area to friends or colleagues who may be house hunting. If you want to sell quickly, letting the neighbors know is a good idea! Finally, almost all buyers will contact the realtor directly to make an appointment to see a house that interests them.

Having a "For Sale" sign in front of your house is not an absolute necessity, and most agents will not insist that you have one, but it will increase the property's exposure and make it sell more quickly. For solid advice on marketing your home, come to Norma Telesco at Home Center Realty, or call and speak with one of our professionals at H.C.R. Hingham.

Offenders deny crime of child abuse . . .

It is an extremely rare case when a person becomes a child molester who was not abused himself, Wald said.

"Offenders have more shame than guilt — shame that they have been caught.

"It's like speeding on a highway to them. Speeding is alright. But if they are caught, they are ashamed.

"When an offender begins here and says he feels terrible, he means he feels terrible because he was caught.

"Most do not see child abuse as a crime. They do not see a child as a victim. They see the child as cooperative or indifferent," Wald said.

There is a second kind of child abuser, one that is much more difficult to cure.

"These are pedophiles. They are fixated with children. Eighty-five percent of these men are not married. They are attracted to children as distinct from adults.

"They are uncomfortable with adult sexuality.

"Usually they have been severely molested as a child. It was so traumatic that their sexual development froze in time," Wald said.

"My theory is they are trying to work out the trauma. This involves re-experiencing the abuse, with them in the driver's seat," he said.

It was the women's movement that spurred Wald into his career of counselling abusive men.

"I got into this because of my recognition of the personal value of the women's movement in my life.

"It encourages me to express my feelings. It validates my need to express emotion.

"It has removed the burden of being inordinately in control of situations and interactions.

"It has helped me see women as peers, as people who can share and contribute to my life."

Wald tries to bring these insights to the offenders in his therapy.

"Rehabilitation is very slow work. These are serious problems and the kind of changes that must happen inside these men are still against our social norms.

"Therefore these changes are not reinforced on the outside.

"In therapy, these men must be emotionally expressive. They must talk about and explore their feelings and use them as a tool for problem-solving. This is not the norm today."

Wald believes there should be more legal penalties for sexual abusers.

"Sexual abuse is a crime. And a lot more men should serve some time in jail.

"Most of our offenders never do go to trial, especially that 20% that are too dangerous to be accepted into our program.

"Their victims are too young to testify. Half the offenders we see at Coastal abused victims under seven years old.

"Sexual offenders have a hard time in jail. There should be a special segregated section for them, and special rehabilitative programs.

"A jail sentence should also be therapeutic. If they go to prison and get raped everyday, that's not going to help them handle their anger.

"But sexual child abuse is a serious crime. Going to jail is a social message that it's a serious crime.

"If it was punished as a crime, less men would do it. It's not a crime because it's not enforced.

"If you batter a person in the street, you go to prison. If you batter a person in your home, you go to counselling. It's crazy," he said.

Wald feels progress with the offenders in treatment.

"Very few re-offend. This has to do with the selection process. We allow people in the program who are ready for therapy," he said.

Wald is concerned about that 20% of the child abusers who are too dangerous to be accepted into the Coastal Community Counselling's therapy.

"Because of the legal system, many of these cases are non-prosecutable because the victims are so young. There are very severe legal problems.

"Therefore the most dangerous offenders, and those likely to repeat, do not get specialized counselling nor a jail sentence," he said.

Wald feels that Norfolk County is doing an excellent job in the area of sexual child abuse.

"Norfolk County is doing a terrific job. If everybody was as consistent as Norfolk County, we'd have a lot less sexual child abuse.

"Their diversion program is vastly superior to what is in other counties."

Wald has one suggestion.

Presently sexual abusers are remanded to therapy at Coastal in a pre-trail diversionary program. And most never go to trial.

Wald feels that the offender should go to trial, and if convicted, be ordered into counselling.

That way, if the offender does not take part in the therapy, we can drop him, and there would be some other punishment for him, Wald said.

'Christmas in Cohasset' set for Thursday, Dec. 12

Tickets are now on sale for the December 12 "Christmas in Cohasset" house tour.

Priced at $10, tickets may be purchased at Country House Antiques and Collectables, 818 Chief Justice Cushing Highway, Rte. 3A in Cohasset, and in the following Cohasset Village locations; In Stitches, Brook Street, Fleming's Hardware, Elm Street, and Forget-Me-Nots, Elm Street.

Persons wishing to obtain tickets through the mail may contact Mrs. Louis Strong, 383-0939, or Mrs. Paul Desmond, 383-6446.

The tour of six Cohasset homes will take place from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m.

Also featured from 11 a.m. to 4 p.m. will be "Palate Pleasers" served at the Cohasset Historical Society's Lothrop House, 14 Summer Street. There will be a Holiday Boutique at the Lothrop House featuring Christmas arrangements to decorate your home.

Among the six homes which will be toured that day is an elegant colonial house near Cohasset Village. This home, originally a single-level cape-ranch, was converted into a colonial home with contemporary features.

There are many colonial features throughout, alongside contemporary flairs such as a greenhouse window in the kitchen and an open family room.

A garden entry is perfect for seasonal flower displays by the creative gardener.

Another home is an English country house that is described as both beautiful and functional. Stately high ceilings, marbled fireplaces and infusions of light and color greet each visitor at every turn.

The third tour home is a century-old structure moved to its present location many years ago by horse and wagon.

The livingroom is baronial, and the dining room features dark paneling from the "Rose Standish" ferry which was plucked from the ocean water near Nantucket many years ago.

A dramatic new kitchen and skylighted breakfast room set a striking pose in contrast to the old elegance of this house.

Another tour home is a turn-of-the-century mansion revealing handcrafted details long forgotten in the homebuilding industry.

Rich paneling outlines the formal dining room while the sun-splashed solarium contains a huge fireplace and a wall of leaded glass windows.

A fifth home is situated at the edge of a salt marsh, reflecting the peace and tranquilty of its surroundings. Stone fireplaces fill the livingroom and the dining room which are flanked by huge glass windows.

There is also a balcony reflecting a dramatic view of the ocean from the home's master bedroom.

The final home on the tour features ocean views from this converted carriage house. A rainbow of pastels color the formal dining room, while the large family kitchen possesses its own edectic charm.

There is also a unique wicker room and a special guest room filled with lovely antique furnishings.

Tickets are also available at Johnny Appleseed's at the Cushing Plaza, Rte. 3A.

The Community Garden Club members who worked on the project include: President Mary Larson; Tour Chairman Barbara Bowman; Hostess Chairmen, Carla Getto and Barbara Ericson; Tea Chairmen, Mary Hickey; Decorators Chairmen, Pam Henry; Ticket Sale Chairmen, Rita Strong and Denise Desmond; Boutique Chairmen, Jeanne Replogle, Joanne Haynes, Joan Shockman, and Publicity and Posters, Arlene Ferreira.

Selectmen review vote on warrant

Selectmen reviewed the warrant for the Dec. 9 Special town Meeting, and made their recommendations regarding the specific articles.

They voted to recommend Article 1 (swimming pool fence ordinance); Article 2 ($5000 amendment to the watershed engineering study); Article 3 ($14,000 to inspect improvements to bridges); Article 4 ($20,000 to hire an architect for police and fire station renovations); Article 5 (Hurricane Gloria costs); Article 6 and 7 will be moved to the annual Town Meeting and Article 8 is withdrawn; Article 9 (selectmen's recording secretary); Article 10 (correct typo in annual meeting warrant); Article 11 (five percent pay increase to police. The retroactive year will cost $20,451, and the current year's raise will cost $41,430 for a total of $61,845).

They also recommended Article 12 (personnel classification study); Article 13 (Jerusalem Road easement); Article 14 (transfer funds); Article 15 (pay unpaid bills); Article 16 (raise minimum teacher's salary).

The board will wait to talk with the school committee before voting on Article 17, to accept teacher development grants from the state. They voted not to recommend Article 18 (two classification changes); and they recommended Articles 19 (if needed, a small sewer service district), 20 ($30,000 legal fees for sewer commission); and 21 (watershed building moratorium).

The board voted not to recommend Article 22 (fence bylaw); and Article 23 has been withdrawn. They did not recommend Article 24 (regulate business hours); and recommended Articles 25 (harbor bylaw change); Article 26 (accept matching grant); and Article 28 ($10,000 planning board engineering fees).

Expert craftsmen display their items for Art Center

Six craftsmen come together in the South Shore Art Center invitational gallery for a festive holiday exhibit of finely handcrafted items.

In selecting the artists for this exhibit, the Center, at 103 Ripley Road in Cohasset, has sought to find some of the best examples of fine crafts being created on the South Shore.

The depth of the work displayed in the craft exhibit will readily illustrate the fine work of these craftsmen.

The exhibit opens December 2 and runs through December 24 with a gala reception and Christmas party to usher in the holiday season on Friday, December 6 from 6 to 8 p.m.

Invited to exhibit in this show are Bill Bell, clay and calligraphy; Joan Hausrath, fiber; John Heller, ceramics and jewelry; Gina Pleasants, handwoven baskets; Dorothy Pulsifer, ceramics and stained glass; and Kathleen Weinheimer, quiltmaking.

Bell's current work in clay deals with neriage, a Japanese word for different colored clays; pillow-pots and raku. He is currently the art educator for the Hanover School and instructs in calligraphy at the South Shore Art Center and the Plymouth Art Guild. He has had a one-person show at the Pembroke Art Association where he has also participated in several group shows.

Colorful, finely crafted baskets are handmade by Gina Pleasants. She studied at the University of New Hampshire where she received the Philip Barton Award and she had taken a first and a second in crafts in two Duxbury Art Association Midsummer Art Shows.

Each quilt, made by Kathleen Weinheimer, is inspired by nature, both in design and color and is machine pieced and hand quilted. She has participated internationally in such exhibits as the Fourth Annual Juried Quilt Show in Auburn, N.Y; American Quilts of the '80's in Bogota, Medellin and Cali, Colombia; Vermont Quilt Festival in Norwich, Vt.; Quilts '85 at the Bridgewater Public Library; the Symphony Hall Exhibition of Quilts with the Tom Rush Concert; and others. Her work was selected for a show of 50 outstanding panels of the "Ribbon" of peace at the Massachusetts State House. Currently she teaches advanced quilting for the Bridgewater Adult Education.

The technique Joan Hausrath uses for her fibers is rooted in ancient history. She hand dyes the yarns with a design prior to weaving them into a woven structure. The theme of her woven panels is color showing contrast sometimes strong, sometimes subtle, of hues and the interaction of the optical properties of color.

"Neriage Pillow Pot No. 3" by craftsman Bill Bell.

Dorothy Pulsifer expresses through her work—pots, baskets, stained glass—a sense of timeless communication with the maker. Although most of Pulsifer's work is functional, of primary concern to her is sculptural form and surface quality—relief, color and texture.

With a long list of professional affiliations, honors and solo exhibitions, Dr. John Heller, professor of art at Bridgewater State College, will exhibit his ceramics and jewelry. He is currently on the board of directors of the Brockton Art Museum and is the honorary curator of contemporary American decorative arts.

The exhibit is open to the public Monday through Friday, noon to 4 p.m. and Saturdays, 10 a.m. to 1 p.m. Come enjoy the holiday season with the South Shore Art Center.

For information on the craft exhibit, the holiday gift shop, classes, gift certificates, membership, etc., call the Center, 383-9548.

Smorgasboard of treats at Village Fair

After a hectic final week of almost round-the-clock preparations by many of the scores of volunteer workers, the 45th Cohasset Village Fair will open the doors of buildings around the Common at 10 a.m. on Saturday. (Dec. 7), offering nearly 25 different features catering to a range of separate audiences and tastes.

Eager holiday shoppers from tots to grandmothers will be crowding the steps of the Town Hall and other buildings waiting to descend on tables and booths laden with the works of parishioners of five town churches who join together once a year in this big fund-raising effort believed to be unique as an ecumenical project.

In the Town Hall they'll find a bounty of hand-crafted gifts, novelties, children's clothing, wreaths, plants, cheeses, popcorn and the ever-popular Snack Bar. There will also be ticket sales for the Raffle, offering prizes headed by a portable color TV and a weekend at the posh Bostonian Hotel.

Next door at the Congregational Church the rush will be on to get at tables piled high with home-made cakes, breads, pies, pastries, cookies and candy, or to browse the collection of hundreds of books, or to be first in line at the Secret Room for youngsters.

Across the Common, a treasure trove of used but useful articles will jam Trueblood Hall at the Bargain Bazaar while down the street at the Community Center, children will find an array of entertainment to occupy them while their parents shop.

On the Common itself, balloons will be making their appearance and in the center Santa Claus' bower and sleigh will be awaiting the arrival of the jolly elf via fire engine at 10:45. From then until exhaustion, he will welcome tots on his knee while they have their pictures taken by instant camera to record their registration of a Christmas list.

All these features and more have been planned and arranged by a Central Committee, headed by Gail Bell as general chairman, that has been working on the project since Spring. With the First Parish Unitarian Church taking the lead this year, Mrs. Bell has been assisted by three fellow parishioners with past Fair experience: Lucy Marsac, Megan Phelps and Ruth Wilcox—as well as by Shelley Weier, the First Parish representative on the Central Committee, herself a former Fair general chairman.

Representatives of the other churches, many with records of service to fairs in the past, are Goldie Langel, Adeline McGrath and Frances O'Toole for St. Anthony's; Maria Barber for the Panagia Greek Orthodox; Annette Sawchuk, Carl Sandblom and Ruth Nedrow for the Second Congregational; and Dot Gammon for St. Stephen's.

Charles Costas of the Greek church, is treasurer and Dolores Roy of St. Anthony's is secretary. Among those sharing publicity responsibility are Rosemary Lanctot and Lisa Koed.

While many of the volunteers have been working weeks or even months in preparation for the big day, some are called on only at the last moment for the final preparations. These include the transportation people who gather tables from all the churches and the schools for the set-up that begins in earnest on Thursday evening. This work is being organized by Bill Bell and Tim Marsac, who will also supervise the return of the equipment after the Fair is closed down.

Another late transportation assignment involves the mass of material assembled for the Bargain Bazaar. For weeks now donors have been dropping off the items at the basement of St. Anthony's Rectory where Bea Coleman, housekeeper at the rectory, has been invaluable in receiving and storing it. This week the items will be moved by Joe Laugelle and others to the Unitarian Parish House where they will be on sale on Saturday. During the week, a force of volunteers from the First Parish, with the assistance of others from other churches, have been categorizing and pricing the multitude of basement and attic treasures.

Perhaps busiest of all in the days approaching the Fair have been the ladies of the wreath committee who have been engaged daily in adding the cones, bows, ribbons and other decorative elements to the dozens of wreaths that will go on sale Saturday. This work has gone on in the vestry of the Congregational church.

In alphabetical order, here are some of the features and chairpersons who head up the committees for these attractions: Balloons, Kathy Brennan; Books, Alice Daunt and Helen Hooper; Boutique, Carol Sandblom and Lucy Marsac; Candy, Pam McNamara; Cheese, Hamilton Tewksbury; Children's Table, Barbara Mullett, Adeline McGrath, Frances O'Toole, and Kathy McHugh; Chowder Bar, Bob Beggan; Christmas Tree, Annette Sawchuk; Food and Pastries, Mary Sofis; Face Painting, Avis Sweeney; Grabs, Dawn Vivian; Plants, Maria Barber and Sharon Costas; Popcorn Machine, Marilyn Hobson; Raffle, Ruth Wilcox; Santa Claus and photos, Jeff Steele and Margaret Young; Secret Room, Lillian Ketchum; Snack Bar, Phil Shockman and Jack Riley; Salad Bar, Ernie Sofis; Wreaths, Jean Manganero and Ginny Riley.

Recognition of the many workers for the Fair will come in two forms this year. The Christmas Tree greeting shoppers at the entrance to the Town Hall will bear cards with the names of all the workers, and on Sunday afternoon in the Unitarian Parish House, the Central Committee will host the workers at a Celebration Event with light refreshments.

Bright red velvet bows are being prepared for the wreaths at the Cohasset Village Fair. Helping with the pre-Fair tasks are: (L to R) Noel Manion, Mary Klier, and Joanne Sheppard.

kitchen to be certified in order to prepare hot meals from it. Since most of the church kitchens are not certified, some of the previous-year's hot meals will not be served this year.

The handcrafted items made by the Cohasset church members, "are of a higher quality than ever before," she noted. The variety and quality of the handiwork by Cohasset craftspeople has gained fame in this area, adding to the popularity of this annual December event.

Hundreds of people come to Cohasset each December, seeking a unique and treasured gift to purchase. The smells of evergreens mix with the scent of freshly-made treats throughout the Common churches.

More than 1000 persons have worked endless hours to create the crafts for Saturday's sale. The Boutique committee began their plans last January, while many of the other workers started their crafts in April or May.

Santa will be visiting children on the Common beginning at 12:15 p.m. Meanwhile, there will be lots of activities designed to keep the kids busy while Mom completes a bit of holiday shopping.

A Town Crier, dressed in the appropriate colonial attire, will walk about the Common announcing where activities and items are located.

"It gets hectic, and exciting," Publicity Chairman Osbourne Ingram said this week. "As long as the weather cooperates, we expect really big crowds. It's a very popular tradition."

The following day, the celebration begins about 11 a.m. with Santa's return to Cohasset at the Cushing Plaza. This is the local merchants' opportunity to introduce shoppers to the stores and merchandise available in Cohasset.

There will be photos available with Santa as he sits atop his portable Santaland. Balloons, candy canes and lots of fun will be offered to all good girls and boys who visit Cushing Plaza's Santaland.

About 1:15 p.m., Santa will travel via the Santaland float to St. Anthony's Church parking lot. There he will trade in his vehicle for a camel. Santa will then be escorted downtown to the Common.

There will be a baby animal petting zoo at the Common, along with horse and carriage rides and a special "moonwalk" amusement for the kids. Hot dogs, pizza and drinks will be available at the Common for hungry revelers.

At 2 p.m., there will be a Carillon Concert from the bellfry of St. Stephen's Church. And at 4 p.m., the white lights surrounding the common, including a 15-foot Christmas tree, will be lit.

That Christmas tree was a donation from Murray Campbell of Old Pasture Road. It will contain $600 worth of white lights purchased specifically for the tree by the Chamber.

After the lighting of the Common, everyone is invited to a festive Christmas Carol session. Booklets containing all the words will be handed out to the carolers who will fill the air with joyous songs.

Last year's White Christmas was an overwhelming success, according to co-Chairman Sally Wood.

"This year we hope it's even better," she added, noting that several new and unique events have been added to the day's activities.

Everyone is welcome to participate in the Chamber's raffle. Tickets for the raffle are available at most Cohasset stores, and the winners will be selected from Santa's grab bag at 4 p.m. on the Common.

Among the prizes offered in the raffle are a trip for two to Montreal from Lido Travel, $100 gift certificate from Cards and Shards, and a catered breakfast for two entitled, "A Pefect Morning," from J. Bildner and Sons.

"There will be a nice variety of activities and fun for all ages. We are expecting a lot of families from Cohasset, Scituate and the surrounding towns to join us for a very special, fun day," Wood stated.

Public notice

TOWN OF COHASSET NOTICE OF SALE

The town of Cohasset will accept sealed bids for the property commonly known as the Independence Building containing 5,445 square feet of land improved by a structure, the property address being 24 South Main Street, Cohasset, Massachusetts and is shown as plot 38 on Map 27 of the Assessors Maps of the Town of Cohasset. Building available for inspection by appointment Mondays and Thursdays 9:00 a.m. to 1:00 p.m.

Society displays early prints

A number of 19th and early 20th century paintings and prints of Cohasset scenes and related historical subjects hang in the museum buildings of the Cohasset Historical Society.

Among them are views of the harbor (called "Ship Cove") its early buildings, and the ocean beyond. Others show some of the early homes of the town in their original setting.

Here and there one finds portraits of early residents. The Society's artworks range from primitive paintings, most by unknown artists, to oils and watercolors by artists whose names were known in the Victorian art world.

Examples of the former include a collection of four primitive watercolors by young children of the Lothrop and Stoddard families, dating from the early 19th century. Of the latter type are oils and watercolors done by such names as A.W. Moore, F. Atkinson Fox and Frank H. Shapleigh.

One picture, a watercolor, bears the signature of Giovanni Lurzo, mid-19th century Venetian painter of ships' portraits. In the medium of oil painting, the best known represented in the Society's collection is New England scene painter Frank Shapleigh, whose wife Mary Studley was from Cohasset. One of the town's best known modern painters, artist MacIvor Reddie, is represented in the Society's collection, as is contemporary maritime artist Richard Loud, whose works hang in the gallery of Mystic Seaport.

From the Historical Society's extensive collection of 19th and 20th century Cohasset-related artworks its Directors have chosen eleven paintings and prints, plus one individually owned oil painting, as the subjects to be reproduced in the form of prints, plus one individually owned painting, as the subjects to be reproduced in the form of prints made available upon order to the general public. This limited issue of reproductions of Society artworks now is available through the Society.

The original photographic reproductions were done by Cohasset photographer Imants Angbergs, former photographer of artwork at Boston's Museum of Fine Arts. The prints offered in this series of reproductions include: 19th century views of Cohasset Harbor showing old boats and buildings; a striking oil portrait of Assistant Lighthouse Keeper Roscoe Green Lopaus standing on the galley at Minot's Lighthouse, painted by R. Atkinson Fox; Capt. Nathaniel Nichols' "First Black Rock House" of the early 1700's on Jerusalem Road; Frank H. Shapleigh's oil titled "Christopher James' Farmhouse" (today's Red Lion Inn); also a Shapleigh panorama of the Harbor entrance and ocean; an original watercolor portrait of the barque "Kepler" in the harbor of Venice by John (Giovanni) Lurzo; a Lothrop family primitive by Sarah Young Lothrop dating from circa 1815; a reproduction of Richard Loud's recently commissioned "Cohasset Harbor 1898"; and reproductions of two Society-owned prints. Of John James Audubon's famous chromolithographs, the Society has reproduced "Swallowtail Hawk", and from its maritime collection a color lithograph of the first Minot's Ledge Lighthouse.

The Society reproductions are available upon order, and the original proof copies may be seen at its Caleb Lothrop House, Sumner Street by appointment. Prints can be ordered full-sized or smaller if desired. For further information please contact the Society at 383-6930, where orders may be placed.

The Cohasset Historical Society's artworks reproductions, done in full color by an acknowledged expert in the field of museum photography, provide an unequalled opportunity to own works of art having unique value as historical documents of New England's past heritage.

Kern receives award

Barbara Kern, chairwoman of the Cohasset Board of Health, was presented an award by the Massachusetts Association of Health Boards "in recognition and appreciation of her outstanding leadership and service as the first president of the Association from 1982 -1985."

The award, given at the Massachusetts Association of Health Boards' fourth annual meeting last week at Framingham State College, was presented by Thomas Gecewicz, of the Canton Board of Health, and treasurer of the association.

The award further stated "The Association gratefully acknowledges her unselfish concern and dedication to local boards of health and the many contributions she has made toward better health in the Commonwealth of Massachusetts."

In accepting the award, Mrs. Kern spoke of the importance of the association as an umbrella group for all boards of health throughout the state, at a time when the responsibilities of boards are expanding.

The association is also expanding, with membership growing each year, pointing out the need for boards to be represented before state departments and the legislature. The association also serves as an informational center for boards of health.

Conway Country Update

ON THE AIR. Beth Driscoll, a mortgage consultant with our Northern Mortgage Company and John Nettles, manager of our Milton and Quincy offices, gave up their Thanksgiving eve with family and friends to appear on WHDH radio's Paul Benzaquin Show. The two were on from 8-10 pm and answered a variety of real estate financing questions from many enthusiastic callers.

BACK FROM NASSAU. A 'Conway Country' delegation of 135 have returned from a real estate conference in Nassau. The travelers were all part of the annual President's Silver Award Trip earned by Conway associates for their achievements during 1985. The President's Gold Award Trip will be to Jamaica in January.

GUEST SPEAKER. Dick Flavin of T.V. Channel 4 fame has accepted an invitation to be the guest speaker at our Annual Meeting and Awards Ceremony scheduled for January 31, 1986. A special thanks to the Cardinal Cushing School in Hanover for once again allowing us the use of their beautiful hall for this event.

VA/FHA SEMINARS were a big success. Northern Mortgage Company in conjunction with the Jack Conway held a series of real estate financing seminars in Hyannis, Brockton, Boston and Boylston during the month of November. The seminars were held to explain the benefits of VA & FHA financing, two loans often overlooked by home buyers. We were fortunate to have Roland Christian of the Veterans Administration on hand to explain the veteran's qualification process.

Residents eagerly await state plan for King Street

Residents along King Street are anxious for the state to complete plans to revamp the intersection of that street and Route 3A.

Pleased that town and state officials reacted quickly to their concerns, these residents are hopeful that corrective action will be taken before another tragedy occurs in their neighborhood.

Longtime King Street resident Dan Cotton wrote to selectmen last month, outlining his concern about the dangerous intersection. Six accidents in recent years have occurred in that vicinity, he said, adding that something had to be done to avoid additional problems.

The last accident which occurred at 1:30 a.m. on the day Hurricane Gloria struck town, left considerable damage to the Cotton's home at 27 King Street. A wayward vehicle slammed into the corner post of the house, swung around and bashed in the front door and entry way to the home.

The letter from Cotton arrived at the selectmen's office soon afterward.

In his communication to selectmen and state Sen. William Golden, Cotton detailed the six accidents which had recently occurred near the intersection. "There is a tendency," he wrote, "for Westbound traffic on Rte. 3A to maintain speed even when veering to the right on King Street. This tendency is heightened by the downward slope on 3A. Squealing tires are an everyday occurrence; near misses are too frequent for comfort."

King Street neighbor Arnold Jenks agreed with that sentiment. "Years ago, it used to be you'd look up when a car passed to see what it was. Now that's all you hear," he said.

Two weeks ago, Selectman Diane Sullivan met with Cotton, his wife Jean, neighbor Anne Hardie, and the senator. State engineers were also present at the site, where they promised to start immediately on plans to relieve the traffic flow problem. The engineers agreed that within two months, plans to redesign the intersection would be in the hands of the local selectmen.

The problem, according to Cotton and Jenks, is the design of King Street. One of the oldest streets in Cohasset, King Street was a dirt path carved from North Main Street more than 300 years ago. The curve in the street was necessary because the path could not slice through the Bread and Cheese swamp from the area near the present day Water Dept. building.

The traffic problems heightened in recent years, they agreed, from the increased population along Forest Avenue and King Street. Until recent years, Forest Avenue was almost bare. Now it is filled with new single-family homes.

King Street is also a popular access into and out of Hull, Jenks explained. And because of the downward curve of the street, cars tend to travel faster as they approach the highway intersection, he added.

According to Cotton, the Jenks' home at 43 King Street is located at the curve of the road. Past that house, there is a deceptively sharp curve. Drivers unfamiliar with that curve often fail to correct their course and thus accidents occur near their residences.

A recent accident sheared a utility pole, which smashed more than 4,000 volts of power into the Jenks' home. The owner extinguished the flames caused by the power surge when the pole cut across a high tension wire into his house.

A more tragic accident occurred when a car traveled across King Street and into a thick layer of bushes. The car and its driver were not found until the next morning. The driver was seriously injured in that mishap.

Cotton, who has resided on King Street since 1946, said accidents occur at all hours, and more frequently. But he's satisfied that state and local officials are responding to their call for help.

"So far, they're moving along as fast as they can. I hope they can do something. There's bound to be more accidents, and they're getting closer all the time," he noted.

Jenks has lived on the street for the past 38 years. He has witnessed the spreading population of homes along King Street and Forest Avenue, and the expanding number of cars traveling the route onto North Main Street and Jerusalem Road.

"It's also a natural path to the dump," he explained. "People take this road to the dump all the time. That hasn't helped the situation. It's also a throughway to Hull. Trucks are on King Street much of the time."

He continued, "they come off the highway going like hell. Most people travel 60 miles per hour or better. But King Street isn't wide enough and not graded well enough to support that kind of traffic at such high speeds."

State engineers who visited the site two weeks ago, agreed with the town's assessment of the intersection. District traffic engineer Frank Thompson said then that the intersection should be redesigned, with the possible addition of a turning lane and a turn-off at a right angle which would force drivers to slow down.

The next hurdle to face once the plans are completed, is funding for the reconstruction. Although the plans may be finalized in two months, the question of funding the project looms large in the minds of concerned residents.

"I'll be lucky if I live long enough to see this road fixed," Jenks commented. "The plans will probably be forthcoming within three months. But after that, it's getting the plans approved and funded that will take a long, long time."

Jenks explained that more accidents have occurred during the night when unsuspecting drivers negotiate the curve too late. Jenks is hopeful that no further tragedies will occur there while the state seeks money to complete the repairs.

"I'm satisfied now. But it's going to take a lot of pushing and shoving to get things done here," he said.

World of Weather: December is the stormiest

December, in the United States, is the stormiest month of the year. Almost the entire nation is shrouded by clouds and the duration of daylight hours is at its annual minimum. The winter Solstice will occur at 5:08 EST Dec. 21.

Astronomically, that is the shortest day of the year. But because the earth's orbit around the sun is not a perfect circle and its axis is tilted from the vertical, the solstice brings neither the latest sunrise nor the earliest sunset of the year. But it is the shortest day of the year or the day when there is the least amount of daylight. At that time, the sun's rays begin to strike the earth closer to the Equator, thus increasing the amount of daylight each day.

Days will become longer until June 21, when the sun is over the Tropic of Cancer and we will have the longest day of the year. The Vernal Equinox, March 20, the first day of spring, is the day that daylight and darkness are the same length.

Between now, and those glorious days of spring, we have a lot of storms to contend with. This week let's talk about a rather uncommon winter storm.

ICE STORMS

Freezing rain or freezing drizzle is rain or drizzle occurring when surface temperatures are below freezing (32 deg. F). The moisture falls in liquid form but freezes upon impact, resulting in a coating of ice glaze on all exposed objects.

The occurrence of freezing rain or drizzle is often called an ice storm when a substantial glaze layer accumulates. Ice forming on exposed objects generally ranges from a thin glaze to coatings about an inch thick; but much thicker deposits have been observed.

For example, ice deposits to eight inches in diameter were reported on wires in northern Idaho in January 1961, and loadings of 11 pounds per foot of telephone wire were found in Michigan in February 1922.

It has been estimated that an evergreen tree 50 feet high with an average width of 20 feet may be coated with as much as five tons of ice during a severe ice storm.

A heavy accumulation of ice, especially when accompanied by high winds, devastates trees and transmission lines.

Sidewalks, streets, and highways become extremely hazardous to pedestrians and motorists. Over 85 percent of ice-storm deaths are traffic related.

Freezing rain and drizzle frequently occur for a short time as a transitory condition between the occurrence of rain or drizzle and snow, and therefore usually occur at temperatures slightly below freezing.

Some of the most destructive ice storms have occurred in the southern states, where neither buildings nor crops are designed with severe winter conditions in mind. The most damaging ice storm in the United States was probably that which struck the southland from Jan. 28 to Feb. 4, 1951, causing some $50 million damage in Mississippi, $15 million in Louisiana, and nearly $2 million in Arkansas; this storm also caused 22 deaths. The region of greatest incidence, however, is a broad belt from Nebraska, Kansas, and Oklahoma eastward through the middle Atlantic and New England states.

Ice storms are sometimes incorrectly referred to as sleet storms. Sleet can be easily identified as frozen rain drops (ice pellets) which bounce when hitting the ground or other objects. Sleet does not stick to trees and wires; but sleet in sufficient depth does cause hazardous driving conditions.

The terms ice storm, freezing rain, and freezing drizzle warn the public that a coating of ice is expected on the ground and on other exposed surfaces. The qualifying term heavy is used to indicate ice coating which, because of the extra weight of ice, will cause significant damage to trees, overhead wires, and the like. Damage will be greater if the freezing rain or drizzle is accompanied by high winds.

Any road-icing condition is extremely hazardous, as most drivers and pedestrians understand. Usually, however, a heavy snow will provide traction even over an ice layer, and, at temperatures just under freezing, traffic churns the show into slush. But under certain conditions—about two inches of snow, light winds, temperatures below the mid-twenties a road-ice condition not generally recognized may occur, and set the winter stage for tragedy. Here, traffic melts the thin snow layer, which refreezes as ice and is polished by auto tires into a veritable skating rink. More light snow may obscure the layer of ice and lure unsuspecting drivers into mishaps- and pedestrians into overestimating how much control drivers have of their vehicles. NWS WINTER OUTLOOK

At 4 p.m. EST, Wednesday, Nov. 27, 1985, the National Weather Service, Washington, D.C. issued their 1985-86 winter weather outlook.

This is what they are predicting for the meteorological winter, December-February, in New England.

For temperatures: "The large intervening zone from the Southwest through the southern Great Plains to the Midwest and Northeast has essentially equal chances for warmth and cold, with the Midwest and Northeast being particularly subject to several sharp alterations."

For precipitation: "Intervening zones and the West, East and Gulf coasts must be rated at even odds for wetness and dryness."

What they are saying is that the chances are 50-50 that the precipitation and temperature will be wetter or dryer, and warmer or colder. My long-range outlook, published last month, called for below average precipitation and below normal temperatures in New England. Next March we will see how we did in our prognostications.

DECEMBER OUTLOOK

Because of mailing and publishing deadlines, as a syndicated columnist, my detailed monthly outlooks may not be timely for weekly and Sunday newspapers subscribing to my monthly format. However, I will bring you the entire outlook which was published last month in newspapers using my weekly format.

December of 1985 will be stormy, unsettled and cloudy. It should be above average in precipitation with near normal temperature. Between Nov. 27 and Dec. 5, a major storm is indicated. The most likely time of occurrence is about Nov. 30-Dec. 2.

This should be a rain storm with southeast winds, possibly nearing gale force.

From Dec. 5-Dec. 11 another storm will affect New England. Depending on the storm track, this could be our first important snowfall. Indications are that there may be two low pressure systems involved. Most likely date of this event is Dec. 8-10.

Between Dec. 11-20, a period of unsettled weather will prevail. Conditions will be changeable with a high risk of precipitation. We may see a cold front pass about Dec. 23 attended by snow squalls.

The end of the month into the first days of January will be stormy with a high probability of major precipitation, on or about New Year's Eve. This could be a storm of near blizzard proportions.

Spruce up the holiday with some funny books

By Peggy Beals
Special to the Mariner

("A merry heart doeth good like medicine . . ." Prov. 17:22)

FROM THE bookshelf

THE BEST MEDICINE

When Norman Cousins published his recuperative experiences in "Anatomy of an Illness," he focused welcome attention on the value of laughing, of fun. In hospital tests, they demonstrated laughter had a positive physical effect. Something noted in Proverbs 17:22 a good while back.

I had a frantic call from a friend that she was enduring some long-term illness, had read Cousins, but was blank on titles of funny books. I compiled a list for her, leading off with Jerome K. Jerome's "Three Men in a Boat," the title many readers of the N. Y. Times Book Review considered the funniest book ever. She called later to say the book had disrupted the entire household. No one wanted to do anything but read more!

Published in 1889, it is about three Englishmen who decide to take a boat trip together, and it explores to the fullest those little peculiarities of character which can make such shared adventures so very trying. It came out in a Modern Library edition paired with "Three Men on a Bummel" (bicycle), more of the same.

Some Irish authors have left us cherished books of humor. Somerville and Ross met a new audience through the televised "Some Experiences of an Irish R.M." from the book of the same name.

My copy of their "In Mr. Knox's Country" was published by Longmans, Green & Co., doubtless now defunct, as one of the Longmans stories of laughter.

Other titles on this list include "Cold Comfort Farm," by Stella Gibbons, and others by her, other titles by Somerville and Ross, and "Heaven's My Destination" by Thornton Wilder, which I re-read this summer and laughed.

"The Bridge of San Luis Rey," often assigned reading, didn't, as I recall, hint at the comic side of Wilder, but it's there also in "The Ides Of March" and "The Eighth Day."

G.A. Birmingham is the other Irish author, described as "the Mark Twain of Ireland, his humor is of the finest." See "Spanish Golds" and others.

Lillian Beckwith wrote several delightful books about one of those little islands off the coast of Scotland. "Lightly Poached," "The Hills is Lonely" and others are in fiction. Others are "Of Sheep and Men" by Robertson, also Scotland, is about sheep farming and the characters who do it.

In the 1920's, Ernest Bramah wrote "The Wallet of Kai Lung" and "Kai Lung's Golden Hours," such polished little jewels of writing that Hilaire Belloc says in a laborious preface are work worth doing and well done, predicting that no matter how few readers such work finds at first, "rock stands and mud washes away."

They are pseudo Chinese writing in English and incredibly full of memorable phrases, one of which Lord Peter Wimsey quotes to what's-her-name, who instantly picks up his reference, one of the less endearing habits some authors have to separate the elite (their kind) from the unwashed masses who don't pick it up.

A few others, praying the editor is generous with space: Leo Rosten celebrates Yiddish humor in "The Joys of Yiddish" and in a brand new book of jokes.

Musical people, and others relish the dead-pan Prof. Peter Schikele's creation, P.D.Q. Bach, the Spike Jones of classical music. Archeologists and travellers surfeited with what "they did" and "they said" get a good laugh from David McCauley's books, including "Motel Of The Mysteries," describing a dig centuries hence which mistakes a motel for a religious building.

One of my favorite little gems is "The Young Visitors" by Daisy Ashford, a nine year old who used astute powers of observation to craft a marvelous tale of Mr. Salteena, an elderly man of 42 years-old and his young friend Ethel Monticue, who was so daring as to use "ruge" and needed to be revived by a "few drops of champagne."

There are others. If you have funny favorites, please share, and we'll run them in another column, as an alternative to the flu.

Book Review: Guide to Cross Country Skiing

"Guide to Cross-Country Skiing in New England"
Authors: Lynn and Tony Chamberlain
Globe-Pequot Press

Cross-country or Nordic skiing, ancient as it may be, continues its phenomenal growth in our region as the newest development in the sport.

This year, as another ski season approaches, two local authors have published an authoritative guide to the Nordic sport. Guide to Cross-Country Skiing in New England, by Lyn and Tony Chamberlain, published by the Globe-Pequot Press, Chester, CT, is a book written to show the beginner how and where to get going and the veteran skier how to go about breaking into new territory.

The Chamberlains, who have lived in Duxbury for 19 years, moved here from central Maine where, during their college days, they developed their love for skiing and the outdoors.

Lyn is a former reporter and feature writer for the Brockton Enterprise and Tony has been ski and outdoor editor at the Boston Globe for six years. In addition, Tony has taught English classes at DHS for nearly 20 years.

Their book, which grows out of the Chamberlains' long experience in the hills and back country of New England, gives full reviews of more than 160 ski areas, from Coventry, CT to Ashland, ME in the center of Aroostook County and, of course, everything in between.

In Vermont alone, the state where the old country inn has been raised to an art form, the Chamberlains review 60 touring areas, from the rather civilized elegance of Woodstock to the remote wildlands of the Northeast Kingdom of Jay.

Every entry includes information on the size of the trail system, levels of difficulty, type of grooming, and hours of operation. You learn what sorts of rental equipment and instruction is offered, and whether food and lodging are available at the site or nearby. There are detailed driving instructions for each area.

Beyond this, the Chamberlains write a personal review of each area, highlighting special features and describing the ambiance of the touring center and trail system. A sample from the Mt. Mansfield Ski Touring Center in Stowe, VT:

"Always noted as one of the ski capitals of the east, Stowe's 50 kilometers of mapped Nordic trails (25 kilometers are groomed and trackset) live up to that reputation. Mt. Mansfield offers a variety of terrain for every ability level in acreage that plunges deep into the solitude and beauty of the Green Mountains. Intersecting with other trail systems, skiers from Mt. Mansfield actually have 150 kilometers of trails at their disposal.

"Using both sides of the historic Ranch Valley up the flanks of Mt. Mansfield, these trails are exceptionally well maintained, a complex that provides the basis for the famous Stowe Derby—an annual 12-mile trot from the top of Mansfield into the village of Stowe. Two wilderness trails connect with the Skytop Trail and the luncheon cabin of the Trapp Family Lodge complex, allowing a full day of touring or wilderness exploration."

Beyond the area reviews, Cross-Country Skiing in New England provides information on a short-cut waxing method, waxable and waxless skis, clothes to wear, citizen racing and an epilogue "One of Two Few Days" which gives readers a day in the life of a skiing couple in the remote Rangeley Lake region of western Maine.

Rebecca needs a quality foster care home

(DARE Family Services Greater Boston Region, a private social service agency, is looking for quality foster homes in the South Shore area. Here is a specific article about Rebecca. Another child, looking for a home, will be published next week. Ed.)

Rebecca is a 16-year-old adolescent girl in need of long term foster care. Rebecca comes from a very disruptive home environment where she has been subjected to both physical and sexual abuse.

She is a bright perceptive youngster who displays age appropriate behavior and is able to develop and maintain positive relationships with others.

Rebecca needs an individual or family who can provide her with structure and support. She will test limits set by her caretakers but responds well to consistency.

If you are an individual or family who can open your heart to Rebecca and offer her a long term commitment to foster her growth, please call DARE Family Services at 628-3696.

Special training, twenty-four hour support, and financial reimbursement are available.

MUSINGS — By John H. Cutler

☐ In a recent editorial we mentioned signs which impinge on our personal liberties. There is a sign on a private pier leading to a boathouse on Edgartown Harbor which reads: PRIVATE PROPERTY—KEEP OUT. TRESPASSERS WILL BE VIOLATED.

☐ I didn't say this guy was unpopular, I merely said he was not the favorite of his father and mother, although he was an only child.

☐ Blessed is the child whose father died rich.

☐ As Clarence Darrow said, "The first half of our lives is ruled by our parents; the latter half by our children."

☐ Richard Brinsley Sheridan, the great English author, speaking: "Give them a corrupt House of Lords; give them a venal House of Commons; give them a tyrannical Prince; give them a truckling court—and let me have an unfettered press; I will defy them to encroach a hair's breadth upon the liberties of England."

☐ You cannot joke an enemy into a friend, but you may joke a friend into an enemy.

☐ It's an old Russian proverb: Don't drive your horse with a whip; use an oat bag.

☐ Definition of a decision: What a man makes when he can't find anyone to serve on a committee.

Favorite headlines:

☐ Cherry Valley (N.Y.) News: Want woman to hook rugs and a salesman.

☐ Display ad in the Norristown (Pa.) Times Herald: Bring your bedroom problems to me.

☐ Baby-sitting ad in the Palo Alto (Cal.) Times: Middle-aged woman who enjoys boys by the hour; mostly at night.

Which American president had the most children? Answer below.

☐ Tom Winship, former Boston Globe editor, speaking: "Many newspapers today are so similar, that some newspapers could be published in another city and it would be days before the customers noticed what they were reading."

☐ Rebuke your friends in private; praise them in public.

☐ Answer to quiz: President John Tyler had 15 children.

NEARLY NATIVE — by DARRELL BERGER

A journey through this year's toyland

Just a few doors from Burberry's, and across Newbury Street from the Ritz-Carlton is FAO Schwarz, the ultimate upscale toy store.

Beginning to the right as one enters (with the Rolling Stones' "I can't get no Satisfaction" wafting curiously in the background) is a doll department. The Barbie collection is prominent, having become not just a toy but a long-standing social phenomenon.

"Japanese Barbie" is the newest addition, with ethnic features, though just as tall as the WASP model. An unconscious bow in our trade deficit, perhaps.

Barbie also has a pet, "Prince: The Poodle Barbie cares for and loves." Is it just coincidence that it shares a name with rock's currently most erotic performer? When one considers that her pubescent companion, Skipper, is decked out in a tank top and called "Hot Stuff," one does begin to wonder.

The only truly tasteless gift in the whole store is called "Fancy Furs," made to be given to Cabbage Patch Dolls.The tasteless part is that among the furs are those labeled "Timber Wolf" and "Leopard." Give your doll furs made from endangered species. Not a good lesson.

Next to the furs is a whole preschool of extremely realistic dolls by Carolle, so realistic as to be grotesque. Overly realistic toys rob the imagination, and though they are often expensive, they have little lasting play value.

Moving past a great menagerie of cuddly animals my eye was taken by a nifty gladiator outfit for only $14.95, complete with helmet, breastplate, shield and sword. I wish they had this when I was a kid. Even then I was fascinated with Rome, either because of a previous lifetime spent in the Empire or because Jean Simmons caught my eye as a kid when I first saw "Spartacus."

Next comes some classy toys. Breyer Animal Creations has a series of horse statues selling between $6 and $15. They are beautifully done and feature various breeds as well as winged Pegasus.

In the same collectors' vein are a number of metal airplanes called "Fast Wings" at only $2.50 each. And for the ultimate preppie child, you can buy a "paint-your-own-duck-decoy-replica" for $6.95, chosing among Teals, Buffleheads and such.

The absolute best gift I saw (which means of course the gift that I would most like to have) was a three-dimensional pop-up book on the life and creations of Leonardo DaVinci. Beautiful and inspiring, at $14.95 it is no more than an adult hardcover, and could give an active young mind years of pleasure and insight.

Next came the television merchandise, which is now dominated by personified machines. While some show cleverness in transforming themselves from robots to cars, planes or weapons, they are among the more expensive items, and rather put me off. I think it's because I fear they teach us that machines are superior to living creatures. Indeed the largest robot has the awesome name "Godsigma."

Another TV hype is the pseudo-mythic Masters of the Unvierse, creatures who look addicted to steroids, with as much depth of character as pro wrestlers.

And finally, Omnibot sells for $350, "The Programmable Personal Robot with Memory that walks, talks, and carries objects. Tape Deck and Alarm Clock included." The little lawnmower-engine-powered replica of a Mercedes 560 SL is $2,500. The clerk said they had sold two.

I was impressed with FAO Schwarz. It is possible to buy a fine gift for any budget, and almost all were of decent quality and thoughtfulness. Then I went to Woolworth's.

Woolworth's had last year's Barbie dolls and toys from "Star Wars" movies long past. They had almost no books. What they had in common with FAO Schwarz was the TV toys, showing how pervasive those images are.

They also had many violence and war toys, G. I. Joe stuff and quite a few cheap guns as well.

A disturbing thought occurred to me. Almost no guns, violent or militaristic toys were found in the upscale toy store, unless you count gladiator costumes and robots. But in the store of the masses, Woolworth's, there was much violence to be found. What does this say about whom we expect to fight our wars, or whom we expect to get violence confused with play?

Of course Woolworth's also had some amusing toys. There is the venerable electric football game, where players still run willy-nilly, as they did when I was a kid pretending they were the Baltimore Colts. And they had "Wrestling Superstars" dolls. Hulk Hogan for $7.98.

Regardless of where one shops, one will pay the most for the least when yielding to the demands TV creates in our children. The best buys are books or objects which show children how fascinating or playful the real world can be, toys which connect people rather than isolate them.

Yet such reasonableness is easily overwhelmed at Christmas. A young friend of mine with unassailable logic of childhood, recently told me why he knows that Santa Claus exists. He is certain, he said, "Because our parents would never spend that much money."

THE DRAGON'S DUNGEON — By CLAIRE McDONOUGH

Creatively speaking, this class solves the problems

"I don't know why you say my course in creativity and creative problem solving isn't working," I told the Dragon.

"I feel it's already had a significant impact on my life."

"I'll agree with that," he admitted. "The question is, what kind of impact? You're forever complaining that you have to find some way to simplify your life. So you enroll in a Master's level course, even though you have no intention of getting a Master's degree.It not only keeps you out late another night every week, you also have required reading and homework to do. This is simplifying?"

"You're not looking at the broad picture," I objected. "I'm not taking the course because I want an advanced degree. I'm taking it because I want to learn to be more creative.

"Futhermore, Shirley Southworth's taking it, and she's a fun person and I enjoy riding home from Boston with her."

"In addition, you know I love to watch "Spenser for Hire," but if I start relaxing early in the evening I fall asleep before it's over and I spend the next few days asking people how it ended. There's no point asking you," I added, "because you fall asleep before it starts.

"But the biggest benefit is the creativity with which I now handle all manners of problems both at work and in my personal life."

Breida giggled. "You'll have to give her that one, Dad. She was pretty creative when Skip told her that he and Jason and some of their friends wanted to go to a dance the other Friday night and she said she was too tired to stay up and worry."

"She wasn't all that creative," the Dragon objected. "She got the idea from something Paula Golden told her."

"True," I replied airily, "but I creatively adapted it to my specific situation."

"When Skip shifted to that silky tone of voice and said, 'You don't have to stay up, and you don't have to worry. After all, you trust me, don't you?'I immediately constructed a mental matrix identifying all possible solutions to the problem utilizing fluency, flexibility, originality, and elaboration. I piggybacked ideas, once I had identified the problem, I then evaluated them and eliminated the less possible options.

"Then" I recalled happily, "I told him, 'You're right. I don't have to stay up; I don't have to worry. And you can go to the dance.

"What time does it get out?

"When he looked virtuous and said, ' We'll leave at eleven,' I told him, 'Great. I'm going to set my alarm clock for 11:45. If it wakes me I'm going to be very, very angry, so you and Jason had better be home in time to shut it off before it rings.'

"Now that's creative," I added smugly.

"Sure," the Dragon admitted. "you got a couple of hours sleep while they were out, but when they came home they were laughing so hard they knocked the clock off your bureau, got all the dogs barking, and woke up everyone in the house. Don't you feel you created more problems than you solved?"

"Not for me," I told him. "I was able to relax for about three hours. I knew that if there was a problem before that, someone would come and wake me up. There's no way I'd be able to sleep through it. But if they were still out after 11:45 it would be time for some serious worrying and phoning around.

"Futhermore, now Skip's friends' parents can relax, too. They'll know that since Skip drives their sons home before he comes here, unless they get a call from me they can relax and sleep through the night."

The Dragon frowned.

"As I see it, you've solved your problem, and Skip and Jason's problem, and Skip's friends' parents' problem. But you've created a problem for me.

"I realize you probably weren't really sleeping anyway, but I was. Are they going to continue to wake me out of a sound sleep every time they rush into our bedroom to beat the alarm.?"

I patted his hand and clucked sympathetically.

"You do have a problem," I told him. "Why don't you construct a matrix? You could indulge in a little divergent thinking, then maybe ask a group of your friends to get together with you and brainstorm. Then evaluate the ideas, being careful not go for premature closure.

"You might want to read a book on lateral thinking that I found terribly helpful."

The Dragon shot me a suspicious glance.

"Why do I get the idea you're trying to lure me into enrolling in that cockamamie class?"

I shrugged. "Well, it would mean that Shirley and I wouldn't have to wait an hour and a half for the P & B bus."

I smiled creatively.

The Passing Lane

By Jane Lane

This is no typical , surburban, Yuppie auto

(This is a monthly column devoted to the review of automobiles; seen from the perspective of a woman who must survive the daily struggle of commuting and surviving in suburbia. Ed.)

Lincoln-Mercury Merkur XR4Ti

Base sticker price: $18,000
EPA mileage rating:
26 m.p.g. highway; 19 m.p.g. City

This is no typical automobile. It is not a staid family sedan, nor is it some cheap compact (believe me, it is not cheap).

The Merkur is too sophisticated, too distinctive for the inexperienced tastes of Yuppies. Yet, sadly enough, they are likely the only ones who could afford this fine car.

I can only hope they savor the experience and mature gracefully.

The Merkur is for singles who want to impress other singles. It is a car for old marrieds who would like to relive the experience of impressing someone. And, it is a family car. By gosh, I easily squeezed three good-sized kids into that rear seat. It bothered me only slightly that they had to hold their breath for the duration of each trip.

This is a car that impressed the heck out of me.

It is a compact, no denying that. Ample leg room in the front, marginal in the rear. It also boasts of ample trunk space, enough for eight bags of groceries.

The best thing about the Merkur is the way it handles. With the slightest touch, this car is completely in your command. That was something sadly lacking in the rear seat with those three good-sized kids.

It is a smooth-riding small car. Over bumps and life's rocky roads, it drives as if it were skimming above a sheet of ice. The Merkur is imported from Ford of Germany for Lincoln-Mercury. It looks and behaves like other great imported cars, although independent tests have concluded the Merkur is favored over BMW, Audi and Porsche. Now tell me that's not impressive.

It is a fun car - the type of vehicle you're anxious to drive. It's the kind of car in which you turn your head and snicker indulgently while your neighbor loads the kids into the family wagon - the one with the coat hanger supporting the exhaust system.

The controls are a bit confusing. I must have traveled a week without making a turn because I couldn't locate the directional switch.

There are some simple-minded drivers out there

(present company included). So why can't they make cars with simple buttons that say "left arrow here," "radio on/off here" instead of symbols that make drivers more insane. In the Merkur, for instance, one may suffocate before learning where the windows controls are located. Although the switch is conveniently situated on the control panel between the two front seats, the buttons are not labeled. The first time I drove the car, I was deathly afraid to touch that control in fear of ejection through the sunroof.

I've made it a goal in my life never to learn what many of these buttons do. For instance, I believe I'm contributing to safer highways if I refuse to test the cruise control.

The Merkur is a great-looking sporty car. Bi-plane spoilers over the trunk give it aerodynamic performance at highway speeds, and it looks sharp. Touted as the "ultimate driver's car," this vehicle lives up to its reputation.

It contains a 2.3 liter four-cylinder turbo-charged overhead-cam powerplant engine with electronic multi-port fuel injection. What this means to the driver, is that the Merkur 0-50 m.p.h. rate should be illegal. This car is fast with a capital S for speeding ticket. The only reason I escaped with a warning was my lame excuse about test driving this car for a major metropolitan newspaper.

The Merkur is an adventure in driving. Once you step inside the luxury of this sports sedan, you won't want to get out.

Be forewarned. The Merjur attracts attention.

One day, I parked the car at a local shopping mall. A crew of about ten construction workers on lunch break strode over to the vehicle and inspected every inch of that car.

As I strolled past them and opened the door for my three ill-behaved children, I believe I heard one man mutter, "what a waste."

"I'm only babysitting," I lied as I sat inside the leather-upholstered interior. "You don't think I could afford a car like this if I had a family, do you?"

And that's the truth.

Merkur XR4Ti has been extremely well-received by automotive experts and driving enthusiasts since its introduction in early 1985. The high-performance sports sedan, imported from Germany by Lincoln-Mercury, continues into the 1986- nodel year as the ultimate driver's car. From its aerodynamically efficient styling with distinctive biplane rear spoiler to its responsive 2.3-liter turbocharged engine, fully independent suspension and driver-oriented interior with full analog instrumentation and special sports seats, everything about XR4Ti is geared toward optimizing the driving experience.

State and local officials keep pushing for a plan

It may seem like a political seesaw, but most town officials seem optimistic that an agreement for a wastewater treatment plan will be achieved.

Last week, attorneys for the sewer commission cautiously advised selectmen that an amended version of the Ward Engineering plan was at hand. Less than a week later, the state Department of Environmental Quality Engineering (DEQE) dashed that hope in a letter refuting the interpretation by the town's special counsel.

The latest development occurred Tuesday when Sen. William Golden and a representative of Rep. Mary Jeanette Murray, met with officials from the Attorney General's office and DEQE.

Although optimistic about the town's chances for achieving "a basis for an understanding of agreement," Sen. Golden warned there are "serious problems" to resolve between the state and Cohasset.

"I am optimistic that we are moving in the right direction," he said following the Tuesday meeting. "We will be meeting again at the end of this week with the town's special counsels and the attorney general's office. I do not view myself as making any decisions for the town, but only in keeping the process open and on-going."

The state senator said he remained concerned about two entities that separate and distinguish the perspectives of the town and state agencies.

"We are working with two very different perspectives," Sen. Golden explained. "The state is focusing on the enforcement aspect, and the town is focusing on how they will receive funding. I don't want to see these discussions fall apart. I want to work toward keeping the communications open."

The meeting Tuesday morning included Sen. Golden and an official from Rep. Murray's office

Voters approve raise, but police protest contract impasse

Without debate, Town Meeting approved a five percent pay increase for the Cohasset Police Association. But the attorney for the patrolmen's union is puzzled by the vote, which he said erroneously suggests that contract negotiations have been completed.

"We are in the midst of negotiations," Atty. Joseph McParland stated Tuesday. "I don't know why selectmen and the personnel committee feel that they're at the end of negotiations. We haven't signed anything, and we are willing to sit down and negotiate some more."

The police union has repeatedly stated its opposition to the final contract offer made by the town in October, and has filed an unfair labor complaint against the town for concluding the negotiations without resolution.

Currently, that complaint is before the state Labor Relations Commission. Atty. McFarland did not know when that complaint would be finalized, "but the fact is, we are still in negotiations with the town," he said.

"I don't understand why the town agreed to the five percent salary increase when we don't have a contract. The town has taken the position we are at an impasse and we are not. They will not be allowed to take away the unilateral benefits given to our people (the police department) without negotiation," he continued.

At Town Meeting Monday night, voters approved a request from the personnel committee to raise the police salaries by five percent retroactive from July 1, 1984, with a second raise effective July 1, 1985. The salary increase schedule went into effect Oct. 28, although Town Meeting was needed to obtain funding for the pay raises.

The total cost of the pay increase will be $61,845.

Personnel Committee Chairman Janet Daggett

Chief Brock to begin January 1

The town's new fire chief, Daniel Brock, will begin his duties in Cohasset January 1.

The Southboro fire captain was selected from five candidates screened and interviewed by the Fire Chief Search Committee and selectmen. He was the unanimous choice of selectmen, although the search committee had ranked him second behind Cohasset Fire Captain Mark Trask.

Selectmen signed Brock's three-year contract at a meeting Tuesday night. The contract will commence Jan. 1 at a salary of $34,000 and conclude Dec. 31, 1988. At the beginning of the new fiscal year (July 1) until Dec. 31, 1986, he will receive $35,360. On Jan. 1, 1987 through December, 1987 he will receive an increase of not less than eight percent of the salary in effect at that time, and not more than 13 percent greater than the annual salary paid during the 1987 calendar year.

Selectmen said Brock signed his contract and has completed and passed a physical examination. He will begin his duties in Cohasset the first of January.

The contract, which was drawn up by town counsel, is similar to the document signed two years ago by Fire Chief Martin Dooley.

Included in the contract is a clause stipulating that Brock, currently a resident of Southboro, must move to within seven miles of Cohasset. That move must be made within 90 days of his employment by the town.

A concluding contract clause stated that Brock may be dismissed for good cause, including but not limited to inefficiency, conduct unbecoming a Chief, or insubordination.

Selectmen chose Brock over the final four candidates, citing his extensive education, experience and "enthusiasm for his profession." After interviewing the final five Fire Chief candidates, selectmen visited the communities where they worked. Three of the selectmen visited Southboro.

During the visit, Chairman Frank England stated "Brock's extensive fire education and background and his general enthusiasm toward the profession of fire fighting" convinced him to vote for the Southboro Fire Department veteran.

Fire Chief Dooley's contract expires Dec. 31.

Teachers ratify three-year contract

The Cohasset Teachers Association has ratified a three-year contract calling for an immediate five and a half percent salary increase.

CTA President George Fortin said Tuesday that the teachers voted and signed the contract at a meeting that day. Saying the 91-member association was pleased with the contract, Fortin explained that the five and a half percent increase was retroactive to Sept. 1.

The following year there will be a four percent increase, with a two percent raise 91 days into the 1986 - 1987 school year. In September, 1988, there will be a four and a half percent raise increase, with an additional two percent raise after 91 days.

The stumbling block which initially held up contract negotiations, was the reduction in force (rif) clause contained in the previous contract. Fortin said the teachers fought to revise the clause, which had allowed a teacher to be rif'd "totally at the whim of the superintendent and the department head," Fortin said. "What we wanted was a fair and equitable rif clause. We are not denying the administrations right to rif teachers, but the language had to define exactly what would take place."

There were other items which stalled contract completion along the way, Fortin said, all of which were not as significant as the rif clause. At one point in the negotiations, teacher workloads were an issue.

The CTA president explained that with changes made this year in the curriculum, many teachers were affected with greater workloads. Changes

Cohasset's week . . .

Hazardous waste drive

Cohasset citizens joined with others across the state in collecting enough signatures to qualify an aggressive toxic waste cleanup question for the ballot next fall.

Chartis Langmaid, local coordinator for the Massachusetts Campaign to Clean Up Hazardous Waste, said today that statewide the campaign had collected 86,221 certified signatures during a massive two-month petition drive, 23,713 more than the 61,508 required. Two hundred and thirteen of those signatures were collected in Cohasset and 12,071 in Norfolk County.

The campaign delivered the required number of certified signatures to the Secretary of State's office in Boston before the day's 5 p.m. deadline.

The ballot question would put the state on a strict timetable for identifying the state's toxic waste dumpsites and preventing any hazardous materials at those sites from endangering the public health or the environment.

"The success of our petition drive shows that residents of this state are tired of waiting for action on hazardous waste cleanup," said Chartis Langmaid. "With these signatures we're now in a position to know that we'll get action oncleanups."

The next step in the ballot process is for the legislature to vote on the proposal by May of next year. If it fails to pass, another 10,500 signatures must be colleted for the proposal to go on the ballot.

We would like to see the legislature act," said Chartis Langmaid. "But if they don't, we'll go to the people. And we'll win if we do."

The Massachusetts campaign to Clean Up Hazardous Waste is a coalition of citizens, local community groups, and statewide and national groups such as the Massachusetts Public Interest Research Group (MASSPIRG) and the Clean Water Action Project.

Edison cuts charges

Eastern Edison Co. bills will be lower for the next three months as the result of reductions in the company's fuel and oil conservation adjustment charges.

The state Dept. of Public Utilities authorized Eastern Edison to cut its fuel charge from 2.9 cents per kilowatthour (kwh) to 2.5 cents, and its oil conservation adjustment from 4 cents to 3.5 cents.

For an Eastern Edison residential customer using 500 kwh per month, the changes will mean a reduction of $2.10 (or 4.21 percent) in monthly bills during December, January and February.

Eastern Edison Co. President Allan K. Hamer attributed the reductions to reduced prices for coal and oil.

Tax bill problems

Selectmen said they are confused and distressed over recent reports that the town has lost the right to tax boats moored on the Scituate side of Cohasset Harbor.

Board members will ask state Rep. Frank M. Hynes (D-Marshfield, Scituate) to explain how the bill got passed without selectmens' knowledge.

"The first I'd heard about the tax change was when I read about it" in last week's issue of the Scituate Mariner, Selectman Gerald E. Dwight said, "and it really bothers me when I have to read about these things in the newspapers."

The bill, signed into law late last month by Gov. Michael S. Dukakis, was filed by state Rep. Mary Jeanette Murray (R-Cohasset) in an apparent effort to simplify tax collections in Cohasset Harbor, which have been disputed by both towns for years.

"I also have a problem with this bill sneaking through," Selectman Andrew P. Zilonis said. "We intended to give our tax proceeds (from boats moored in the harbor) to Cohasset for enforcement — we didn't intend to give up all our rights there."

Cohasset "wants the whole pie, while a large chunk of Cohasset Harbor lies within Scituate," Zilonis said.

Selectmen Chairman Joseph P. Norton said the board should ask Rep. Hynes in a letter how and why the bill was passed without Scituate's knowledge and what it meaps to the town "other than what it says in the newspaper."

New committee

Selectmen approved the formation of a committee to assist an architect with plans to renovate the police and fire complex.

Special Town Meeting appropriated $20,000 to hire an architect to finalize plans for the project, and to prepare bid specifications for the work.

Ben Blake, a retired architect, has volunteered to assist the architect during the design phase. The Board of Selectmen decided that Selectmen Mary Jane McArthur and Diane Sullivan will serve with Blake as an informal committee. The police and fire chiefs will serve as ex-officio members of the committee.

State holds sewer meetings . . .

and about ten DEQE and attorney general representatives.

"We held the meeting in order to facilitate the dialogue between the town and the state. It is a very serious situation with serious consequences. My role at this meeting was to attempt to get the parties together," Sen. Golden explained.

A key portion of Tuesday's session was devoted to discussing a proposed understanding for agreement between the state and Cohasset.

According to the senator, it was his interpretation of a meeting between the town and DEQE held Nov. 1, "that a basis for an agreement was set forth in broad strokes. I believe there was a consensus on that broad framework.

"Unfortunately, that framework has not been completed," he continued. "And that is what we have to do. We have to fill in the blanks - take what is a broad basis of agreement and reduce it to a written document. This process concerns me. I don't want this to fall apart. I want the discussions to keep going."

Last week, Sewer Commission Special Counsel Allan van Gestel informed selectmen that a tentative agreement had been worked out Nov. 1 between the state and the town. Although no formal document had been adopted, and the state had yet to signify its approval of a draft agreement, the attorney said he and the sewer commission were optimistic. An amended version of the Ward Engineering plan had been achieved at the meeting, he said. It was only a matter now of working out contract language for adoption of an official statement.

But DEQE Deputy Commissioner Thomas McLoughlin notified Atty. van Gestel Dec. 6 that an agreement had not be reached. He said the state had not reviewed the draft agreement, but would do so this week.

"I will, however, indicate that your draft memorandum does not accurately reflect the Department's recollection of our discussions on Nov. 1, and the Department has substantial disagreement with much of the document," he wrote.

Alarmed by the negative tone of the letter, Selectman Diane Sullivan contacted McLoughlin prior to Monday's Special Town Meeting. It was her interpretation of that conversation, "that DEQE agreed at the Nov. 1 meeting there was a feeling that an agreement had been reached. However, the draft of the agreement was not written up the way they wanted."

Sullivan said she was "optimistic" that the state agreed in theory to a basis for an agreement, but contract language would have to be further developed for adoption of a formal statement.

"I was very concerned, and that is why I contacted Mr. McLoughlin," she stated. "But after talking with him Monday, I feel our attorneys were on the mark and that McLoughlin felt we had an agreement. Now it's a matter of developing those compromises into a legal document."

Sewer Commission Chairman Charles DeSantis remained cautiously optimistic about the chances of Cohasset signing an agreement with the state.

Reviewing the memorandum of agreement forwarded by van Gestel to the state, DeSantis said he is confident a formal agreement can be approved by the state agency.

If an agreement is adopted by the state, DeSantis said he will be pleased the town will have a wastewater plan it can afford "but I am displeased that we are not getting the plan that was clearly the objective of all clean water legislation since 1972," he stated. "I am amazed that the community has been made to go through an exhaustive process to come up with a plan that will cost about $8 million. I am distraught that we have followed the textbook solution and in the end it was cut into pieces and we have taken only parts of the plan."

On the other hand, he noted, had the town accepted the original Metcalf and Eddy project, "we would have had a major plant construction. Not only would it not have served all the town, but we would be bankrupt at the same time. I am thankful that we'll be fiscally stable in the future, but I am very disapointed that the objectives of Congress have not been achieved because the state refused to live up to its end," DeSantis stated.

Chiropractic for HEALTH

SHOULDER PAIN

Shoulder pain is a confusing pain in that its origin is hard for the patient to pinpoint. The cause of the pain sometimes may be as simple as over-fatigue, chilling, or having held the head in an awkward position. The pain also can be due to something actually occuring in the shoulder such as injury, bursitis or over-use of the muscles. Or, it can be referred pain which is pain felt in the shoulder that actually originates from a problem somewhere else. In fact, disorders in the neck present themselves much more frequently as shoulder pain than as neck pain. If one experiences shoulder pain, allow a chiropractor to pinpoint its origins as the first step in its treatment.

Chiropractic addresses the needs of all parts, organs and extremities of the body. Whether discomfort be in the neck or back, whether you are experiencing stress or a host of other undesireable situations, chiropractic may well serve your needs. By addressing points of interference along the spinal column, chiropractic applications allows for the resumption of Mother Nature's natural healing instructions so that every part of the body may achieve a total state of well-being. Inspirational words presented by Coleman

By Jane Lane
Mariner Staff

You should be sitting by the fireplace. While the wind whirls noisily outside and snowflakes gently fall to the ground, you will be inside staring into the glow of a warm fire.

With the tape player on, you rest into the comfort of your favorite chair and listen to the most soothing words you'll ever hear. This is how one envisions listening to Ken Coleman's latest project, a tape cassette called "Ken's Corner."

The poems, tales, and whimsical observations that have been Ken's trademark for the past ten years on Plymouth radio station WPLM, have been transcribed onto a home cassette tape. Now, the sounds of his deep baritone voice can fill your livingroom as you listen to the man whose five-minute daily poetry session on radio has become a South Shore tradition.

Coleman, a resident of Rustic Drive since 1966, has many projects and ambitions. But one of his favorites, at least for the moment, is this hour-long cassette of what he terms, "inspirational, heart-warming, and thought-provoking" words.

In his rich voice, trained for many years as a professional broadcaster, Coleman recites poetry, reads short essays and provides an hour of easy enjoyment. The words are nostalgic, silly, meaningful, and heartfelt.

Although his daily programs at WPLM draw a "mature" audience, Coleman said he receives mail and requests from teens and young adults. He has attempted to incorporate something for everyone in this new tape.

There are poems about growing old - funny comments about the aging process. There are short, funny observations about life as a young child. As Coleman noted, the poems and essays are his way of providing a bit of peace and tranquility into an otherwise hectic world.

The tape was a venture borne from his ten-year stint at the Plymouth radio station. Reacting to fan mail and phone calls, Coleman decided to record a tape with his favorite works.

"Ken's Corner" is now available at Lauriat Bookstores throughout New England, and at the South Shore Plaza. It may also be obtained at the Hingham Square Bookstore and the Bookport at Hingham Plaza.

"It has nothing at all to do with sports," Coleman noted during a recent conversation at his home. "Unless there is an occasional inspirational message about a particular sport. These are simply beautiful poems and inspirational thoughts composed by famous and not-so-famous authors. Actually, some of the work is my own, and others I gather from my audience and my travels around the country. I love to go into bookstores and look through poetry books as I travel each summer."

For many years, Coleman's name has been synonymous with the Boston Red Sox. Starting a year before the Sox's "Impossible Dream" of 1967, Coleman has traveled with the baseball team broadcasting home and away games.

The poetry program, he explained, is his longtime secret passion. His love for words naturally geared itself toward literature, as well as the broadcasting booth, he added.

The idea of the cassette evolved as Coleman noticed the increasing number and variety of tape players. Lauriat's agreed to the concept, and the tape hit the stores about two weeks ago.

"Ken's Corner" is about 25 minutes in length on each side and contains Coleman's favorite works including Rudyard Kipling's "If," "Beatitudes for the Mentally Retarded" by Edgar Guest, and a number of "heavy and lighter commentaries," Coleman said. One of the selections described a family's balanced love for their three children, entitled, "All Three Best Loved." Another, "My Son Starts School Today," is a heartwarming rendition from a parent as their child leaves the security of home for the first time.

"Ken's Corner" on WPLM is a five-minute easy-listening program heard each weekday evening. Whether Coleman is away with the Red Sox, or back home at Fenway Park, the show is aired throughout the year.

Years ago, "Ken's Corner" was heard in Quincy

'Ken Coleman's Sports Fantasies' . .

through radio station WJDA. It was a similar format, Coleman explained, which in later years was transferred to the Plymouth station.

The tape cassette is just the latest venture for this lifelong South Shore resident. During the off-season Coleman keeps himself busy with various projects including a relatively new and successful enterprise,"Ken Coleman's Sports Fantasies."

Again, the project would be better explained if it could be heard. But what it entails is a professionally-produced tape cassette recording which plunks anyone right into his or her ultimate sports fantasy.

The customer is asked to fill out a detailed questionnaire regarding their life's history. From the information submitted, Coleman produces a play-by-play recording of a famous sports moment, with the customer participating as the hero in that bit of history.

For instance, a woman from Baltimore requested a tape of her husband fighting Mohammed Ali for the world heavweight championship. It had been a fantasy of her husband to fight in the ring, one that was never fulfilled.

But Coleman, with the assistance of a sound effects professional, produced such a realistic fight scene that you'd swear this guy was a champion boxer. Amusing personal comments are added into the tape; names of relatives, ex-girlfriends, parents and friends.

For $168, you receive a custom-made tape of your biggest sports fantasy. This professional tape is an heirloom, Coleman noted, something the owner will want to play repeatedly. Such tapes are requested for anniversaries, birthdays and retirements, as well as for special Christmas presents.

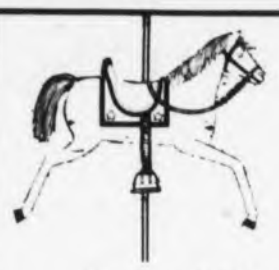
Thus far, Coleman has produced tapes for Boston Mayor Ray Flynn winning the Boston Marathon, radio host Larry King winning a World Series, Marshfield's Slyvester Ray winning a heavyweight championship bout, and Ray Goulding (of Bob and Ray) pitching the winning game for the Red Sox in the 1946 World Series. The play-by-play is authentic, and the scenarios are hysterical.

Coleman recently completed a tape for a Holbrook softball team. According to the premise of the tape, the Red Sox were delayed in Toronto, and the Holbrook team had to substitute in the last inning of an important game.

"It's been a great success," Coleman said of the Sports Fantasy venture. "The cost is high because these are professionally-done and it takes a lot of time and effort to write a good script, get the right sound effects and to tape it. But it's also a lot of fun."

Also on Coleman's busy winter agenda, is a third book he's in the midst of writing. This one will be entitled, "The Impossible Dream Remembered." The book will be a daily recording of the events on and off the field during the miraculous season that Coleman said "turned around the Red Sox organization in regard to the interest of the fans."

It will not be a "tell-all" novel about the private lives of the '67 players, but a diary of the year which astounded fans and experts alike. The preface of the book will be written by 1967 Cy Young Award winner and Scituate neighbor Jim Lonborg.



Life for the Red Sox and Coleman hasn't been the same since 1967. It's been hectic and exciting, the very reason Coleman sought refuge in the quiet solitude of words. And now he is inviting others to join him.

Residents support retail business regulation at T.M.

Monday night voters endorsed a proposal that would allow selectmen to regulate hours of retail businesses in town, despite opposition from selectmen and local businessmen.

The advisory committee also rejected the proposal which was inserted into the Special Town Meeting warrant by selectmen. The committee stated there was not enough study of the proposal, and "there have been no problems within the retail business to warrant this article," according to member Fred Koed.

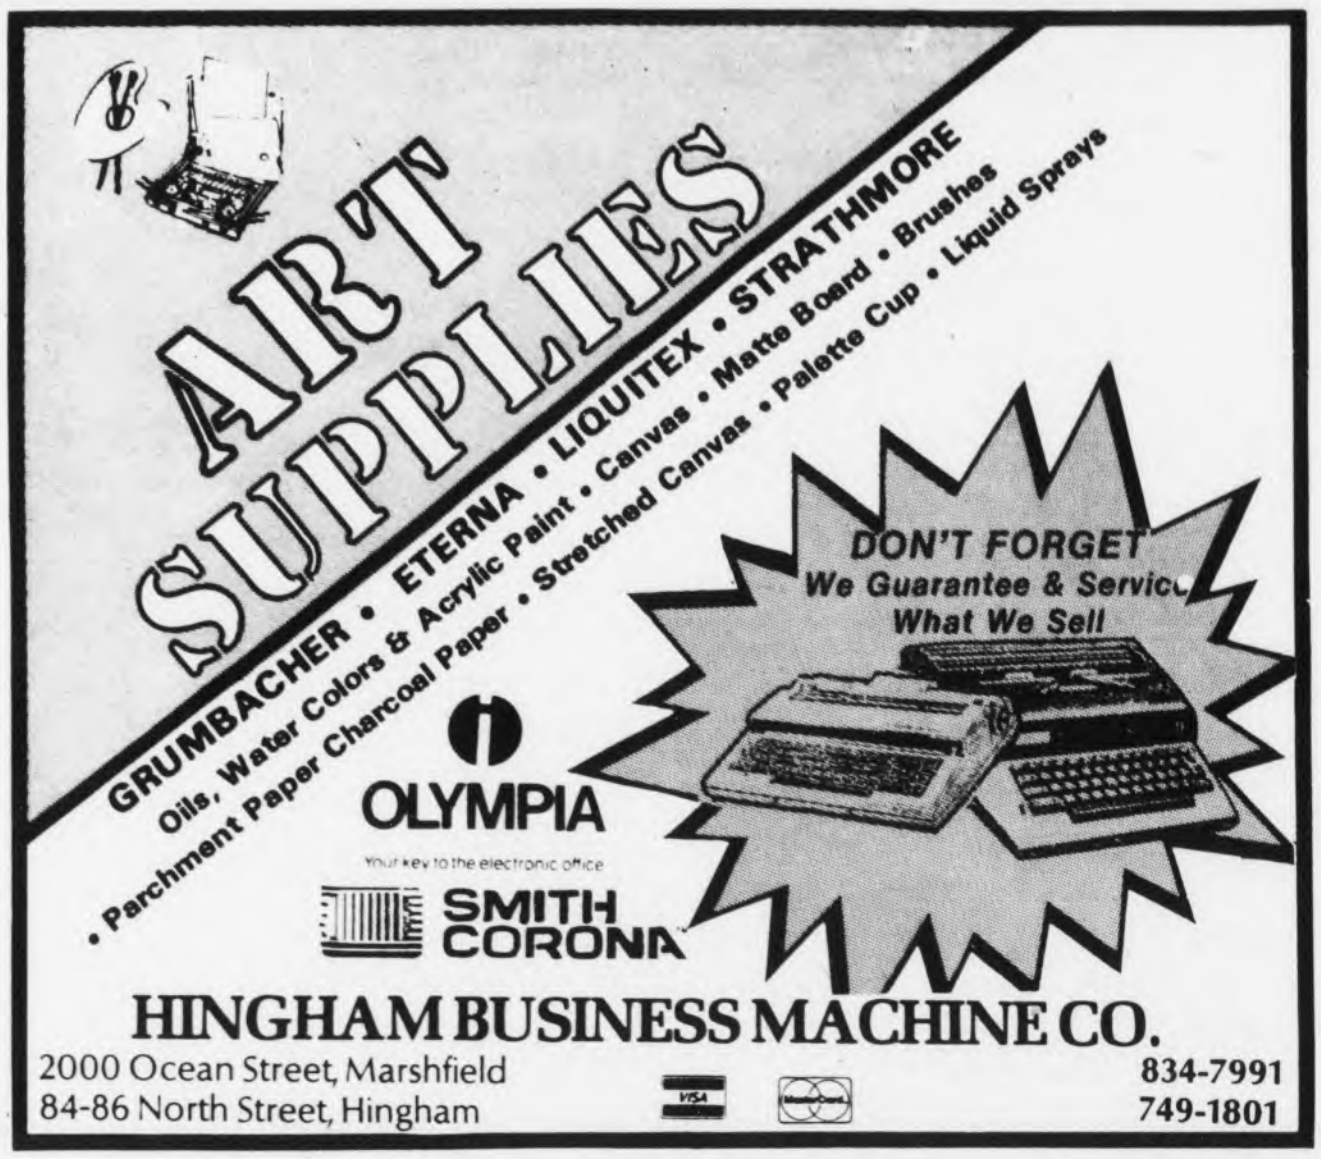
After meeting with several local businessmen last week, selectmen decided not to endorse Article 24 which would have allowed them to regulate hours of local retail businesses.

Discussion of the article centered on the proposed location of a super-supermarket along Rte. 3A. But as Planning Board member Robert Sturdy cautioned, "nothing limits it to a Stop and Shop or requires it to be a Stop and Shop."

Sturdy warned voters it was inappropriate to single out a sole tenant, since nothing the town has reviewed stated specifically that Stop and Shop will locate there. The planning board rejected the site plan proposal last month, although it is scheduled for appeal in Norfolk County Superior Court.

"Nothing has come before this town as a Stop and Shop," he stated. "This plan concerns a building of a certain size but nothing limits it to a Stop and Shop."

Developer Donald Staszko has proposed a super Stop and Shop at that location. Although earlier plans called for a 24-hour operation, representatives of the company said they would abide by the town's wishes and locate a round-the-clock store in Cohasset.



Members of the Fair Oaks Homeowners Association opposed the store plans, and requested that Article 24 be inserted into the Special Town Meeting warrant. They warned the town to have a bylaw prohibiting 24-hour operations before such a business opened in Cohasset.

At the meeting Monday night, Fair Oaks resident Kevin O'Donnell mentioned the continual appropriations granted by residents to appeal the wastewater treatment plan. "Consider what trouble it would be if we try to close a 24-hour operation," he stated.

Several local businessmen spoke in opposition to the article, saying it was regulating retail operations when there had been no infractions or complaints about their hours of business.

Dan Leahy, general manager of Kimballs By The Sea, argued that although sympathetic to the neighbors' concerns, "I take issue with this universal approach." He viewed the proposal as a "sweeping ed at the Nov. 1 meeting, DeSantis explained that Cohasset will still send its sewage to Hull for treatment. The present Cohasset treatment facility will be converted to a pumping station.

Although he has yet to see the completed report, Camp, Dresser and McKee has advised Hull that a septage receiving facility should be constructed. Such a facility will benefit Cohasset, DeSantis said, and is something Hull may incorporate into its future construction plans.

The sewer service area will equal "some part of the original Ward plan, from all areas concerned, to something much reduced by the type of funding we receive," he said.

In the amended version, the town has bargained away its expected 94 percent funding for the small diameter collector sewers. "But we have to be realistic," he stated, "if we are attempting to do this with different funding (fifty percent of the cost)."

Criteria for determining what areas will be sewered first, DeSantis said, will include those areas with the most severe problems, and its impact on the water quality. Engineers will determine the most crucial areas to be sewered, with some members of the Sewer Advisory Committee assisting the sewer commission in determining an order for the remaining areas.

"It will not be an elaborate procedure," he promised. "Based on the money available, we will make a judgment based on our engineer's advice. We will have public hearings on this and entertain comments and come to an acceptable understanding."

The sewer commission chairman said there will be a process of appeal and the sewer district will be reviewed and approved by Town Meeting before construction commences.

The rehabilitation of on-site septic systems was originally slated for 94 percent funding of the design and construction. DeSantis said the priority of this project received so little priority, there is no funding for the construction of the systems.

"If we do see funding for the design of these on-site 'prototypes,' it will again be much less than we were looking for in the Ward plan. At least there will be some money for the design of the systems. At least that was agreed upon Nov.1 and included in van Gestel's memorandum of agreement," according to DeSantis.

All parties, he concluded, agreed the town should be reimbursed $90,000 from the $96,000 it spent for the development of the Ward Engineering plan.

Looking at what the town has achieved through an amended version of the alternative wastewater plan, DeSantis said, "we are doing what we can afford. It will correct our discharge permit violation and there will be no agreement for judgment. It will not have a severe negative impact on the environment and there will be no outfall into Sandy Beach. We not only can't afford to build a big plant, but we can't afford to maintain it."

Gjesteby attends meeting

Economic development, growth management, environmental mediation, and new economic development tools were among the topics discussed at the fall meeting of the New England Association of Regional Councils.

Eight members and staff of the Metropolitan Area Planning Council attended the three-day meeting in Burlington, VT, November 21-23, including Cohasset's MAPC respresentative, Martha Gjesteby, as well as representatives from other Massachusetts regional planning agencies, and officials from Maine, Vermont, Connecticut and New Hampshire.

around town

☐Karin Bartow turned 42 Monday and a good time was had by all. The week before her birthday she visited with her numerous physicians — all of whom gave her a clean (for her age) bill of health. Karin ate cake all day, everywhere she went.

☐Sally Davenport is still taking orders for pictures from "Pirates of Penzance." They're on display at CHS if you think you might like some photographic momentos of the Pirates. . .all of whom did a wonderful job and who packed the CHS auditorium all three nights!

☐Donald P. Massa of Atlantic Avenue, was recently appointed a director of Northeastern University's National Council.

Massa is the president of Massa Products Corporation in Hingham, a manufacturer of sonal and oceanographic transducers. Massa holds bachelor's and master's degrees in electrical engineering from Northeastern.

He is a member of the Acoustical Society of America and the National Association of Underwater Instructors.

☐Congratulations to Jay Jay and Tom Healy of Cushing Road on the birth of their first grandchild, a nine pound boy born Dec. 1 at St. Margaret's Hospital. Francis Dominic is the son of Dominic and Kathy O'Donnell of Somerville. Paternal grandparents are John and Kitty O'Donnell of Glascow, Scotland.

☐Mrs. Doris Golden and Mrs. Carol Shea were recently sworn in as a Notary Public.

Secretary of State, Michael Joseph Connolly gave the oath of office. Present in the Secretary's Chambers was Representative Mary Jeanette Murray (Third Plymouth District).

☐Boy, what a festive sight "around town" this weekend. The women that work all year long to make the Village Fair successful outdid themselves! Every table overflowed with their efforts, and I'm sure the records for amounts made other years were broken, along with a record attendance. Whew, it was hard to even move (a sure sign that everyone knows enough to go early to get what they want). Congratulations to a hard-working group of very talented ladies!

☐And, of course, the Common was again packed with the little ones on Sunday. After last year word spread and the anticipation was felt everywhere. No one was disappointed, it was wonderful. Even the little ponies looked festive, and Santa outdid himself. There were more balloons, fun and laughs than ever, so if you aren't in the Christmas spirit after this weekend, you only have yourself to blame. The merchants outdid themselves, too. Be sure to tell them so when you see them.

☐While speaking of our town, a bit of trivia — What is on the weathervane on top of the Paul Pratt Library?

☐Happy birthday, Laura. Holly is next, she can't wait!

☐Good work, Dawn — Dawn Meehan tied for second place in the Swogjan Synchronized Swim team's sculling playday held in Nashua. We will undoubtedly hear more about Dawn. There is another meet at Wheaton College this week.

☐Charlie and Dee DeSantis took all of their children and headed out this weekend. Headed out to St. Louis that is, to watch their son/brother Mike's soccer team try their hand at winning the national championship for Washington University. Imagine the excitement they felt. It must have been wonderful. Hope they won, just to make their weekend complete!

Sean Farrell

☐Sean V. Farrell, son of Mr. Terence J. Farrell, 12 Virginia Lane, Cohasset, has begun his first year of academic studies at Gould Academy, an independent boarding school in Bethel, Maine.

Sean is a sophomore and is one of 218 students at Gould, a secondary school located in the foothills of the White Mountains of western Maine and New Hampshire.

In addition to his college preparatory studies, he was active on the Men's JJV soccer team this fall.

☐Hurray for the Rotary Club, who presented the Council on Aging with a check for the amount that they needed to cover the rest of the operational costs of establishing a senior center. It's grand that we care about our seniors. They sure are an important part of our lives. Do your part to help our most precious citizens. They sure will love you for it.

☐Did you hear that Alice McCarthy's Mom won the PSO trip to Hawaii? I think that's super! Maybe Pat and Alice will get it for a Christmas present, and can go on their second honeymoon. Sounds so good!

☐In case your little ones missed seeing Santa, tell them not to worry. There is to be a "Santa Hotline" so that they can talk directly to Santa, and it will be available Dec. 16 through Dec. 19 between 5 and 9 p.m. Have your little ones call the North Pole during this time, and watch their little faces as they talk to Santa. The telephone number is 545-4000. Santa will be waiting to talk to you.

☐Don't forget the Christmas in Cohasset House Tour, to be held Dec. 12, sponsored by the Community Garden Club. It promises to be a spectacular one, and goes on from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m.

☐And, don't forget to call with your news. Even though it is a busy time of the year, it is also a "newsy" one, so let us hear from you.

☐While writing your Christmas cards, why not drop a "homesick sailor" a line. Remember I told you that Jeff Brown is in the Navy? Well, he's surviving the cold and would love a Christmas greeting since he won't be able to get home. His address is: SR Jeffrey Brown 025-60-8987, Company 392 15 Division, Great Lakes, IL 60085-5300.

Town Meeting wrapup . . .

The largest appropriation request was approved with little discussion at Monday night's Special Town Meeting. The lengthiest debate centered on a $18,000 request for a personnel reclassification study for Town Hall employees.

Town Meeting began quickly at 7:45 p.m. and concluded about three hours and 21 articles later.

Although voters approved most appropriation proposals, there was lively discussion about many issues throughout the night.

What promised to be a "hot" topic for the evening, a request from the Personnel Committee to fund $61,845 for a five percent police union salary increase, was passed with no debate. The union members had declared their opposition to the five percent figure, and filed an unfair labor complaint against the town for stopping contract negotiations without a mutual agreement.

The police department had been without a contract since July 1.

Article 12, requesting $18,000 for a personnel classification study, brought forth some lively discussion from residents.

The selectmen and advisory committee recommended the study by an independent consultant, saying it would develop a fair and equitable classification system for all non union Town Hall employees. Selectman Cliff Mitman said the new system would satisfy the needs of the town for many years.

Personnel Committee Chairman Janet Daggett explained that bids on the study had been sent and the town received five proposals. They range in price from $9,000 - $32,000. Three of the proposals were in the $18,000 range, so the committee thought that would be the price to request from Town Meeting.

The study will take about four months to complete, she explained, and will give the town a comprehensive review of the employee classification schedule, the wages and benefits in comparison to other towns.

Joseph Hamilton of Beechwood Street stated that was "a lot of money to spend on 43 employees." He suggested the personnel committee improve upon the current bylaws and use a system of parity to evaluate Town Hall positions.

Daggett said the committee felt strongly the study should be completed by an outside, independent firm. She also noted that the committee has not decided to accept one proposal, and may conclude the lowest figure of $9,000 is the best study for the town.

She also explained that another article requesting $2175 in matching funds for a state grant, will be subtracted from the total cost of a classification system study. The state grant will provide department heads with training in the personnel classification system.

Selectman Mitman explained the study will serve as a "snapshot to move forward with equity and fairness in the future." In response to a question, Mitman said the personnel committee will be responsible for ensuring that the study is equitable and that it gives them a framework in which to make personnel decisions.

Other residents noted that surrounding towns, including Norwell, Hingham and Scituate, pay their employees more than Cohasset employees in comparable positions. Dr.Edward Woods of Jerusalem Road, suggested that selectmen and the personnel committee are closer to the issues involved "and we should listen to them,"

Voters then adopted the proposal by a voice vote.

They later approved a request to appropriate as much as $250,000 into the municipal insurance account.

Insurance Advisory Committee member Galt Grant explained that liability insurance coverage has increased in governments, private business and municipalities. The town's insurance premium was budgeted at $130,000 in July and "best guesses" put an additional increase at $250,000, he said.

"That is our best guess, but we don't know the amount now and we don't know if we'll get all our coverage," Grant stated. Specifications for insurance bid awards have been sent to five insurance brokers and are due back to the town by Dec. 20.

"We hope $250,000 is high, but I think it's in line. Scituate recently appropriated $100,000 to make a total appropriation of $351,000. We have a problem. We'll do the best we can," he promised.

Selectmen and the advisory committee recommended support of the necessary appropriation.

Executive Secretary Donald Andrew told Town Meeting voters that the town's free cash allotment was very good at a total of more than $1 million.

There was some discussion before voters approved a $20,000 appropriation to hire an architect to complete renovations plans for the fire and police complex.

Selectmen sponsored the article which would allow an architect to complete plans begun by Building Inspector Edward Poskus to renovate the 20 year-old Elm Street building. Selectmen argued the building is deteriorating and contains no space for expanding departments and female officers.

When asked to estimate a "ballpark" figure for the renovation work, Selectman Mary Jane McArthur guessed the project could cost between $250,000 - $300,000.

Capital Budget Committee Chairman Ned Tebbetts argued that although the executive secretary had talked to their committee about the preliminary plans, the group had never received any written information about the proposed expenditure. Any-

REAL ESTATE GUIDELINES

By Norma Telesco
Home Center Realty

Getting Ready For The "Open House"

An "Open House" is a popular way to expose your home to prospective buyers. Your agent arranges an ad in the local newspaper inviting customers, and perhaps other realtors, to come see your house between specific hours—usually on weekend afternoons. At the appointed time, OPEN signs will sprout up, directing customers to your property. How do you get ready for the big event? First, make sure your house is clean and uncluttered. go through a room at a time. Vacuum, make the beds, wash the dishes, and make the kitchen and baths sparkle. Mow and manicure the yard. While your agent will accompany visitors through your house, it's prudent to put any personal papers or valuables out of sight. Then you leave. Go to a movie or visit some friends. You may think you're needed to point out all of those special features your agent might forget. Leave anyway. Prospective buyers will be a lot more comfortable if you aren't around, and it will be easier for your agent to help them fall in love with your home if you're away for the afternoon.

If you are planning a move, HOME CENTER REALTY employs full service professionals who can get your home sold and help you find a new one. Stop by our office at 57 Water St., Hingham or give us a call at 749-8833.

Editorial

Where are we now?

Special Town Meeting is completed - finished in one night. We commend the more than 200 residents who took time from the busy holiday schedules to sit and vote on the town's business for more than three hours.

One of the more interesting debates centered on the controversial alternative sewer plan.

Depending on what day it is, an agreement between the state and the town looks imminent. Last week we thought everything was all but worked out with the state DEQE. Now we find there is strong disagreement from the state agency.

One thing is for certain, there is still a lot of confusion surrounding this issue.

We certainly hope that our elected local and state officials can find a way to resolve this matter. It has been a long process, one that has stretched the patience and understanding of the most compassionate people.

We don't understand the continual snags which develop whenever there seems a glimmer of hope. But we hope the town's special counsels in the matter can work through the murky disappointments which have continually confronted us.

Christmas success

It certainly looks a lot like Christmas in Cohasset. The store fronts are filled with festive holiday decorations. The white lights around the windows make the town look more lovely than ever.

Everyone who attended Saturday's Village Fair grumbled good-naturedly about the traffic jams around the Common, but said it was a price worth paying.

All the items were of beautiful quality. While shopping in Scituate this weekend, we overheard people talking about the great bargains and unique items they had purchased at the Cohasset fair.

We congratulate the hundreds of people who made the Village Fair such a success. May this event continue to bring the congregation of Cohasset churches together every year.

New arrival

We take this opportunity to say welcome to Cohasset's official new Fire Chief Daniel Brock. The contract is signed and sealed and everything is ready for his arrival.

Chief Brock will begin his duties Jan. 1. He has his work cut out for him. But many people feel he is the one man who could handle the responsibility.

We wish him the best of luck. Welcome.

Special holiday deadlines

Mariner Newspapers plans to publish a Christmas edition, Monday Dec. 23, and a New Year's edition, Monday, Dec. 30.

Because of these special dates the deadline for news, display and classified ads will be Friday at noon Dec. 20 and Dec. 27.

We wish our readers merry holidays and a prosperous new year.

Einstein warned of unleashed power

To the Editor:

As you know, Albert Einstein in 1945 warned us that "The unleashed power of the atom has changed everything save our modes of thinking and we thus drift toward unparalleled catatrophe."

Beyond War presenters like myself and Charlotte Harmon of Duxbury along with over 10,000 others throughout the US, are helping people find out for themselves how this translates in 1985. In the first year and a half over 100,000 people have attended Beyond War presentations.

One of the greatest resistances to acceptance of this new truth in Einstein's statement, is the valid concern that we in the United States who understand this new truth can not act on it until the 'the rest of the world' demonstrates that they understand this new truth as well.

Fortunately we in the US are not alone in grasping the significance of Einstein's statement. There is a growing awareness around the globe, that the disputes between the US and the USSR, which could prove suicidal for both sides, now also threaten with annihilation as well the remainder of the world's population. Here I refer to the other 80 percent of the human species who are essentially innocent bystanders.

The injustice and immorality of this equation are now being addressed courageously by third world leaders. Through this historic TV Spacebridge Linking Five Continents on December 14, we are attempting to amplify their voices so that all may hear the official understanding of Einsteins new truth and the accompanying heartfelt plea for the survival of all humankind.

It is our hope, that following this event we can facilitate the viewing of this historic occasion by literally hundreds of millions of people world wide, as we have with last year's historic Space Bridge Between Moscow and San Francisco. Then we awarded our second annual Beyond War Award to the International Physicians for the Prevention of Nuclear War, this year's recipients of the Nobel Peace Prize.

To me this seems news worthy.

Sincerely,
Doug Marshall

Contributions to hockey

To the Editor:

"The Seahawks Youth Hockey Organization would like to acknowledge the untiring efforts that Mark Salvador has contributed to youth hockey and the Seahawks organization.

Mr. Salvador has recently "retired" from youth hockey after many years of service both as a coach and an administrator. He has served in nearly every capacity that we have, often carrying two or three jobs at once. Whatever needed to be done, Mark was always willing to take it on.

The Seahawks recently presented Mark with a gift cerficate and a handsome plaque in appreciation for all the hours contributed over the years. We thank you, Mark, for a job well done."

Letters

Not chamber opinon

To the Editor:

My recent letter (Nov. 28) concerning a very relevant issue could possibly have been interpreted as speaking for the Chamber of Commerce.

This was not my intention.

Naturally, there are diverse opinions in any group. Although the Chamber is definitely a body which strives to protect the entire business community, it is my personal opinion as to how many beer and wine sources are necessary in this town of approximately 7,000 persons.

I reiterate, that newcomer J. Bildner and Sons would like to add still another to the 13-plus locations where beer and wine can be purchased by the bottle or the glass, within a two-mile radius.

The question still remains: Is another beer and wine license in the best interest of our business community or our community of Cohasset as a whole?

Joy of White Christmas

"Becky" had some big baggage to haul during Sunday's White Christmas. Looks like there's at least three kids having some fun atop beautiful Becky.

Photos by Carol McCann

"Sugar" was busy as well during Sunday's festivities. Traveling all the way from Essex, Sugar and owner Richard Burke obliged many passengers for a round-trip ride around the Common.

Martha Henderson's face depicts the anticipation of children everywhere—taking those last steps before meeting the big guy—Santa Claus.

Deciding what to do next was a great decision for many last Sunday, including Christopher Golden and his mom, Amy.

The six-week childbirth preparation course will begin Monday, Jan. 6 from 7 to 9 p.m., and is open to expectant parents in the area regardless of where they plan to deliver. The prenatal education program developed by St. Margaret's Hospital is designed to identify physical and emotional changes that occur in late pregnancy and during the birthing process. Information will be presented about the maintenance of good health during late pregnancy and in the birthing process as well as familiarization with the stages of labor. Exercises will be rehearsed for use in labor that serve as relaxation techniques.

Lastly, the program will also provide useful information concerning the hospital stay, general admission procedures and even things to know about the post-partum period.

Women interested in participating in the convenient local childbirth education classes are invited to contact St. Margaret's Hospital at 436-8600, extension 245 for registration or additional information.

Amateur Gardeners meeting

The members of the Amateur Gardeners of Cohasset will meet on Dec. 17 at 1 p.m. in the home of Mrs. Ruthven Walsh on Deep Run for a Christmas party and gift exchange.

Mrs. Betty Madden will be co-hostess.

Flouride compound grant

Scituate and Cohasset will receive state public health grants to buy fluoride compounds, according to Sen. William Golden, who was informed of the awards by Dr. Bailus Walker, public health commissioner.

Scituate will receive $2,486 while Cohasset will receive $1,010. The monies are part of an appropriation by the legislature to award local cities and towns that fluoridate with additional local aid and to encourage new communities to fluoridate.

Fluoridation has been shown to reduce expected tooth decay by up to 60 percent and save the average consumer up to $50 in potential dental bills for every dollar spent.

Energy montage contest

Eastern Edison has launched a National Energy Eduation Day (NEED) montage contest for Grades K-12 in schools throughout its service area.

NEED is an annual program designed to inspire students, educators and community members to work together on energy education activities.

The goal of NEED is to incorporate energy education in all grades in all schools throughout the U.S. by 1990.

The contest theme for the 1985-1986 school year is "Prevent Electrical Accidents in a Student's World."

Students should submit their montage entries by Feb. 14, 1986.

First, second and third place winners in four grade categories (K-3, 4-6, 7-8, 9-12) will be announced March 21.

For more information on the contest, contact Ruth E. Stetson, EECo educational services representative, P.O. Box 471, Brockton, 02403, or call 580-1213, ext. 183.

The Law and You

by Richard Price, Attorney-at-Law

THE ENFORCEABLE CONTRACT

If the average person is asked whether a contract must be in writing to be enforceable, the answer will usually be yes. For the most part, however, this reply is wrong. It is a general principle of our law that all agreements are enforceable, whether or not they are in writing. It is only a limited number of circumstances in which a contract must be in written form to take on validity. The Statute of Frauds is a law which makes written contracts mandatory in certain situations. Be absolutely sure as to whether a contract should be in written form before entering into a valid agreement. Contact someone who knows the law—an attorney.

Your legal rights as well as your responsibilities are not a do-it-yourself matter. Whatever you are trying to protect...your life, your freedom, your property, your finances or the interests of those near and dear to you...are far too important to be handled in a slipshod manner. Afford your interests the expertise they deserve. Consult an attorney. LAW OFFICE OF RICHARD PRICE, SMITH & PRICE, P.C., 202 Mill Wharf Plaza, Scituate, 545-6660. We are available daily by appt.

Consideration is something of value that changes hands between the parties to a contract.

Town Meeting wrapup . . .

thing above $10,000 must come before the Capital Budget Committee for its review and recommendation.

"The Capital Budget Committee does support several improvements to the building, but we have not voted to endorse the plan until we review the material in writing," Tebbetts said.

The appropriation request was approved by a voice vote.

In other Town Meeting action, voters approved increasing the Cohasset teachers salary rate to a minimum of $18,000 and to accept state teacher development grants for the next two years. The state Education Reform Act provisions were also approved for South Shore Vocational Technical High School.

A stronger version of the watershed protection building moratorium was enacted by Town Meeting. One section of the approved bylaw lists prohibited uses within the watershed area, thus stopping more developers from constructing within the water supply territory.

A watershed protection moratorium bylaw was approved by the town in June, but was rejected by the state Attorney General because of a technicality.

Special Town Meeting voters also approved an appropriation of $30,000 for additional legal expenses regarding the sewer commission wastewater treatment plan appeal.

Town Hall renovations to be delayed

At their meeting Tuesday night, selectmen reviewed several items they would like included in budget requests for Fiscal 1987.

Among the items discussed were new doors for the Town Hall. Executive Secretary Donald Andrew said the latest cost estimate for that expenditure was $22,000.

Many renovations to the Town Hall building will be delayed while plans are being finalized for an addition to the structure. Andrew explained that preliminary sketches of the addition locate the current Bates Building offices within the Town Hall, with two large conference rooms included for use by the Bates Building committees and boards.

Andrew also noted that a new phone line is needed in the selectmen's office. It could be unpublished, he said, for use by office personnel and department heads, and during emergencies. Andrew noted the current phone lines are often busy with incoming calls so that office personnel can not complete important outgoing calls.

Estimates are still being gathered for the installation of air conditioning throughout the Town Hall.

Cohasset School news . . .

Ms. Pamela Titus, guidance counselor from South Shore Vocational Technical High School, recently addressed all of the eighth graders at the junior high school.

Titus presented an audio visual slide show of the shop and academic programs and the student activities offered to the students at South Shore.

The counselor explained general requirements for admission to South Shore and specific academic and mechanical strengths that may be useful to students in particular shop programs.

Titus stressed that all of the 17 trade programs offered at South Shore are open to both males and females as are all of the extracurricular programs. She also noted special education services are available for those students on individual educational plans and support services are offered to disadvantaged students.

Cohasset students who are interested in applying to South Shore may pick up an application from Cohasset Junior/Senior High School Guidance Director Jack Leary or by contacting the South Shore guidance department at 871-4153. Ms. Titus stated that any member of the guidance department at South Shore would be happy to speak with any parent concerning programs or the admission procedure.

Courses offered at South Shore include Automotive, Auto Body, Heating/Ventilation and Air Conditioning, Welding, Precision Metal Fabrication, Drafting, Machine Shop, Carpentry, Electronics, Painting and Wall Finishing, Graphic Arts, Management/Marketing and Merchandising, Cosmotology, Marine Technology, Culinary Arts, Electrical and Packaging Machine Maintenance.

South Shore Vocational Technical High School is a regional school with an enrollment if five hundred and fifty students. The member towns of the region are Hanover, Rockland, Whitman, Hanson, Cohasset, Scituate, Norwell and Abington.

Voters grant regulatory bylaw article that is not the way to approach problems."

Paul Quinton, president of the Fair Oaks Homeowners Association, said the article caused much confusion and concern in the community. The article was created out of concern from residents that "the town is developing too fast. I am not against business in town. But if I wanted a 24-hour business establishment I would have moved to Pembroke or Weymouth," he stated.

He apologized to the local businessmen and Chamber of Commerce, adding, "it was not our intent to regulate business, but to protect residents and the quality of the town."

Dan Cotton of King Street favored the proposal, noting, "it will give selectmen the opportunity to answer problems if and when they arise."

Although the article was initially defeated Monday night by Moderator William Weeks after a voice vote, a challenge to that decision was made. The article was then approved by a hand count decision, 121-87.

Residents later defeated a proposal that would add a four percent excise tax to price of room accomodations at local motels.

Article 27 would have enabled the town to impose an excise tax on the motel, which would result in about $20,000 in annual revenues to the town.

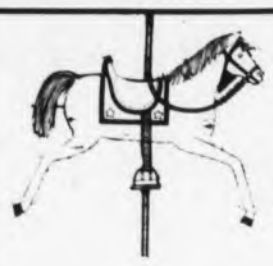
Selectmen opposed the proposal initiated when the state bailed out the city of Boston with its renovations of the Hynes Memorial Auditorium. Because of the state's assistance, it made it possible for all municipalities to impose the same excise tax on motel and hotel room accomodations.

In a review of the warrant last week, selectmen learned that large groups of people would find accomodations outside Cohasset where the tax has not been imposed. Scituate Town Meeting rejected the tax proposal last week.

The advisory committee recommended approval of the article, noting that a four percent increase in room prices will not make a significent difference to the motel business here.

But Dan Leahy, general manager of Kimball's By the Sea, called the tax proposal "arbitrary and caprious. It would have a truly diminishing effect on our efforts to maintain and grow."

He said a four percent increase on top of a current 5.7 percent room tax would eliminate the motel's competitive prices in this area.



Voters defeated the article by a voice vote.

Seahawks win fourth

Seahawk II Mites team won their fourth straight game 4-0 over the Eagles of Rockland recently.

Marcus Willy put the Seahawks on the board at 2:52 of the first period. That score stood until the third period with great end-to-end action by both teams.

Goalie Jimmy Glennon kept the game tight with some beautiful saves until the Seahawks broke it open in the final minutes with goals by Andrew O'Rourke, Brian Bishop, and Marcus Willy's second of the game.

There's a magical kingdom waiting for you and your children. A kingdom where the spirit of Christmas burns brightly for young and old alike. Where 200,000 Christmas lights illuminate the night, painting rainbows across the winter's landscape. And heated antique steam trains travel through woods and fields alive with wondrous sights.

It's the Edaville Railroad Christmas Light Festival. A magical world where Christmas carols fill the air. And laughing children run from one marvelous attraction to the next. From Santa's Village to the baby deer in the petting zoo. From magical animated Christmas displays to a merry white-bearded man who always has a good word and a small gift to share with a child.

Explore this wonderful world with your family. Experience the dozens of attractions, the once-in-a-lifetime train ride, and New England's largest and most magnificent display of Christmas lights.

Elementary Celtics beat the Lakers

Celtics beat Lakers

The Deer Hill sixth grade Celtics beat the fifth grade Lakers in a 40-minute basketball game Nov. 25. The score was 28-18.

The first jump of the game was between Kevin Mulcahy and Peter Collins. Peter gave a good fight but Kevin got it.

Doug Ellinger started out as a regular fifth grade player but before he knew it he became the most valuable player on the fifth grade team. He scored 10 points for his team.

The sixth grade Celtics' two most valuable players were Kevin Mulcahy and Rod Hemassi scoring six points apiece.

Rod, in the first shift of the game, shoots the ball from half court and gets the first basket of the game. It was some shot.

The reason why the score was so low was because of inaccurate shooting. Both of the teams were passing pretty well until the sixth grade Celtics got tired and the fifth grade Lakers kept stealing the ball and scoring more points. But not enough to beat the sixth grade Celtics.

The most unbelieveable shot was by sixth grader Jim Yess. He faked everyone out and shot the ball from half court in the corner, and got the ball in the basket.

During the game, the two referrees were Danny DeMichele and Billy Murphy. They did a good job.

Nonsense has to stop

To the Editor:

As stated in your newspaper, the Cohasset selectmen were told by the Sewer Commission on Dec. 3 that a compromise agreement had been reached with the state DEQE. This exaggeration was nicely timed to induce euphoria at the Dec. 9 town meeting. Unfortunately, the Memorandum of Agreement submitted to DEQE contains much that won't wash.

Instead of serving the area proposed both by the M&E Plan Phase 1 and the Ward Plan, as amended at the last town meeting, the sewer commission now proposes to reduce the area so that Cohasset's contribution is no more than that voted as a result of the funding delusions. Remember, DEQE warned Cohasset repeatedly of these delusions, and advised Cohasset to appropriate sufficient funds to accomplish the work described in the Ward Plan. To now suggest that the sewered area be reduced because of recognition of funding delusions is ridiculous—there is no change in whatever technical and regulatory factors determined the sewered area described in the Plan.

Creating a "sewer service district" will not obtain additional funding—a high density population zone can't become a low density zone by such feeble trickery. The objective of all this is to use 2 in. sewer lines (instead of conventional 4 in. and 6 in. lines) because they might qualify for more funding because they are "innovative." But cost effectiveness is not just first cost, it is the sum of first cost and maintenance and rework costs. Larger lines occasionally are blocked; 2 in. lines promise endless bills for plumbers and excavators.

Mr. DeSantis seems to interpret location in a home rule state as freedom to interpret the rules differently than the guardians of the rules, while accusing them of flouting the law, and at the same time crying foul because funding is denied.

What Mr. DeSantis cites as achievements I see as failures. Instead of having our own conservatively engineered system, capable of expanding in the future should we choose, substantially completed and about ready to go into operation by now, we have nothing but an adversarial relationship with the licensing and funding authorities, we have a poorly developed plan which will cost at least as much to build and operate, and may eventually have to be replaced or supplemented by our treatment plant. Granted, Mr. DeSantis and his acolytes don't cotton to my detailed cost comparisons, just as I view with amusement his "evaluations" of what other towns have done. Boasting about our on-site rehabilitation program is goobledeygook—whatever program is instituted is common to both the Ward Plan and the M&E Plan, Phase 1, because both plans failed to sewer the same areas of town. Whatever funding is, or is not, available for on-site rehabilitation is common to both plans.

But DEQE is far from blameless. It must have recognized, immediately on receipt, that the Nov. 6 Memorandum of Understanding prepared by Mr. VanGestel was not only unacceptable, but differed from the verbal implications at an earlier meeting arranged by Sen. Golden. Instead of immediately rejecting the memorandum, DEQE's silence permitted Cohasset's representatives to nurture their self delusion and announce to the selectmen that a deal is virtually certain. A belated response from DEQE will look like DEQE is reneging. It's such elephantine clumsiness of bureaucracy that encourages the accusations Cohasset is so fond of hurling, to nobody's advantage in the long run.

The many residents of Cohasset (perhaps the majority) who revel in all this delay should bear in mind that soon there will be no grants—only loans. The regulations we have been dodging around are unlikely to be realized. Ultimately, the nonsense has to stop, and a substantial solution undertaken—at far greater cost than if it had been undertaken responsibly in the first place.

Cohasset would be loser to corporation

To the Editor:

For the record, I write to you as an individual. Any comments contained in this letter are my own.

It seems to me that I either overlooked something or am too dense to understand the rhetoric being bantered about regarding the proposed Cohasset Plaza.

Here is the way it appears to me. Donald Staszko, a businessman, has invested money in land development to make money. The Stop and Shop Supermarket Co., a large corporation, has agreed to lease the developed project because their Marketing Department recommended the site as desirable in order to make money. The residents who are closest to the development are opposed to it on the grounds that, for the Town of Cohasset, there is no need for a large mega-market. For me, it can't be any simpler than that.

Now to the rhetoric. Mr. Staszko has every right, under town Ordinance, to develop his land. However, his use of the word "community," as in "benefit of the community," needs clarification as relates to use of the project by Stop and Shop. The "community" as referred to at various Town Board meetings and in newsprint leads me to think Stop and Shop means Cohasset's 7000 residents. This isn't true, they mean the 50,000 people who live in the seven or eight town corridor from Hingham to Marshfield in the east and Rockland to Hanover in the west. Such a store would indeed be a benefit to this "community", it would not however, be a benefit to Cohasset. The only reason Cohasset was selected is because of the history of commercial nuisance of Route 3A which leads businessmen to select it over the surrounding towns who have kept 3A in respectable condition.

The facts in this matter are that Cushing Plaza is being developed as a profit-making investment for use by a profit-making corporation at the expense of a small town whose physical location was suitable for serving a seven or eight town corridor. Any taxes that Mr. Staszko now pays Cohasset is a pure loss for him because the land is not in commercial use. His idea that he will pay Cohasset over $100,000 in taxes whenStop and Shop is in operation is commendable! He failed to let us all know that this would would merely be a "cost of doing business" which is a small fraction of his profit. I guess I'm not smart enough to accept his philanthropy at face value.

The irony of this whole situation is that the residents of Cohasset will lose out regarding legal costs and could lose out further by being "home base" to Stop and Shop's latest business venture.

Cohasset Business news

Property Connection opens on Ripley Road

The Property Connection recently opened its doors at 89 Ripley Road in Cohasset, after several weeks of renovation.

The building was previously owned by Dr. Sceery, a pediatrician, so it has a history of providing service to people.

Paul Ferrini's background provides a good reason for his design of the new company as a "small, highly professional, people-centered organization." A former teacher and counselor, Ferrini has worked with such diverse groups as ex-offenders, career changers, adults returning to higher education, handicapped service providers, community groups, as well as high school and college students.

For six years, he directed nation-wide research projects funded by the U.S. Office of Education. Ferrini holds a Masters degree from Antioch College and a Bachelor's degree from Marlboro College. He is the author of three books: Career Change; The Interdependent Community; and The Book for Transformations.

"Many of our clients elect to build in order to meet their design and location priorities," Ferrini pointed out. "I guess that's why new construction has become my specialty. During the last three years I have developed numerous contacts with high quality builders on the South Shore and specialty builders throughout New England. By taking the time to design the best package for each client, I have successfully facilitated the building of many custom homes on the South Shore."

Not all Ferrini's clients are experienced investors; many of his clients are single family home owners who have substantial equity in their homes and want to learn the best ways to invest that equity in real estate. To accommodate these clients, Ferrini has designed a number of skill building seminars on topics such as "financing and refinancing options," "tax shelters," "landlord-tenant issues," and many others. Some of these seminars will be offered soon at The Property Connection.

Ferrini has also developed The Property Connection Investor Network, designed to help small groups of investors pool their resources to make investments unaffordable to them as individuals.

Such investments range from the purchase and development of large tracts of land to the purchase and renovation of Victorian houses or apartment buildings.

In addition to local investment opportunities, there are plans for the purchase of highly desirable vacation-oriented properties in key recreation areas of New England.

Ferrini is now in the process of developing creative strategies to help bring low and middle income individuals back into the housing market. Those strategies include "land trusts," "shared equity ownership" and other cooperative buying schemes.

The Property Connection hopes to offer workshops on these topics for the general public in the future.

Paul Ferrini lives in Marshfield with his wife Marjorie, a psychotherapist and administrator at Coastal Community Counseling Center, and their children Misha and Shanti. Questions about any of the ideas or services mentioned in this article can be answered by contacting Ferrini at 383-1799 or stop in to see him at The Property Connection.

Residents displeased with human service cutbacks

By Valerie Kroon
Mariner Correspondent

More than 120 parents, business leaders, concerned citizens, town and state officials attended a Dec. 5 public hearing to voice concerns about the lack of services for area mentally retarded adults in the South Shore area.

Held at Quincy City Hall, the hearing was sponsored by South Shore Association for Retarded Adults (SSARC). SSARC serves the city of Quincy and the towns of Braintree, Cohasset, Hingham, Hull, Milton, Norwell, Randolph, Scituate and Weymouth.

State Rep. Frank Hynes of Marshfield spoke at the hearing.

After listening to parents' testimony, Hynes said, "Only by this kind of consciousness-raising can we grow in sensitivity to what needs to be addressed in budget considerations."

Hynes told the parents that their message had not fallen on deaf ears and that their needs will not be forgotten at budget time.

The major issue was the state's neglect in funding programs for the adult special needs population who remain living in the community. The hearing was an effort by SSARC to alert citizens and public officials to the problems which arise because of an imbalanced state funding progam where the majority of money is spent on state institutions.

SSARC president, Maria Plante told the audience that Massachusetts spent $277 million on MR services in 1984, ranking the state fifth in the nation. Despite this, the state ranked 37th in the percentage of money spent on community services, Plante said.

Statewide, there are currently 3,300 MR adults on waiting lists for therapeutic services. There are 1,200 waiting for MR residential living accommodations, 1,500 are in need of vocational training, and there is a dire need for respite care.

Plante asked that the state "balance the quality of life for all," as she noted state 1984 outlays of $97 million for capital expenditures and $65 million for renovations and new construction at state institutions.

"For every $1 spent on community services, $2 is spent on institutional services at five schools," Plante said.

State policy advocates community living for MR adults, but unlike services mandated for the under-22 population, state funding is not mandated for the special needs population who are over 22 years old.

Mary Ann Walsh, director of the state Bureau of Transitional Planning, discussed how Chapter 688, the turning-22 law, was "billed as a promise of hope" when enacted March 22, 1984. Since that time, 1700 cases have been referred to her office, but the program has been hampered by the last line in the law which states that all services are subject to appropriations.

"With 500 to 700 students leaving special education each year, we have a tremendous challenge ahead of us," Walsh said.

Several South Shore parents spoke at the hearing, giving testimony to the needs of their MR children; needs which have not been met because of inadequate funding, policies which discriminate against students transitioned out of private schools and a lack of service providers.

Ray Desautels of Hingham told the group that he'd been funding his 29-year-old daughter's program at New England Villages for four years. Because of this, his family is ineligible for state aid even though he would like to now retire. Being in a privately funded program puts a child in a low-priority need category, and Desautels said he'd have to take his daughter completely out of the program to receive state help.

"It seems to me that this is not the way to play the game," Desautels said. "The state should encourage parents to use their own resources but the state should also play a role when needed."

Norwell resident Paul Lyons spoke about his deep "It's a shame we have to be here begging for services for our children," said Ann Glennon of Braintree, mother of a 25-year-old MR daughter. "Mental retardation is always going to be there and we need services. Our lives are compartmentalized by the system. We always have to beg for something."

Glennon told how these children regress when services are stopped, and that sometimes all the concern for his 22-year-old daughter who was born with Downs Syndrome. His concern centered on the future of state support for needed respite and residential care, and sheltered employment programs. Lyons called the state budget-slashing an "abuse" of the rights of the handicapped.

Norma Grassey of Cohasset told the group of the need for state crisis centers for emergency respite care. She noted the state saves thousands of dollars by keeping the handicapped at home and out of institutions.

earlier educational benefits can be lost or destroyed.

Jean Rozen of Randolph, mother of a 26-year-old moderately retarded son, presented a petition to Rep. Joseph Manning (D. Milton) at the hearing. The petition bore more than 5,000 signatures and requested state funding for these MR adults who have become "victims of the system."

Rozen's son has been in Medfield State Hospital since October because there is no structured residential program in the state to service him. Rozen told the group that Massachusetts doesn't have a crisis center nor hospital for the MR population, and that the nearest crisis center is in Rhode Island.

"We need funds to get my son out of Medfield before it kills him," Rozen pleaded.

Matthew Johnson, executive director of Mass. Association for Retarded Citizens, addressed the audience after 14 people gave testimony on their needs and the state's need for services.

Santa Claus will visit the A&D Toy-Train Village and Railway Museum in Middleboro on the two Saturdays just prior to Christmas, Dec. 14 and 21 from noon until 5 p.m.

A&D Toy-Train Village, located at 49 Plymouth St., is a spectacular display of more than 2,000 toy trains of almost every conceivable material from cast iron to candy. They come from 19 different countries, including Russia and China. Some date as far back as 1850.

There are more than 40 operating trains throughout the museum. Five LGB (Lehman Garten Bahn) trains move continuously through the museum on overhead tracks. Twenty-four computer-controlled trains operate on the six-tiered master layout through the mountains.

Thirty-five permanent exhibits offer a variety of different scenes. The wild west has Cowboys and Indians fighting along the railroad track. Elves are busy in the workshop finishing many wooden trains, while Santa fills the last stocking. The baby sleeps in the nursery, surrounded by all types of train toys. Hundreds of lights, plus the sound of Christmas, complete the atmosphere of this holiday fairland.

The A&D Toy-Train Village will be open daily from 10 a.m. to 8 p.m. until Jan. 5, 1986. For more information, please call 947-5303.

Bank area vice-chairman

Margaret R. Santacroce, assistant vice president of Cohasset Savings Bank, is serving as vice chairman of the Norfolk/Old Colony Forum, an organization of bank officers from the South Shore area.

Miss Santacroce, a resident of Weymouth, has been active in the organization for a number of years, serving earlier as the group's secretary.

The Norfolk/Old Colony Forum Group is a regional division of the Savings Bank Forum of Massachusetts which carries on a progressive educational program for bank officers and managers through periodic meetings on topics of interest and importance to banks.

A November meeting, held jointly with the Suffolk Forum and the Southeastern Bankers Professional network, featured a presentation by Paul E. Bulman, of Scituate, commissioner of banks, on fradulent activities in banking. A meeting to discuss cross-selling of bank services is scheduled for February.

Hallmark 100 staffers

Julie Gailinas and Mary Kay Thompson have joined Hallmark 100 Properties in Cohasset. Both Gailinas and Thomson have been consistent million dollar producers. Julie was an 11-time member of the million dollar club at the Cohasset office of the Jack Conway Company and Mary Kay was a member of the million dollar club and in 1984 the overall top seller at the Hingham office of the Jack Conway Company.

Both Gailinas and Thompson have opened their own affiliate offices within the Hallmark 100 Properties in the suite in the Brigantine East Building, Rte. 3A, Cohasset. Gailinas and Thompson, together with other top producing independent Hallmark 100 Associates, share in a unique compensation plan which allows them to be truly in business for themselves. Only consistent million dollar producers with the highest professional standards and reputations are eligible to participate.

Gailinas, a Scituate resident, holds the highly-regarded G.R.I. and C.R.S. designations conferred through the National Association of Realtors. Prior to her real estate career Julie worked as assistant to the President of the Putnam Mutual Funds of Boston and at the brokerage firm of Kidder Peabody of Boston.

Thompson, a Cohasset resident, also holds the G.R.I. designation. She previously worked for a builder and managed a $39 million dollar sales office in Maryland. Mary Kay specializes in relocation and new construction.

CSB approved for insurance

Cohasset Savings Bank has been approved for coverage by the Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation (FDIC), effective November 16, providing basic national insurance protection of deposits.

While the FDIC insures the first $100,000 of deposits, Cohasset Savings also continues as a member of the statewide insurance program of the Depositors' Insurance Fund of Massachusetts (DIFM) which will insure deposits in excess of $100,000, thus providing insurance of deposits in full.

"We are pleased to be able to offer customers the ultimate in protection of their deposits through this dual system of insurance coverage," Osborne F. Ingram, President, said in announcing approval by the FDIC.

"There has never been a loss or inconvenience to our customers in our 50 years of participation in the Depositors' Insurance Fund and we were confident of its ability to cover deposits in full, but the FDIC adds the extra protection of a federally-related deposit insurance program."

Kathleen Croninger, top sales

Preferred Properties, Inc., proudly announces its top sales associate for the month of November, Kathleen Croninger. Croninger, a Cohasset resident, has been a consistent multi-million dollar broker since entering real estate six years ago.

Prior to her career in real estate, Kathleen volunteered as a driver for the Social Service League Shuttle and was a board member of the Cohasset Dramatic Club. She and her husband David have one daughter, Kimberly, of New York City.

New sales associate

Anne E. Bunstein has joined the Cohasset office of Gallery 360 as a sales associate, according to Tom Hamilton, principal.

A former catalogue sales associate with The Talbots and a nursery school teacher, she attended the Chandler School for Women and Quincy Junior College.

Mrs. Bunstein is a lifelong Cohasset resident and was actively involved in the pediatric play therapy volunteer program at South Shore Hospital.

Sen. Golden files pollution liability insurance bill

State Senator William Golden (D-Norfolk-Plymouth) has filed two bills which would insure that pollution liability insurance is available to licensed hazardous waste facilities and hazardous waste generators.

The first bill would set up a joint underwriting association to provide pollution liability insurance and the second bill would give the State Insurance Commissioner the authority to set up a joint underwriting association to provide liability insurance in the event of a voluntary market failure in any area of liability insurance.

"Currently, there are approximately 40 licensed companies in Massachusetts that deal with hazardous waste collection, storage, treatment and disposal," Senator Golden said.

"The insurance companies have indicated that they will no longer provide pollution liability insurance after Jan. 1, 1986. If that happens, these companies will go out of business, and there will be no way to collect, store, treat or dispose of hazardous waste in Massachusetts."

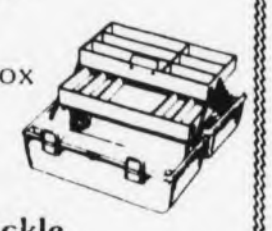
Golden added, "The bills that I have filed will, if passed, insure that pollution liability insurance will be available to hazardous waste collection and storage facilities and to any other businesses or individuals who might need pollution liability protection.

"Since state and federal law requires that storage, treatment and disposal facilities have adequate pollution liability coverage, not only will licensed companies be unable to clean up spills or collect hazardous materials, the companies they service will be forced to either shut down a portion of their operation or dump and store hazardous materials illegally. If a spill similar to the recent Route 128 incident occurred, we would have to depend on National Guardsmen with brooms to clean it up. No state has addressed the pollution liability insurance issue, and if we don't respond to the need, we're going to have a potential economic and environmental crisis in Massachusetts."

Senator Golden added that "Although it will be difficult to fast track this legislation through both branches of the legislature before the end of the year, the stakes are very high, and the issue is certainly worthy of an extraordinary effort on the part of the legislature to come to the relief of our state's economy and environment."

Signatures galore for waste cleanup petition

Sen. Golden has commended the Massachusetts Campaign to Clean Up Hazardous Waste for its efforts in collecting over 86,000 signatures calling for the cleanup of hazardous waste sites in the Bay State.



Golden, who was one of the sponsors of the petition, said, "The tremendous response to this campaign is a clear indication that citizens want measures taken to clean up the environment in Massachusetts. If a timetable for identification of sites and a schedule for cleanup isn't set soon, the quality of life and the health of our families will be threatened severely."

The proposal calls for an evaluation of the hazardous waste problem in Massachusetts, a six-year deadline to identify and cleanup hazardous waste sites and State research and development on a permanent hazardous waste cleanup technique.

Golden, who last month coordinated hazardous waste cleanup petition signatures drives in his district town of Cohasset, Duxbury, Hingham, Hull, Marshfield, Scituate and Weymouth, was impressed with the response to the proposal.

The legislature must take action on the proposal by May of 1986. If they don't, only 10,000 additional signatures will be needed to put the issue on the Statewide ballot in November.

Know Town Hall

Meet the Town Clerk office staff

Town Clerk Frances Marks on duty (R) with Assistant Constance Jones.
(Carol McCann)

The office is on the second floor of the Town Hall. The Town Clerk's office is a central information location. It's where people come to license their dogs, register to vote, and obtain all forms of census information about the town.

Frances Marks and Assistant Town Clerk Constance Jones handle just about any inquiry that comes into the office, although some clearly don't fall under their jurisdiction. "We get phone calls from people asking if there are any motels in town, or what the police and fire department numbers are. People feel that this office knows everything that goes on in town," Franny stated last week, while Connie laughed in agreement.

They have worked together for a little more than a year, but insist the office would never function efficiently without each other's assistance. They are fulltime employees of the town, but Franny and Connie noted it is not a job you leave at home. Even after work hours, they think about ways to improve their files and the computer systems that contain valuable town records.

This Town Hall team is known as efficient and hard-working . They are cordial to the public, and consistantly aim to please. That is one of the prime responsibilities of the job, according to Franny.

Probably the most recognizable of the pair, Franny can be seen during every Town Meeting, recording each warrant article and its vote. She is the official record-keeper of each Town Meeting, and must watch the proceedings from atop the high school auditorium.

Franny was Assistant Town Clerk in 1971, working aside brother-in-law and Town Clerk Charles Marks. Marks became ill and decided prior to the April, 1984 election to retire. Franny made the decision to run for the office and was elected. When Marks retired that February, selectmen decided to make the busy post a fulltime elected position with a part time assistant. That was approved at the April Town Meeting

And at the June Special Town Meeting that year, Franny went before the voters to request a fulltime assistant, explaining that the business of the office had increased and necessitated fulltime personnel. Town Meeting agreed and Connie was employed fulltime.

Because there are so many duties assigned to the office, Franie explained, they have a written list which is continually amended. What was once primarily a record-keeper of town documents, has evolved into a technical position, in which many duties are required by state law.

"Everything is very legal now," Franny said. "So if someone didn't know the exact procedure to follow, things wouldn't be accomplished correctly. The legality of the issues involved in this office has changed a lot during the years."

Know Town Hall

Meet the staff in the Town Clerk's office

The Town Clerk's office couldn't function without the capable work of her assistant. Franny commented that they are both Notary Publics, and are both capable of completing any task required of the office.

Among the numerous duties assigned to this municipal office are: recording all Cohasset vital statistics, including births, deaths, marriages. Amendments must be added to these records, and copies forwarded to the proper state office.

The Town Clerk is responsible for issuing all dog licenses and fisheries and wildlife licenses.

Voters must be registered in this office, and the office personnel must prepare a list of voters for all municipal and state elections. Franny is a member of the Cohasset Board of Registrars and supervises all local and state elections.

There's a lot of work to be completed prior to each election, and most of it falls on the shoulders of Franny and Connie.

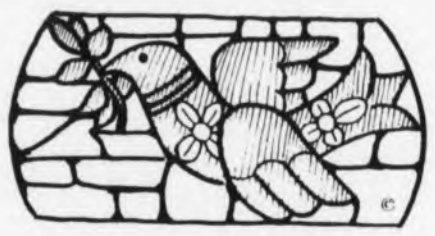
All materials for Town Meetings are prepared within the Town Clerk's office. The minutes of the meetings are recorded and typed by the office staff and all bylaw and zoning amendments must be forwarded to the Attorney General's office for approval.

Most of the duties assigned to this office are mandated by the state, and must be completed within a statutory time limit. As Connie explained, "someone in this office might think they have the right answer or have filed something properly. But most of the things we do are so legal and technical, unless you know everything about it, you probably wouldn't have followed the correct procedure."

Franny noted that they diligently follow the procedures outlined in their office "Bibles." Compiled by the Massachusetts Town Clerks Association, one book outlines the proper recordings of the town's vital records. The second "Bible" contains information pertaining to town meetings, permits and licensing. "It's all there," Franny stated. "It's a guideline we follow constantly."

There is actually a third book which contains the town clerk's duties in an election.

In addition to these assignments, Franny and Connie are responsible for filing and copying all Zoning Board of Appeals cases and decisions. There is also a statutory time when the office must file a copy of the decision to the state Registry of Deeds.



"People come in here constantly and ask for copies of all sorts of town records," Connie said. "It is our job to see they have the information they requested."

Connie is a native of Cohasset. She has lived in the same Beechwood Street home all her life, a house that has been in her family since before the Civil War.

She and her husband Ashley have five grown children, four daughters and a son. She is a member of the Beechwood Congregational Church, and likes to sew and cook in her spare time.

She was employed in the Assessor's office for four years prior to position as Assistant Town Clerk. She was an assistant librarian at the Paul Pratt Library from 1961-1968.

Franny's husband David is a retired Cohasset firefighter. They have three daughters and a son and have lived in town many years.

Selectmen reject Personnel Committee exclusion

Selectmen denied a proposal by Diane Sullivan that selectmen negotiate the police and fire union contracts without the personnel committee.

Sullivan said the personnel committee has enough responsibilities to complete without the two contract negotiations. Through the last contract negotiation process, the unions asked that selectmen become more involved, she said. If the board handled the negotiations, similar to the school committee negotiating the teachers' contract, it would leave the personnel committee more time to supervise the reclassification of Town Hall employees, and update all personnel records for the town.

She suggested that a sub committee of selectmen negotiate the contracts and bring back ideas and comments to the labor attorney. In that manner, the town will save legal costs and become more involved in the negotiation process.

Sullivan emphasized she was not being critical of the personnel committee. She said the idea originated after the unions repeatedly called for selectmen to become more involved in the negotiations of their contracts.

Selectman Cliff Mitman said the current procedure is acceptable, as long as the town utilizes labor counsel correctly, and the personnel committee receives constant direction from the board. A selectmen's sub committee would be unwieldly and not any more efficient than the current process, he said.

Sullivan said that the town bylaw states selectmen should negotiate the contracts for the two unions. But Mitman explained the personnel committee performs its functions for the board, while receiving continual direction from selectmen.

The board defeated Sullivan's motion for selectmen to negotiate police and fire contracts, by a vote of 4-1.

King Street development hearing postponed

By Linda Dagley
Mariner Correspondent

The Conservation Commission continued the public hearing for Dr. Patrick Morrisey and a proposed development off King Street.

After Morrisey and engineer Neil Murphy failed to appear at the hearing Tuesday night, the Commission reviewed their plans for lots 3, 7 and 8 off 231 King St., on Ketchum Lane.

A letter from the Board of Health stated that plans for the proposed septic systems on lots 3 and 7 had been submitted to the town engineer for review. Lot 8 had been disapproved because of inadequate water table information.

The Commission decided to continue the hearing until information was received from the engineer.

In a second public hearing, Clifton Jones presented a plan to raise the level of his side yard at 217 Cushing St. A brook runs through the property and through a culvert under Route 3A. Jones said the brook is dry for 10 months out of the year.

Reading from the Wetlands Protection Act, Robert Maki explained that any stream, whether or not it runs intermittently, is considered a wetland and any work done within 100 feet requires a notice of intent.

"It is protection for you and your neighbors," Chairman Merle Brown told him.

Jones maintained that his fill does not affect the stream and his neighbor even offered to help finance it.

"The land there is convex," he explained. "Rain water gathers there and we have a real problem with mosquitoes."

Jones began filling his yard several years ago and was waiting to hire a contractor to level it off so he can plant seed. Jones stopped filling it when the building inspector began receiving complaints from his neighbors.

Jones agreed to the decision, telling the commission, "I won't do anything until you tell me it's okay."

In other business the commission:

— okayed a proposal by Robert and Donna Morgan to build a family room onto their property at 698 Jerusalem Rd.;

— read communication from John Richardson, environmental consultant was discussed. Richardson informed the commission about the suit against the Hingham Conservation Commission by Attorney Albert Johnson to take as his own 4.4 acres of conservation land; — sent a letter to Sam Esposito to come before them with the plans of the work he is doing on his house on Rte. 3A. According to Bill Parmenter, he is apparently cleaning out brush from what was once a parking lot;

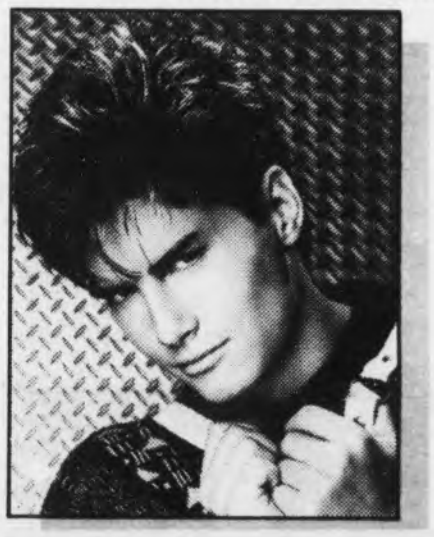
— placed an inquiry into the roads and tennis courts at the 100 Pond St. development which do not appear in the plans;

— signed the Budget request for next year which includes $75 more for postage and a new filing cabinet. According to Macki, "Considering all the wetland in Cohasset, we do more frugally, than any other town in the state.

Channel 2 auction leader



Marilyn Angley of Plymouth has been named area chairman and "Spirit of Massachusetts" chairman for the 1986 Channel Two auction. She will recruit and coordinate volunteers on the South Shore for the annual event.

More than 4,000 volunteers participate in the annual auction which is a major fundraiser for Boston's public broadcasting service station, WGBH.

The 1985 Channel Two auction will mark its 21st year as "A Whale of an Auction," which has a goal of more than $1 million.

The auction will be televised from May 30 through June 7. Spirit of Massachusetts Day will be June 5.

'Deep Sea Captains' history available

Spanning more than a century of time in its early history, Cohasset was the home of several generations of seafaring "Deep Sea Captains." They were the Masters of large mercantile sailing vessels which voyaged to seaports in many parts of the world during the town's "Age of Sail."

Many of the Captains had been born and raised here, others adopted Cohasset as their home. By the age of nine or ten years, Cohasset's youthful seafarers had begun their careers on the ocean, serving aboard family-owned schooners of the town's fishing fleets.

In their teens some had grown up to command the big schooners, and by their 20's had sailed before the mast on ocean-going vessels and then become Ship Masters in their own right, commanding the great merchant vessels outward bound from Boston to ports across the Atlantic or on the other side of Cape Horn.

Some of the big ships were owned by Cohasset shipowners, such as the Tower family's barque "Hobart" and John Bates' "Vesta." Others were the property of Boston businesses, such as Nickerson Company's "North America" and "Tecumseh."

The records of Cohasset's earliest Deep Sea Captains are sparce; Capt. Nathaniel Nichols served with the continental Navy during the Revolution, and sailed on a privateering voyage to the eastern Atlantic where two enemy vessels were captured before the end of the war. Capt. John Jacob Lothrop was Master of the schooner "Priscilla" in 1789, the schooner "Betsey" in 1794 and of the "Bethia" in 1798. Capt. Aaron Pratt commanded the schooner "Enterprise" in 1809, the brig "Elisa and Lydia" in 1810, and "Triton" in 1811. Son of a Cape Cod seafaring family, Capt. Ephraim Snow came to Cohasset in 1807 and in that year commanded the schooner "Ruth" owned by Levi Tower. In 1816 Capt. Snow brought to Cohasset a young man named Salvador Sabate y Morell from Tarragona, Spain.

Upon his arrival here the young man took the name Samuel Snow, and in later years commanded, among other vessels, the brig "Mayflower." Capt. Samuel Snow, an adopted Cohasset "Deep Sea Captain," was lost at sea on October 3, 1825. Cohasset's Capt. John Wilson, Master of Levi Tower's "Cohasset Packet," was captured by a British man-of-war during the War of 1812, then later commanded such vessels as the schooner "Aeolus," the "Caroline" and the "Bounty," making foreign voyages.

Perhaps the most illustrious of the town's early Sea Captains was another "adopted" seafarer, Capt. Philip Fox, an Englishman who made Cohasset his home. Twice, as Master of a Boston packet ship, Capt. Fox set the port-to-port record for westward Atlantic crossings from Liverpool to Boston. The first was a record of 17 days in 1819 with "Herald," the second of 16 days in 1824 with "Emerald." The latter record was to stand for nearly half a century until broken by the giant clipper ship "Red Jacket."

The early and middle years of the 19th century produced two generations of Deep Sea Captains in Cohasset, perhaps best exemplified by Captains James Collier and James Collier, Jr. Capt. Collier, Senior, born in 1775, was owner and Master of the schooner "Light Horse" in 1803, and by 1806 commanded the Scituate vessel "William Tell." Later, as a Cohasset Master and shipowner, Collier commanded his own vessels "Little Sarah," "Young James" and "Elizabeth," all named for his children. The James of "Young James" grew up to be Capt. James Collier, Jr. It was this Collier who commanded, among many other ocean-going sailing ships, the clipper "Storm King," and the Nickerson Company's "North America" and Tecumseh." In all, Capt. James Collier Jr.'s career on the ocean spanned more than 50 years and took him to seaports in all parts of the world.

The roster of Cohasset's "Deep Sea Captains" includes names from the town's eldest families; of Hingham origin were the seafarers of the Bates, Souther, Tower and Lincoln families. From Scituate came the Colliers, Suttens and Litchfields, from Boston the Halls, from Plymouth the Pratts, from Maine the Towles, and from Cape Cod the Snows, Lothrops and Riches. Of Cohasset's adopted sea captains, John Stephenson, Philip Fox, David Wilson and Joseph H. Smith were from England, and the youth probably named Giovanni Baptiste who became Capt. John Barker was from Itlay. Capt. Samuel Snow was from Spain and from Ireland came Capt. Thomas Doyle. By the beginning of the 20th century, the nation's great fleets of globe-spanning sailing vessels were rapidly passing from the scene, and the elder generations of Deep Sea Captains no longer were living.

Before the story of Cohasset's "Age of Sail" became irretrevably lost, the son of one of the best known of the Deep Sea Captains wrote down the information still known or remembered. Edmund Pomeroy Collier, son of Capt. James Collier, Jr., writing in 1909, compiled an 80 page series of biographical profiles of Cohasset's Sea Captains, detailing the careers of more than 40 of them and mentioning many more.

First appearing as an added historical chapter in the Davenport's Cohasset Genealogies, Collier's unique and fascinating story of the Deep Sea Captains of Cohasset now has been reissued as a paperback book by the Cohasset Historical Society.

Profusely illustrated with portraits of the Sea Captains and of the vessels they commanded, this unusual publication can be obtained through the Society or at Felming's, Cohasset Center.

Priced at just $8.50 (including Mass. state tax) the new reprint of "Cohasset's Deep Sea Captains" once again makes available this story of the town's history as a seafaring community.

For a holiday season gift of note, consider this fine historical publication. "Cohasset's Deep Sea Captains" by E. Pomeroy Collier may be obtained by contacting the Historial Society at 383-6930 or by dropping in at the Society's headquarters, the Caleb Lothrop House, 14 Summer Street, Cohasset.

The best card all around.

The REDi-CA$H/24 Card is now accepted at over 600 banks and supermarkets all around Massachusetts and New Hampshire.

If you've ever been caught short of cash. Or, if you've ever sacrificed a lunch hour standing in line at your bank...you're ready for our REDi-CA$H/24 Card.

Quincy Savings Bank introduced its REDi-CA$H/24 Card 12 years ago. It was one of the first Automated Teller Machine cards offered in Massachusetts.

It was designed to provide our customers with an extra measure of convenience, confidence and peace of mind. And it has. Now you're invited to join them.

Bank around-the-clock.

You can use your REDi-CA$H/24 Card anytime, day or night, 365 days a year.

Deposit your paycheck at midnight. Make your car loan installment payment on a Sunday afternoon. Transfer funds from your savings to your checking account before breakfast some morning.

And, of course, with a REDi-CA$H/24 Card from Quincy Savings Bank, you can always get cash. Up to $100.00 per day.

Bank around-the-block.

You'll find Quincy Savings Bank REDi-CA$H/24 Automated Teller Machines conveniently located in Braintree, Hanover, Hingham, Norwell (Queen Anne Plaza), North Quincy, Quincy, Quincy Point, and South Quincy.

All you do is insert your card and enter your secret Personal Identification Number. The REDi-CA$H/24 Machine will guide you through your transaction and even provide a printed receipt. It's that simple.

Bank around-the-state.

Quincy Savings Bank is a member of the REDi-CA$H/24, tx and CA$H networks. Your REDi-CA$H/24 Card will be honored at any machine bearing the REDI-CA$H/24, tx or CA$H Network symbols.

That means that you can get cash in an emergency at more than 600 locations across Massachusetts and even in New Hampshire. The machines have been placed in banks, supermarkets and freestanding kiosk units for your added convenience.

We're not stopping here. Future affiliations are planned that will further expand the total number of REDi-CA$H/24 ATMs.

Yours FREE. The all around convenience of REDi-CA$H/24.

From Braintree to the Berkshires, Norwell to New Bedford, Hingham to Harvard and everywhere in between, you can enjoy the convenience, confidence and peace of mind that REDi-CA$H/24 banking offers.

Voters approve raise but police protest . . .

said the board had bargained in good faith and that it was a fair and equitable settlement. The advisory committee also recommended the two five percent raises, which will total $20,415 in 1985, and $41,430 the following year.

Selectmen supported the article, although Selectman Cliff Mitman explained that if the state Joint Labor Management Committee rules against the town, it will necessitiate further appropriations from Town Meeting.

No Cohasset police officer spoke at Town Meeting. The following day, Officer Brian Noonan said the officers felt further rhetoric was futile. "We'll let our attorney handle it through the legal system now," he said.

In October, the personnel committee submitted a final contract offer to the union. Contained in the offer were seven items that the board felt were no longer negotiable between the town and the union. Those items included a sick leave buy back provision which stated that the current rate will remain frozen after the two five percent pay increases. After that, any sick leave buy back must be negotiated.

Also, all shift differentials will be converted after the two five percent raises, to the current flat dollar amount. Presently there is a six and a half percent differential between the day and night shift and 11 percent between the patrolman and sergeant's salary. If this provision went into effect, the differential amounts would be frozen.

The October contract offer also stated that officers would not be eligible for 28 days vacation until their 15th year of service.

In an open letter to the community, members of the Cohasset Patrolmen's Association outlined their reasons for rejecting the contract offer. As Officer stated, "It isn't just a matter of money. It's the benefits we are in disagreement about."

Union attorney McParland said "they are taking away benefits such as a provision dealing with the civilian dispatcher, and we have said you can't do that. We've had a couple of meetings with the Joint Labor Management Committee, and we say we are still negotiating."

According to the attorney, "the town wants to give us the same pay increase as the fire department. But they also want to take away three or four major benefits.

"They don't even show up anymore at the state meetings," he continued. "I don't think I've ever been at a meeting when all five selectmen have been there. It's like a slap in the face to our people when our entire negotiating team shows, maybe one selectman attends."

Atty. McParland noted that at the last JLMC meeting in November, the town's sole representative was Personnel Committee Chairman Daggett.

S.S. Conservatory concert Dec. 13

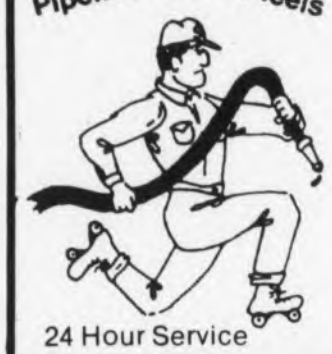
Music for flute and harp will be featured at a faculty concert at the South Shore Conservatory in Hingham, Friday, Dec.13 at 7:30 p.m.

Flutist September Payne of the Conservatory woodwind faculty, with guest harpist, Carolyn Mills-Williams, will perform works by Faure, Ravel, Ibert and Persichetti. The concert will be in Cox Recital Hall at the Conservatory, off 19 Fort Hill Street.There is no charge for admission and the public is invited to attend this program by two professional musicians.

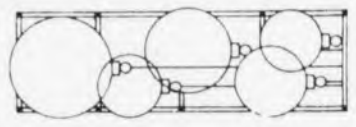
September Payne is a native of Canada where she received most of her music training including her Bachelor of Music degree from the University of Western Ontario. She came to the States to study at Boston University School for the Arts from which she received a Master's degree in 1983. September also studied in Nice, France. She has performed at Aspen, Colorado; Toronto, Canada; in Rome, Italy, and as a free-lance musician in the Boston area. She and Carolyn Mills-Williams perform professionaly around Boston as Duo Pastiche.

Carolyn Mills-Williams studied the harp and received her Master's degree from Boston University. She is a student of noted harp teacher, Lucille Lawrence. In addition to her appearances as part of Duo Pastiche, she is a busy free lance harpist in the area.

CHRISTMAS GIFTS



The Friends of the South Shore Conservatory of Music will be selling a selection of items for Christmas giving Dec. 17, 18 and 19 from 2:30 to 5 p.m. in the first floor lounge at the school off 19 Fort Hill Street in Hingham.



Colorful T-shirts, sweatshirts and tote bags, with amusing musical slogans, and the Conservatory name, such as Handel With Care, Front - Bach, Lemon Schubert and others will be offered.

The Friends of SSCM is a group of volunteers who, through the sale of these special items and other fundraising events, help the school provide scholarships for needy families.

The Conservatory is a non profit community school of the arts which is funded in part by the Mass. Council on the Arts and Humanities.

Teachers Association signs three-year contract made to that area of the contract met with satisfaction by the teachers, he added.

Fortin, who worked alongside a negotiating team for more than a year, said, "it's been a long process. But the teachers are pleased with the School Committee's attitude toward them. It was a unanimous vote to accept the contract and the teachers are pleased with the agreement."

The school committee plans to sign the completed contract document at its meeting Monday night, December 16.

Following ratification of the contract, the teachers' negotiating team must discuss with the school committee the distribution of state teacher development grants. The teachers do not expect any differences with the school committee regarding this issue. Both sides have agreed the state grants should not be written into the teacher's base salary. If the state monies dry up in a few years, that extra sum will not be part of the teachers' base pay.

Special Town Meeting approved awarding the bi-annual state grants to all Cohasset teachers. The program is part of the state's recently-enacted Education Reform Act.

Music Circus gift certificates

Offering the gift of music, laughter and dance, Christmas Gift Certificates valid for the 1986 summer season at South Shore Music Circus are now available by mail, by phone, or at the theatre's Cohasset business office.

Available in any amount starting at $10, certificates may be used in the spring to purchase tickets to any attraction of the popular summer theatre's 1986 line-up.

Music Circus producer Ron Rawson commented, "Our gift certificate program grows in popularity each holiday season, and with good reason. Music Circus patrons find our certificates to be the perfect gift for any number of people, from family and friends to valued business associates. Many people also pick up a gift certificate from one of our outstanding local restaurants, which gives the recipient a complete evening out, starring a favorite entertainer."

Patrons may purchase certificates with a major credit card by calling 383-9850 during business hours Monday through Saturday. If ordering by mail, patrons should send a check in the chosen amount, adding a $1 handling fee, to Gift Certificates, Box 325, Cohasset, Mass. 02025.

Beyond War stresses a non-violent solution to conflicts

By Claire McDonough
Mariner Correspondent

"The unleashed power of the atom has changed everything save our modes of thinking and we thus drift toward unparalleled catastrophe."—Albert Einstein, 1946.

"The world is very different now, for man holds in his mortal hands the power to eliminate all forms of human suffering — and all forms of human life." — John F. Kennedy, 1960.

Few would dispute Kennedy's statement, and more and more are coming to a fatalistic acceptance of Einstein's — that there is nothing the ordinary person can do to prevent a "drift toward unparalleled catastrophe."

Beyond War, an organization that originated in Palo Alto, CA, and has been quietly spreading across the nation, is more inclined toward Einstein's belief.

With an unshakable optimism tempered, but not negated, by realism, Beyond War members point out that if there's one thing humans can do, it is change their mode of thinking.

Unlike the dinosaurs which became extinct because they were unable to adapt to a changing environment, man has repeatedly altered his behavior in the face of divergent circumstances.

"At one time," Doug Marshall pointed out at a meeting that he and Charlotte Harmon of Duxbury held at his Norwell home Tuesday evening, "humans were absolutely convinced that slavery was necessary for economic survival.

"Even earlier in our history it was taken for granted that human sacrifice was essential to protect the tribe or the clan from destruction by the gods.

"We don't perform human sacrifices any more; we don't make slaves of our fellow human beings. We have gone beyond human sacrifice. We have gone beyond slavery.

"We have gone beyond child labor and any number of other institutions that were once an integral part of society. Is it impossible that we can also go beyond war?"

The Beyond War movement uses as its symbol a photograph of the earth taken from outer space. Seen from this perspective, national boundaries do not exist. We see a tiny blue globe which is home to all ". . .all people, all life, all laughter, all love, all music, all art. And, tragically, now home to enough nuclear weapons to destroy it all in a matter of minutes."

Said Marshall: "It is clear from this perspective of earth, "that we are all one. If we are all one, there can be no enemy, and war is not an option. Even the smallest war could quickly escalate into a full-fledged nuclear holocaust, and this is unthinkable.

"If you're in a lifeboat with another person and you don't like him, it doesn't make much sense to drill a hole under his seat."

Douglas and Harmon were quick to agree that the Beyond War principles don't end conflict. They simply say that violence suppresses but does not resolve conflict.

Beyond War does not urge unilateral disarmament, but rather unilateral initiative — a commitment to find non-violent solutions to conflict.

"But," they were asked, "how can we trust the Russians?"

"We don't have to," they were told. "But we can trust the Russians to act in their own self-interest."

It was pointed out that the Nobel Prize-winning Physicians for Social Responsibility include physicians from Soviet nations — including a close advisor to Russian leader Mikhail Gorbochev.

"We saw a cartoon recently," Marshall mused, "that showed President Reagan and Premier Gorbochev standing waist-high in a garage full of gasoline arguing about who had the most matches.

"Common sense dictates that no one can light a match, and someone has to get rid of the gasoline."

Following a viewing of Carl Sagan's film, "Who Speaks for the Cosmos," Beyond War members from Marshfield, Norwell, Scituate, Duxbury, Hanover and other South Shore communities discussed how their lives might change if they truly believed that "we all are one."

Although they hoped to be more tranquil, less competitive and willing to sacrifice, they admitted that there would be difficulties. They would face questions such as: "Will I have trouble defining what is mine by right? Must I be more accepting of people who irritate me? Am I willing to accept the risk and uncertainty that would be involved?"

After serious, and quiet discussion, they agreed that they, like humans from the beginning of history, could change, but that it wouldn't be easy.

After all, it was noted, 10 years ago we never could have talked about our friends in the Peoples' Republic of China.

Fifty years ago, the thought of women's sufferage was limited to a handful of activists.

When enough people believe that war is obsolete, it will be obsolete.

How many is enough? According to "Beyond War: A New Way of Thinking," "One person in 20 is all it takes. Research studies have shown that when approximately five percent of a society accepts a new idea it becomes 'embedded.' "

When it reaches 20 percent of the population, it becomes "unstoppable."

According to Marshall and Harmon, the Vietnam War ended, not because government willed it, but because enough people wanted it to end.

Prohibition, another grass roots movement, failed because not enough people truly accepted it.

Beyond War members are not asked to argue or try to convert. They are asked to wear a pin depicting their symbol. If questioned, they are asked to explain that it means "We Are One."

They are also asked to make the following decisions:

I will resolve conflict; I will not use violence.

I will maintain a sphere of good will. I will not preoccupy myself with an enemy.

I will work with others to build a world beyond war.

According to Marshall, science and the Golden Rule — Do unto others as you would have others do unto you — have come full circle. The words of Genesis and of Christ have been reiterated in the photographs of a fragile globe sharing air, water and life: We are one.

"If we don't follow the Golden Rule, we will all cease to exist.

"And we can't expect the governments of the world to do this for us. Governments are notoriously 30 years behind the people.

"Rosa Parks, the founder of the Civil Rights movement, didn't know the forces she was setting in motion when she refused to stand in the back of the bus. But hers was an historic decision.

"You are asked to make decisions for non-violence and unity. And you never know when you're a Rosa Parks," Marshall said.

For information on other scheduled Beyond War meetings, throughout the South Shore, call Doug Marshall at 826-2482. A new series of meetings will begin in January.

Wildlife expert opens a new world of discovery

In containers slightly larger than a breadbox, Kenneth Pauley opened a new world of discovery for the students at the Osgood School.

In an hour-long presentation, Pauley explained the differences and similiarities between the human animal, and the wildlife that surrounds us. It was a program that delighted his young audience, and one that brought gales of laughter amidst quiet attention.

In a program sponsored by the Arts and Enrichment Committee of the PSO, Pauley brought his traveling science lesson Monday to the Osgood School. Pauley is from the Museum of Science in Boston and travels to local schools with some 'visitors' who lodge at the Museum.

He prefaced his presentation by explaining that all wild animals should be left in their natural habitat. The animals he brought along with him were once wounded, and brought to the museum for specialized care. For different reasons, these par icular animals were not able to return to thei. original homes, and thus continue to live at the museum.

The first animal brought from his cage for the seated children to view was the porcupine. He was black, furry and looked very cuddly. "Oooh" - a collective utterance from the children as they watched the plump animal stare at them with deep black eyes.

"When I say his name, I can't stop laughing," Pauley joked to his audience. They giggled in agreement.

He mentioned how the porcupine looks like a fuzzy pig, but showed them a significant difference in the two animals. Underneath the soft coat of fuzzy fur, are thousands of spiny quills - the actual hair of the porcupine. The quills are his defense system against attackers, Pauley explained, but contrary to popular belief, a porcupine can not "shoot" the quills from his body.

"He can't throw the quills, just as you can't throw your hair. Imagine if we could shoot our hair at someone we didn't like," Pauley said as the children laughed at the ridiculous image.

Pauley cautioned the children never to touch or walk close to a porcupine. Although they will not attack, by simply touching a porcupine the quills will immediately detach from the animal and stick into the flesh of another animal or a person. Pauley demonstrated how the quill, a sharp, needle-shaped object, will sink deep into the flesh. It is difficult for a human or another animal to pull the spines from the flesh.

"Do porcupines live in Cohasset?" Pauley asked his audience. "Yes," he answered. "But you will probably never find one. They are usually out only at night and you will see one only once and a while. And if you do, leave it alone."

The next animal, Pauley cautioned, was extremely shy. He warned the students to be very quiet, not to scare the timid, small animal. From another box, he pulled out a brown, soft, furry animal called a kinkaju. It had a long monkey's tail, and resembled his cousin, the racoon.

As he hung from Pauley's shoudler, the children tried mightily to supress their laughter. He showed them the kinkaju's small bear-like feet, and his soft, furry body. This racoon, he explained, is from Central and South America where he hangs from trees by his tail. He sleeps during the day in hollowed-out trees and eats fruits, lizards, snakes "almost anything," Pauley said, watching the children as once again they covered their mouths and giggled.

Soon, the kinkaju returned to the comfort and security of his box. Pauley returned with a small snake that had been asleep in a small cloth bag. As he wound himself around Pauley's arms and shoulders, the museum official explained the basis of survival between man and animal.

"Wild animals belong wild in the woods," he said. Specifically regarding snakes, "if you see one, don't pick it up unless you are sure what type it is, and know how to handle it," he warned. He showed the youngsters how to pick up this particular species of snake, the gopher snake.

As quickly as he demonstrated the technique, the snake was tucked back inside his satchel. As Pauley rapidly turned around to his audience, he proudly slung the giant creature around his neck.

Screams unleashed from the crowd, many of whom were now standing, ready to depart at a moment's notice. This new species was a six-foot long boa constrictor.

As the plump animal slowly squirmed around Pauley's arms and neck, many of the children watched in amazement and uneasiness.

The snake was not poisonous, Pauley reassured them, and boa constrictors "do not chase people, kill Christmas Concert Tickets: Tickets are now on sale at the church office at $3 for our annual benefit Christmas concert to be held in the Meeting House Sunday, Dec. 15 at 4 p.m.

We look forward to another superb concert featuring the Broad Cove Chorale and Unicorn Singers under the direction of Margo Euler. They will present Johann Sebastian Bach's "Magnificat in D" and "Cantata No. 122." Instrumental accompaniment will include organ, harpischord, flute, cello and recorder. Also the audience will be invited to join in singing some German Christmas carols.

This year we have designated Rosie's Place, a shelter for homeless women in Boston, as the beneficiary of our concert. To date we have 38 patrons. If you wish, there is still time to become a patron of the concert by making a contribution of $25. Patrons receive two complimentary tickets. Don't miss out on this opportunity to benefit a good cause and to enjoy some beautiful Christmas music.

Christmas Poinsettias: Once again we are looking for donors for poinsettias to decorate our chancel table Christmas Sunday and Christmas Eve. Please call the church office, 383-1100 or Olivia Linsley, 383-0730. $10.

Community is Looking for Volunteers: on the South Shore. A ten-week training session will be held evenings beginning January 22. If you can find a few hours each week to work with a family in your area, please call Janet Vernon at 849-1710 or 843-0947 or the church office, 383-1100, for more information.

Special Events: Saturday, Dec. 14, at 9 a.m. — Church Quiet Day; Wednesday, Dec. 18, at 6:30 p.m. — Advent Potluck Dinner; Friday, Dec. 20, at 6:30 p.m. — Christmas Caroling; Tuesday, Dec., 24, Christmas Eve. — 5 p.m., Holy Eucharist; 9 p.m., Parish Fellowship Collation; 10:30 p.m., Brass and Organ Concert, and 11 p.m., Holy Eucharist; Wednesday, Dec. 25, Christmas Day — 9:30 a.m. Holy Eucharist; Sunday, Jan. 5, at 10 a.m. — Confirmation will be celebrated by Bishop Rath; Sunday, Jan. 12 at 10 a.m. — Church School Feast of Lights (Three Kings) Pageant.

Off to a Great Start:
Advent Potluck Suppers will continue Wednesday, Dec. 18. These are fun events meant to be enjoyed by young and old alike. Having made our wreaths and drawn our secret pals, on the 11th we will make a colorful Advent hanging and on the 18th will enjoy a special Advent choral presentation and perhaps get a chance to sing a few numbers ourselves! Bring a casserole to share and enjoy.

Christmas Carolers: Young and old alike who enjoy singing and bringing the cheer of Christmas music into the lives of others, will meet at the church Friday, Dec. 20, at 6:30 p.m. After the caroling, refreshments and good fellowship will be had by all at the Powers' house.

Confirmation Class: College students who have not been confirmed and would like to be will have the opportunity by attending two day-long sessions on the faith Monday, Dec. 30, and Friday, Jan. 3, from 9 a.m. to 2 p.m. Bring a bag lunch. The object of these classes will be to give you the information and chance to explore issues of faith whereby you can decide whether to make a declaration of your faith and be strengthened in the spirit to carry out that faith, which is what confirmation means. If you are interested, call the church office to reserve a place.

or eat people, or strangle people. Will they bite you if you grab them?" he asked.

"I never have," one voice in the crowd answered.

"Good," Pauley cautioned.

He showed the students how special the snake really is - he has a heart, bones, lungs, a stomach and intestines. Not like humans, right?" No, the children screamed in sequence.

Pauley concluded his presentation by noting that all animals are special - everything from a porcupine, a kinkaju, a snake, to a human being.

Dancers set to meet 'fearsome' mice in 'Nutcracker'

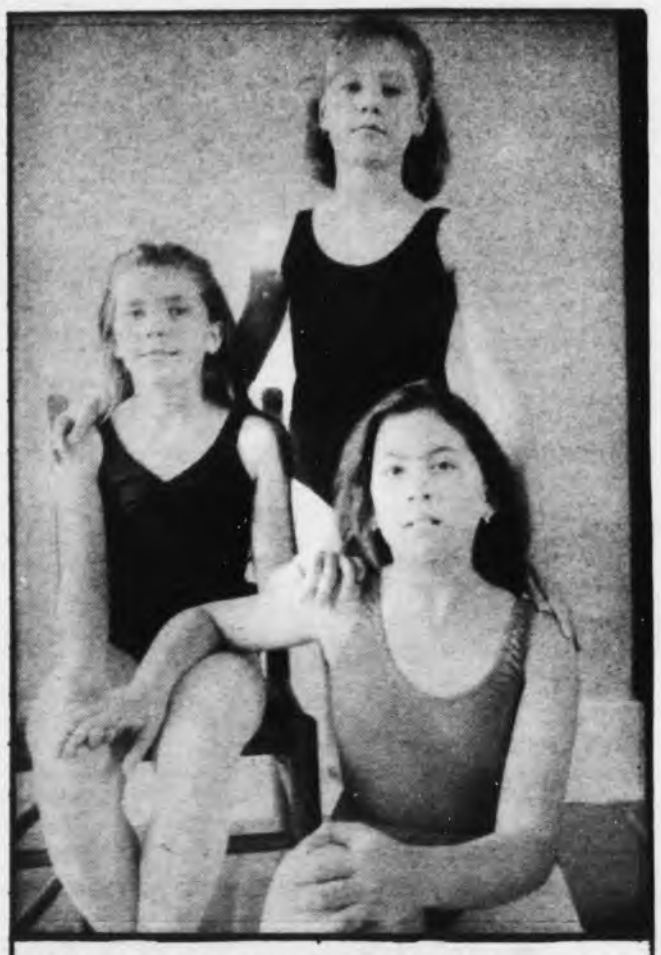
By Jane Lane
Mariner Staff

It is something they've strived for since they've been small(er). A chance to dance on stage in the spotlight, in front of a huge, admiring audience.

Are they anxious, fearful, stomach-wrenching nervous?

"Oh no," they giggle in sequence. Bridget Leung, Courtney Schultz and Johanna Horn, about-to-be-stars of the Boston stage, are relaxed and unimpressed with their potential fame.

Beginning Friday evening, the three Cohasset school girls will be transformed into the magical, bigger-than-life world of "The Nutcracker Suite." Performing at Boston's Wang Center, the girls will exchange their jeans, sneakers and sweaters each night for the military garb of toy soldiers as they battle the fearsome mice in a scene from this Christmas tradition.



Their reaction to performing in this exquisite production may seem rather blase. But as they explained this week prior to their premiere, they've shared the limelight before.

Courtney, Bridget and Johanna are students at the Children's Ballet Workshop where they attend two classes each week. They travel once a week into Boston for a lesson at the renowned Boston School of Ballet.

According to the trio, each year they participate in the Hingham school's spring recital. This is a huge affair, they assured their interviewer, equipped with music, lights and a large audience within the Hingham High School auditorium.

The thoughts of the Wang Center stage therefore fills them with little trepidation.

Meeting this week at Johanna's Highland Avenue home, they talked excitedly about their upcoming adventures in 'Nutcracker,' and the numerous activities which led them to the famed Boston production.

Johanna Horn (right), Bridget Leung and Courtney Schultz are set to perform in 'The Nutcracker Suite.'

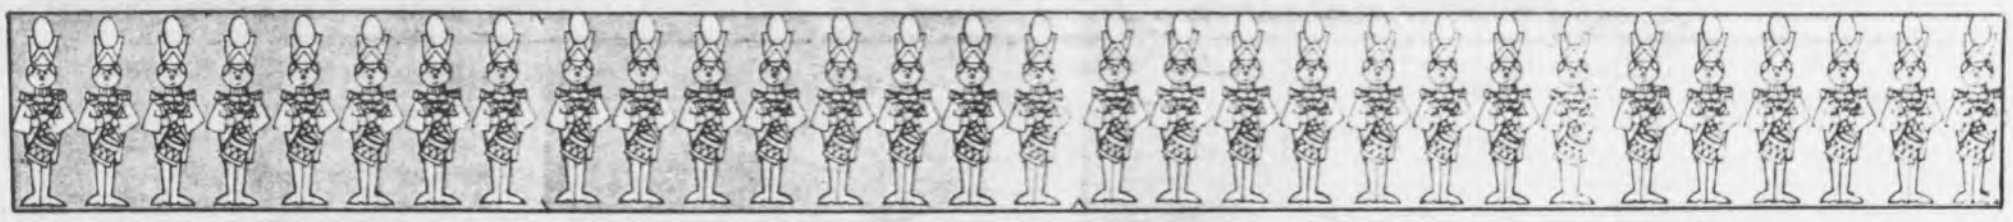
Bridget is the eldest of the group. Eleven years old, she is a sixth grade student in Mr. Becker's class. Courtney is nine and a student in the fourth grade classroom of Mrs. Chase, and Johanna, 9, is in Mrs. McDonald's room.

Their interests are similar and multiple. Asked what they like to do afterschool, they bombard the questioner with a barrage of answers - simultaneously.

One thing is certain. Although they are serious about their ballet and have studied for years, that is hardly the sole outlet for their energy.

First the classroom: when asked if they were good students, Courtney answered as she rested her face in her hands, "if that means we get good report cards, then, yes, we're all good students."

Questioned about their other interests outside the classroom, they answer in rapid spurts. Gymnastics and singing rank among their favorite activities.



In fact, Johanna said she may decide not to be a professional dancer, but will opt for a career as a gymnast. "Maybe a part time gymnast and part time dancer," she answered after some serious thought.

She explained in more detail, "Ballet is good for gymnastics, but gymnastics is not good for ballet." Johanna noted that in gymnastics things are a bit rougher, and landing solidly on both feet is required. A more graceful ending to contorsions of the body is the rule of ballet.

All three girls have taken gymnastic lessons at the Community Center. Johanna now helps out with the younger classes.

Music is also a large part of their lives. Bridget

Roving Reporter II: A journey through British Columbia

Begging your forgiveness. The production of this column, although the most pleasurable of my non-horizontal activities, isn't the sole one. From time to time I am compelled to obey an impertinent alarm clock and enter the world of actual work. Such a misfortune befell me upon my return from a glorious British Columbian vacation, and it is thus that I have offended no one in this space for over a month. Before going on the "offensive" again, I'd like to introduce you to Western Canada based upon a six-day journey among its bears, bars, and broads.

What first strikes the Greater South Shorean about British Columbia is sameness with respect to much of what he is confoundedly used to. Whether what I refer to is American culture, or modern culture, or want of culture, it pervades. There are commercial strips along and across the 49th parallel that studiously imitate Route 53 on the day after Thanksgiving. Cultural icons such as McDonald's are ubiquitous, their only concession to locus being the Maple Leaf in place of the Stars and Stripes up the corporate flagpole.

As one motors on, one despairs of discovering anything foreign. There is "all-old" radio, and a territorial governor (a Bennett in lieu of a Dukakis) extolling himself while incidentally lamenting the consequences of driving impaired. In short, it sometimes seems that every camp characteristic of ourselves has its clone in this mountain province far away. But all things are not as at first they seem; the differences between our cultures are more subtle and deeper than the eye will immediately notice.

What the eye does notice is worth recording, however. British Columbia is wild, beauteous, and enormous. Its sheer scale overwhelms the motorist of 1985 as the Massachusetts of 1630 must have overwhelmed the wilderness pedestrian.

The Coast Mountains alone would comprise nations in Europe. Lake Louise in Alberta, of which you have most probably heard, is dwarfed in British Columbia by Duffy, Seton, Carpenter, and Lillooet—British Columbian mountain wilderness lakes that barely show on a map.

But such lakes in the context of British Columbia are like Accord Pond in the context of Massachusetts...they are as the powder of the onion dip is to the main feast. The Peace River, which wends out of province and on to Hudson Bay, is a slow-moving wilderness waterway—home to white tail deer and moose and bears—a river that runs uncivilized (in approximate local dimensions) from Braintree Five Corners to Minnesota!

That, in shorthand, is the way it is. Fort St. John on the Alaska Highway, a bit over halfway from the 49th parallel to the Yukon line, is as far as I got before turning east and south toward the Canadian Rockies, which are another, entirely different, vast world of beauty.

Nevertheless, although the habitual Route 3 stop-and-starter is genuinely awed by the size of the province and the manifold texture of its beauty, he goes there expecting unexpected loveliness. What therefore impresses him even more than the scenery are the people of the province and their sturdy a-building civilization. Given the enormity of their enterprise (not to mention the fact that some bloke named Joe Kennedy just left a message on my answering machine) I can only here synopsize the reasons I so quickly came to admire British Columbians; but let me give it a whirl.

In a fundamental way they seem more outer-directed than we. Having no burden of tradition of thinking they are the center of the universe, or the chief rockers of the double bed in the big house in the "city upon a hill," they are intellectually humble, intellectually curious...and therefore I believe they are intellectually superior.

In the Vancouver papers the news is of New York and London and Taipei, and the news is real news that broadens its readership. Read the Boston papers (either of them) and so much of what we get fed is, in one way or another, news of ourselves and our competing sterile ideologies. What passes for thought and writing here are too often mere "buzz-lines" signalling our like-minded friends that we and they are members of the great Country Club of the Knowing—a club to which our intellectual adversaries never need apply!

Our liberals and conservatives both behave like this, although since the death of Walter Lippmann, liberals, who used to be intellectually dominant, have been the more bereft of new thought. British Columbians, by contrast, don't appear to be caught in such intellectual trench warfare. They are simply famished for ideas and information, and my sense of them is that they are creating a new world of ideas that one day may surpass that of our own auto-alleged "Athens of America."

...British Columbians also seem refreshingly less jaded than we. Through sorry necessity we of Greater Boston have come to watch each other "like one who fears robbing," as Shakespeare put it. We have to lock our doors and often that leads us to put a lock on our hearts.

I saw this in myself one midnight in a bar in Squamish, a mountain valley port and rail center on the Pacific Coast. A stevedore sort was doing a rather proficient Elvis Presley imitation (the "mega-culture" pervading again), and when he sat down one drunk booed and only one, I, applauded. I was sorry about this, so I bought the singer/stevedore a beer. He came over to my table and put his arm around me and squeezed pretty hard and didn't let go.

By and by I feared I was being propositioned, and I found myself staring at my ale, thinking unprintable thoughts, and wondering what pretext I would use to extricate myself. Well of course, the whole thing was a figment of my Boston-brained sick imagination. The man was no more making a pass at me than I at the proverbial bear in the woods. But such are our own mores, so public and aggressive is our own sexuality, both hetero—and homo—, that Bostonian I found it impossible to accept simple British Columbian friendliness in its own spirit. Pity.

...I suspect that the British Columbian government handles its own citizenry better than Massachusetts handles us. In my view the government of Dukakachusetts is fast becoming what Jean-Francois Revel (in his latest superb book, How Democracies Perish) has described as a state that is "omnipresent, omnipotent and omniscient ... protector, entrepreneur, educator...helpful and predatory, tyrant and guardian, economist, journalist, moralist...banker, father and jailer all at once."

A revealing metaphor of omnipresence and its futility here is that one may hardly drive down a Massachusetts lane or interstate without encountering a local, state, Metropolitan or Registry police patrol car, one with secret (you learned it here) orders to give members of the driving public a predetermined number of moving violations per patrol car per shift. Yet, as the world knows, notwithstanding such "protection," Massachusetts has the worst, rudest drivers in this world.

In British Columbia, by contrast, except in mixed Indian/white towns, there is little obvious police presence. Yet British Columbian drivers appear to be uniformly polite. If you rudely cut them off, as I, creature of habit, did a couple of times, they pull out of your way, appearing to assume you are in some dire emergency. I note that the other day Gov. Dukakis swore in 90 new state troopers to watch us and play cat and mouse with us. Sorry, Mike, but I don't believe that's at all our need. The leadership we need is spiritual.

Of course, British Columbia isn't quite nirvana. As noted, in mixed Indian/white communities the government becomes visible, crude, and offensive. Canadians, although I believe they handle their Indians somewhat better than we do ours, do not handle them well. As in America, Indians tend to be a despised proletariat when they live in mixed communities, and dreadfully poor and deprived when they remain in isolated all-Indian villages. Call me a "red revolutionary" when it comes to the North American Indian!

There was one aspect of this fine province that came to anger me, and that was the more than occasional anti-Americanism. This wasn't the "you monopolize the microchip market" variety of envious anti-Americanism, at least it didn't appear to be. Rather, it was expressed in the far more dangerous form of the doctrine of Soviet-American "parallelism." This is the sort of cant that argues, "Well, America has homeless people and besides you haven't legalized homosexual marriage; therefore I see no difference between your behavior and the Soviet invasion of Afghanistan or persecution of Jews." Such thinking is surprisingly common and cannot be argued against because if it were not glad to discard all weight of evidence it would not exist in the first place. How such thinking got to be so widespread among a free people whose history and methods we profoundly share is beyond me.

Despite the above, I returned from British Columbia, as I have returned from visits to other parts of Canada, inspired and enthralled. I am convinced that the exceptional beauty of the country is matched by the exceptional spirit of the people and their emerging civilization. When I read (mostly in America) of Canada being or becoming a mere cultural outpost of the United States, I don't believe a word of it. For I firmly believe the finest hour of Canada lies in the future.

Hannah & Sarah need foster homes

(DARE Family Services Greater Boston Region, a private social service agency, is looking for quality foster homes in the South Shore area. Here is a specific article about Hannah and Sarah. Ed.)

Hannah and Sarah are two little girls in the midst of a very difficult time in their young lives. They are victims of sexual abuse. Hannah and Sarah need a home of their own where they can receive lots of special attention and be the focal point of a small family. Hannah and Sarah are sisters. Hannah is four years old and Sarah is three.

These little girls are intelligent, attractive and energetic. They like each other alot, but need to learn how to play with other children, too. Hannah is a very angry and sad little girl. Sarah is quieter and allows her big sister to speak for her. Both children bed wet and have nightmares.

Hannah and Sarah are very confused, scared and hurt. They will need a great deal of patience, love and support. These children deserve a safe, secure and trusting relationship with caring adults. They will require assistance to express the confusion, anger and sadness that they feel, to help understand what has happened to them and to be clear that it is not their fault.

Hannah and Sarah must have sensitive, nurturant and supportive foster parents to stabilize their lives and help them grow.

If you have room in your home and your heart for children like Hannah and Sarah, please call Don Moskowitz, of DARE Family Services, at 628-3696.

It is also important to know that DARE Family Services seeks quality foster homes for many other children of all ages. Professional training and support together with medical coverage and financial reimbursement are available.

FROM THE KITCHEN

by JOAN PINKHAM

'Overdue Cookbook' highlights 'Christmas Jam'

With their usual flair, volunteersandworkers who love and cherish the Clift Rodgers Free Library in the little village of Marshfield Hills have produced a cookbook that will do wonderful things for your Christmas gift list, while at the same time help support the library on Pleasant St.

Bequeathed to the community by a native son 80 years ago, the library's main source of funding is through their consignment shop.

"Marshfield's Overdue Cookbook" is the latest in a series of fundraisers, and the committee, chaired by Judy Harrington, is to be congratulated. They are Peggy Beals, Barbara Burnham,Eleanor Cuff, Barbara Engstrom, Pat Gorham, Lorraine Gregory, Joan Lake, Hope Poor, Barbara Prouty and Joan Woodhull. As always, when reviewing a new cookbook, choosing the three recipes which space dictates for this column is not an easy task, but the last time I was in the library Ibumpedinto Roseanne Concannon who had tried this recipe of Claire Black's just the night before and found it "easy, quick and delicious." What better recommendations?

CHICKEN WITH HERBS

1/3 C. chopped onion
1 C. rice, uncooked
2 1/2 lbs. frying chicken, cut in pieces
1 can cream mushroom soup
1/2 C. water
1/4 tsp. each marjoram, thyme, parsley
1/8 tsp. each, pepper and organo
1/2 tsp. salt

Sprinke rice over layer of chopped onion. Layer chicken, skin side up. Add remaining ingredients, topping with parsley. Bake at 350 for 60 minutes.

* * *

See if you don't agree that this nifty little book contains some novel recipes, such as Ruth Landry's poor man's pate, Nancy Currie's cheese chowder, Marion Niedowski's mandelbread, Walter Crossley's, mussles and noodles, Dorothy Sharp's golfer's stew, Dorothy Youman's drunken soldier potatoes, Marilyn Barrett's strawberries in snow, Druanne Davies, chocolate mess, and Virginia Henrich's caramel crunch. Pegy Beals' timely Christmas pudding with sauce recipe is perfect for this season, and Bernice Hawkins' cream cheese fudge bars make one drool just to read. The little potpourri section at the end of the 91-page book contains two holiday food treats. One is called Tyke Tilden's Spiced Nuts, Debby Lamb's recipe, and this one from Sally Damon called

CHRISTMAS JAM

1 pg. dried apricots (11 oz.)
1 can pineapple chunks (1 lb.)
3 C. water and pineapple juice
3 1/2 C. sugar
1 jar maraschino cherries (3 oz.)

Put apricots, pineapple chunks and liquid in a pan and soak for an hour. Bring to a boil and soak again until apricots are soft. Add sugar. Cook about 1 hour. Add cherries, cool slightly and pour into jars. Should be quite thick.

The New England charms of a village are illustrated throughout the cookbook by Ruth Weston, and the spiral-bound, orange-colored cover is graced with her sketch of the white colonial Clift Rodgers Free Library building where you canpurchase the book. Some women are buying half a dozen copies for Christmas giving, so hurry. Perhaps a call to Lois Neary, our ever-helpful librarian, might help, as they are selling like the proverbial hotcakes, and she will set yours aside. Copies are also for sale at the Pine Acre Liquor Store on Rt. 139 in Marshfield. Here is a preview of what you will find in Bobby Poor's

STIR—FRY BEEF ON A BUDGET

3/4 lb. flank steak, sliced across the grain
1 T. dark soy sauce
1 1/2 tsp. cornstarch
1/4 tsp. sugar
4 T. peanut oil
2 or 3 stalks celery, cut into wedges
1/2 tsp. salt
2 garlic cloves, smashed and minced

Combine beef slices with soy, cornstarch, sugar and 1 T. of oil. Set aside. Heat 1 T. oil in wok or heavy skillet. Stir-fry celery for 2 min., adding 1/2 tsp. salt and 2 T. water. Remove celery and liquid. Set aside. Heat 2 T. oil in wok or heavy skillet, add minced garlic, cooking until golden. Add meat and quickly stir-fry for 3 to 4 min. Add celery and stir well until hot. Serve with rice. Hint: Flank steak slices easily when semi-frozen.

NOTE: Thanks to Betty Noonan's bright eyes we discovered a mistake in the Banana Nut Bread Recipe in the Nov. 20 column. Amy Locke's recipe calls for only One cup of sugar. Sorry!!

Does the U.S. trade policy affect merchants locally?

By Doris M. Johnson
Mariner Staff

Commentary

There's a local angle in anything newsworthy, including a seminar titled "The U.S. in the world economy — new directions in trade policy," held Monday at Bank of Boston's headquarters.

A subtitle could have been: "Were your running shoes made in Brockton or Taipai?" Or, as one attendee suggested during the post-seminar reception: "Was your oil tanker built at Fore River or Formosa?"

Some form of trade protectionism was advocated by Texas Democrat James Wright. As Majority Leader of the U.S. House of Representatives, he is the leading candidate to step into Speaker Thomas P. O'Neil, Jr.'s job when Cambridge's long-time representative retires next year.

Disagreeing — on the grounds that protectionism has never really succeeded and it won't work now -were the other two panelists, Charles P. Kindleberger, MIT professor-emeritus of economics, and Hugh Sandeman, New York-based business writer for the London (England) Economist, a weekly newsmagazine.

Wright critized the Reagan administration for allowing the U.S to become a debtor nation for the first time since World War II, for failing to attack the federal budget deficit and the $150 billion trade deficit.

The overvaluation of the dollar, up 40 percent in the '80s, amounts to "a 40 percent tax on U.S. goods sold abroad and a 40 percent subsidy on imports," Wright said.

The U.S. has also allowed foreign manufacturers "to sell goods to the U.S at higher levels than they sell for in their own country," Wright said. And often, these countries won't let American products into their marketplaces.

Wright, along with other Democrats in Congress, proposes to put pressure on America's trade partners by "tightening up — give a year's (warning) notice to (foreign) manufacturers not allowing U.S. trade."

Kindleberger said that while he sympathized with Wright ("his feet are to the fire about (lost) jobs"), it's important not to use the wrong tools to fix the problem.

"The trade deficit is a 'macro' problem — and it would be a mistake to use a microeconomic tool (like protectionism) to attempt to protect jobs here," Kindleberger said.

He referred to the efforts of the late. Sen. Leverett Saltonstall, "always trying to save the Waltham Watch Co., a company that had its heyday in the Civil War era." During World War II, the company stayed alive throughacontract "making speedometers for army tanks that couldn't go faster than 50 miles per hour" — but closed after the war.

"The world is better off without the Waltham Watch companies . . . . we don't need the textile industries, either," Kindleberger said.

Kindleberger also pointed out, although Wright referred to plant-closings and workers out of jobs while the company opens new plants overseas, that "Wright failed to mention the U.S. had a gain of seven million new jobs."

"The World in Depresssion, 1929-1939," a book Kindleberger wrote in 1973, is being reissued in 1986 in a revised edition. The main thesis is the same, the economist said, that "the world needs a stabilizer. And in 1929, Britain had given up and the U.S. wasn't ready."

Kindleberger said, "There are several responsibilities for the world-stabilizer nation." And, he suggested, it would be just as dangerous today for the health of the world economy if the U.S. refused to carry on trade or retaliated with protectionist acts.

Sandeman, the British journalist, stated: "The U.S. is no longer the epicenter of world trade." And there's no way it can regain that status, he added.

"I disagree totally with Wright's view that trade policy is pivotal today," Sandeman said. "Trade policy is not something that we can discuss or pursue itself, alone."

A country's declaration of a free-trade policy can't be made unilaterally, Sandeman said. "It would be just as useless as unilateral disarmament."

The situation in the world economy and trade policy, Sandeman said, is "intriguing . . . . containing the seed of ideologial change."

The afternoon seminar opened with a welcome delivered by Earl W. Foell of Cohasset, editor-in-chief of The Christian Science Monitor.

Theatre Review

A 'Christmas Carol' definitely suits the season

By Judith Montminy
Secial to the Mariner

The Nickerson Theatre in Norwell is offering a welcomed production of "A Christmas Carol" through Dec. 22.

An able cast, under the careful direction of Nora Hussey, brings to life Larry Carpenter's adaptation of Charles Dickens' classic.

The running time of the show is less than two hours, an important consideration if one is to bring children to an evening performance.

Although the play is not written specifically for children, the children in the audience opening night were drawn completely into the story of Scrooge, the visiting ghosts, and of course, Tiny Tim.

Larry Carpenter, now artistic director of the American Stage Festival, has directed his version of "A Christmas Carol" for Merrimack Repertory Theatre.

The scenery at the Nickerson is based on Carpenter's original production.

His adaptation echoes the playing style of "Nicholas Nickelby," the British import that charmed Broadway several years ago.

The stage becomes "a mid-Victorian storage house currently used for props and scenery by the local theatrical repertory company."

It is filled with Victorian clutter, wooden beams, and the ambiance of a crowded London street. Scene changes are carried out smoothly by the actors in full view of the audience.

Except for Scrooge (Troy Siegfreid), all the actors portray more than one role and form an ensemble that narrates the story as it plays. Past, present and future are melded together in a stylized, well-orchestrated fashion.

As with any production of "A Christmas Carol," there are talky moments, but Carpenter's version minimizes those moments and keeps events moving quickly. Special effects and lighting, though a bit melodramtic at times, keep one's attention from wandering. In addition, the acting is strong, precise and caring.

Shortly after Ebenezer Scrooge scolds his clerk Bob Cratchit (Peter Haydu) and refuses his nephew's (Ted McAdams) invitation to Christmas dinner, he is visited by the ghost of his late partner, Jacob Marley (Bob Bouffier) and told to mend his ways.

During Scrooge's deep sleep he is reminded of his past loves and deeds by Christmas Past (Lisa Foley).

Chirstmas Present (John Adair) shows Scrooge the adverse effect he has on those who are part of his life.

Scrooge sees what is in store for those around him as he is led by Christmas Future (Bouffier). Scrooge awakes to find it is Christmas morning and there is still time to change the course of events.

He adopts the Christmas spirit of giving and vows not to remain the persnickety character he once was. "Bah, humbug," leaves his vocabulary.

L-R: Eric Torri as Tiny Tim, Troy Siegfried as Scrooge and John Adair as Christmas act in a scene from the famous tale of Christmas, 'A Christmas Carol' by Charles Dickens. The play opened Dec. 3 and continues through Dec. 22.

Happily ever after? Of course.

Crippled Tiny Tim will live because Scrooge will help the Cratchit family. Scrooge will become a familiar and welcomed face in the home of his beloved sister.

Sally Campbell, Jessica DelGizzi (of Braintree), Margo Hammond, Ingrid Sonnichsen, Eric Torvi, Jared Waye and Bernard Zilinskas join the other actors to wish everyone in the theatre "A Merry Christmas and a Happy New Year."

Although the show ends three days before Christmas this year, tickets to the Nickerson's "A Christmas Carol" would be a wise choice for holiday gift-giving.

Performance times are Tuesday through Thursday at 8 p.m.; Friday at 8:30 p.m.; Saturday at 4 and 8:30 p.m. and Sunday at 2 and 7 p.m.

The Nickerson Theatre is located at 30 Accord Park Drive in Norwell.

The Dragon's Dungeon — By Claire McDonough

Holiday gifts from the astrological world

By Claire McDonough
Mariner Correspondent

We all dearly love to know what we're getting for Christmas, now don't we? The problem is that people can be so sneaky about wrapping presents that one just can't tell what is inside.

So I schlepped over to Madam Zolar's chic little ashram on Third Cliff (Scituate) and asked her what natives of the various signs might expect to receive at Yuletide.

First Madam insisted that I contribute toward her Christmas shopping fund, then she imparted the following bits of astrological wisdom.

ARIES (March 21 - April 20): People perceive you as pushy, domineering, and agressive. You will receive several books on how to improve your personality and an enrollment in a How to Avoid Alienating Everyone You Meet program.

TAURUS (April 21 - May 21): Your friends have experienced first-hand what "Stubborn as a bull" means. They know that the only gifts that will please you are those you have already decided you like. You will receive several exact replications of things you already own.

GEMINI (May 22 - June 21): Your behavior is so erratic that different people perceive you in different ways. Your gifts will range from appointment to a high government position to membership in a religious order. You will also receive a key to a Playboy Club.

CANCER (June 22 - July 23): If your friends know you at all well they will give you a waterbed or a food package. Those who know you really well will call your mother to find out which you prefer.

LEO (July 24 - Aug. 23): Even your passing acquaintances know that what you truly want is to rule. Wealthy friends may come across with a crown and sceptre. Those less affluent will give you gift certificates promising one hour of total abjection at a time and place of your choosing.

VIRGO (Aug. 24 - Sept. 23): Your friends know of your love of order and cleanliness. In a spirit of holiday giving they will send you their dirty laundry to wash and iron for them.

LIBRA (Sept. 24 - Oct. 22): You Libras have a great deal of trouble making up your mind about anything. When you open your gifts you will love them . . . no, wait a minute, you'll hate them . . . uh, uh, you'll think they're passable . . . wrong again, you'll find them mildy annoying, no . . .

SCORPIO (Oct. 24 - Nov. 22): If you are a Democratic governor who is running for re-election, people will give you campaign contributions for Christmas. In the event that you are not, don't be too disappointed if you don't receive anything you like. You are so reluctant to let anyone know anything about you, that your acquaintances haven't a clue what to give you.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 - Dec. 21): All your friends who have ever ridden in a car driven by you will chip in to buy you a seat belt and air bags. They will also give you their word that they will never again ask you for a ride.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 - Jan. 20): You would really like a book on "How to Claw Your Way to the Top in Business." If, however, your friends don't feel this would be in keeping with the spirit of Christmas, you may receive several toaster ovens instead.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 - Feb. 19): You will receive a bill from your attorney, a Christmas card from your parole officer, a notice from the library that your books are overdue, and a partridge in a pear tree.

PISCES (Feb. 20 - March 20): A thoughtful friend will give you a supply of paper products, equally useful for cleaning your paint brushes or wiping away your tears. You would love this gift, but regrettably you will be too afraid that it contains an explosive devise to open it. Pity.

NOTICE TO ALL SIGNS: Pay no attention to any predictions made by an unscrupulous Sun Sign astrologer writing in your local newspaper. She is only interested in amassing funds for her own Christmas shopping.

The stars really say that your most treasured gift will be a subscription to the Mariner newspaper in your town and that you and your family will have a Merry Christmas!

and Courtney play the piano and Johanna is a member of the Concert Choir at Deer Hill. Johanna and Courtney love to sail and swim in the summer. Bridget takes jazz and piano lessons at the South Shore Conservatory of Music. Girl Scouts and CCD occupies the remainder of whatever spare time these girls have during the school year.

Currently, at least until Dec. 20, their minds are filled with visions of sugarplums. Although their part is not lengthy, nor does it call upon their advanced talents, participating in "The Nutcracker" is an experience few people can share. To dance alongside professionals in a production filled with fantasy and beauty, is the stuff of which Christmas dreams are made.

Because they have been students at the Boston Ballet School for more than one year, they were allowed to audition for the production. They were all cast as the toy soldiers and will appear and disappear from the stage at the same time.

"All we do is march, and do a little dance step," Bridget said, as she demonstrated the side-to-side manuever they will perform on stage. "It's really easy," they moaned together, bursting into another round of giggles.

They will be on stage for a total of about 20 minutes - an enternity for a young girl. They will stand about for a while, their dance routine occupying about two minutes.

Do they mind the travels into Boston and the daily round-trips they will complete next week? "No," they answer together, detailing the number of uniques sights they have witnessed thus far, including homeless destitutes lying aside gutters and the dirtied sidewalks of the city.

Even the place where they rehearse in Boston is not quite what they expected of the famed ballet company. Studio One, where the girls tried out for the production, "is not a very pretty place," Bridget seriously affirmed.

Whatever the minor disadvantages and distractions, the three friends are anticipating a lot of fun and adventures in the next week. They are in Cast B of the production, which means they will begin December 13 and conclude the 20th.

"We were really glad to be in that cast," they stated, explaining there are a total of three casts selected each year. "This one will finish just before Christmas, so you really get in the Christmas spirit."

They have seen "The Nutcracker" several times in years past, and the performances have earned rave reviews from these knowledgeable critics. "I like it when everyone comes on stage and they dance together," Bridget stated. "I like the Arabian dancers," Johanna explained.

And thus this week they begin their first steps as professional dancers upon the Boston stage. They are now members of the professional guild, and will be paid for their services. Eleven dollars to be precise.

Not a grand paycheck for such skilled labor, but they are anticipating their salary as eagerly as their debut.

Johanna will frame her paycheck. Her companions have decided "to spend it." According to Bridget, who may copy the original for suitable framing, she may possibly acquire a new supply of candy with her earnings. Courtney would love a phone in her room, but Dad will undoubtedly veto that suggestion.

"I guess I could put it in the bank," she said after a minute's thought.

We could not sway Johanna from her original decision. That check will remain safe and unspent forever - a lasting memory of her first days as a professional dancer.

School Comm. requests financial aid forms

In order to have more objective criteria, the school committee has decided to request copies of Financial Aid Forms from students applying for the Hardy Scholarship.

The Hardy Scholarship, established last year from an endowment by a local resident, is the first scholarship to be awarded on the basis of need. On short notice last year, the committee added a financial statement to the standard scholarship applications.

Jack O'Leary, high school guidance director, presented the FAF program to the school committee in a meeting Monday night.

Under this program, students applying for financial aid just fill out an FAF. A statement is generated from this application and copies can be sent to various places for a seven dollar fee. Included on this report is an estimate of parental contribution.

Approximately 25 percent of the students file this report but nearly all college bound seniors apply for the local scholarships.

On the suggestion of Assistant Superintendent Stephen Hart, the school will only require photocopies of the official report.

Members of the committee were concerned that this kind of financial information was personal and some people would be reluctant to provide it.

"I don't want any committee seeing this kind of information," said committee member Diana Kornet.

Chairman Joseph Nedrow agreed that confidentiality would discourage some people from applying, but he still supported the move.

Member Richard Conley thought the form from last year was adequate. "It is simpler for the parent to fill out and easier for us to handle," he said.

Conley also felt it was important to retain the subjectivity that results from knowing the candidates.

Jack Langmaid disagreed, saying, "When I looked at the names last year, I didn't know a great deal about most of the students."

Dr. Nedrow supported both sides, saying, "A form gives you consistent objective data that you can complement with subjective data and make a fair decision."

The committee agreed to request an unofficial copy of the FAF for all students applying for the Hardy Scholarship. A committee will rank the applicants on the basis of need. This list, without Christmas is...

Teenage anxiety and the PSAT, SAT, ACT, and Achievement Tests.

It lurks in the hearts of most teenagers. Demolishing their confidence. Diminishing their scores.

There's a way to get help. Go to the "fear-buster," Stanley H. Kaplan.

Kaplan's test-taking techniques and educational programs have successfully prepared more than 100,000 students for these tests.

We provide computerized diagnostic evaluations to advise SAT-takers on their strengths and weaknesses. We even offer college counseling.

Cohasset teacher presents student course nationally

By Don Merrill

Cohasset High School teacher Jo-Ellen Wood says her English course entitled Utopias in Literature prepares students for college work. The course also helps broaden the minds of all students.

Recently, the course brought her wider recognition. Wood, a Hanover resident, was asked by a selection committee to present the course idea in a seminar at the convention of the National Conference of Teachers of English.

The conference was held Nov. 22 to 25 in Philadelphia, where about 3,000 English teachers gathered to attend a wide range of seminars, she said.

Nearly three dozen teachers attended the Utopias in Literature seminar, which included Wood and two other teachers from Canada and Maryland as instructors.

The conference is an ideas forum where English teachers learn new ideas and discuss them at home for possible implementation in their school curriculum.

"It's definitely worthwhile — it enables the teachers to bring fresh ideas back to their respective schools," she said in an interview last week.

The course is one of many single-term electives offered at Cohasset High. It will be taught this year during the 4th term.

Wood, who has taught at Cohasset for 12 years, said she did not originate the course, but has refined its curriculum over the past several years.

"I'm simply an enthusiastic proponent of the

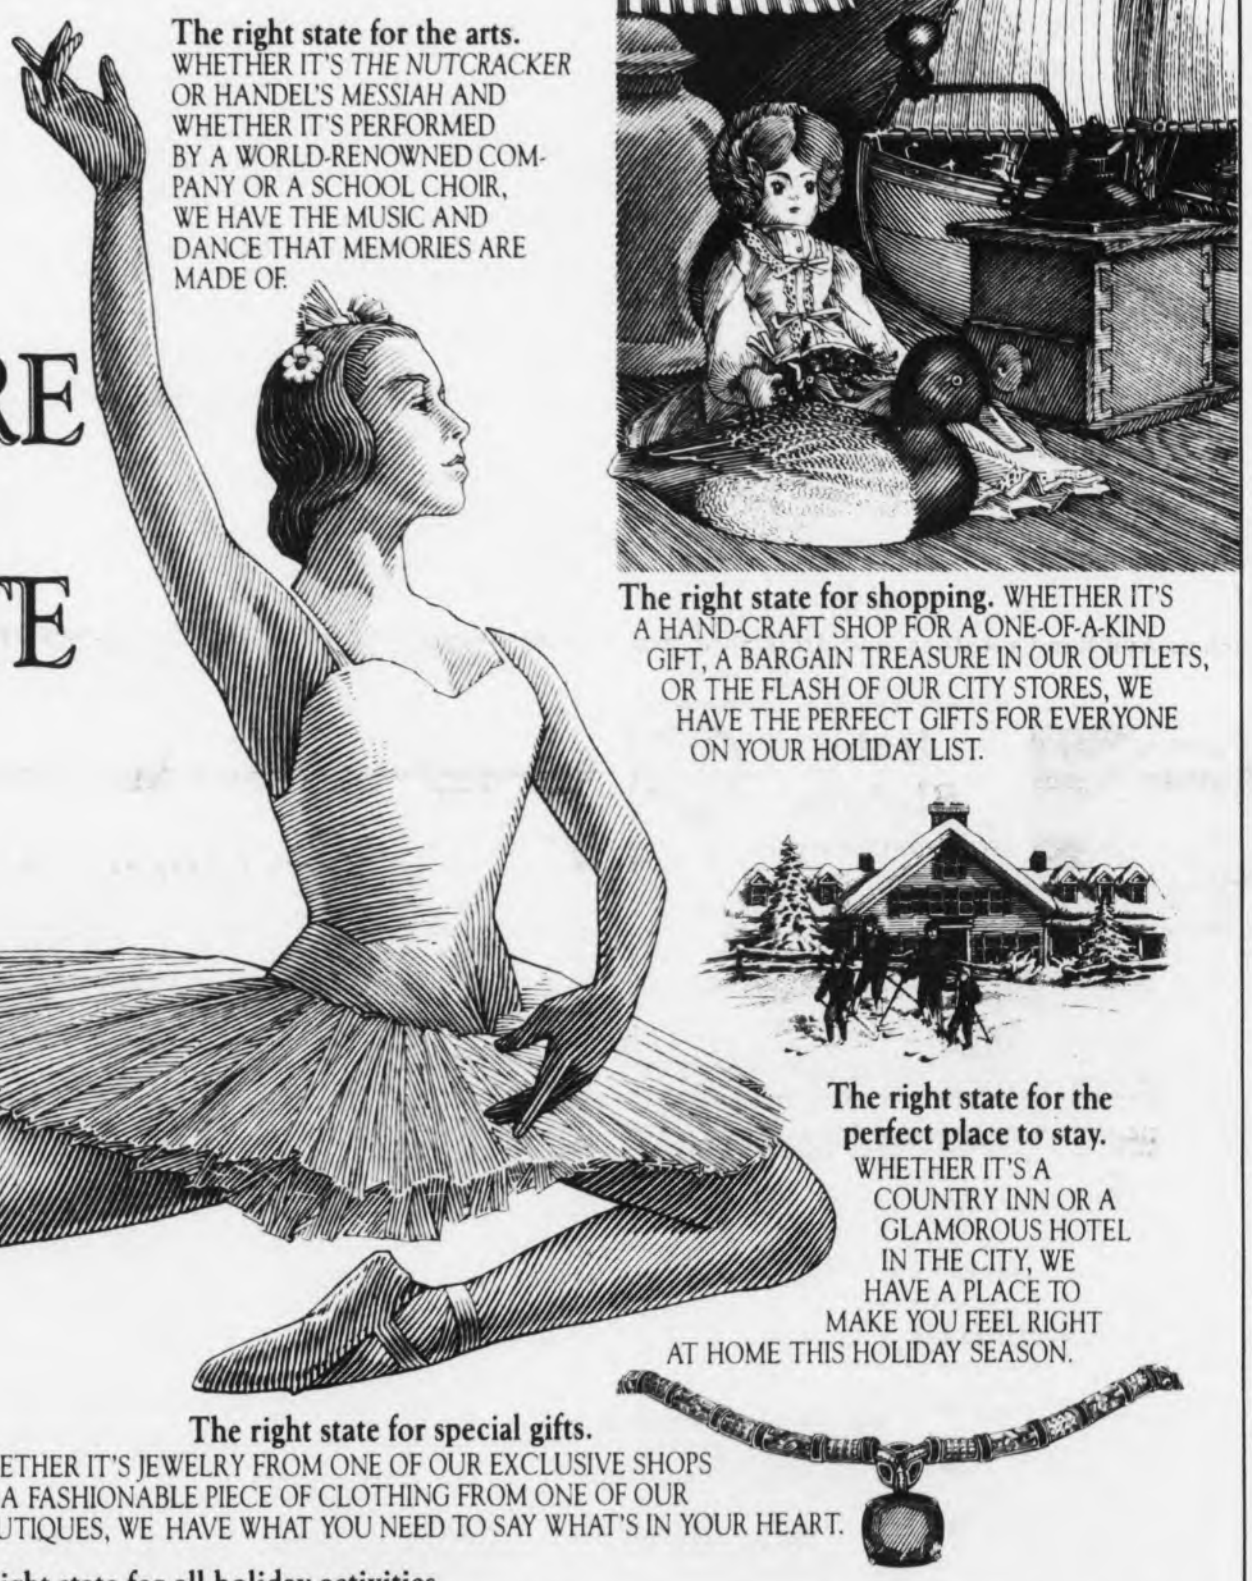
HAPPY HOLIDAYS PEACE ON EARTH MERRY GREETINGS MERRY CHRISTMAS JOYOUS

MAKE SURE YOU'RE IN THE RIGHT STATE FOR THE HOLIDAYS.

The holidays are a time for music, the arts, celebration, decorating, shopping and getting in the spirit.



It's a time for being in Massachusetts.

Because Massachusetts offers everything you could want this holiday season. In fact, there's so much to do here during the holidays that you can't do it all in just an afternoon or even in a day. We recommend that you make a weekend of it—stay in one of our fine hotels or country inns, take advantage of one of the special holiday packages that hotels are offering, explore the different holiday activities, do your shopping. You'll enjoy it more because you'll be relaxed.

And as far as we're concerned, there's no better state to be in during the holidays.

From the countryside to the cities to the seashore, Massachusetts is ready to celebrate. For complete information on holiday activities, call 1-800-632-8038 (in Mass.) 1-800-343-9072 (outside Mass.).

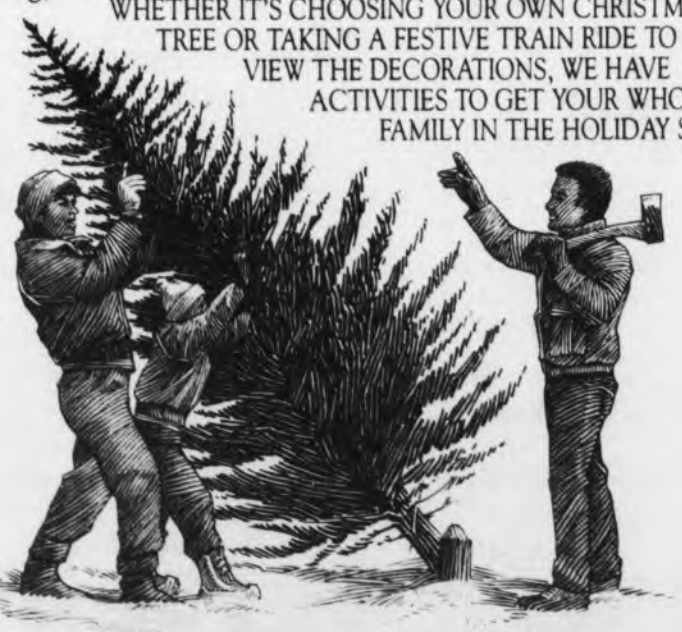
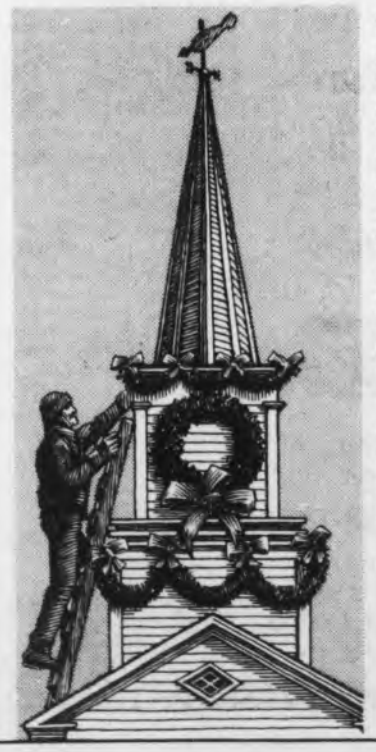
The right state for the arts. WHETHER IT'S THE NUTCRACKER OR HANDEL'S MESSIAH AND WHETHER IT'S PERFORMED BY A WORLD-RENOWNED COMPANY OR A SCHOOL CHOIR, WE HAVE THE MUSIC AND DANCE THAT MEMORIES ARE MADE OF.





The right state for shopping. WHETHER IT'S A HAND-CRAFT SHOP FOR A ONE-OF-A-KIND GIFT, A BARGAIN TREASURE IN OUR OUTLETS, OR THE FLASH OF OUR CITY STORES, WE HAVE THE PERFECT GIFTS FOR EVERYONE ON YOUR HOLIDAY LIST.

The right state for the perfect place to stay. WHETHER IT'S A COUNTRY INN OR A GLAMOROUS HOTEL IN THE CITY, WE HAVE A PLACE TO MAKE YOU FEEL RIGHT AT HOME THIS HOLIDAY SEASON.

The right state for special gifts. WHETHER IT'S JEWELRY FROM ONE OF OUR EXCLUSIVE SHOPS OR A FASHIONABLE PIECE OF CLOTHING FROM ONE OF OUR BOUTIQUES, WE HAVE WHAT YOU NEED TO SAY WHAT'S IN YOUR HEART.

The right state for all holiday activities. WHETHER IT'S CHOOSING YOUR OWN CHRISTMAS TREE OR TAKING A FESTIVE TRAIN RIDE TO VIEW THE DECORATIONS, WE HAVE ACTIVITIES TO GET YOUR WHOLE FAMILY IN THE HOLIDAY SPIRIT.

course, that's all," she said.

As students read required books and conduct research for papers, they discover that subjects like science, history and English are interrelated, not fragmented like academic courses.

"It shows that any system of society — democratic, socialist or totalitarian — operates within the constraints of its biological and ecological circumstances."

Wood said a few students have returned from college and told her the course prepared them for subjects like philosphy, something to which few students are exposed at the high-school level. "Subjects like philosophy are a big unknown for most students when they leave high school," she said.

Students who take Utopias in Literature are expected to complete a good amount of work in the nine-week course. In addition to reading novels like 1984, Brave New World, Plato's The Republic and Walden II, students face two major papers, smaller assignments, a course evaluation and weekly vocabulary quizzes.

One of the major papers involves the design of the students' own utopian societies.

"The emphasis is on writing frequently, even in literature courses," Wood said. "That's a school policy."

Aside from instruction in writing and philosophy, students in the course learn that choices they make "do affect society's direction — that they do have some impact on society as a whole," she said.

As students compare philosophies of the different authors, they "gain respect" for the topic and begin to form their own opinions. It is a difficult course, but Wood does give a capsule presentation about its requirements before students sign up so they have some idea of the amount of work they must complete.

The class spends most of its time reading Eugene Zamyatin's We. Students are then free to select four or five of the seven books on the required reading list.

In addition, Wood suggests six books to the class, such as Ayn Rand's Anthem and Atlas Shrugged, Lost Horizon by James Hilton and Gulliver's Travels by Jonathan Swift.

In addition to the Utopias course, Wood teaches upperclass electives on science fiction, creative writing and English Communications Skills — "a last-ditch effort at concentrated mechanics" in the language, she said. Another three sections of 8th-grade English make up the balance of her daily schedule.

While the English teachers' conference was interested in the Utopias course for this year, Wood said its committee looks for fresh seminar ideas each year. Thus, her seminar won't be a part of next year's convention.

Wood said she isn't sure whether she will submit another idea for next year.

the actual income figures, will be given to the school committee who will also have the regular application forms.

Parents and students will be notified about this policy and the required deadlines.

During a discussion of the Fiscal Year '87 budget the school committee decided to appoint a committee to look into two busing options—continuing to run their own fleet or hiring a contractor.

For the past several years, the Cohasset school department had owned and operated its own buses, saving the salary of approximately three teachers. The town has been able to purchase all its buses at auctions. Because of the proximity of all the bus routes to the school, there is little problem if a breakdown occurs on the routes.

Of the current fleet of buses, Crowell says the mechanic reported all but one could last another year. "We'll have to ask for an increase," Langmaid said. "We just cannot do it anymore."

Crowell thought money could be received from the state to reimburse the busing program.

Hart said according to the state schedule of reimbursement, they would only get 50 percent of their costs. This is primarily due to the Cohasset busing policy which buses all students who must cross a dangerous highway.

In other business, Crowell requested permission to ask the Advisory Board for a transfer of over $3,000 for auditorium repairs.

According to Crowell, work was being done on the auditorium seating, lighting, and carpeting in late summer when sufficient funds were available. When Hurricane Gloria hit, they lost the services of the electrician and J.W McCarthy was employed to finish the job.

Crowell also said there was a problem with the wording on the article appropriating $25,000 for light auditorium repair.

"I meant light as opposed to heavy," Crowell said, "The town accountant thought it meant light as in electrical."

If the matter is not cleared, the appropriation will not cover work done on the seats and carpeting, and a $6,000 transfer will be required. Discussion on the rest of the budget was postponed until members had an opportunity to review it.

The Open "Gates" of Christmas

Dear Folks,

Times surely have changed since Sidney Gates abandoned his horse-cart and opened his "Dry Goods" store nearly seventy years ago. This town and its neighbors have grown from tiny seashore villages to vibrant suburban communities.

We have been questioned many times as to how a family clothing store like ours has survived and prospered in the changed retail world of today. I replied, with hardly a moment of thought, that mutual respect was the foundation of our business.

Our store respects you as a customer. You are aware that the best bargain may not always be the lowest price; your appreciation for a convenient, pleasant shopping experience.

We know, too, that you respect our stores by your friendly attitude in the store; your general compliments on our merchandising; the delight that shows on your face when you're able to find what you like so easily; and most importantly, your recommendations to new neighbors, friends and relatives that continue to bring new customers to our stores.

In an age where society's great advancements in technology have been matched by a decrease in the value of human contact we welcome this contact and are thrilled that personal relations are alive and well and continue to thrive at Gates.

Best wishes for a Happy Holiday Season and a Joyous New Year.

THANK YOU St. Jude, Sacred Heart St. Anthony for prayers answered. L.W. 12/11

THANK YOU St. Jude for prayers answered. S.M.D. 12/11

ST. JUDE: O Holy St. Jude Apostle and martyr great in virtue and rich in miracles, near kinsman of Jesus Christ. Faithful intercessor of all who invoke your special patronage in time of need, to you I have recourse from the depth of my heart and humbly beg to whom God has given such greater power to come to my assistance. Help me in my present urgent petition, in return I promise to make your name known, and cause you to be invoked. Say three Our Fathers, three Hail Marys and Glorias. Publication must be promised. St. Jude, pray for us and all who invoke your aid. Amen. This Novena has never been known to fail. This Novena must be said for 9 consecutive days.

THANK YOU
St. Jude. My prayers have been answered again.
O.L.

Disposal Committee looking at local options

SEMASS is pretty much a dead issue for Cohasset. And according to Sherry Becker, chairman of the Disposal Area Study Committee, local alternatives are now being researched.

George Mallan, president of SEMASS, the trash-to-energy solid waste disposal system, notified the town last month that it would not have space to accommodate Cohasset. Because all the towns which originally indicated their desire to participate actually signed contracts, there was not space left for Cohasset which was on an alternate list.

Cohasset was told last year that if some of the participating communities backed away from the agreement, the town would be allowed into the first level of tipping fee rates.

SEMASS President Mallin informed selectmen Nov. 7 of the inability to accept more communities into the program. He had suggested the town discuss short-term contracts with the organization or "explore with us our plans for additional capacity in Southeastern Massachusetts."

Disposal Committee Chairman Becker said the committee members decided last week not to respond to Mallin's letter. "SEMASS is pretty much a dead issue as far as Cohasset's concerned," she said this week. Since official notification from the Rochester organization, the committee has been busy researching alternative solid waste disposal plans for Cohasset.

Currently, the committee is investigating disposal programs proposed in Weymouth, Hull and in Maine. Individual committee members are reviewing the programs scheduled for those areas and will report back to the committee, Becker said.

At its meeting last week, the committee decided that another topographical survey of the Cedar Street landfill should be completed. The Board of Health has indicated that will be done next year, Becker said. The survey will determine how many more years the municipal landfill can be used.

The surveys are completed every two years, according to the committee chairman. The last one indicated the landfill will be operational for another nine years.

That gives the town plenty of time, Becker said, to investigate all options for solid waste disposal.

Cohasset will be seeking a resource recovery method of solid waste disposal, the committee chairman stated. The committee decided that was the best alternative to review for the future needs of the town.

Becker said she is reviewing the state Bureau of Solid Waste's proposed legislation which is designed to assist towns in resource recovery programs. That state bureau, she said, will provide Cohasset with advise while looking toward regional alternatives. "They have the regional picture of how things are happening throughout the state," she said. "The Bureau of Solid Waste is assigned to help communities such as Cohasset deal with the problem of solid waste disposal. We are looking toward resource recovery, and they are the ones who will help us in that search."

The proposed legislation's goal is that fifty percent of the state's solid waste be disposed in trash-to-energy recovery plants. Landfills would accommodate another twenty-five percent of the waste, and recycling would encompass the remaining portion of solid waste disposals.

One advantage to this current bill, now in committee discussions, is a $160 million grant program to assist municipalities in working toward these goals.

While Becker monitors the progress of the propos-

Library Director Richard Hayes:

An example of an excellent small library

By Linda Dagley
Mariner Correspondent

Even if you are a newcomer to the town of Cohasset, you probably already have made a stop at the Paul Pratt Memorial Library to register your family.

According to Director Richard Hayes, "People arrive at the door of the library a few days after they arrive in town."

Located on South Main St. just outside Cohasset Village, the 1903 structure houses one of the best small town libraries in the state with over 45,000 books and numerous children's programs. Circulation is double the state average.

Hayes claims, "It is an example of the excellent library every small town could have."

But according to Hayes, it is the people of Cohasset that make the difference.

"People who come to Cohasset are looking for a way of life and a good library and education system are part of that.

"Cohasset has had a public library since 1879. "The year Edison invented the light bulb," Hayes pointed out.

In 1903 the present building was constructed as a gift from the daughters of Paul Pratt. With a beautiful view of the marshes in the back, the graceful building offers many architectural highlights.

The domed lobby features murals by McIvor Reddi depicting colonial life in Cohasset. The outside clockface is an image of an early Cohasset schooner designed by Richard Dabrowski.

In 1974, after a study of the long range needs of the town, renovations were completed to the library. A new addition provided more room for stacks, and the cellar was remodeled to accommodate a separate children's room. The library gained 40 percent more usable space.

"The town is lucky to have such a sound building," says Hayes, who does not foresee any need for further expansion.

A resident of Scituate, Hayes has been with the Cohasset library for 17 years.

He received his Master's in Library Science from Simmons College and studied at Harvard Divinity School, where he worked in the libraries. Prior to coming to Cohasset, Hayes served as director of Avon Public Libraries. He is also very active in regional library affairs.

Hayes enjoys Cohasset because the residents make such responsible use of the service, they clearly appreciate it, and the town is eager to provide good services. Seventy percent of the town's population uses the library which is well above the national average of 10 to 20 percent. Approximately 14 items per capita per year are borrowed, which translates to $200 worth of books to each person.

The cost of this service to the taxpayer is only about $20 per year. In addition to tax money, the Friends of the Cohasset Library raise several hundred dollars a year in support.

Town Hall architect bids reviewed

Plans to expand the Town Hall are one step closer this week as the study committee reviews bid proposals submitted by architects.

At their meeting scheduled this week, the Town Hall Study Committee will review the ten applications received from architects. The applications will include costs for architectural services to design an addition to the Town Hall.

April Town Meeting appropriated $20,000 to fund an architectural study of the Town Hall. Bid specifications were recently advertised, and proposals were to be submitted by Tuesday of this week.

Once an architect is selected, proposals to renovate the existing building interior and expand the structure, will begin.

Preliminary plans drawn by architect Benjamin Blake show an addition built to the right rear section of the existing building. This addition would include space for several offices and two conference rooms.

Blake noted this week the preliminary plans were initially drawn to indicate how an addition could be proposed for the building. They will be used as a guideline in assisting the selected architect, he said, but will not dictate how the design should be completed.

According to the preliminary plans drawn several months ago, there would be a ramp built into the addition for access by handicapped residents. An elevator would enable those persons to travel to second-floor offices.

The study committee was formed more than a year ago by selectmen to recommend architectural plans to expand the Town Hall. Soon after the committee's formation, selectmen and committee members discussed the possibility of providing more space by eliminating the auditorium stage.

That suggestion met with stroing resistance from several residents and local organizations. Detailing the historical and practical significance of the stage, the plan's opponents urged selectmen not to endorse the initial plan.

Committee Chairman Blake noted that his preliminary plans do not require that the stage be gutted. However, he said, that does not eliminate the possibility of another architect suggesting such a proposal.

"If someone suggests we get rid of the stage, we will bring his suggestion before selectmen, although it seems likely that proposal would be abandoned," he said.

"We hope the architect can come up with something that leaves the auditorium intact," Blake said. "That is the feeling we are aiming for. If it's not feasible, then we'll have to abandon all plans. We decided after the public hearing was held, it was

Committee signs teacher contract

A satisfied school committee happily announced the unanimous approval of a three-year contract with the Cohasset Teachers Association, Monday night.

"We are looking forward to three years of smooth sailing," said Chairman Joseph Nedrow. "We spent a lot of time with this in the last few months. It is one of those things that has to be done but now we can get down to business."

CTA President George Fortin stated that he was very pleased. "I feel we have been given a fair deal," he told the board.

A reduction of force (rif) clause was one of the key factors that had delayed ratification by the CTA. Fortin said he had wanted more specific language describing what would take place when a teacher is rif'd.

"The fairest way would be straight seniority," Fortin said, "But that is unrealistic. We want to keep the best as well."

Essentially, the language of the clause states that reduction will be based first on the performance of the teacher and then on the academic needs of the school. Only after these two had been considered would seniority become a determining factor.

"The key thing," said Dr. Nedrow, "is that we can continue to keep teachers based on performance and not on seniority."

Teachers are evaluated by a system that has been established in the schools for many years.

The contract also calls for an average pay raise of five percent each year.

The committee also approved a contract with the janitors' union.

"We have everything buttoned up for the next three years," said Superintendent Eugene Crowell.

Cohasset's week . . .

Shellfish ban

For more than one year, the state Department of Environmental Quality Engineering (DEQE) has issued a monthly ban of all shellfishing within Cohasset Harbor.

According to DEQE's most recent prohibition, "the waters and flats and all tributaries thereto of Cohasset Harbor south of a line drawn west from the foot of Glades Road on Scituate Neck to Windmill Point," will be closed to the harvesting of shellfish.

Watershed policy

The water commission recently requested that a ban on septic/sewage pumps be imposed within the town's watershed.

According to Water Dept. Superintendent Benjamin Curley, the water commission has been reviewing this problem since July. At that time, commission members asked the Board of Health to consider prohibiting construction of such systems in the watershed.

In Sept., Curley said, the commission expressed concern that overflow may occurr because of pump malfunction or electrical failure.

The commission recently requested the Watershed Protection Area Committee include in their proposed watershed district bylaws a regulation that would prohibit construction of the sewage systems.

Town Hall holiday hours

The Town Hall will close Christmas Eve, Dec. 24, at noon. It will remain closed during Christmas Day.

There will be regular office hours beginning Thursday, Dec. 26, including evening hours from 5:30 to 8 p.m.

The following week, the Town Hall will remain open until 4:30 p.m. Tuesday, Dec. 31. The offices will be closed Wednesday, Jan. 1 and will reopen Thursday, Jan. 2.

Cohasset unemployment

Cohasset's unemployment rate for October stood at 2.5 percent, one of the lowest in the Mariner town area. The rate is down .5 percent from a June mark of three percent.

A year ago, the unemployment rate was 2.8 percent. November's rate will be available in early January.

The state unemployment rate rose to 4.4 percent in November and the national rate is seven percent. Regionally, the lowest unemployment rate is in Norwell with a 1.7 percent rate and the highest unemployment rate for the area is Pembroke with a 3.9 percent mark.

Vo-tech vote

David Chittim, Cohasset's representative to the South Shore Vo-Tech Regional School Committee, was away during last week's meeting.

During that meeting, the school committee voted to prohibit the use of a novel, "Go Ask Alice," by the English department.

Chittim, who was away for several days in Pittsburgh, said he could not comment on the vote because he had not heard the discussion which preceded the decision.

(related story on the Vo-Tech meeting on page 1 b)

Winter Garden hearing

Selectmen rescheduled a public hearing regarding a request for a Class II used car license by the Cohasset Winter Garden. The hearing to locate a used car dealership on the Winter Garden property will probably take place at the Jan. 13 selectmen's meeting.

James Hoban, manager of the Winter Garden skating rink, requested postponement of the hearing until all engineers' reports are prepared. He had been scheduled to request the license at the selectmen's meeting Monday night.

Abutters to the Rte. 3A property will be notified of the change and the new date of the hearing, Executive Secretary Don Andrew said.

Hoban notified selectmen earlier this month that in order to keep the indoor skating facility operational, he needed supplementary income from a second business on the site. Insurance liability costs forced the owners to look for additional income on their property, he said.

Officer granted retirement

The Norfolk County Retirement System recently voted to approve the accidental disability retirement of Police Officer John Rhodes.

Officer Rhodes has been on sick leave from the department for several months since suffering a heart attack at his Bayberry Lane home.

Before the disability retirement becomes effective, the Commissioner of Public Employees Retirement Association must grant final approval and set a date for the retirement.

Plumbing fee increase

Selectmen voted Monday, Dec. 16 to revise the residential plumbing fee to $12.

The fee for the first fixture was increased from $10. Executive Secretary Donald Andrew explained that the $10 price did not cover the town's cost to process the permit. Andrew recommended the $12 fee and selectmen unanimously endorsed it.

Police to request seasonal officers; $90,000 increase

At their meeting Monday night, selectmen reviewed several preliminary budget requests for fiscal 1987.

Among the items reviewed was the FY 1987 Police Department budget which includes requests for six seasonal police officers and $38,729 for capital expenditures. According to Executive Secretary Don Andrew, that amount represents a $90,000 increase over the current year's appropriations.

The total requested department budget is $615,305. The town approved a total appropriation of $519,789 for fiscal 1986. The salary figure within the preliminary budget is not accurate because, according to the budget notations, "collective bargaining negotiations are continuing between the town and the police association to determine the rate of pay applicable under the Fiscal '87 budget."

The capital expenses proposed by the police department for the next fiscal year include three 1986 cruisers at a total of $33,239. This is a routine changeover of two patrol vehicle per year in addition to the tradein of a 1980 unmarked detective's car.

The department also requests $1,350 for three special investigator jackets worn during crisis intervention incidents.

There is also a $4,140 request for equipment for the proposed seasonal officers.

Selectmen decided to meet with Chief Joseph Kealey next week to discuss a proposal to add an 18th man to the police department. Although the department is authorized to have 18 officers, they are currently undermanned by one.

The overtime budget is proposed at the same level as this year. Executive Secretary Don Andrew explained that even with an 18th officer, there would be a need to fund the overtime account at $51,522. Because there is a need for overtime in case of injury or sick leave, that account should remain at the amount appropriated last year, he said. Throughout most of this current fiscal year, Andrew explained, the police department has had at least two, sometime three officers out on injury or sick leave.

According to a budget explaination provided by Chief Kealey, "a transfer request will be necessitated if any unexpected or unforeseen events such as duty injuries, sick leave of extended periods, etc. occurr. The only alternative to these and future budget transfer requests would be additional personnel or a substantial increase in the Overtime budget."

Selectmen decided they will meet with Chief Kealey to discuss the proposed budget at their meeting Monday, Dec. 23.

How to mail Christmas packages

Area postmasters have several "do" and "don'ts" for customers who want to be sure their holiday parcels arrive on time and in good condition.

Don't box yourself in—use the right container. Boxes must be adequate in size for the items being mailed and provide enough space for cushioning material. They must also be strong enough to hold the weight of their contents. If the box has adequate space for an address (cross out confusing information), it is not necessary to wrap it in paper.

If you use paper, however, be sure it is equivalent to the kind used in grocery bags (60-pound weight).

Fiberboard tubes and similar long packages are acceptable if their length does not exceed 10 times their girth.

Give yourself some cushion. Cushioning absorbs and distributes shock and vibration. Examples of good cushioning materials are foamed plastics, corrugated cardboard and loose fill material such as polystyrene, popcorn or shredded newspaper. Loose fill material should completely cover the items being mailed.

'Twas the week before Christmas
And all through the land
The shoppers are stumbling
They still need a hand.

Crowded stores, lots of driving
No parking in sight
Empty shelves and rude sales help
This hardly seems right.

But there's one store in Scituate
They've been 'round for years
They'll solve all your problems
Alay all your fears.

You can park near aside them
Not walk all day long
They'll be glad to assist you
Exchange if you're wrong.

They have all the name brands
You'll be looking for
Like Izod and Woolrich
Or Pendleton and more.

Always boxes and wrapping
They treat you so well
They value your business
That's how you can tell.

Open Sunday's and evenings
Being there when you need
Your time is important
Alterations with speed.

Selling clothing in Scituate
For years sixty eight
Gates clothing, we think that
Your store still is GREAT!

Kathleen Bryanton named first Senior Center Director

The Council on Aging announced last week the appointment of Kathleen Bryanton of Hingham as Cohasset's first Senior Center Director.

Bryanton has been the Nutrition Program Coordinator at South Shore Elder Services for the past six years. She begins her duties at the Council's new Senior Center in the Cohasset Community Center on January 6.

A Screening Committee reviewed candidates for the fulltime position in November. Member Alice Daunt says, "She (Bryanton) is just the person to put this thing on its feet." Bryanton will be responsible for the supervision and direction of all aspects of the Senior Center. She will develop, organize and broaden the scope of activities for senior citizens at the drop-in center and will coordinate services and programs with other groups and agencies in town.

Bryanton was born in Cohasset and began her career with South Shore Elder Services at their former South Main Street facility. "I am very excited about working in Cohasset again, and with the seniors. My experience has involved developing new resources and working with seniors in establishing programs that they want. I am very enthusiastic about Cohasset's Senior Center."

Selectwoman Diane Sullivan who served on the Screening Committee, said she was "impressed with Bryanton's sincerity, background and with what appears to be her apparent committment to the elderly."

In her position at South Shore Elder Services Bryanton has been responsible for assessing and planning the nutritional and social needs of the elderly in an 11-town service area. Last year she received the "Golden Apple Award"for innovative program initiative from the National Association of Nutrition and Aging Service Programs. She earned an Associates Degree recently in Human Resources at Massasoit Community College. She has also taken courses in management and nutrition at several Boston-area hospitals and universities. She is married with two teenage children.

Senior Center Developer Karin Bartow said, "After this past year of development work, I have a good feel for what will be required of a director during the first year of operation. The Council on Aging and the Town are very fortunate that Kathy will be in charge; she is a very capable and caring person with good ideas and sensitivities."

Other members of the Screening Committee were Council on Aging members Gerard Keating, Tony Finegan and Charlotte Leland. They reviewed a total of 25 applicants.

Selective Service to change Jan. 1

The Selective Service System reaches an important milestone in the registration of men Jan. 1, 1986.

Beginning Jan. 1, men who were required in 1980 to register with Selective Service will be turning 26. Selective Service does not have the authority to accept registrations of men after they turn 26. Men who failed to register will have permanently forfeited their right to certain federal student aid and job training benefits as well as Federal employment.

Additionally, registration with Selective Service is a requirement in some states for various employment opportunities, such as law enforcement agencies and permission to practice law.

Men born in 1960 who have registered, will reach age 26 in 1986 and, under present law, will no longer be eligible for selection for induction. Over 15 million men, 18 through 25 years old have registered with Selective Service since President Carter initiated registration in 1980.

Many of the men who are nonregistrants may be unaware of the requirement or do not understand the importance of the obligation to register. Some have served in the military but failed to register either before entering the Armed Forces or after leaving active duty.

Others may have been incarcerated at the time of their 18th birthday and not realized they were required to register if released from custody prior to 26 years old.

Board grants liquor licenses despite opposition

After some discussion, selectmen renewed the 15 liquor licenses held by stores and restaurants in Cohasset.

Prior to the issuance of the licenses, selectmen asked Executive Secretary Don Andrew if the police chief had any complaints regarding the establishments currently holding a license.

Andrew noted that in a conversation six weeks ago with Police Chief Joseph Kealey, the chief had indicated there were no complaints with any of the local establishments.

But Selectman Diane Sullivan said when she contacted the department, the chief was not there and she talked with Officer Brian Noonan. He told her that there were problems at KoKo Island restaurant on Rte. 3A. The officer indicated there were fights at the establishment, she said.

Selectmen Rocco Laugelle and Frank England noted it was the responsibility of the executive secretary to check with the police chief. Since the chief had indicated no problems with any of the establishments, they would abide by the department head's opinion.

Selectman Mary Jane McArthur suggested that in the future, the chief issue a written report outlining his recommendation on each establishment.

Selectman Sullivan noted that at a recent workshop sponsored by the Massachusetts Municipal Association, selectmen were warned of the town's liability if they grant a liquor license and "knowingly let a situation slip by."

Executive Secretary Andrew said a letter had been sent several weeks ago to town departments heads, asking if they had any comments on the issuance of liquor licenses to the 15 establishments. There was no response from the departments, including the building inspector, the health agent, the sewer department, and the treasurer-collector.

Selectmen voted 3-1, with Sullivan opposed, to renew the liquor licenses to the current holders. Selectman McArthur requested that Chief Kealey issue a written report on the status of KoKo Island.

In other business Monday night, selectmen decided to wait for a review by town counsel, before allowing a letter drafted by Atty. Charles Humphreys to be sent to the state Department of Public Works.

Atty. Humphreys, representing developer Donald Staszko, recently requested selectmen's permission to include curb cuts at the intersection of Rte. 3A and lower King Street in their request for a state ☐ Freshman Amy Duncombe of Cohasset is a member of the 1985-86 Williams College varsity ski team.

Amy joins the alpine squad in excellent physical condition. In 1984 she finished 7th in both the slalom and giant slalom events at the Junior Olympics.

Amy is a 1985 graduate of Cohasset High School in Cohasset, in addition to having been a member of the Waterville Valley Ski Program. She is the daughter of John and Suzanne Duncombe.

☐ Talk about sharing something special! That is what Peter Kulturides has done at the Log and Line by displaying his hobby, electric trains. They are wonderful to watch as they go around the track, if you like trains you'll love 'em. Even if you don't you will! A facinating hobby that is sure to thrill one and all (especially the "big" kids).

☐ One man sure to be happy these days is Donald Davis. He and his wife Donna had a baby boy recently, born at Quincy City Hospital. Betcha Don will have him into see those trains...

☐ Robert and Lisa Chisholm also make the news this week, for they too are parents of a brand new baby son, born at South Shore Hospital on November 22nd.

☐ And the third son born in Cohasset was born to Steven and Jean Hajjar. He was born at South Shore Hospital on November 23rd. Little league teams are going to be thriving by the year 1993...

☐ Congratulations go out to Bobby Donahue, who was elected the Football Captain at Bates College for the 1986 season. A grand honor indeed, one we are sure Bob will love doing. Good luck to you and your team Bob.

☐ Under the not-so-pleasant news, Pat McCarthy (of Bayberry Lane fame) had a heart attack last week. He's in South Shore Hospital, and I'll bet that he would love to get a card from you to help cheer him up and get well real soon. Here's to a speedy recovery, Mr. McCarthy!

☐ Congratulations to Dennis Torma, who was recently promoted to vice president, chief accounting officer by the Yankee Companies, Inc., of Cohasset. Torma formerly was director of accounting for the firm. He has been with the company since 1978.

☐ It was nice to hear about Richard Madigan and his success with the new company he has formed. We all remember the Madigan family with fondness, they were a great family. Now Mr. Madigan's into wrapping... anything and everything! Nothing is beyond them...they wrap in several malls from the Cape to Maine, they started their first Wrappers at Faneuil Hall last year. The company also makes boxes and bows, which are found in a lot of the retail stores around here. Nice to see a Cohassetite do well, we are pleased with his success. Now, if only he would send some of his wrappers to this house...

☐ American Cablesystems Corp. has announced that Thomas Walsh of Cohasset fame has been named general manager in southeastern Mass. and Cape Cod.

☐ Congratulations to Claffy Williams, who was recently elected the president of the South Shore Art Center. On the board of directors are F. Allen Weisenfluh, vice president; Peter Chapman, treasurer; Anita Franks, recording secretary, and Ali Swedock, corresponding secretary. Also serving on the board are Patrick Dudensing of Duxbury, Thomas Hamilton of Cohasset, Don Lettis of Hingham, Polly Logan of Cohasset, Shirley Neer of Cohasset and Stan Nikkel of Hingham. Each of the board members can do a lot for the Art Center, by bringing thier own particular expertise, be it business, education or arts.

☐ Be sure not to say one word against anything that was voted at the town meetings that were held last week, unless of course you attended...did you?

☐ If you are at a loss as to what to give someone as a last minute gift, why not give one of Judy Arndt's little bundles. If you saw last week's Mariner, the picture of the pups are adorable...all the females are left, they are a mixture of collie-shepherd and would be so much fun...call Judy at 383-1851, if they aren't all gone by now!

☐ It sure is Christmasy throughout our town, I think that the merchants have made it the prettiest shopping area on the South Shore. Do make it a point to shop locally, it helps all of us and sure makes their efforts worthwhile. We are very lucky to have all of these fine shops!

Amy Duncombe

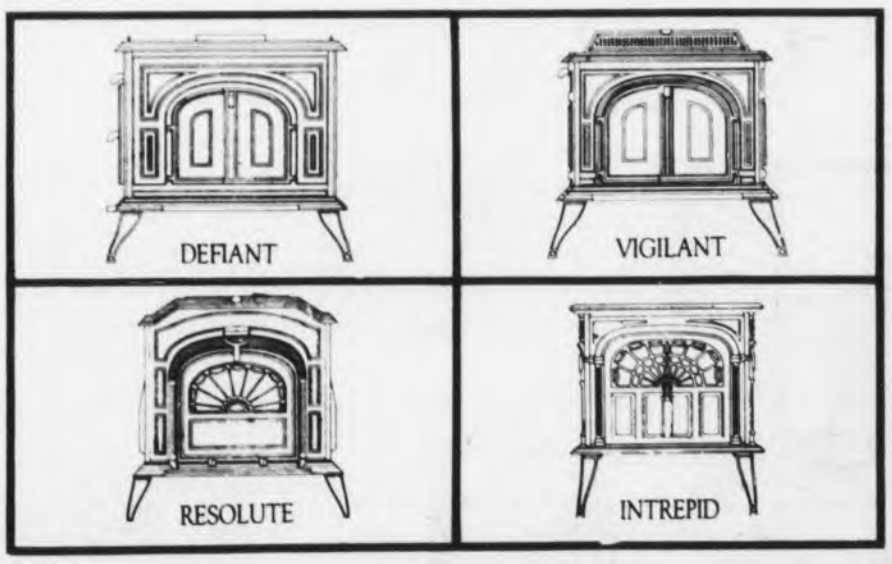
☐ Fred Koed of Hallmark 100 Properties Ltd. received the designation Graduate, Realtors Institute from the Mass. Association of Realtors President David Bradley and Irene Brenner, dean of the Realtors Institute. The GRI designation signifies 90 hours of advance in-class real estate education.

☐ What a weekend this one promises to be, guaranteed to get us all in the Christmas spirit. Our churches and our merchants have worked hard all year long to make this weekend one to be remembered. Be sure to go to the fair on Saturday and bring the kids. They can do all of their shopping, and they can have a great time with the activities that are planned for them. Santa will be there, on the Common, by 11 a.m. and will hear "requests" until 2 p.m. He will even pose for pictures! He'll be back Sunday, during the merchants' White Christmas day. The lights will be lit, the stores will be open and ready to serve you, and the camel will be back on the Common. Be sure to support your workers and this grand effort, and have a "Christmasy" weekend! It certainly will be here before you know it!!

☐James H. Walsh, III, of Nichols Road, was recently appointed a director of Northeastern University's National Council. The Council consists of 504 distinguished alumni who, through their professional accomplishments, bring honor to the University.

Walsh, who holds a civil engineering degree from Northeastern, is the senior vice president and treasurer of Walsh Brothers, Inc., in Cambridge. He is also a director of and chairman of the security committee for the Greater Boston Bank and a director of the Associated General Contractors (Mass.).

☐ Saw some AFS students hard at work raking leaves yesterday, as part of their fundraising efforts (to go toward scholarships). They charge a mere $5 an hour, and will do any of your chores for you. Call 383-6818 for more info., or hire them for their last work weekend, Dec. 7 and 8.



☐ There is a young gal in our town that may soon put us on the map . . . the way that Lauren Wood has taken to the ice, she could be a celebrity before she knows it. In fact, she is on her way as this is being written! Lauren is in the 8th grade at CHS, and is 13 years old. She has just decided to begin skating in earnest this year, and skates at the Winter Garden for the ISIA Skating Team. This is Lauren's first year competing, and she has entered three competitions so far. While Mom and Dad paced nervously watching and waiting for the scores to be posted, Lauren very calmly won two silver medals in her first two competitions. Last week she won a gold medal when she came in first in the contest in Billerica. Keep up your good work Lauren, and Mom and Dad should be able to be less and less nervous as time goes on!! Meantime, they are terribly proud, I'll bet!

☐ 'Till next week, keep your news coming! And, happy shopping.

Conservation board orders notice of intent

By Linda Dagley
Mariner Correspondent

At a meeting of the Conservation Commission Tuesday night, Joseph McElroy was asked to obtain more information and to file a notice of intent before filling in a gulley on his property at 59 Windy Hill Road.

The commission also asked Samuel Esposito to stop clearing his property at 585 Chief Justice Cushing Highway until a notice of intent was approved.

McElroy appeared before the commission requesting a a determination of applicability to fill and level the grade between his house and the Neely's of 53 Windy Hill Road.

With concern for the proximity of Rattlesnake Run, Commissioner Merle Brown told McElroy he needed to file a notice of intent. The commission agreed to come down to the property and give their opinion on the outcome of a notice.

McElroy said he wanted to fill the land for both aesthetic and practical reasons.

Trees growing on the other side of a stonewall which runs close to his house threaten to fall on the roof in a heavy wind storm. Also, a lot of brush and branches cleared after Hurricane Gloria were piled in the gulley. McElroy is afraid a fire might start there.

McElroy was disappointed with the decision of the commission.

"There ought to be an improvement in the way property is sold so homeowners know the restrictions on their land before they buy it," he told the commission, "it is unfair of the administration in state and town agencies."

"I agree," Brown told him, "But I think the realtors should be more responsible."

Samuel Esposito appeared before the commission to answer questions about the work he is doing on his property on Rte. 3A.

Esposito claimed he is not in violation of the by-laws.

"All I'm doing is digging up stumps and filling in the holes. I am not removing or bringing in fill and I am not changing the grade of the land."

Bob Macki told him he needed a notice of intent to carry this out. Under the Mass. Wetlands Act, any removal of brush in a wetlands area requires a notice of intent.

Esposito agreed to discontinue his work and to file a notice of intent for his entire project.

Esposito is planning on using the land which was once a parking lot as a nursery for his landscaping business.

The commission also heard a report from attorney Roberta Sawyer on the Frederick Thayer condominium development at 100 Pond St.

The commission was pleased with the progress of the development which Thayer hopes to have completed in February.

Editorial

Banned

Whenever teenagers are inspired to read anything — whether it is comic books, cereal boxes, road signs or books — they're headed toward intellectual development. And when that reading gets them thinking and forming values, their future as the next generation of leaders is a very hopeful one.

The Mariner strongly opposes the position taken by the South Shore Regional School Committee to ban Go Ask Alice, a diary of a 15-year-old girl's struggle with drug addiction.

It is the profanity in the book, which members of the School Committee said, in a 4-3 vote, was at the root of their objection to the book used in 10th grade English literature classes at the Vo-Tech high school.

That position supported the stand taken by the school's Supt. Clifford Easton to uphold his religious standards. By that we assume he means vulgar, coarse language has no place in a moral society.

We would go along with that if our individual values were questioned but in the microcosm of a teenage society, we also have to accept the reality of the times we live in.

We believe however, that it is not profanity we're dealing with here. Rather it is the restriction of intellectual freedom.

Again we say, if teenagers are reading and from that, learning to think critically, then we should not only let them - we should encourage them.

Teacher Robert Parkis is right to insist that the book continue to be allowed in the classroom. He is also right to use it as an educational resource and to elaborate on the message in the book, which he contends might deter other youths from drugs.

But the value of his efforts we feel, goes far beyond what Go Ask Alice has to say.

Parkis' open-minded approach is honest and kids learn a lot more from that power of example.

Easton's attempt to hide the truth from students — truth that can be explored in a wholesome, healthy way — keeps them intellectually handicapped.

There are currently too many college graduates who lack competence in reading and writing skills. Whenever we limit our students' intellectual curiosity, we are contributing to that alarming trend.

Our teenagers need to be trusted with the truth instead of being bludgeoned by the dos and don'ts of childhood. With the proper guidance and encouragement they will be able to find the answers to life's problems within themselves, provided their education isnot hampered by a ban on thinking.

Reprints available at Society

A reminder — The Cohasset Historical Society is offering reproductions in the form of prints of a dozen of its most significant works of historical art, available either as individual prints or in groups of more than one.

These fine reproductions include prints of a number of 19th century Cohasset scenes, including harbor and seascape views, the portrait of a Lighthouse keeper at Minot's Ledge Lighthouse, a three-masted schooner named for a Cohasset sailmaker, the first Minot's Light of 1850, an early farmhouse now a well-known New England Inn, a copy of an Audubon chromolithograph, a sea captain's home called "The First Black Rock House," a sailing vessel commanded by a Cohasset deep sea captain in the harbor of Venice and a Lothrop family primitive watercolor painted by a young girl.

These new reproductions can be seen in proof form, along with some of the original artwork, at the Society's headquarters, the Caleb Lothrop House, Summer Street, Cohasset, where copies can be ordered. If you are interested in obtaining one or more of these expertly reproduced works of art, please call the Society at 383-6930.

The Lothrop House may be visited by appointment. The reproductions of these locally important historical paintings and prints are suitable for framing and would make unique additions to the home or office.

Attempt to expose sewer flummery

Letters

To the Editor:

At town meeting several persons objected to me speaking on the sewer issue because I am a citizen of another country. Some objected on principle — some sort of insular patriotism, I suppose. Others may have feared that my remarks would influence the vote by revealing uncomfortable insight into what is really going on. Their victory, like book burning, is a petty one that's ineffective in the long run.

The resentment of my intrusion is all very understandable. After all, American interference by government and by individuals in the affairs of others is often bitterly resented. Although the interference is well meant, and I agree with much of it, we should note that Americans do meddle extensively — Vietnam, human rights in the Soviet Union, apartheid in South Africa, aid to Nicaraguan contras, overthrow of Chilie's Allende, exploitation of oil producing countries before OPEC, the invasions of Cuba and Grenada, attempted blockage of sale of natural gas to European countires by the Soviets and the sale of Canadian trucks to China, etc. Individual Americans are hardly reticent at offering criticism, constructive or otherwise, in the countries they visit or in which they often reside for many years.

Therefore, I am unrepentant for my attempts to expose the sewer flummery. That so many apparently fear my being heard is encouraging. The town does not gain by having a large complement of ostriches and lemmings. I'm all for free enterprise, self determination and minimum government intrusion. But it's Cohasset, not the government agenices, that has attempted to distort the facts and the rules. Much political capital has been made by appealing to the instinctive distrust of government — together with ill-considered schemes to get at the money trough. The pathetic part of it is that, properly handled, we would by now have had an excellent system almost ready for operation, better funded than anything that can be done now, and with a capacity cushion for the future.

What is needed, instead of working within the strictures of warrants and procedures of a town meeting, is a special forum to illuminate fully how we got to this contretemps, and how we can best proceed. The Sewer Commission needs firm redirection from a better informed assembly, rather than continue to orchestrate the town to support further follies. Probably no interested person is without bias, but as an organization, the League of Women Voters tries hard to reveal facts without bias. Perhaps the LWV could organize an open free-for-all forum — not necessarily limited to one evening — and with a strong moderator. Some frank talk by a representative of DEQE would help. Perhaps the proceedings might inform and excite one or more citizens to stand up and provide leadership out of the morass.

A revived Sewer Advisory Committee is a non-solution, if it is again to be stacked with opponents of a conventional solution in the belief that proper sewers will result in uncontrollable growth and ruination of the town's character. And should the Hull connection turn out not be viable, we'd better get to understand that large plants aren't inherently prone to discharge violations — not when they are properly sized, designed and operated. Building our own plant now or in the future will cost us more than in the past, although the cost of the Hull connection, and our share of its annual operating and maintenance cost, may be more than the costs of our own plant that we could have had. Of course, doing anything properly in a municipality is more difficult than in a business, because of the whimsical, emotional and capricious workings of the democratic process. But a chastened and informed town could do it.

A need to hear facts, not fiction about sewer plan

To the Editor:

The ultimate example of shooting the messenger who brings bad news was given last week by the Special Town Meeting in Cohasset when objections from the floor denied R.M. Campbell, a long-time resident and taxpayer, the privilege of speaking on the subject of sewerage. On the basis of a technicality, and with great discourtesy, the Town Meeting was prevented from hearing from the one person most knowledgeable on the subject, one who has repeatedly been proven correct by the State's continued firm objection to the "Mickey Mouse," will-o'-the-wisp solution that short-sighted but articulate and charismatic leaders have been chasing. He alone could have asked the hard questions that need to be asked as one after another of the expectations roused by the Sewer Commission are demonstrated to be false.

The latest of these expectations, of course, was the claim by the Commission that an agreement had been reached with the State for acceptance of the limited and watered down sewerage plan. The sharply worded letter denying this agreement was just further indication of how far the town had been led down the garden path by apparent misinformation and misrepresentation.

Now, it seems, even by the Commission's own admission, that further limits will be placed on the sewerage area and facilities through the Sewer District approach and there is good reason to believe that the "alternative" solution could cost the town almost as much as the initially approved subsidized but much-maligned central plant system. We need to hear the facts instead of hopes and fiction.

Don't forget Rep. Murray's participation at hearing

To the Editor:

Thank you to Valerie Kroon for the Human Service article appearing in the December 12 issue of The Mariner. Your coverage of the S.S.A.R.C. Hearing held in Quincy was both accurate and factual, but I regret there was no mention that State Representative Mary Jeanette Murray of Cohasset attended the Hearing, as well as Joan Oates of Hingham, who represented Senator Paul Harold, who regretably could not be there himself.

Both Legislators are committed to the continued support of their "special needs" constituency, and are extremely responsive to the members of the South Shore Association for Retarded Citizens. Thank you.

Sincerely,
Mrs. Maria A. Plant, President
South Shore Association for Retarded Citizens

Council on Aging thankful for Rotary Club gift

To the Editor:

The Council on Aging would like to extend its sincere thanks to the Rotary Club of Cohasset for your generous gift of $3,850 to help establish a Senior Center.

The Council is opening a Senior Center with a fulltime director in charge to provide the needed focus for information, referral and services for the Town's senior citizens. A center will enable the Council to serve a greater number of seniors with more comprehensive programs and to network more effectively with other town organizations already serving the senior population.

The Rotary Club's initiation of this gift is a very commendable act of community support and caring.

Very truly yours,
John J. Keohane
Chairman

Please rehang special engravement photographs at Town Hall

(This letter was sent to the Board of Selectmen. Ed.)

Dear Members:

Please find enclosed a copy of the warrant, (March 9, 1929), Article 13, which directed the Town to raise $550.00 for the purchase of metal engraved photographs of Cohasset men who lost their lives in World War I. The article further directs that the pictures are to be placed in the Town Hall under the direction of the Board of Selectmen.

When the Town Hall was painted last year, the pictures were taken down, but never put back up where they had been hanging for the past 55 years.

In light of Article 13, and the clarity of the instructions mandated to the Selectmen, I would request that the pictures be re-hung as soon as possible to their original, designated location in the Town Hall auditorium.

Having researched subsequent warrants, I have not been able to find where this mandate was ever rescinded. Whereas these men of Cohasset gave a supreme sacrifice, it would seem more than appropriate that the pictues be viewed once again.

Thank you for your consideration of this matter.

Respectfully,
Richard P. Barrow

Happy Vacation!

All Cohasset schools close after classes Friday, December 20, for the Holiday Vacation. Classes resume on Thursday, January 2, at the normal times. To all teachers, staff and students — Happy, Merry and Enjoy!

Volleyball Tournament

The second annual Christmas Volleyball Tournament started Wednesday, Dec. 11, at the high school.

Seven teams have entered for the double elimination tournament run by the physical education department.

Games start at 2:10 p.m. each day with the winner of two out of three games going onto the next round and the loser moving onto the loser side of the tournament. A team is eliminated after losing twice. The final game will be played Friday, Dec. 20, periods six and seven, in the Sullivan Gym. The winning team will receive T-shirts.

Cohasset Skipper contest

The Art Department and the Physical Education Department are co-sponsoring a contest for a new, rougher, tougher caricature of the "Skipper," our school mascot.

We are looking for a skipper who shows the strength, determination, courage and aggressiveness displayed by our winning teams. The new skipper will also display the pride we have in our top music groups, drama club, etc.

This new skipper will be welcomed to Cohasset on the T-shirts for the winners of the intramural Christas Volleyball Tournament Dec. 20. A T-shirt will also be awarded to the designer of the new skipper.

The lucky winners of the PSO Sports Market Raffle included Anna Lyons of Hanson who won a Hawaiian vacation for two, Molly Gallagher received six unique "Sporting" T-shirts and Barbara Leahy won dinner for two at Gallagher's Restaurant in New York City.

The used sports equipment and consignment sale left many sports enthusiasts well supplied with quality used equipment at very reasonable prices.

And. . .it's not over yet!

The wonderful variety of items to be auctioned moved the Sports Market Committee to parlay the auction into another fun-filled event for the community.

The auction will take place in conjunction with another Cohasset sports event at the end of January.

The list of items available includes something for good sports of all ages.

Imagine. . .A private pool party, a harbor cruise, a catered tailgate party. Bid on an outboard motor or a private sailboard lesson. Many of Cohasset's college students have donated new sweatshirts from their schools, and this collection of collegiate sportswear will be included in the auction. Keep in shape with a fitness club membership, New Balance running shoes and much more.

Look for upcoming details. Support your schools. Be a good sport at the PSO Sports Market Auction!

So.Shore Hospital plans health care service expansion

Plans to expand the health care activities of South Shore Health and Educational Corporation were announced recently by Edward S. Amazeen, Chairman of the Board of Trustees. South Shore Health and Educational Corporation is the parent company of South Shore Hospital, Inc.

Plans call for the parent organization to put in place a management team to investigate and develop alternative methods of delivering non-hospital based health care services to the South Shore communities.

Under the corporate restructuring, the hospital will continue to be managed by William Clark, President and Chief Executive Officer, while South Shore Health and Educational Corporation will focus on alternative health care delivery systems and developing non-hospital based health care services.

Citing the hospital's fiscal stability and its 96 percent occupancy rate, Amazeen said the hospital is in a "unique positive position" among Massachusetts hospitals. "South Shore Health and Educational Corporation, however, recognizes the reality that in order to ensure long term fiscal security, services must be provided outside of the hospital as well as in the hospital."

He noted the development of the Nevin Professional Building for physicians as a recent example of a non-hospital based venture initiated by South Shore Health and Educational Corporation.

"We are developing more cost-effective ways to deliver medical services without sacrificing the quality of care. We can no longer assume that all of these services will be hospital based."

At the South Shore Art Center

Give the Virgin Islands for Christmas!

Give a South Shore Art Center gift certificate good for one trip to the Virgin Islands with artist-teacher Virginia Avery. The art center at 103 Ripley Road in Cohasset offers unique ideas for holiday giving. Select from the beautifully handcrafted items in the Holiday Gift Shop, the works of art offered in the gallery or a gift certificate for a trip, a class, a workshop or a membership.

Handcrafted items in the gift shop include pottery, baskets, ornaments, stationery, pre-Columbian art, etc. Works of art representing all mediums, both unframed and framed, are available. New to the Holiday Shop is pottery by Marsha Klein.

In the invitational gallery is a beautiful exhibit of work by South Shore craftmakers including jewelry, baskets, woven wallhangings, stained glass, ceramics and calligraphied pieces. Each of the items in the exhibit is for sale for holiday giving.

Or give the Virgin Islands. Send someone on Virginia Avery's winter watercolor trip to the British Virgin Islands. Scheduled for the month of March, the tour includes such exotic places as Tortola, Little Dix Bay and the Baths. Watercolor instruction will be given by Avery. Participants will capture the beauty of these islands on their canvases. For more information as to tour dates, prices and specific sights, contact the Center, 383-9548.

Make the South Shore Art Center's Holiday Shop a stop on your Christmas shopping list. There is something for everyone at the Center.

Eager anticipation is brightly displayed on the face of Meghan Clark. Wonder what she's thinking about?

Judy Gilman update . . . .

Christmas cards are welcomed to be sent to Judy Gilman, Hingham Mariner editor, who is making remarkable progress in her recovery from a serious one-car accident, June 12, six months ago.

Christmas cards can be sent to Judy at The Greenery, 99 Chestnut Hill Avenue, Brighton.

Judy is undergoing extensive physical, occupational and speech therapy at the facility. She enjoys reading books with large type and is also progressing from a wheelchair to a walker.

With her husband John, Judy has had several outings to the Renoir exhibit at the Museum of Fine Arts and she enjoyed Thanksgiving dinner at her brother-in law's home in North Easton.

A similiar type outing is planned for Christmas.

Excellent library . . .

The people of the town also get more than their money's worth in service, according to the director.

"We are always responsive to the needs of the public," Hayes stresses. "We take 4,000 written requests from our users each year. We either purchase the book or we get it for them through an inter-library loan."

Hayes praises the generous book budget which allows the library to purchase 3,000 new titles a year.

"It keeps us busy selecting, cataloging and circulating," he says.

In addition to books, the library carries 200 popular magazines. Although the library does not keep magazines on microfilm they do have a magazine index which records articles from 400 different magazines over the last five years. If people need a certain article, the staff will try to otain it for them through inter-library loan.

Hayes has high praise for his staff who are highly trained professionals offering first line reference information.

"If we don't have the materials you need we can refer you to Boston or Quincy or get what you need through inter-library loan," Hayes explains.

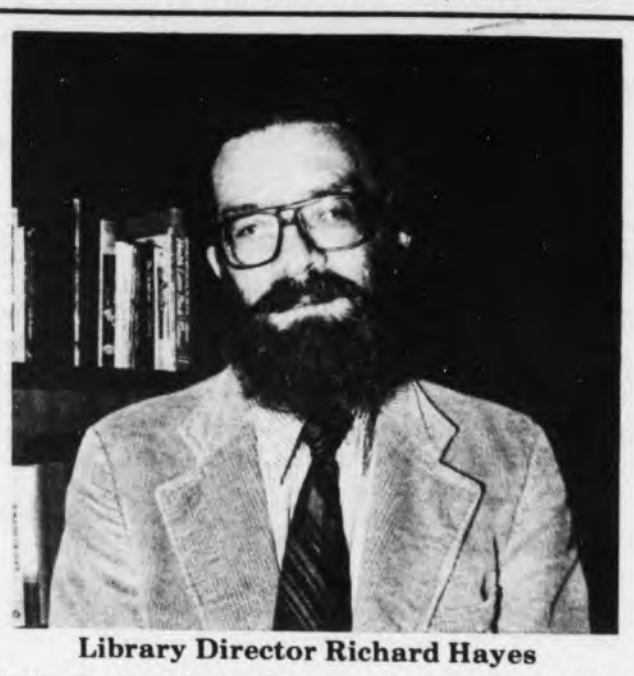
In addition to the adult services, the library offers a complete children's program run by Marilyn Pope and JoAnn Mitchell.

Story Hours are available for pre-schoolers and the staff also works very closely with the schools. Weekly visits are made to the classrooms. The library provides storytelling and presents classic films.

For older children, the librarians have a program called booktalk where they introduce the children to a new book.

Several hundred children take part each summer in the reading incentive program. In the fall, teachers invite librarians to present achievement awards, and books are presented by the Friends of the Cohasset Library.

The staff also works closely with the high school teachers and librarians providing books for projects and assignments and a summer reading list.



The Friends of the Library also offer free passes to the Museum of Science, the Museum of Fine Arts, the Children's Museum and the Aquarium.

The newest project is to install a computer network linking Cohasset with 15 other cities and towns in the Old Colony Library network.

Last week the Network voted to accept the proposal of a study committee to negotiate with the Sperry Corporation to install a complete system for the 16 cities and towns.

The system will centralize all the information in the towns and make it accessible to each.

It will automate the circulation and cataloging procedures. It will allow a patron to determine the status of a book before he goes to the shelf to look for it.

Library Director Richard Hayes

Hayes hopes to have the new system installed by the spring. "It will take a year to convert to it," says Hayes, who is very optimistic about this project.

"This could have very dramatic results. Librarians will reach a much higher level of training and service," he says. "This requires the staff to be responsive to the need for change."

Because of the high level of the service provided the town, the town repays the library by returning the books. Less than three percent of the loans require an overdue notice and less than 4/10 of one percent remain unreturned.

"People return the books because they appreciate the service," Hayes says. "However, I do have a hard case right now which I am planning to pursue in court. A person borrowed $200 worth in new computer books and never returned them. I don't thing the taxpayer should have to tolerate this.

"We are sympathetic to people with a hard time getting books back on time, but we get annoyed with people who don't return them altogether."

Hayes adds that a drop box was installed by the Friends outside the library.

"Sometimes people just feel too guilty to look the librarian in the eye," he explains.

About the only problem this library seems to face is lack of parking. If you can't find the parking lot that's because there isn't one. Spaces are provided on the circular drive and on the street.

"If you stood outside and watched, you would see that many cars come and go here. Many people drive by because there is no place to park. If anyone has a solution I would love to hear it!" the director stated.

Hayes stresses that all newcomers are welcome to stop by and register.

They will be given a tour and an explanation of the services the library provides. And that is certainly worth learning about.

Science Center sets $12,000 year-end appeal

South Shore Natural Science Center has set a goal of $12,000 for its end-of-the-year appeal. Contributed money will help support the Center's operating expenses which, with an annual operating budget of $185,000, cost approximately $70 per hour.

Based in Norwell, the Natural Science Center is the only environmental center serving south of Boston to Cape Cod which has a museum, serves children both at the facility and at local schools, and which offers a wide range of adult activities.

The center provides programs and speakers for 35 Massachusetts schools, 37 youth organizations, special needs groups, as well as an outreach program to clubs, service organizations and nursing homes.

The center also acts as headquarters for the South Shore Archaeological Society and for the South Shore Astronomical Society, which shares an observatory with the center.

In keeping with its mission of education and instilling appreciation of the natural environment and man's historic and continuing presence in it, the center is involved with ongoing collaborative research with state agencies, colleges, universities and other organizations in such activities as bird banding, bird and animal counts, acid rain monitoring and endangered species research.

Schools gear up for busy winter schedule

GIRLS' BASKETBALL

Coming off a fantastic season, the girls have been working hard in hopes of repeating last year's success. Coach Bill Fallon feels that although his team lacks experience, he expects to make the tournament and perhaps even capture the division title. Fallon believes that if the girls keep improving as they have been, they will be very competitive against every team.

Cohasset's strength this year has been in its inside people, especially Cindy Spooner, Melissa Shea, and captain Anne O'Leary. The Skippers will also be looking toward Margie Murphy and Maureen O'Leary for good offensive years.

The girls have had four tough scrimmages and have done very well in all of them. Cohasset's toughest competion this year will be Hull, Sandwich, and Abington whom they open with on Tuesday at 6:00. Fallon feels that whoever wins this game will most likely win the division title. Friday, the girls travel to Norwell and are predicted to come home with a victory.

HOCKEY

After getting back to the basics, the hockey team is ready to skate into the season stronger and more competitive than last year. The whole team is working very hard and has shown a great desire to win.

Cohasset will be looking to captains Greg Ferreira and Chris Ridge for leadership this year. Both Philip Mahoney and Craig Mulcahy are strong and quick defensemen for the Skippers. On offense Jeff Hartwell and Danny Pompeo are expected to lead the team in scoring. Although injured, Todd Fitzpatrick should also be a key to Cohasset's success once he is back in action.

Although the team lacks depth, the Skippers should surprise some people in the league and will undoubtedly play exciting hockey. In the several scrimmages in which Cohasset participated, the boys showed great potential and even beat last year's state champion Scituate. Hopefully, this victory will propel Cohasset into a winning season.

The boys start off the season with their toughest opponents. On Wednesday, the boys play Falmouth away. Saturday, the Skippers travel to Rockland and take on the traditionally rough Bulldogs. Monday the boys should get a little reprieve as they face off against Whitman/Hanson at Winter Gardens at 10:00.

WRESTLING

The wrestling team is starting off on a good note as they are dressing the most experienced team Cohasset has seen in over three years.

Coach Tom Sweeney feels that although his team will face some stiff competition this year, Cohasset will be very competitive.

Although he feels it is too early to make any predictions, Sweeney believes his team can't help but improve over last year for two reasons. First, Cohasset finally filled every weight class this year, and thus will not be penalized as they have in the past.

Second, the team consists mainly of seasoned veterans, many of whom trained in the off season. Put these two factors together and you've got the makings of a winning team.

Under the leardership of captains Brian Leary, John Riley, and Liam Stanford, the boys have been pushing themselves hard in preparation for their first match on Wednesday against Duxbury. Duxbury has always been the toughest team in the league, and Cohasset will hopefully rise to the occassion.

BOYS' BASKETBALL

Yes, they are finally back!

Eddie and the Cruisers are revving up for yet another season of tremendous basketball.

Many may wonder how the boys can repeat last year's spectacular 25-0 performance. However, the real question is how can't they?

The boys lost two starters last season, but with James Creed, Tony Bogarty, and Brian Edwards coming back and with the addition of Bobby Shultz to the starting lineup, the Skippers once again should be tough to beat.

Being a Division Three team, many question the team's ability to play with Division One teams. Put your minds at ease for the boys scrimmaged Don Bosco, Watertown, Durfee, and even Brockton and beat them all handily.

The Skippers' reputation has spread, for they have been invited to represent New England in a national high school basketball tournament which is to be held in Richmond, VA during Christmas vacation.

Before this prestigious event, however, Cohasset opens their season with Abington on Tuesday, and travel to Norwell, Friday. The boys also play in Scituate on Monday.

Coach Eddie Minelli, the epitome of confidence, was quoted recently in the Globe as saying he really didn't think anyone could beat his team. 50-0 sounds very tough to achieve, but I wouldn't put it past the cruisers.

Selectmen discuss King Street curb cuts traffic analysis of that section of Rte. 3A.

At that time, selectmen said Atty. Humphreys could draft a letter requesting the town-owned land on King Street be included in the state analysis, but emphasized they were not endorsing any proposal from the developer.

Since that time, Staszko has filed an appeal in superior court against the Cohasset Planning Board. That board denied approval of a plan to locate a supermarket on Rte. 3A land now housing the vacant Ford Motor building and former Cohasset Craftsman property.

Selectman Frank England, noting that the developer is now in the midst of litigation against a town board, asked that town counsel first review the letter before Atty. Humphreys forwards it to the state.

Town Counsel Richard Henderson said if selectmen want a review of town-owned land, that would have no bearing on the litigation between Staszko and the planning board. He suggested, however, that he review the letter and make a final recommendation to selectmen next week.

In other action, selectmen voted not to recommend a reclassification of the position of wiring inspector.

Although Selectman Diane Sullivan argued that positions in other town departments were reclassified as a result of last week's Special Town Meeting, the board decided to postpone any decision until after the reclassification study is completed.

The reclassification study of non union town employees was funded last week at the Special Town Meeting. That study, to be completed by an independent consultant for not more than $18,000, will be completed four months after it begins. Selectmen said the reclassification system study will probably not be finished by the April Town Meeting.

Wiring Inspector Stephen Wigmore requested Monday night that his position be reclassified and the salary adjusted. Selectmen would have to make a recommendation to the personnel committee who would then approve or deny Wigmore's request. But Selectmen Chairman Frank England stated that no action should be taken on the request until after the study is completed.

"There doesn't seem much sense in starting something now when the study has just been voted," he said.

Selectman Rocco Laugelle asked how long it would be before the town would see results from the reclassification study. When told it would take about four months to finish, Laugelle added, "I don't like this whole thing. Some departments get whatever they want, and others don't."

The wiring inspector stated his position is underpaid, and agreed the study "is a waste of time. The money you have spent could have been put towards salaries for the town's non union employees."

Selectman Sullivan suggested that Wigmore present his case to the board, noting that the reclassification study might set his position higher or lower on the salary schedule.

Selectmen England and Mary Jane McArthur voted to wait for the completion of the study, and Laugelle and Sullivan voted to hear Wigmore's request. Because it was a split vote, the request was denied.

Selectman England noted that if the study is not completed by April Town Meeting, "the town would be remiss in not holding a Special Town Meeting to take up the results of the study."

Meehan wins ribbon

The Swogjan Synchroized Swim Team swam in an All Level Figure Meet on Dec. 8 in Springfield. Seven girls and four adults competed at this meet.

Dawn Meehan of Cohasset brought home a blue ribbon for her first place finish in the Ten and Under Novice figures. Laura Ulmschneider of Hanover followed closely behind coming in fourth. Both girls did an excellent job with only a one point difference between all the competitors.

Alicia Mingham of Scituate came in fifth in her event—Eleven and Twelve Novice figures and Alison Norris of Norwell came in second in the Thirteen and Fourteen Novice figures. For the first official meet of the season all of these girls did exceptionally well as it was their first meet that all of them have attended.

In Junior Figures, Shannon Hynes of Hanover brought home a fourth place ribbon and two of her teammates followed right behind her. Robin Hooper of Norwell came in seventh and Diana Young of Norwell followed to come in eighth.

Ariel Stiles of Hingham came in first in her age group of Masters Novice Figures and Ted Bennett of Hingham also came in first of his age group in the Masters Novice Figure event.

Meet the Treasurer-Collector's staff

The Treasurer-Collector's office may be one of the most familiar locations in Town Hall.

It's the office where everyone goes to pay real estate taxes and motor vehicle excise taxes. The four ladies who work in this office may be more recognizable than most town employees, because no one is exempt from the fees and taxes processed by this staff.

The treasurer-collector is Elizabeth "Betty" Ripley. She was elected to the post in April to fill two of the three-year term vacated in October, 1984 by Gordon Flint. Prior to her election, and service as Acting Treasuer-Collector, Betty was employed for two years as Assistant Treasurer-Collector.

There have been a lot of changes in this office, changes that have positively effected the services and efficiency within the department, Betty said.

One of the more noticeable alterations has been to the office itself. What was once two separate offices divided by the hallway, is now contained into one expanded location. The Treasurer-Collector office is located on the second floor of Town Hall.

The public is usually greeted in one section of the office which contains a counter and a desk. The three remaining staff members occupy the second room. Physical changes have been made in recent months to the two offices. Dreary paint has been refinished, and hand-stenciled curtains (done at home by Betty) drape the large office windows.

The town treasurer and tax collector are two separate, but related responsibilities, according to Betty. With the four staff members, this combined office handles the payroll for all town employees, their deductions and personnel records, and all town department receipts, including those of the school department.

All taxes are collected and processed through this department, including real estate, motor vehicle and boat excise taxes, parking ticket payments, and rentals on town-owned buildings. Water bills are processed through this office and all municipal tax title work is completed by the Treasurer-Collector's staff.

As Betty explained, tax title research occupies a great deal of time and diligent work. By the spring of 1986, the town's tax title file will be current. Just a few years ago, she said, the file was backed-up 20 years.

An interesting note - the treasurer-collector mentioned that this fall's tax collection was exceedingly high. That's good news for the town, because the more revenue added to the town's accounts, the less the town must borrow to pay bills in lieu of the tax receipts.

Again, Betty credited the office 'team' working together to get tax bills out early and receipts processed quickly.

The office members include Nancy Snowdale of Cohasset, the deputy collector. She handles all collections, process payments and deposits, and completes the computer work that coincides with those responsibilities. All figures are then sent along to Betty.

Know Your Town Hall

The assistant treasurer is Sally Lincoln of Hingham. She handles the town's payroll which includes about 300 employees. The payroll processing includes deductions and overseeing department receipts. She is also responsible for ensuring all new employees fill out proper payroll forms, and that all retirements are processed.

Sally also completes the town's quarterly tax report.

The third staff member is part time employee Sandra Hahn of Cohasset. She assists with payroll deductions and department receipts which are posted into the office cash book. The numbers are then coded for entry into the town's computer system.

The treasurer-collector assists Nancy with the deposits which are posted into her books. All budget work and quarterly reports are completed and reviewed by the department head. Tax problems and tax title payments are processed by Betty who oversees the operation of the entire office.

"I review all of the reports completed within this office," she explained. "It's a check and balance of what the girls here do each month. " The office supervisor also helps at the counter, assisting the public with payments or problems.

"We all take turns," she added. "Whenever someone is at lunch or busy, another one is there. We have the office covered throughout the day."

With the capable help of four staff people, Cohasset recently experienced an early tax bill season. "Everything is up-to-date and current," the treasurer-collector noted.

Cohasset was also conspicious by its absence in a recent report issued by the state Inspector General regarding municipal investing by town treasurers. Betty's office never figured into the statewide report.

As she explained, Cohasset's bank accounts have been deposited into money market, interest-bearing accounts. Betty has also been particular about investing only in the highest-interest institutions where the rate hovers at about eight percent. There is one local bank, she said, where Cohasset money is invested "because they have better rates than in Boston."

The town continues to select the lowest bidder and invest in the highest interest banks. "We are very conscientious about that," she stated, noting that Cohasset does not regularly have as much money to invest as other larger towns and cities in the state.

The former Cohasset school department secertary and bookkeeper is currently studying toward certification by the state as a municipal treasurer and tax

Studds supports student loan legislation

Recently, the House passed, with my strong support, legislation to re-authorize a range of federal student assistance programs, including: Guaranteed Student Loans (GSLs), Pell Grants, Supplemental Education Opportunity Grants, and College Work Study. Among changes contained in the bill are provisions, effective in the school year 1987-88, to:

• increase the maximum award of Pell

I am very pleased to announce that I will sponsor a half-day forum on student financial aid for all interested residents of the Tenth Congressional District.

Our forum, entitled Student Financial Aid: Planning for College in 1986, will be held from 2 to 5 p.m. on Sunday, Feb. 2

Having everyone together in one office is easier for the public, and easier for me as a department head. Since the two offices were combined last February, it has made a big difference in how this department operates."

REAL ESTATE GUIDELINES

By Norma Telesco
Home Center Realty

Guidelines For Househunters

Finding the perfect house for your family is just the first step toward moving you into a new home. The second is negotiating the sales agreement with the sellers—both the price and the terms. To find out if the asking price is in line with the neighborhood, you can ask the realtor to provide you with "comparables"—selling prices for similar homes located nearby. Your agent can also tell you how these houses may differ from the one you're considering buying. Use this information to help decide whether a particular property is a good value. If the price seems too high, perhaps the sellers are willing to negotiate. They may lower the price, agree to provide owner financing, or pay some of the closing costs. Your agent can't tell you what to offer or what the sellers will accept—the sellers probably won't know what they'll accept until they are presented with a written offer—but the information provided can help you decide how much you want to pay.

HOME CENTER REALTY's agents are trained to guide you through every step of the home buying and selling process. Call us at 749-8833, or stop by our office at 57 Water St., Hingham. Our professionals are available to serve any of your real estate needs.

Cub Scouts

Thank you to all the den leaders and Cub Scouts for your donations to the Christmas Fair Dec. 8.

Martha Freeman's Den I decorated blown eggs, which is a delicate and unique art. Lori Beal's and Mary Varisco's Den II rolled Christmas sugar cookies and decorated them for the fair. Barbara Hislop's and Karen Crehan's Den III donated dog biscuit ornaments. Linda Farrag's Den IV was busy in the kitchen cooking fudge. The scouts not only learned about reading recipes and mixing but were happy to cook extra so they could take some samplings of their delicious fudge home.

All the dens have been busy making a Christmas tree ornament for the Christmas tree decorating ceremony at the next pack meeting. The tree will be donated to the Ripley Road Nursing Home.

It's time for anger against sexual abuse

By Tom Henshaw
Mariner Staff

"People have got to get enraged," said Pat Nigrelli. "They've got to raise a little havoc, like the Mothers Against Driving Drunk. Too many of these people are walking the streets."

Nigrelli, a police officer for 13 years, the first six of them in Weymouth, is a member of the Norfolk County Sexual Assault Unit under District Attorney William D. Delahunt.

"There was a skating coach a while ago who molested some kids," she said. "A group calling themselves Mothers Against Sexual Abuse picketed the court. He got time in Walpole.

"The trouble is that society does not want to face the fact that we have young children being sexually abused. It's hard for teachers, police, doctors, all society to realize that we do have kids being abused.

"When we go into court it is difficult for juries to understand that, first, a child is telling the truth and, second, that a young child has actually been sexually abused. They don't want to face it.

"Some judges themselves don't realize that this is happening. They feel this could 'never happen in my family.' They are wrong. Most offenders are middle class people, teachers, bankers, yes, police officers, newspaper reporters.

"Our unit is up by 100 more victims this year. This is not a ghetto. This is not New York City. This is the suburban towns of Norfolk County. Society had better take a good look at it.

"A lot of these people need to be put behind bars. They are a danger to themselves and to society. People have to get mad. Only the people can change it.

"I went to a training course once at Fort Sam Houston, Texas. Between classes we sat around and told 'war stories.' One fellow from Texas was talking about a guy who molested his daughter and his niece. The guy said, 'We allowed him to plea bargain 60 years in jail.'

"My God, we don't give murderers 60 years in jail in Massachusetts!"

Judge Albert L. Kramer has been presiding justice of the Quincy District Court, which includes Braintree, Weymouth, Randolph and Cohasset, for as long as Nigrelli has been a police officer. He too has seen hundreds of cases in which children have been sexually abused.

"Some sexual abusers of children do go to jail," he said. "But a lot of those cases are not treated as a crime. You have to remember that most child abuse is not a crime.

"Most abuse is in the family. Most abusers are males who were sexually abused as children themselves or they are alcoholics. They are mostly fathers or stepfathers who lead isolated social lives.

"Most cases do not involve actual physical penetration. Daddy is accused of fondling his little girl or sleeping in the same bed. There is no violence. It's more like abuse of 'sexual distance.'

"It's a serious problem that can cause deep potential social wounds but what have you achieved by sending the father to jail?

"If you send the father away you have almost committed the child to a life of guilt. There is a lot of denial by mothers. They don't want to believe it. They say it never happened and the child becomes the villain. She is responsible for sending the father away. You are punishing her by taking away the father she has always loved and still does love.

"There is no evidence that a high rate of incarceration reduces crime. Texas, to cite Pat Nigrelli's example, is not your average state. They are jail oriented. Texas does not view crime as social. They take a moral view of problems. It is more of a sin and you've got to punish the devil."

Texas, said Judge Kramer, has the highest incarceration rate in the country. Massachusetts is third or fourth lowest. That state attitude is reflected in cases of sexual abuse of children. In Massachusetts, most abuse cases are handled in civil, not criminal, proceedings.

"It is a delicate issue," said the judge, "because it is rooted in the family structure. If outsiders are involved it is treated as a crime. Rape we also tend to treat more seriously.

"But most of the time we are not talking about psychotic behavior. In most cases the abuse is done by parents or step-parents or the mother's boyfriend in the seclusion of the family.

"We have to recognize that people can live normal lives and still be engaged in deviant behavior. There is no violence. In all other respects the abusers are normal family members. There is treatment for that if they will submit to it. One of the first questions we ask is, 'Can we save the family?'

"The system has to be tough if the parent doesn't cooperate. If they refuse to go for treatment you've got to force them to by going to the criminal side quickly. They are prosecuted if they don't take responsibility.

"In some cases the father is taken out of the family and is not permitted to come back unless he is willing to participate in long term treatment. If that does not work then he will not be permitted to see the child alone again."

One thing on which Nigrelli and Kramer agree almost 100 percent is the fact that child abuse cases are among the most difficult to handle on both the part of the prosecutor and the judge.

"This is the toughest type of case to prepare," said Nigrelli. "It boils down to a child's word against that of the accused.

"Many cases are tough because of a time lapse. Kids do not normally come out and say they are being abused while it is going on. But they'll tell you about it if it was three or four years ago.

"What evidence is left? The child says, 'Daddy touched me.' It's her word vs. his. There is no obvious evidence. There are not torn clothes, no fractured hymen, nothing.

"And then the child has to get up and testify against someone she loves. She has to talk to the judge and then she is cross-examined. I've testified in court many times and even I get butterflies. What is it like for a child?

"She has to tell her story time and time again. First to the Department of Social Services to determine if the child should stay with the family. Then to the DA's office to see if there should be criminal charges. If the case goes to court she has to talk to an assistant DA. Then comes the trial.

"We have a rule that any child under 10 years old has to be evaluated by a psychiatrist. A lot of cases slip through the cracks because the psychiatrist says the child should not testify. Remember, it boils down to her word against his."

Judge Kramer said he tries to talk to lawyers for both sides in a child sexual abuse case before the trial starts to tell them what he will allow in cross-examination to avoid upsetting or confusing the child.

Need for anger against sexual abuse

"It's important to strike a balance that also recognizes the right of the accused to confront and cross-examine the accuser," he said. "We have to make a special effort to achieve an informal environment for the child. I once came down from the bench and sat with the child while she testified. It's hard enough for a child to give testimony. It's more difficult if she has to look up at the judge."

Can a child be believed when she accuses someone of sexual abuse? Juries tend to be skeptical of this and defense attorneys, perhaps rightly, are quick to exploit this in behalf of their clients. Both Nigrelli and Kramer feel youngsters should be believed.

"I've learned from past experience that kids don't lie about this," said Nigrelli. "They draw pictures for us that they couldn't make up. They give stories in chronological order that could not have been made up. Some may be confused but very few lie."

"There is always the problem of a child's credibility," said Kramer. "As a judge I have to rule on the competence. But is can be suspect to a jury.

"There was a case of a baby-sitter who was accused of molesting a child of 7. The little girl was asked how long ago it happened. She said 25 years ago. I didn't feel that one answer diminished her testimony. Kids have a different view of crime than adults. But you can see what a good defense lawyer could make out of that."

The buzz word now in child sexual abuse cases is video. A number of states have laws permitting the child to testify on video tape so that she will not have to be in the same room with the accused. Massachusetts legislature is currently considering such a law. Both Kramer and Nigrelli agree that a video law is good but it is no panacea.

"Video is good if it does not damage the rights of the defendant," said Kramer. "It takes the kid out of the confrontation situation. She doesn't have to face physically the person accused of the crime.

"But the issue is confrontation. The defendant has a right to confront the witnesses against him. He has a right to question them and to be physically present.

"I permitted one case in which a child's testimony was taken by video with defense counsel present. The father watched on television in another room and conferred with his attorney during breaks. This reduced the tension of having the child face the accused.

"In that case I had the consent of all the parties. If they didn't consent then I would not have been able to do it. We need a law permitting it."

"I would like to see the situation where the offender is in another room watching the child testify on video," said Nigrelli. "It's important to get him out of the room. His attorney is in the room with the child and he can go out and confer with his client. They do that now with defendants who raise hell in court.

"But someone has got to have the right to cross-examine. You can't just tape the testimony and wrap it up and take it to court."

The bill that is currently being considered by the Massachusetts legislature would permit just such electronic confrontations, provided that "counsel shall be given the opportunity to examine or cross-examine the child witness to the same extent as would be permitted at trial and the defendant shall be able to see and hear the child witness and to have constant private communication with defense counsel."

The bill generally has the support of state legislators from the South Shore.

"Everyone sees the need for videotaping," said Sen. Paul D. Harold, whose district includes Braintree. "It elicits testimony that otherwise wouldn't come out in court, yet it balances the ability of a defendant and his attorney to participate in the cross-examination."

But, he added, "I don't know if we actually need more legislation or simply more resources, more investigators and more counselling for families. Also public awareness is needed."

"A video taping law is absolutely necessary," said Sen. William Golden, whose district stretches from Weymouth to Marshfield. "I was skeptical at first but the way they fashioned it (to protect the defendant's rights) was excellent. I'm a very strong supporter.

"We have to be careful of false allegations or situations where people don't have the chance to defend themselves and disprove allegations. I don't want to see awareness breed a 'witch hunt' mentality."

Sen. Anna Buckley, whose district includes Norwell and Hanover, said she also supports the video bill in cases of child sexual abuse, which she called "one of the most horrendous crimes of all."

Sen. Joseph Walsh, who represents Randolph, called the bill "very timely. I have no problem with it." But, he added, "I don't want to see the tapes available for viewing by everyone."

Rep. Suzanne Bump of Braintree called the bill "the most important piece of legislation this year." She said she'd like to see it pass quickly.

"Since the bill would ease the tremendous trauma which abuse victims undergo and thereby would encourage trials and convictions of abusers, each week we delay passage we delay justice."

Rep. Robert Ambler of Weymouth said he "absolutely" supports the bill because "it removes youngsters from the trauma of the courtroom and keeps them in a safe environment. It seems to be the only way abusers can be pointed at and protect the youngsters."

Rep. Robert Cerasoli, who also represents Weymouth, said video taping is generally a good idea. "I know what it's intending to do," he said, "but I don't know what the constitutional ramifications are."

"I'm going to support the bill," said Rep. John Flood of Randolph. "Obviously children who have been traumatized don't need to be traumatized any more. The only problem I have with it is balancing the child's need to be protected with the defendant's right to cross-examine."

"I favor the entire concept," said Rep. M. Joseph Manning, who has two Randolph precincts. "I can't see why I'd be in opposition unless there are glaring changes made."

"It's important," said Rep. Mary Jeanette Murray of Hingham, Cohasset and Hull. "We have to do that (video tape). I hope courts wise up to the point where they feel that it is constitutional."

"It's the only valid way to get a youngster's testimony into court," said Rep. Frank Hynes of Marshfield and Scituate. But, he added, criminal prosecution should be "the final product. It's more important to get some kind of social services into the family's life."

"I plan to support it," said Sen. Edward Kirby, whose district includes Pembroke. "I'm in favor of it as long as it provides ample opportunity for both sides to examine the tape at the same time. There should be an opportunity for cross-examination."

"I think videotaped testimony as an idea has some merit," said Rep. Charles Mann of Pembroke. "I'm not a psychologist so I don't know what the traumatic effects are on a child but I have some sympathy with separating the child from the accused."

Around the puck with Buck . . . a hockey preview

By Bob Buckley
Sports Correspondent

Remember way back when the South Shore League was considered second rate hockey? The divisional winner would be the only team that would qualify for the State championship and that team would get trounced by the Cantons, Falmouths, and the other strong Division II programs. Times have certainly changed.

The South Shore League is now one of the most respected leagues in Division II, five teams qualified for the post-season activities and one team didn't stop until they carried the championship placque around the Boston Garden ice.

The Scituate Sailors gave the entire South Shore a thrill last March as they became the first South Shore League team to win the Division II title.

But many things have changed since the Sailors erupted for 10 goals in the Championship game.

Coach Bill McKeever stepped down the only way he knew how; a winner. He was replaced by Tom Burrell who formerly coached at Cohasset. Burrell's first task is to replace six forwards that accounted for over 250 points last year.

But Burrell has not been left high and dry. There is definitely enough talent to make a run at a second consecutive South Shore League title.

Burrell's best weapon may be in goal. John Belsan made many critics (including this one) eat their words in Scituate drive to the championship. His 2.20 goal against was second best in the SSL last year, but he saved his best performances for the tournament. His 40 save performance against Westfield in the Worcester Centrum was a key to the championship. The Scituate defense corp is strong.

Chris Tatum is one of the premier defensemen in Division II JRS. Mike DeLorenzo and Seth Webb came of age in the tournament last year and are expected to have solid seasons.

Up front, while it may be difficult to replace the 100 goals that the graduated seniors scored last season. However, there are no lack of candidates. Mike Cooney is the leading scorer who is returning. (9-16-25) Dave Flaherty (8-13-21) Bob Salvador and Mick McCarthy figure to pick up the slack. While the Sailors might not be as explosive as last year's team they should be a cohesive unit defensively and a threat to the title.

COHASSET

Things were not so rosy for the Cohasset Skippers last year. The team, playing inexperienced sophomores and freshmen, finished 1-15-2. However, things are expected to improve for first year Coach Dennis Walsh, who is the Skippers third coach in three years. The Skippers have a fine goalie in Peter Sandblom, who had an 85 percent save percentage in 1984-85. A year of experience should do wonders for the likes of Jim Ray, Phil Mahoney and Craig Mulcahy.

Up front, Greg Ferriera, Jeff Hartwell and Todd Fitzpatrick will have to pick up the scoring pace if the Skippers are to be successful.

The Skippers probably won't contend for league honors this year, but will be an improved, competitive team.

Rep. Murray helps lead the surtax repeal petition

State Representative Mary Jeanette Murray (R), 3rd Plymouth District recently presented Chip Faulkner of Citizens for Limited Taxation the petitions for the repeal of the Surtax.

Rep. Murray's district brought in 1,765 signatures. The breakdown is as follows: Cohasset-855; Hingham-558 and Hull-352. 110,645 signatures were accepted by the Secretary of State. Norfolk County's figure was 15,377 and Plymouth County, 11,523.

Representative Murray said, "Not only does the petition call for the repeal of the 7 1/2% Surtax, but this referendum includes a cap on State Government spending."

The Surtax was introduced by the present Governor in his first term as a temporary tax over eight years ago.

The Surtax is a 7 1/2% tax on the total income tax an individual or couples pay each year.

"At the time the tax was initiated, the state was running a deficit, but with close to a $500 million dollar surplus the taxpayers deserve some sort of break," Representative Murray said.

"The Surtax petition will be on the November, 1986 ballot. The Conference Committee report on the Surtax issue does not include a Cap on State Government. Had the Cap been in the legislation you would not have been able to vote on this issue," concluded Representative Murray.

Another 10,000 signatures will be needed to ensure that the Surtax issue is on the ballot. Representative Murray will be carrying petitions for the additional signatures.

Anyone who would like to help in the second drive is asked to call Representative Murray at 722-2400.

Evelyn Murphy breaks the news at Coop-Six

What had been billed as a brunch for Co-op Six — comprised of the Democratic town committees from Marshfield, Scituate, Cohasset, Hingham, Hull and Weymouth - with a talk by Economic Affairs Secretary Evelyn Murphy turned into a newsbreaking formal announcement that she is a candidate for lieutenant governor in the upcoming 1986 state election.

"This is my last formal occasion as secretry of economic affairs," Murphy told an unusually large crowd of 150 Sunday at the 99 Restaurant in Norwell.

Accompanied by Sen. William Golden, Murphy was introduced by Margo Cartwright, chairman of the Hingham Democratic town committee.

In her formal presentation, Murphy said her goal is to take the economic progress that has been made in the state and enhance it with social progress for the citizens of Massachusetts.

"This is a once-in-a-lifetime opportunity," Murphy said. She added that 160,000 new jobs have been created in Massachusetts in the past three years.

"This is front page news," Murphy said. "The last time Massachusetts experienced a similar employment explosion was 1942."

Murphy said she is proud to have been secretary of economic affairs during this period of expanding opportunity, but she emphasized that her concern is also directed to seeing that everyone benefits from the economic boom in the state.

"(The issue is) how do we pass this success onto future generations? How do we continue the agendas of equal rights, women's issues and our growing aging population?" Murphy said her goal is to take the economic accomplishments and "create a future" for Massachusetts. Murphy said she looks forward to working for Gov. Michael Dukakis in a new role. She said she was a part of Dukakis' cabinet for seven years, first as secretary of environmental affairs and now for economic affairs.

She also told the audience, "This is a time to be proud of the Democrtic Party of Massachusetts." According to Murphy, "The Democrtic Party in Massachusetts is leading the nation in employment, high technology and human services. We should be proud as a party."

Murphy said she has learned that business interests and environmental issues do not have to be automatically opposing forces. She also said that cooperation from members of the governor's cabinet has assisted her in developing creative proposals for the business community.

"I have brought members of the business community together with the governor to discuss issues like the right-to-know law and plant-closing legislation," Murphy said. Open discussion has allowed differences to be aired and settled, she said, without the kind of opposition experienced between these groups in other states.

Murphy said that surtax repeal was one of the most troublesome issues facing state government. She supports the governor in his decision to address the problem now and not let it hang over the coming election. Murphy said the state is in very good financial condition, but there are many areas in need of significant financial support, such as unfunded pension liability and the federal government's withdrawal of support for many programs.

Murphy said the positive side of surtax repeal is that it shows Massachusetts in a good light to businesses that are looking to locate new facilities. "We can offer the fiscal stability of this state, while in other states, taxes are going up," Murphy noted.

Murphy began her candidacy officially when a member of the audience asked, "Is there any truth to the rumor that you are interested in the position of lieutenant governor?"

"Oh yes," she replied, "I am clearly, as of tomorrow (Monday, Dec. 16), looking to (run for) the lieutenant governor's office. I want to work with Gov. Dukakis and agree with the role of frederal-state relations that he has carvd out for the lieutenant governor."

Murphy concluded her remarks by saying that she also wants to see the lieutenant governor's office take on responsibility for long-term issues, such as problems of the aging, solutions for hazardous wastes and development of minority business potentials.

Hurricane loss loans

Robert J. Boulay, director of the Massachusetts Civil Defense Agency indicated that low-interest loans for damages and/or losses incurred as a result of Hurricane "Gloria" are still available for residents and businesses located in Norfolk and Plymouth counties.

Examples of loan purposes are landscaping, tree removal from private property, patio damage, driveway damage, waterfront property, clothing losses, insurance deductibles, insurance depreciation, etc. Additionally, any other losses suffered either directly or indirectly as a result of "Gloria" may be eligible for these low-interest Small Business Administration loans.

Insurance hikes endanger ice hockey program

By Don Merrill
Mariner Staff

Like many other businesspeople, owners of area ice arenas face steep increases in liability-insurance costs this year — hikes on the order of 500 percent or more.

The high cost of insurance is not likely to affect hockey programs this year, but scholastic athletic directors say they are worried about changes that may be in store for next year.

Ice-rink managers, meanwhile, are frustrated by the combination of sharply-higher premiums and state insurance officials who haven't responded to managers' calls for relief.

Pilgrim Arena in Hingham has responded to the rate hikes by lowering its liability coverage beginning Feb. 1. This has not prevented higher premiums for the arena, however.

Edward Taylor, Pilgrim's business manager, said the arena will pay $100,000 next year for $500,000 worth of liability coverage. The actual cost is many times that of this year's premium, $65,000, which covered Pilgrim Arena for damages up to $25 million.

"It's like a lot of other businesses — such as bars, liquor stores, daycare centers and others — and we're all getting socked with these higher premiums," Taylor said in a recent interview.

Taylor and George Gould of Hobomock Arena in Pembroke both said the rate hikes seem to strike certain arenas and not others. Gould said some rinks are getting small increases, while others will pay premiums that are many times higher than they paid this year.

"There's a discrepancy there that doesn't seem to be based on (claims) experience," Gould said.

"I've tried to speak about this to the state insurance commissioner's office and they don't seem very interested in these differences."

Hobomock Arena, which carries liability coverage of $1 million, faces a possible 500-percent increase in its premiums this year.

Arena owners may form an insurance pool for liability coverage through the International Skating Institute of America, Gould said.

"I haven't spoken to the institute people in a month and I don't know what they're planning," he said. "Until they get something together, we've all got to fend for ourselves."

Taylor called the insurance issue a "ridiculous situation" and said people who use ice arenas are the ones who eventually must foot the bill for higher insurance costs.

"It's a result of our sue-happy society," Taylor said.

"A guy can hit his head from a fall on the ice, and we're liable. The skates could be dull or a bad fit, or he may not have been up on skates for years, but it doesn't matter. It's our fault because the ice is slippery," he added in a sarcastic tone.

Taylor said figures on the number of claims against Pilgrim Arena are not immediately available because "the insurance company handles all the legal aspects and court time. That's what we pay them for."

Not sure whether seasonal release forms signed by skaters will hold up in court, Taylor says Pilgrim may have all skaters sign releases each time they go on the ice, not just once a season. A Framingham arena has already implemented it, he said.

Although skaters are more prone to injury, Taylor said spectators can also be injured and file claims for medical costs and damages.

Athletic directors are taking a "wait and see" attitude since insurance-premium hikes have yet to affect their rates for ice time.

Schools have a number of options, which include reduced practice time and game schedules, increased funding or support from athletic boosters and construction of school arenas, they say.

"I've been told that ice time won't go up so much that it would force us out of ice hockey," Marshfield High School Athletic Director Ronald DiGravio said. "We'll certainly get through this season without too many problems."

The MHS Rams hockey squad's home ice is at Hobomock Arena. DiGravio expressed confidence that all funding and money-saving possibilities would be exhausted before the school department would be forced to drop ice hockey.

"We could reduce practice time on the ice, or limit games to intra-league play only," he said. "That would save about four games a year."

If ice-time costs sharply increase, "we can also ask for increased support from both the town and from hockey and athletic boosters organizations," he added.

Like Gould, DiGravio noted a discrepancy in the rate hikes received by different arenas.

"One thing's for sure — these costs are going to be passed right through to us. Parents are going to call us, not the insurance companies, when these programs suddenly become more expensive.

"It's a shame, because kids are the ones who are caught in the middle of all this," DiGravio added.

Thayer Academy Athletic Director Arthur Valicenti said if the school cannot find a suitable arena in the future, it might consider building one for its hockey program.

"It's not making that much of a difference this year," he said of the premium increases. "We'll probably see it next year, though, and we'll have to pay the price."

Thayer's hockey team plays and practices at Pilgrim Arena. Valicenti said he sympathizes with the problems facing the arena, but realizes the costs will eventually be passed through to Thayer's hockey program.

"It's the price we'll have to pay to continue the hockey program for now," he said.

A little excitement for theater patrons

The audience was tense. It was the last 15 minutes of Rocky IV and the fight scene was about to begin. The bell sounded the start of round one—then bam! a driverless pickup truck came crashing through four steel doors at the Hanover Mall Cinema.

There was little reaction from the 20 people watching the movie last Thursday night, manager James Mahoney said.

"The people seemed unaffected when the truck stopped in front of the screen. It didn't obstruct their view."

The 1985 Nissan pickup truck, owned by Mark Aigen of Tiffany Road in Norwell, was parked near the side entrance of Almy's and according to Mahoney, rolled backwards for a distance of about one-quarter mile in a diagonal direction, over curbs and grassy islands before crashing into the 8-foot-wide steel doors.

"It could have been really serious if there were people sitting in the front seats. Most of them were scattered in the rear of the theatre," Mahoney explained.

"When the usher told me a truck crashed through the exit doors, I couldn't believe it—not even when I saw it. It looked like it was just sitting on a showroom floor for sale."

When police were called to the scene about 6:30 p.m., Mahoney said the movie had just about ended.

"They pushed the truck outside to the parking lot and then the owner came and drove it away."

The rear window of the pickup was smashed and an older vehicle parked near the doors of the theatre was scratched.

"It's really an oddity. Imagine coming from that distance without hitting another car or even this cement foundation," Mahoney said, pointing to the wall which extends along the front of the theatre. "The chances of the truck going through those doors were really very slim."

Said one man who returned Saturday night for what he had hoped would be an uninterrupted movie, "It got a little cold when the truck came crashing through the doors, but we just continued to watch the show."

May the spirit of the season and the inspiration of a New Year help us to work together so that our children and grandchildren may enjoy the blessings of our great country and a world at peace.

Christmas play

"No Vacancy," a comical, musical play about a Bethlehem innkeeper and his wife, will be presented by the choir of the Second Congregational Church, Cohasset, Sunday, December 22, at 6:30 p.m.

Admission is free, and the public is invited. The play presents the dilemma of the innkeeper — too many guests, no more rooms to rent and a nagging wife. And then a peasant and his pregnant wife appear at his door. Will he find them a place to stay? And how will he ever tell his wife?

Second Cong. Christmas

Festive services December 22 and on Christmas Eve will mark the Christmas celebrations of the Second Congregational Church, Cohasset. The church's lovely 19th century sanctuary is already decorated with evergreen wreaths and red ribbons.

The Advent Wreath and four dozen red candles will add to the observance of the birth of Jesus. Sunday, December 22, the 10 a.m. service will include special music and carols. The sermon will be replaced with a Christmas story, titled "Baboushka." Families are invited to participate in the service; child care is available for infants.

Christmas Eve, there will be a Family Service at 7 p.m. It will be a quiet, low-key celebration especially for families with young children. A children's story will feature Englebert Elf, who will come straight from the North Pole to tell us why we give gifts at Christmas.

The Christmas Eve Candlelight Communion Service will be at 11 p.m. The public is welcome at any service of the church.

Second Congregational

Thanks: The Community Thanksgiving offering was $608.17, which was given to Oxfam America for hunger relief programs.

Gifts For Children: Here's a special project for families and others during December. As you do your Christmas shopping, pick out one toy or clothing item for a child in need. Wrap it up and label it (boy or girl, age). Bring it to church on Dec. 15 or 22. It will help the Coastline Council for Children in its annual program of giving gifts to children and families. Thank you!

Adoptions, Inc.: Part of the church's intention is to foster "adoptions" of older people as part of our own sense of family. During the Christmas season, please consider "adopting" a shut-in or nursing home resident to visit, telephone, or write to. You may know a potential adoptee; if not, the church can help you find one. Leave a message at 383-0345, your local "adoption agency." Thank you.

Note Of Thanks: The Quincy Crisis Center is grateful for the recent gifts of clothing and food provided by our church's members, and for the financial support ($300 this year) included in the church's budget. As winter begins, the financial support of churches and individuals is important to the Center's survival. If you want to help, please sent a check to the Quincy Crisis Center, 98 Philip St., Wollaston, MA 02170, or call 471-7075 for information. Thank you.

Finance Committee Note: A hearty lobsterman's thanks to all who have returned pledge cards, estimating your 1986 giving to the church. The lobster trap will remain at the entrance to the church to receive any cards which have not yet been brought or sent. As committees complete their plans for the 1985 budget, it is important to know what the church's resources will be. Thank you for your help.

Poinsettia - We are still looking for donors for poinsettia to decorate our chancel table Christmas Sunday and Christmas Eve. Cost is $10. Please call the church office at 383-1100.

Funding - The Special Meeting of the Parish held Sunday, Dec. 8, voted to expend $1,500 for a feasibility study preparatory to the forthcoming Capital Fund Drive.

Glass needed - There are lots of broken and cracked windows in the Meeting House which need repair. Does anyone have glass that is wrinkled or full of bubbles which they would like to donate to the church? If so, please call Noel Ripley at 3830234.

Baptist Church

Sunday worship - is located in the Town hall, Sundays at 10:30 a.m.

Sunday Bible class - for all ages at 9:30 a.m. at the Town Hall.

Weekly Bible teaching - and prayer are offered every Thursday at 7:30 p.m. in the Cohasset Community Center on South Main Street (first floor, use the front door).

For weekly Bible teaching for youth and for those interested in youth activities, call Pastor Dan Brodeur at 383-0583.

Study group reviews bids for Town Hall

better to try and save everything."

The preliminary sketches provided by Blake several months ago, "show that it (the addition) can be done," without eliminating the historic Town Hall stage.

Blake emphasized the sketches were completed to give a broad idea of what the committee would like to review. "Not a lot of time went into those drawings," he stated. "I simply wanted to prepare a perspective plan to give the applicants an idea of what we had in mind. I didn't intend to pin the architects down to one particular design. I just wanted to give them an idea."

The committee intends to review plans which will incorporate the present Bates Building offices into the Town Hall building. Blake's preliminary plans include enough office space to accomodate the boards and committees which currently work from the Elm Street building. There will also be the addition of two conference rooms for use as meeting areas for town committees.

"The addition I have in mind would be two stories high, in the rear of the Town Hall. But that is simply a guide, and another architect might have completely different ideas," Blake noted.

In addition to the proposed construction work in the rear of the building, there is some renovation work proposed for the remainder of the structure. The facade of the building will not change, Blake said, but there is a need for larger spaces within the present building.

He has suggested that some walls be divided and other interior changes be completed to accomodate that requirement.

Blake, an architect who volunteered more than a year ago to serve on this committee, said the town must also locate an area for the town vault. The vault, he said, will contain important town records.

Disposal board studies options

ed legislation, other committee members will be investigating resource recovery alternatives. Jeffrey Power is reviewing the proposed recovery plant proposed at the former incinerator site in Weymouth. There are no fee estimates for that proposed system, Becker said, since a company has not yet been selected to operate the plant. Power will also be looking at the resource recovery system in Maine. Member Arthur Pompeo will be reviewing the proposed solid waste disposal plant in Hull.

"Our target date for participation in one of these programs is 1988 or 1989, so we have the time to really study all alternatives. We really have no idea yet on costs, since the technology of the resource plants is really coming along. And with more technology, come higher prices. But it's good that the technology is following along - the state is very strict on the emissions regulations, and that's good," Becker stated.

"We may never see fees as low as we did when we talked about SEMASS at Town Meeting. The technology that is needed is also very expensive. But perhaps if we participate in something more local, the transportation fees would be lower than we figured for SEMASS," she said optimistically.

The committee will discuss the results of their preliminary reviews of the resource recovery alternatives at its Jan. 16 meeting.

Becker remained optimistic that despite rejection from SEMASS, there will be a viable alternative for Cohasset. "I think there's going to be a lot of changes through the state," she said. "I think there will be more options available because so many towns and cities are in crisis situations."

Becker was recently named chairman of the Disposal Area Study Committee after Don DeMichele stepped down from the post. Although he had submitted notice of temporary resignation from the committee because of business commitments, selectmen decided not to take action on it. Rather than eliminate him from the committee, selectmen decided to allow DeMichele the option of participation once he is able to devote the time.

"He's a valuable guy and a hard worker for the town," Selectman Rocco Laugelle said after he suggested selectmen not accept DeMichele's resignation.

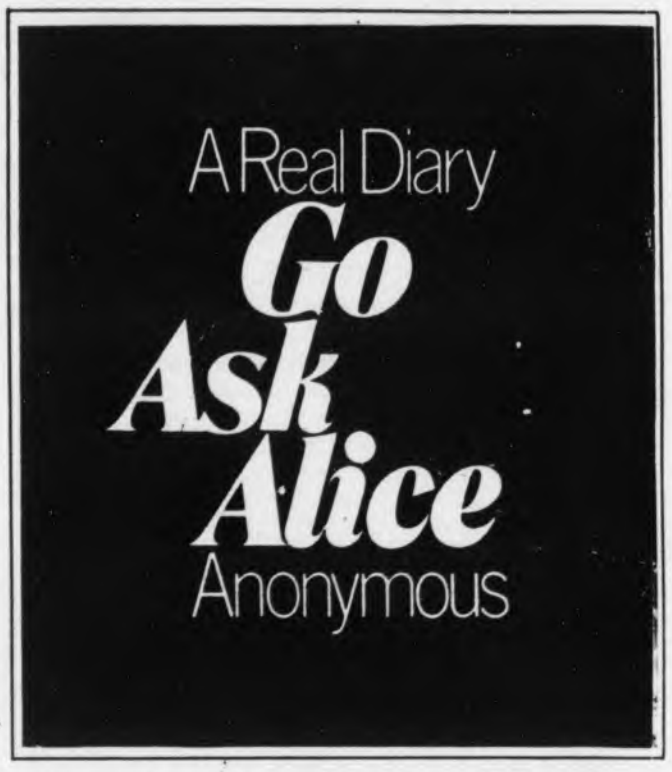
'Go Ask Alice' banned at South Shore Vo-Tech

By Don Merrill
Mariner Staff

The South Shore Regional School Committee last week voted 4-3 to remove a controversial book from the curriculum of a sophomore English literature course at South Shore Vocational-Technical High School in Hanover.

The vote came after an appeal by teacher Robert Parkis of a decision by Supt. Clifford W. Easton to drop the book from the course. Some committee members said the book deals realistically with the drug problems facing adolescents, while others called it "inappropriate" for a literature course.

In appealing Easton's decision, Parkis said the book, Go Ask Alice, is the diary of an anonymous 15-year-old girl who overcomes a drug habit several times, only to be enslaved by drugs again. It chronicles a life of chemical and sexual excess; its author dies at the end under mysterious circumstances.



Parkis said the book has been used for the last three semesters at South Shore VoTech, but had also been read by students intermittently since 1972.

Despite passages of vulgar language, Parkis called the book "the most moral book I know — it's every bit as moral as the Bible."

"I believe this book can save a life, and that's the purpose of literature," Parkis said. "Literature allows readers to experience life without suffering all the negative consequences."

In his appeal, the English teacher presented folders of letters written by students concerning Go Ask Alice. He said the students were not pressured to write for or against the book.

Parkis also asked committee members to delay a decision on the appeal to read the letters and to allow some members a chance to read the book.

He said Dr. Easton originally agreed to purchase replacement volumes of the book for his classes, but decided it should be dropped after reading "about half of it."

Easton gave committee members, some of whom said they have read the book, excerpts of four pages for their consideration. Parkis said the superintendent submitted the passages to the committee without regard to the context in which they were written.

"Go Ask Alice is a first-person account which can be easily understood by sophomores," Parkis said. "They can identify with its author. It's real life, and no student here is shocked by anything in the book.

"We adults are frequently too scared to talk to kids about things they already know. We appear foolish to them when we act prudish about these subjects," he added.

When asked for his comments, Easton said school officials must consider the sensibilities of taxpayers in the district.

"I believe a majority would find much of this book to be lewd and its language inappropriate for students," he said.

Some committee members stood firmly against the book, while others expressed reservations. Member Joan DeGeorge Schirmer of Scituate said the book was "not literature" and had no place in an English course, but she added it might be appropriate in a drug/sex edcuation curriculum.

Whitman member Lloyd E. Patriquin said he was against the book.

"Is it necessary to be so graphic to get your point across?" he asked Parkis.

Member James F. McDermott of Hanson said his opinion of the book "did a 180-degree turn" after he read it.

"It's not filth, sex, horror or lewdness," he said. "This book might help our kids, especially when many other things designed to help people don't seem to work.

"What's the next book on the list to be banned?" McDermott asked after the vote.

Voting against use of Go Ask Alice were Patriquin, Schirmer, John J. Doyle of Rockland and

A child's credibility is crucial to prosecution . . .

by Cathy Conley
Mariner Staff

The young man was nervous and there was deep sadness in his eyes.

He has been reading the series on sexual child abuse in the paper during the past three weeks. He called and asked if his story could be told.

He has been accused of sexually abusing his two daughters, who were two and three years old at the time.

He says he has never touched his little girls, "never even spanked them," but that state and local social service agencies have manipulated the words and actions of his children into a frightening case against him.

Things have been far from perfect in the stormy six-year marriage that has brought him his two children.

A Marine in the Vietnam War, he suffers from delayed stress syndrome and "has had a problem with alcohol."

Their married life has not been without violence.

"My wife has hit me and I have responded by hitting her," he said.

It was after one such violent argument that his wife packed up the two children and went to DOVE, the shelter for battered women.

"This was not the first time she had left. But this time she was gone for two weeks," he said.

"She arrived home in the middle of the night and said there was going to be an investigation to see if the kids had been sexually abused.

" 'By whom,' I asked.

" 'By you,' she said.

"I was astounded. I have never touched my daughters. The thought has never occurred to me," he said.

A social worker from the Department of Social Services (DSS) visited the home within a few days.

"When I got home from work, I asked how things went. 'Fine,' my wife said, except that one of my daughters said she had a secret with Daddy that she could not tell the social worker.

"Right there, with my wife in the room, I asked my daughter what the secret was.

"She said — 'Remember when you took money from sister's piggybank and you told me to keep it a set?'

'Since that day, my life has been a nightmare.

"Three hours after the social worker's visit there was a knock on the door. A detective and two Braintree uniformed policemen were there.

"And they took my daughters away from me.

"The next morning we went to court to get our children back.

"We waited from 9 to 5:30 but the judge posponed the hearing until Monday.

"On Monday, the judge said that the children would be kept in foster care for a month.

"During this time, a doctor would examine them for sexual abuse and they would have psychological evaluation.

"From the beginning, the sexual abuse thing was a bunch of baloney.

"I just figured the truth would come out.

My daughter said she had a secret with Daddy that she could not tell the social worker.

"Even my wife has denied over and over again that I did anything.

"But the counsellors keep telling her she has to say something happened so she can get the kids back.

'The DSS is supposed to bring families together. But they have split mine apart.

"My wife and I are now separated.

"Ever since this started I have felt that the social workers goal has been to substantiate their case instead of finding out the truth.

"They treat me as if I'm guilty until proven innocent.

There have been court hearings on the case in February, March, April and September.

At the April hearing, a doctor's evaluation showed that there was no sign of sexual abuse on the children, he said.

"So the social workers decided I must have had oral sex with them and tried to prove their point.

The most recent hearing was held in September.

An investigator appointed by the court had prepared a 20-page report.

In it were interviews with the mother, the father, the children, and social workers from DSS and Coastal Community Counselling , where the wife and girls were receiving therapy.

"I was interviewed once. The investigator never came back to ask me to explain any of the things my daughters said to him.

"The judge discredited that part of the report in which my daughters were interviewed by the social worker.

She was presented as an expert but was not. She was only about 26 years old and had never been in court before.

"And she was making judgements on what my children were saying.

"I could have explained all of the things they were saying.

"There were 13 witnesses against me — social workers from DOVE, the DSS, Coastal Community Counselling, even a psychiatrist who had studied at Harvard," he said.

They had all read the report, including that part dismissed by the judge, but the father could not refute any fact in that section because it was not submitted as evidence.

"You could not imagine the proof they were giving that I had abused my kids.

"The psychiatrist said that the fact that one of them had nightmares about monsters could mean she had been abused.

"She has been having nightmares about monsters since she saw Michael Jackson's rock video 'Thriller.'

"The people from DOVE said they thought my daughters were acting strangely. They were hanging onto each other, hugging each other and playing horsey, jumping up and down on each other.

"My girls are only 11 months apart. I have brought them up to be very close. They hug each other a lot.

"This does not mean they have been sexually abused.

"In the report, my daughter says — 'Daddy put something big in my mouth and then put it there' and pointed to a part of her body.

"I know what she is talking about. I brought her to the doctor when she was sick. He put the thermometer in her mouth. She wouldn't hold it in there so I helped him take her temperature rectally.

"Remember. She was just two years old.

"In another part of the report, my other daughter said I put something in her mouth and she had to spit it out. She wouldn't say what it was.

"My God, it was a Chipmunk electric toothbrush," he said.

"The report said my daughter told the social workers I had taken dirty pictures of her.

"I took Polaroid shots of her and told her not to touch them until they dried or she would get her hands dirty.

"Why didn't they just ask me?

"They are on a witch hunt.

The hearing lasted for six and one half days, he said.

After the 13 witnesses against him, he took the stand, the father said.

He could not refute the damaging parts of the Politicus — by David A. Mittell, Jr.

A tree grows in Brighton

By David A. Mittell, Jr.
Mariner Correspondent

At Harvard I majored in Celtics' home games, and consequently had a string of earnest, frustrated advisors who thought it their calling to set me on the straight and narrow path to a little scholarship. One so deluded was one Fred Cabot, a heck of a nice guy and one of those longer than lifelong Republicans, if you know what I mean.

I always have remembered Fred's reaction when in 1962 the 29 year-old Ted Kennedy of Virginia and Hyannis undertook to parlay an even worse Harvard record than mine into a seat in the United States Senate. Fred proudly became a Democrat for the four minutes it took him to vote for Kennedy's Democratic Primary opponent Edward McCormack. He then, of course, reregistered Republican and voted against Kennedy again in the general election.

Being the then world's greatest expert on Sam Jones' bank shot, I deemed myself qualified to judge Fred's behavior: I thought it atavistic, mean-spirited and stupid. I continued to believe it so until quite recently, specifically until the emergence of Joseph Kennedy, II, of Hyannis and Marshfield, as a candidate for Congress in the 8th District in the environs of Boston and Cambridge. Alas, I now realize Fred was a lot keener than I ever gave him credit for being, for damned if I don't think I'll let a flat in Allston so that I can live in the 8th District the four minutes it would take to vote against Joe Kennedy.

Now, Joe's newly announced candidacy has already produced a number of excoriating attacks, attacks that in some cases aren't fair because they hold the man up to ridicule without revealing what it is about his candidacy that the authors find offensive. One suspects that any Kennedy is a foil for journalists who need a foil, or whose publishers do.

I therefore mean to be fair enough to Joe Kennedy to say why I find his candidacy objectionable. His candidacy is objectionable because his qualifications, while not vacuous, are weak — and yet he enters the race the favorite to win. What is galling is that an under-qualified Kennedy can presume to move into a city, shunt aside several distinguished candidates who have served that city for years . . .and hope to get away with it.

It is the fact that he may get away with it, and the air-headedness of the electorate that will be necessary for him to get away with it, that is more infuriating than Kennedy's gall — gall which one dislikes and admires at the same time. The larger grievance is a system that rewards such gall, a system that harkens back to pre-1832 Britain when well-born youth, the dissolute with the deserving, took their seat in Parliament by social arrangement.

The danger of electing a Kennedy in the 8th District under such circumstances is only secondary, tertiarily, and quarternarily that he is likely to be a less than excellent Congress man, likely to run for the Senate in 1988 if his uncle Ted runs for President, and likely to be elected if he does. The primary danger of a system of government in which a tiny elite can acquire power with nothing more than a family name and the acquisition of the keys to an apartment, is what we reveal about ourselves when we acquiesce in such sham.

If voters in the 8th District can be gulled into ignoring such better qualified candidates as James Roosevelt, Jr., and William Galvin in favor of a scion of our little Bay State royal family, the same voters are probably going to make other poor choices. Worse, if they elect an unqualifed Kennedy they will be saying they had really rather be political serfs gawking at political royalty than intelligent citizens in a working democracy.

I remember when Joe Kennedy and his wife moved to Marshfield several years ago. The Mariner scooped the story, and by and by Lois Martin, the veteran editor of the Marshfield Mariner, called Kennedy to say hello and see if he would consent to an interview with the local paper. An apparatchik from Citizens' Energy crudely refused to agree to an interview without first seeing a writing sample, which made Lois laugh for days. But she persisted until she got through to her quarry, whom she found to be far more affable and attractive than his staff. (Like all politicians, Joe Kennedy will need to keep watch over his friends.)

Lois' reaction to Joe and his wife was, I think, shared by most in town who got to know them. The Kennedys didn't exactly hang out at Mister Donut on Saturday afternoon, but they were parishioners at St. Christine's, and from time to time when an issue concerned him, Joe would attend selectmen's meeting. At the time of the sudden rediscovery of their Brighton roots, the Kennedys had become very well thought of in Marshfield.

It is thus a pity, I think, that Kennedy didn't look out his political window in Marshfield while he lived here. Marshfield is one of the more political and issue-oriented towns under the sun, and it is teeming with true believers in the legacies of John and Robert Kennedy. Had Joe seen fit to mingle a bit more than he did, he could have had a fine "hands-on" political education, and I am convinced he could have quickly become an irresistible candidate for local or regional office, and eventually for the higher office he now seeks by metamorphosing into a Brightonite.

To have adopted such a plodding, step-by-step approach to political ambition would have separated Joe Kennedy from the methods of John, Robert and Edward Kennedy. But it also would have been a humble act at a time when the flower is off the Kennedy legend, when indeed a humble act might be the most far-sighted career move a Kennedy could make. As it is Joe has acted in a plutocratic and self-serving way that tends to confirm the arrogance that many see in the contemporary Kennedys.

The 8th Congressional District, which is partly poor and in need of a hero, and partly chic in want of a trend, is just the place to be gulled into the servish voting pattern that will be necessary to reward Joe Kennedy's plutocratic candidacy. But such an outcome isn't certain. Kennedy's jointure to the fray makes the fray interesting, and beyond that he has an electric attractiveness that evokes John Kennedy more than it does Robert or Edward. On the other hand, his political philosophy appears confused, and his public speaking to date has been puerile. If I were voting in the district (which on second thought I'll leave to Fred Cabot) I would vote for Roosevelt — an historic name with personal and experiential depth to go with it. As it is I will admit to rooting against Kennedy. That's partly on account of his carpetbagging gall, but mainly because I hate to see our people voting like serfs.

So. Shore Hospital announces cooperative venture

South Shore Hospital, Inc. is among eight nonprofit Massachusetts hospitals that have formed a new corporation called VHS of Massachusetts, with headquarters in the Boston area.

The hospital network, whose members currently represent approximately 3,800 existing and planned acute and long term care beds, is part of the nationwide Voluntary Hospitals of America (VHA) formed in 1977 to strengthen the voluntary hospital sector and improve its competitive position by providing systems advantages while maintaining local autonomy and control.

The purpose of the national and state VHA is to give member institutions a competitive edge within their markets through such services as volume purchasing, capital financing, management services, productivity analysis, a communications network, and other programs and services, all while retaining local community control. Through consolidation strategies and joint business ventures, VHA of Massachusetts is structured to reduce hospital costs, and respond to community needs with the ultimate goal of providing improved patient care.

The eight hospitals are: Beverly Hospital, Beverly; Burbank Hospital, Fitchburg; Cape Cod Hospital, Hyannis; Lawrence Memorial Hospital, Medford; Lowell General Hospital, Lowell; Massachusetts General Hospital, Boston; Neponset Valley Health System, Norwood; and South Shore Hospital, Inc., Weymouth.

The governing body is composed of the chief executive officer of each member hospital. William J. Williams, president of Burbank Hospital, is Chairman of the Board of the Massachusetts VHA. William Clark, president of South Shore Hospital, Inc., will serve as secretary of the Massachusetts VHA.

"We believe that the VHA demonstrates that the principles of voluntary hospitals are compatible with sound business practice," said Williams. Modern business practice is evident in the VHA "Circle of Companies," a number of different corporate entities operating jointly, with the VHA at the hub, to offer specialized services to the partner institutions.

In addition to its own resources, which include VHA Health Ventures, VHA Management Services, and a number of other subsidiaries, the Circle has business relationships with major independent companies that provide additional resources to VHA members. For example, a capital financing program nationally has saved member hospitals over $50 million dollars. The structure accommodates rapid response to developing needs of the VHA member institutions by providing direct access to top-level expertise in a range of fields.

A Circle Company developed directly in response to a changing health care industry is VHA Health Ventures, a partnership dedicated to new, less costly forms of health care delivery including health maintenance organizations (HMOs), Preferred Provider Organizations (PPOs), and other forms of contract purchasing. By using VHA Health Ventures model programs, VHA of Massachusetts member institutions can implement new, diversified programs at a faster pace and lower cost than they could achieve independently.

Williams said, "The hospitals invited to participate in VHA of Massachusetts were selected based on criteria relating to the strengths of the institutions: sound clinical programs; solid financial performance; and good management. Because of such strengths and VHA's projections for at least 20 hospital networks throughout the United States by 1986, we think that VHA has the potential to become the major health care system in the country."

The Dragon's Dungeon — By Claire McDonough

Where is the perfect tree on the South Shore?

By Claire McDonough
Mariner Correspondent

"This year," Breida informed us, "I'm picking out the tree. You guys always get a 'Charlie Brown' tree and say it'll look o.k. when it's trimmed. It never does.'

"That's not true," I objected. "We always get perfectly lovely trees. It's just that your father always buys one that's too big because he grew up in a house with nine foot ceilings. Then he cuts the top off, and the tree looks like its growing through to the second floor. Which we don't have."

The Dragon looked disgusted. "Of course I cut the top off. The top is nothing but a scrawny piece of twig and has no beauty at all. You have to buy a large tree to get the proper fullness at the bottom. That's where the real beauty is."

"Personally," Skipper contributed, "I prefer a tree that has about a foot of bare trunk at the bottom. This leaves more room for presents."

The Dragon shrugged. "It's fine with me if you want to pick out the tree. I just don't want to see a scrawny twig at the top, and I want a good full bottom."

"Don't . . . " he warned as he saw me smile.

I lowered my lids demurely. "I wouldn't dream of it. Give Breida some money."

"Oh, no," she objected as he reached for his wallet. "I'm paying for this one myself. That way there can be no dispute about whether it's a good tree or not."

"You can pay for it," the Dragon agreed, returning his wallet to his pocket, "but that doesn't guarantee there won't be a dispute. You should know your mother better than that by now."

Three hours later we all ate our words.

Breida, Skip and Jason had visited all but a few tree merchants on the South Shore, and they had found "The Tree."

"The Tree" was the perfect height for our 7'6" ceiling. Its bottom was full and lush beyond the Dragon's wildest dreams. At no point did one have a view of bare branch. It rose, rich and symmetrical, to graceful, verdant spire.

"We don't even have to keep turning it to find the best side," Breida sighed happily.

"It's perfect," the Dragon agreed, "but you must have spent a fortune for it."

He reached for his wallet. "I wish you'd let me split the cost with you."

Breida considered. Clearly there weren't going to be any disputes.

"Fine," she agreed smiling.

It was Sunday evening.

Each night, when I came home from work, I found changes in "The Tree."

Old ornaments were brought out; new ornaments were purchased. Different arrangements were tried; accepted; rejected; combined. Frequently the Dragon reached for his wallet.

"The Tree" flourished. It gleamed. It was magnificent. We went to bed with the tree lights on, because we couldn't bear to turn them off.

Visitors to our home gasped in wonder.

Then disaster struck.

Friday, when I came home from work, "The Tree" was leaning rakishly to one side, like a Duchess who didn't know the punch was spiked and disgraced herself at the grand ball.

"What happened?" I moaned.

"It's kind of hard to explain," the Dragon replied. "But The Tree was so beautiful, Pat thought it would complete the scene if we had a fire in the fireplace. But I was afraid "The Tree" would catch fire. So they moved the Deacon's bench away from the wall so they could put it where "The Tree" was. Then they carefully moved the sheet and all the presents to where the bench had been. Then Pat and Jay picked up "The Tree" and, exercising great caution, moved it across the room. Then, just as they lowered it into place, the stand broke.

"Jay went out and bought another stand, but the base of the tree wouldn't fit into it."

"Oh, no!" I said. "What did you do then?"

"Well," he replied, "we waited for Breida to come home. We figured she should make the final decision.

"She really took it very well, too. She decided that the only thing we could do would be to cut off some of the bottom."

For the next several hours, Breida, Ralph, and assorted siblings were engaged in damage control. When they were finished, we all stood back and looked at "The Tree."

It wasn't really "The Tree" any more. Oh, it was beautiful. But it wasn't magnificent. The spire was just a little bent. A few branches were slightly skewed. The bottom, while full, was no longer lush.

Skip looked at it critically. "It seems to me," he opined, "that we need more presents under it."

The Dragon reached for his wallet.

Church vandals attack basic liberties

By Darrell Berger
Special to the Mariner

During the reign of King James, John Lothrup was one of several religious leaders who began to conduct worship services in their home. This was a violation of both English secular law and the Anglican church. Lothrup was imprisoned.

During those two years in prison his wife died and his children became destitute. He was finally released under the condition he leave the country. In 1634 Lothrup and a dozen or so of his followers came to the part of New England now called Scituate. Similar stories can be found in many other towns.

I happen to be the minister of the church that Lothrup founded. When we celebrated our 350th anniversary last year the trials and courage of a free church were driven home. What we have in the US was won through vast commitment and risk.

More importantly, such freedom is never attained once and for all. Every generation is tested. Every decade is responsible for passing it on. At any time, even in this country with its rare tradition of freedom, we could fall back to the bad old days of fear and repression.

What threatens today is not a king or an archbishop, but the breakdown of civility and loss of a capacity for outrage. Like Rome in its last days, we sink not so much at the hand of evil empires, but by vandals and barbarians within our borders.

The Boston Globe Dec. 9 ran a story, "Sanctuary groups see trend of harrassment." It reports that churches providing sanctuary for Central American refugees in at least six cities have suffered burglaries and break-ins, prompting fears that they are the target of an organized campaign of harrassment and intimidation.

Old Cambridge Baptist Church sits at the confluence of Massachusetts Avenue and Harvard Square. A break-in Dec. 5 was the fifth burglary it has endured in the past year. Similar crimes have occurred in Seattle, Phoenix, Guadalupe, Detroit, Berkeley and Philadelphia.

In all instances money and valuable office machinery were left untouched. Taken were mailing lists, clippings and files. So far the FBI has declined to investigate. In Cambridge, the church has been disappointed by the indifference of local police.

Activists believe they have become the target of right-wing vigilantes groups, though some believe government agents may be involved. Government harassment of civil rights and antiwar activists are well-documented, so these fears are understandable.

Recent bombings of abortion centers and the uncovering of well-armed hate groups doubtlessly contribute to their concern that organizations are out to get them, and that official means of protecting citizens will be of little help.

Reasonable people can and do disagree about the Sanctuary movement. Some feel it is a highly moral action, with roots in Exodus and the Underground Railroad. Others believe it to be "feel-good politics," subversive and illegal.

That is why several Santuary leaders have refused to plea bargain and will stand trial. This is the American way. This is what the courts are for. People on both sides are eager to have their day in court, and the results will have profound effect on our refugee and foreign policy for years to come.

But break-ins, bombings and burglaries have no place in our legal system. They didn't in the 1960's when draft boards were broken-in and bombed, they didn't when the civil rights of Martin Luther King and others were violated, they didn't during Watergate and they don't now.

The most disturbing characteristic of the current vandalism is that somewhere along the line the perpetrators may feel their actions are justified by patriotism or religion. We have already seen this with the abortion clinic bombers, who have justified their actions by appealing to God's will.

The current administration in Washington tacitly encourages these attitudes by pandering to the worse sentiments of the new religious right and its tendency to fear pluralism and react with irrational self-righteousness. Jerry Falwell's eagerness to play point man for the administration in South Africa and the Philippines adds to an atmosphere which encourages religious Rambos to violate criminal law in the name of a narrow and vicious interpretation of God's law.

Kamikazes in Japan went to their deaths for a divine emperor. Islam has long raised armies and terrorists who kill and die for the promise of a warrior's heaven. That the US should create crummy imitations of such fanatics goes against everything that John Lothrup and our ancestors searched for in America.

One of two responses should follow by citizens who recognize that such attacks hurt American freedoms far more than it harms the group which suffer them directly.

One, if you are opposed to Sanctuary or abortion or any group that is enduring harassment, you should encourage your church or leaders to publically disavow criminal acts against those with whom you disagree. And you should encourage law enforcement and the courts to pursue and prosecute those who break the law.

Secondly, if you support the churches or sanctuary or other harassed groups, you should increase your support and help people to realize that persecution and threats will only strengthen, rather than discourage such activism.

The wonderful holiday that approaches does not automatically come with the winter solstice. It is mantained by courageous people who abhor violence and lawlessness, and uphold our constitution and our tradition of religious freedom. An attack on the Old Cambridge Baptist Church is an attack on the memory of John Lothrup and the spirit which created our nation.

(Darrell Berger is minister of the First Parish Unitarian Church in Scituate.)

Habitat for Humanity needs a South Shore housing site

South Shore Habitat for Humanity is intensifying its search for a suitable building or building lot that can be developed into decent, affordable housing for one or more South Shore families.

The local non-profit housing ministry, organized this past Spring, is expanding its appeal to area residents to help them in locating such a building or lot.

"The recent well-publicized rise in property values on the South Shore means that property lots and residences are in great demand, and there are no abandoned homes to be found in the area," noted David Clarke, spokesman or South Shore Habitat. "Unfortunately, as it becomes more difficult for us to find a site, so it also becomes more difficult for area families to find decent low-income housing. The need for our kind of mission only becomes greater!"

Anyone who has ideas as to an abandoned property, or who might be willing to donate or sell a plot of land suitable for a residential home, is urged to call Habitat representatives Dan DeWeese (224-4902) or Mark Newby (826-2527).

South Shore Habitat for Humanity is a non-profit, ecumenical housing ministry committed to working in partnership with low-income families to provide them decent, affordable housing. Using donated land, labor, materials and money, Habitat builds simple homes, sells them at its cost to low-income families, and finances their purchase with 20 year no-interest mortgages. South Shore Habitat for Humanity, Inc., the parent organization which has built thousands of new homes for poor families throughout the world.

Habitat is not a typical charity, collecting donations from the rich and giving them to the poor. Instead, the organization members say the poor need capital, not charity, and coworkers, not case workers.

Habitat brings people of diverse economic backgrounds together to work side by side renovating or building homes for low income families. The purchasing families must be able to afford the low mortgage payment, and are also expected to participate in their homes' construction. These families have purchased and helped build their homes; they are not taking charity.

South Shore Habitat is one of almost 100 affiliates of Habitat for Humanity, Inc. While sharing the same basic Christian philosopy and goals of the national organization, each affiliate is responsible for its own organization and fundraising. South Shore Habitat draws its members and support from many area towns and churches.

Although less than a year-old, SSHH has over 50 active members, and its monthly newsletters reach over 250 supporters. Committees have been formed for development, fundraising, public relations, site selection and family selection.

A site selection crew is searching for suitable renovation or building sites in the Brockton and Plymouth areas.

Top off the holidays with some microwave treats

Topping many a Christmas list will be a microwave oven — seemingly the answer to a time-saving device for those cooks whose lives are lived in the fast lane. Mary McLean, who is known as "Gigi" to her 13 grandchildren, is dropping a few hints to Santa, after trying out the microwave ovens belonging to her four married daughters. Widowed and living alone, she collects cookbooks and haunts her nearby library, pouring over its recipe books. The other day she was readying for a visit from a three-year-old grandchild who had called that morning to say he was bringing over some of his Christmas cookie cutters and asked whether they could try making some together.

Gigi has sent us a whole sheaf of recipes, including this for a microwave oven which she made as a surprise dinner at one of her daughter's homes.

CHICKEN FRICASSEE/
PARSLEY DUMPLINGS

Chicken:

Cut breasts in half. Arrange skin-side up, with the meatiest parts to outside of baking dish. Sprinkle with salt, pepper and paprika. Cover with waxed paper. Cook on high 10 min. Skim off fat if necessary.

1 can cream of chicken soup
1 c. milk

Mix soup and milk. Spoon over chicken. Cover with waxed paper and cook on high until thickest parts of chicken are done; 8 to 12 min. longer.

Dumplings:
2 c. Bisquick
2/3 c. milk
2 tsp. parsley
1/4 tsp. poultry seasoning

Mix until soft dough forms. Drop by spoonfuls around edge of dish. Cook on high 3 min., uncovered for 3 to 4 min. more.

Carol Moreau is hoping Santa will bring her a microwave after hearing Susan O'Donnell's lecture and demonstration recently. A few points worth reminding Santa: By greatly reducing cooking time, the ovens aid in energy conservation, using 25 percent less energy. Don't use metal or aluminum dishes. Glass or suitable microwave ware are best. Do not overcook foods. Let foods stand a few minutes before serving. Food will continue to cook for a few minutes outside the oven. Thin foods cook faster than thick, and moist foods cook faster than dry foods. Never forget to first read the book that comes with the oven. One minute in the microwave is equal to four in a regular oven. For those content to stick with their conventional oven, here is Gigi's recipe for

APPLE BREAD

2 scant c. flour
1 tsp. each baking soda, baking powder
1/2 tsp. salt
2 c. cubed apples
1/2 c. chopped nuts
1/2 tsp. vanilla
1/4 lb. margarine, room temp.
1 c. plus 1 Tbls. sugar
2 eggs
1 tsp. cinnamon

In mixing bowl, sift together first four ingredients. Add next three. Cream margarine, 1 c. sugar and beat in eggs. Pour egg mixture over dry ingredients. Stir thoroughly to blend. Spoon batter into greased loaf pan. Blend remaining tablespoon sugar with cinnamon. Sprinkle over top of batter. Bake 3/4 hour, in preheated 350 degree oven.

Darlene Beauvais, herbalist at Plimoth Plantation, told about a novel use for her microwave. The weeds and flowers she uses in her handsome arrangements are dried in her microwave to preserve their bright, beautiful colors.

Ask not "would it fit my kitchen," but "would it fit my needs," when selecting an oven. In Susan's lectures, she strongly emphasizes that 600 wattage is the standard for basic microwave cooking; anything less than that will not be satisfactory. At your supermarket, study the different types of wraps, for plastic wrapping steams everything. Also, says Susan, look for the "H. P. Cookbook," next time you shop. It's basic, in paperback, and if you want more microwave cookbooks, go to your library, study those books before buying one. Here is how Jane Avery makes everybody's favorite.

SCALLOPED POTATOES

3 Tbls. butter or margarine
2 Tbls. flour
1 tsp. salt, 1/4 tsp. pepper
3 c. milk
4 c. thinly sliced potatoes
1/4 c. minced onions
2 Tbls. minced parsley

Melt butter in glass dish in microwave. Add flour and seasonings. Blend well. Add milk. Cook 8 to 10 min., stirring every 3 min. In greased 2-qt. covered casserole, layer potatoes, onion and sauce. Sprinkle parsley on top. Cook 20 min. in oven. Remove and let stand 5 min. before serving.

Nostalgia: Christmas festivities - English style

By Dorothy Squier
Special to the Mariner

"So this is the famous Victoria Station! Shades of Agatha Christie . . . I can't believe I'm here." I stood gazing at the shining Christmas tree on a shelf near the gates.

Ken tugged at my arm. "Come on. We'll miss our train. You're going to be here six weeks. You'll see it again."

"Will we stop to see Pat?"

"No, she's at the office and you should go right to bed to deal with jet lag. We'll be home for dinner."

I had come at their urging to spend the holidays. They'd written to say they couldn't bear the thought of my being alone the first Christmas of my widowhood. They made my plane reservations and sent copious instructions about time schedules, English money, luggage and tipping. Joel had called them our kids. They were my dearest friends, Pat and Ken, loving and understanding. They knew I was well along in the healing process and needed but a little more time to myself.

Ken had met me at Heathrow and we rode atop a double-decker bus into London. We hurried through the gates and caught our train to Croydon in Surrey, a 20-minute ride south of London.

Stepping off the train onto a platform, I found myself in an attractive city with tall modern buildings and an enormous two-level shopping mall called Whitgift. We taxied to the Lodge in Violet Lane, where they lived six months of the year - the other months spent home in Dorchester. We passed a small church, St. Dominick's and a row of houses. The road was paved, the sidewalks dark and damp with a peculiar thin slush. Although the air was cold, the gardens were blooming with violets peeping through the flourishing green ground cover. A forsythia bush was blooming . . . in December!

The Lodge, once part of a baronial estate, sat tucked in beside other Tudor houses. Ken turned the key and we stepped into a hall painted the most welcoming rosy red. To the right a staircase with red carpeting, and to the left a bedroom, which was to be mine, then a kitchen with a large dining area. A knee-high refrigerator held two ice cube trays and on the opposite wall an old-fashioned gas stove had a warming shelf.

At the end of the hall was a "mini" loo with a toilet and sink. Over the john loomed a wooden box from which hung a long chain with a smooth porcelain handle. The sink was the size of a small mixing bowl but ideal for my needs.

Upstairs was the real bathroom, the master bedroom and a cozy sitting room. The bathtub - long and narrow and very deep - stood so high off the floor that I'd need a stool to climb in and davits to get me out!

In my bedroom downstairs between twin beds was a well stocked bookcase with always a bouquet of anemones or roses from the garden. The gay anemones one could buy for only 20p. on most any street corner and mums and carnations were rampant. Opposite the beds stood, of all things, an upright piano!

Whoever owned the place had a fetish for bright colors. My walls were painted a robin's egg blue and the counterpanes were gold color. Yellow venetian blinds at the windows have privacy and the general effect was oddly restful.

My hosts were off early each morning to their office downtown, about a 15-minute walk, so I slept luxuriously late. I read the London Times at breakfast and tried in vain to work their crossword. For years I had conquered the New York Sunday Times double-crostic and considered myself quite good, so I was chagrined to find the London paper incomprehensible.

Giving up on it, I turned to sewing. For a special gift to Pat I had bought a length of Chinese red silk panne velvet with a tiny blue and white flower print with the idea of making an evening gown for her. On one of our London jaunts we shopped at Harrod's for a pattern and a soft peach taffeta lining. My days were filled with the joy of creating (by hand since there was no sewing machine) a gown to enhance her lovely figure.

On the days I didn't go to the office, I sat by a bay window overlooking the terraced garden, watching the birds, needling a bright velvet and finding a healing balm flowing into my heart and found that now I could thank God for the happy years he had given me with Joel.

Then at lunch time I'd stroll down the hill and through the city to their office on Dingwall Road. One morning I was surprised when a middle-aged cyclist pedalled past me and said, "Coo! Wot a woman!" That set me up for the day.

Mary North, the pretty blond office assistant, had the most delicious British accent. When tea was ready at elevensies, she'd come into our office and cry, "Oooh! A pah-tay!" Sometimes on our afternoon breaks we'd have sherry instead of tea.

Christmas shoppers filled the streets as I walked across town. Curiosity took me into a tiny bookstore that might have been there since Dickens' time. I found a treasure. . . one title that I was missing on the Little Madeleine series by Mrs. Robert Henry. I bought it for 10p. and inquired about more of her work, but that was the only copy. I was elated by my good fortune and clutched it in my arms.

A few more purchases and my shopping would be done. The next stop was a stationers where I found marvelous little metal replicas of cars and renowned London cabs with their high steps. Small nephews at home would cherish these easy-to-pack gifts.

Planning Christmas dinner, Pat ordered a homemade mince pie from the cook at the high-rise YWCA across the street from the office. Ken had bought the roast and we were to have Yorkshire pudding. Guests from the states were expected, so the table would be set for six.

Meanwhile, we made dips for a smorgasbord for our Christmas Eve guests. They were Mary North and her husband, Stan; Molley and Jim Watt, our next door neighbors; and beautiful Francoise Dorothy Johnson from the Seychelles. She bought us a "Chrees-maas caake." She had been schooled by Irish nuns and the combination of British, Irish and the Seychelles made her accent a pure delight. She bought her current beau - Jeemy Clark.

With Pat at the piano, we sat on the beds and sang carols with Mary and Francoise singing in French. Pat and I kept shifting from French to English. Ken said it was the funniest caroling he'd ever heard.

Christmas morning we strolled up Violet Lane to attend Mass at St. Domenick's. The church was filed with squealing children, all healthy, happy and handsome. Then back home to greet our guests. There were more gifts, a few gins, and good talk until dinner.

While Pat lit the candles, Ken carried the roast and Yorkshire pudding, the delightful aromas tempting our taste buds.

When the table was cleared for dessert, a red ball of Edam cheese trimmed with a sprig of holly waited to be cut. Enter the piping hot mince pie. Pat picked up the silver pie knife and made the first incision. "Oh my God," she cried.

The pie was filled with hamburger! The English call it mince meat pie. For a minute, there was consternation on every face until someone laughed and we all joined in. What a banging surprise!

The day was saved with holiday peppermint-stick ice cream. And now when we say "Merry Christmas," we laugh once more about the mince meat pie.

(Dorothy Squier writes each month about the ways holidays were once celebrated. Ed.)

'White Christmas' was a success

Frederick Wood, president of the Cohasset Chamber of Commerce has reported that the second annual "White Christmas in Cohasset" held Sunday, Dec. 8, (see photos in Dec. 12 issue of the Cohasset Mariner) and sponsored by the Chamber of Commerce, was a huge success.

"We are most pleased with the turnout by Cohasset and area residents and we were delighted with the cooperation and participation displayed by the member businesses of the Chamber," Wood stated.

Santa arrived by helicoptor to begin the festivities at Cushing Plaza and was greeted by Chairman of Selectmen, Frank England; Chamber President Wood; and James Bildner. Photos with Santa, balloons, candy canes and pony rides were available for the children.

A three-piece brass band played holiday favorites in the background. Santa then departed together with elves and helpers on a "Santaland" float for a visit to Tedeschi Plaza and then onto the Cohasset Common. At the Common, children and parents enjoyed more visits with Santa, camel and pony rides, a petting zoo, horse and carriage rides, a "moon walk", Christmas carols and the lighting of the Common.

Andrea Merrill and Sally Wood, co-chairpersons of the event, expressed thanks to the Board of Selectmen, the Fire Department, the Police Department and the many other town departments which assisted the Chamber of Commerce.

Merrill stated, "Without the help and cooperation of the town departments, the 'White Christmas' event would not be possible."

Mrs. Wood added, "Thanks to all of the residents and Chamber members who donated and assisted in making this event a big success." Merrill and Wood expressed thanks to the following merchants for donations to the raffle and the Christmas Carol booklet:

Autohaus, Alco Oil Co., American Cable Systems, J. Bildner and Sons, The Bread Shop, Cards and Shards, Charlotte Hair Stylist, The Children's Shop, Cohasset Central Market, Cohasset Cycle Sports, Cohasset Savings Bank, Cohasset Hardware.

Chiropractic for HEALTH

by Dr. Kevin M. Neill, Chiropractic Physician

TWISTING AND DISCS

Vertebral discs become more susceptible to damage with age. Held between vertebrae, they can slip out and pressure nerve roots. More commonly, they rupture. This can sometimes occur very suddenly and can cause intense and prolonged pain. Although the trigger for a rupture can be just a slight twist or reach, it is usually the culmination of a lifetime of pressure. Twisting is a common problem. For example, one may twist one's back one way and then the other to reach for something. Every time this twisting motion is performed, the possibility of injuring the disc exists. It is largely because we lack strong supporting muscles that we are susceptible to rupturing discs with simple movements.

Chiropractic applications can often provide relief to pain that one believes to be a chronic situation. Many have found a new state of well being from such chiropractic attention. If you have suffered discomfort, we invite you to call COHASSET CHIROPRACTIC OFFICE, 760 Chief Justic Cushing Hwy., Suite 12, and let us provide the exam that can evaluate your situation and suggest the ways in which chiropractic may best serve you. We would like to extend best wishes for the holiday season and the coming New Year to all our patients and friends. We are thankful for the opportunity to have served you this past year and look forward to providing you with chiropractic care in the year ahead. Tel. 383-1211, 2114. Daily by appt.

HINT:

Surprisingly, severe degeneration of the discs due to arthritic changes in the spine can occur without any pain at all.

report from the interview with the children because it was not brought up as exidence.

His lawyer said not to mention them.

"They asked me about how much I drank. They asked me about the delayed stress syndrome from Vietnam.

"They asked me if I ever slept with my daughters.

"I told them I have stopped drinking completely. I haven't had a drink in four months.

"I told them — yes, I laid down with my daughters until they went to sleep if they were upset.

"They were fully clothed and so was I. What's wrong with that?"

The father is now awaiting word on the next court date at which time lawyers for the mother, the children and the DSS along with his attorney, will meet with the judge.

He will decide if the father can have his children, or even see them, again.

In the meantime, the judge ordered that the father undergo a sexual offender's evaluation .

Not trusting the local counsellors who have been treating his wife and daughters, he went to a Boston psychiatrist. It cost $800.

"The psychiatrist told me he will say that it is highly unlikely that I sexually abused my children.

"The social workers have been insisting all along that I have this test to prove whether I did it or not.

"Now I suppose they will downplay the results.

"This nightmare has cost me thousands of dollars — to say nothing of peace of mind.

"I never could have afforded it if it weren't for the help of my family.

"The social workers say that a sex offender always vehemently denies that he did it.

"They say that denying it is part of being an offender.

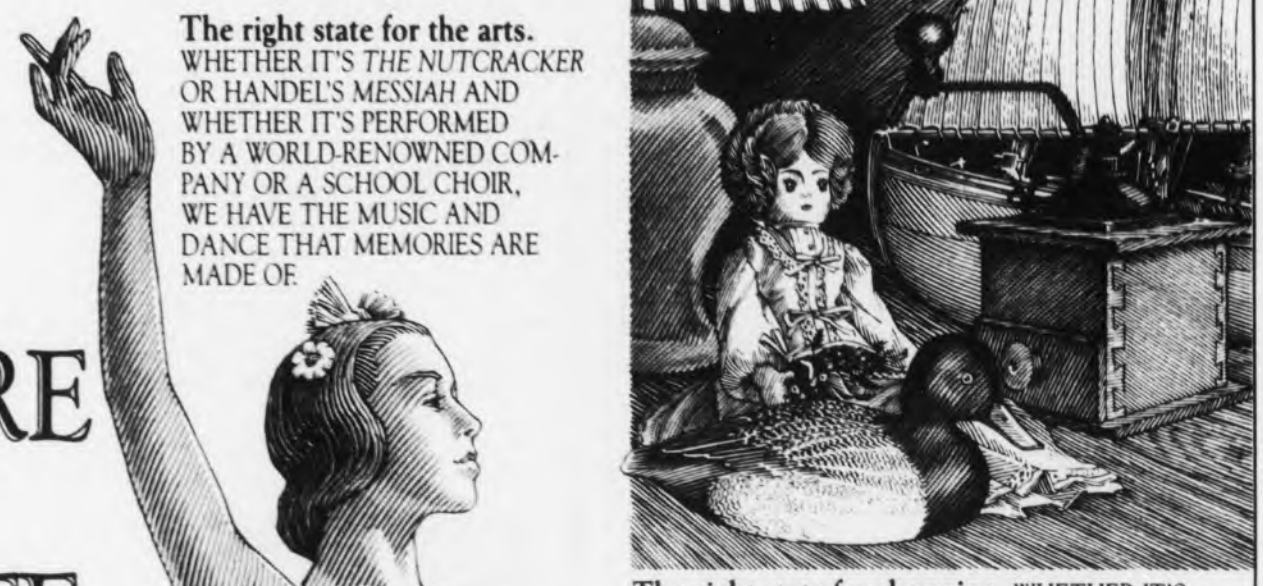
"But what else are you going to do if you didn't abuse your children?

"I know that there is a lot of sexual abuse of children going on.

"It is wrong. The offenders should go to jail. And I feel very bad for those kids.

"But I did not touch my daughters.

"I have only seen them twice in ten months and on these occasions, I was not supposed to see them.



"Because the social workers saw me in a car after one of my wife's visits to DSS, and my children saw me in the car and wanted to run to me, my wife's visits were cut to once a week," he said.

He also tracked his children down to the foster home and saw them in the yard one day.

"They ran to me and said they wanted to come home.

"I just want to be able to see my children.

"And I want them back," he said.

The right state for the arts. WHETHER IT'S THE NUTCRACKER OR HANDEL'S MESSIAH AND WHETHER IT'S PERFORMED BY A WORLD-RENOWNED COMPANY OR A SCHOOL CHOIR, WE HAVE THE MUSIC AND DANCE THAT MEMORIES ARE MADE OF.

The right state for shopping. WHETHER IT'S A HAND-CRAFT SHOP FOR A ONE-OF-A-KIND GIFT, A BARGAIN TREASURE IN OUR OUTLETS, OR THE FLASH OF OUR CITY STORES, WE HAVE THE PERFECT GIFTS FOR EVERYONE ON YOUR HOLIDAY LIST.

MAKE SURE YOU'RE IN THE RIGHT STATE FOR THE HOLIDAYS.

The holidays are a time for music, the arts, celebration, decorating, shopping and getting in the spirit.

It's a time for being in Massachusetts.

Because Massachusetts offers everything you could want this holiday season. In fact, there's so much to do here during the holidays that you can't do it all in just an afternoon or even in a day. We recommend that you make a weekend of it—stay in one of our fine hotels or country inns, take advantage of one of the special holiday packages that hotels are offering, explore the different holiday activities, do your shopping. You'll enjoy it more because you'll be relaxed.

And as far as we're concerned, there's no better state to be in during the holidays.

From the countryside to the cities to the seashore, Massachusetts is ready to celebrate. For complete information on holiday activities, call 1-800-632-8038 (in Mass.) 1-800-343-9072 (outside Mass.).

No smoking ban endorsed at Vo-Tech school

By Don Merrill
Mariner Staff

The regional school committee of South Shore Vocational-Technical High School last Wednesday endorsed plans by the student council to end widespread cigarette smoking within the school's Hanover campus.

VoTech students are allowed to smoke outside the rear of the building. But the rule is apparently ignored. Faculty members are known to walk the halls with lit cigarettes, said Supt. Clifford W. Easton.

Committee Chairman Robert W. Molla Jr. of Norwell said many of the boys' rooms in the building, especially one on the first floor, contain "bucketfuls of cigarette butts" in toilets at the end of each day.

Student council President Karen Maguire of Rockland and Vice President Peter Talacci of Scituate told committee members the council wants to hold an assembly to warn students that smoking privileges could be lifted for three weeks — even permanently — if the situation does not improve.

If lavatories and grounds aren't noticeably cleaner, Maguire proposed limiting bathroom-use time to one hour each day, monitoring of gym locker rooms, increased compliance checks by faculty and a maximum five-minute lavatory break during class periods after a three-week suspension of privileges.

"If that doesn't improve the problem, we're ready to ask that smoking be banned permanently," Maguire said.

Dr. Easton said cutting down on student smoking isn't the school committee's responsibility.

"The student council has done much to address this problem and I think we should give them a chance to implement these ideas.

"The committee has made it clear they want this solved and you have the first shot at it," he told Maguire and Talacci.

Some committee members asked why smoking — and possession of cigarettes in school — is allowed at all. Others said it is "hypocritical" to allow teachers to smoke in a faculty room while students are prohibited from smoking.

"I don't see what the question is here," said member Joan DeGeorge Schirmer of Scituate. "It's not legal to buy cigarettes until you're 18 under state law."

But Maguire said many students have parental permission to smoke.

Allowing faculty members to smoke in school "is a poor role model," Easton said, "but don't adults have certain privileges that kids don't have?"

'Go ask Alice' . . .

Walter T. Easttey of Abington. McDermott, Chairman Robert L. Molla Jr. of Norwell and Dennis Blackwell of Hanover voted against the motion to drop the book.

After the vote, Easton said any decision on a replacement book will be left up to Parkis.

Parkis, a resident of Marshfield, said he hasn't decided what will replace the book.

"Again, it's the most instructional, most moral book I know. It's going to be difficult to replace," he said.

Parkis said Easton will allow students who are currently reading Go Ask Alice to continue until they are finished.

A "thank you party" was held at Kimball's By The Sea following the event for chamber members, town officials and guests. Chamber President Wood and Dan Leahy, chairman of the Board of Directors, expressed season's greetings and thanks to all with special thanks to Andrea Merrill and Sally Wood for their untiring efforts in making "White Christmas" a wonderful day for Cohasset.

The Law and You

by Richard Price, Attorney-at-Law

RESTITUTION

A remedy is the method by which a right is enforced by a court after one party suffers some harm. The law of remedies deals with the nature of the relief to which one (the plantiff) is entitled. It applies when it has been established that an elemental right has been violated by the defendant. Restitution is a remedy that restores a plaintiff to the position occupied before the defendant violated his rights. Restitution is usually measured by the defendant's gain, rather than by the plaintiff's losses. This way, the defendant is prevented from being unjustly enriched by his wrong. Instead of money, the remedy of restitution sometimes entitles a plaintiff to recover the property.

The legal profession provides professional training and expertise that will help one maximize their legal rights whether it be civil, criminal, or related forms of legal involvement. Your rights are a precious possession and should be treated accordingly. The laws of the land were created to protect your well-being. Utilize that protection to your best advantage. See experienced and competent professional legal advice. LAW OFFICE OF RICHARD PRICE, SMITH, SMITH & PRICE, P.C., 202 Mill Wharf Plaza, Scituate, 545-6660. We are available daily by appointment. ST. JUDE: O Holy St. Jude Apostle and martyr great in virtue and rich in miracles, near kinsman of Jesus Christ. Faithful intercessor of all who invoke your special patronage in time of need, to you I have recourse from the depth of my heart and humbly beg to whom God has given such greater power to come to my assistance. Help me in my present urgent petition, in return I promise to make your name known, and cause you to be invoked. Say three Our Fathers, three Hail Marys and Glorias. Publication must be promised. St. Jude, pray for us and all who invoke your aid. Amen. This Novena has never been known to fail. This Novena must be said for 9 consecutive days.

vol. VIII, no. 13 | 383-6731/545-7060 | thursday, december 26, 1985 | 35 cents

Christmas is . . .

Jesus Christ's birthday,
Friendship, love, getting together,
Giving and receiving gifts,
Kindness, happiness, helping others . . .
Sharing feelings . . . Liking people,
Going to church,
Peace on earth,
Caring,
Playing with toys,
Red, green and frosty white!
Maybe snow . . .
Santa and the Nutcracker,
Trimming the tree and hanging stockings,
Singing carols, jingling bells,
Good smells from the kitchen . . .
Giggles and laughter,
Secrets and surprises
Being Awfully Good . . . Shh!
We can't wait!

From the Osgood School second graders in Room 1, Mrs. Clark's class.

Cohasset's week . . .

Town Hall holiday hours

The Town Hall will close Christmas Eve, Dec. 24, at noon. It will remain closed during Christmas Day.

There will be regular office hours beginning Thursday, Dec. 26, including evening hours from 5:30 to 8 p.m.

The following week, the Town Hall will remain open until 4:30 p.m. Tuesday, Dec. 31. The offices will be closed Wednesday, Jan. 1 and will reopen Thursday, Jan. 2.

Watershed study changes

The Watershed Protection Committee this week discussed proposed changes to the engineering study which will officially outline the town's watershed property.

Before the Camp, Dresser and McKee study is made public, the committee suggested several revisions to the document. The changes must be submitted by Jan. 8 so there will be time to publish the recommendations of the study for adoption at the April Town Meeting. The CDM project includes an official delineation of the watershed, in addition to bylaw amendments, zoning changes and subdivision regulations.

The latest version of the CDM study includes several revisions suggested at an earlier watershed committee meeting. The recommendations include a bylaw restricting the use, storage and disposal of hazardous materials throughout town; health board approval before applying herbicides within the watershed; the town's aquisition of land within 500 feet of water sources, specifically Lily Pond; requirement that the health board be notified if any business or town department is storing more than 25 pounds or 50 gallons of hazardous materials; and the removal of any underground storage tanks if there are holes in that containment.

The most recent watershed study indicates that more than 75 percent of the commercial landfill, Cohasset Heights, is located within the town's watershed. The Water Commission is attempting to shutdown the landfill, saying it eventually may pollute the municipal water supply.

Coalition meeting

The recently-formed South Shore Coalition held a second meeting last week in Weymouth.

In a meeting scheduled for next month in Rockland, Jean Christensen and Sen. William Golden will report on their progress to obtain state funds for towns studying solid waste management.

The meeting last week focused on the Old Colony Rehabilitation Project in which state transportation officials reviewed the project for Coalition members.

Cohasset's representatives to the regional group include Selectman Diane Sullivan and planning board members Christine Bassett and Dan Cotton.

At the initial meeting of the Coalition, Selectman Sullivan outlined issues most important to Cohasset, including the sewer plan and problems with the state, on-going study of the town's future landfill needs and watershed protection. Public transportation is also an issue of concern to Cohasset residents, Sullivan said.

At the January meeting, Coalition members are slated to discuss public transportation, solid waste, grant money, and staffing.

Water Commission concerns

The Board of Water Commission recently outlined their concerns about continued development in certain areas of town. The commission is concerned that further development will "cast doubts on the ability of the existing water mains to support the additional demand."

In a letter to the board, Water Department Superintendent Ben Curley specified the areas of concern, including:

Beechwood Street from Hillside Drive to the end, including Doane Street, Aaron River Road, Bates Lane, Church Street, Hillside Drive, and Flintlocke Ridge Roa.d

North Main Street from Forest Avenue to Jerusalem Road, including Rosano Lane, Red Gate Lane and Fernway.

Jerusalem Road from North Main Street to Forest Avenue, including Little Harbor Road, Jerusalem Lane, Jerusalem Road Drive, Deep Run, Rust Way, Linden Drive, Linden Circle, and Rustic Drive.

Atlantic Avenue from Cunningham Bridge to the intersection at Jerusalem Road.

As an example, Supt. Curley noted that the Beechwood community is supplied by a 10-inch main to Riverview Drive, then 1,000 feet of eight-inch main to a six-inch line beyond Hillside Drive.

Futher development in these areas, he said, should be contigent upon upgrading the water mains supplying those portions of the community.

The commission has recommended that developers be required to include in their proposals to the planning board, the water service needs of their project, and the impact that the additional demand of their development will place on the services areas.

The Water Department, Curley noted, will not permit the installation of booster pumps as a solution in these affected areas. "A pump may address the problem of pressure to the development, however, only at the expense of pressure and volume loss to the adjacent service area," he wrote.

Additional data may be obtained through the Fire Department, he said, because they have established requirements for fire protection.

Selectmen's meeting

There will be a meeting of the Board of Selectmen tonight, Dec. 23 at 7:30 p.m.

Included in the agenda are budget discussions regarding the police, tree and park, harbormaster and executive secretary's budgets.

There will also be a discussion of a proposal to locate a "Business District" sign on Rte. 3A. The board will listen to Herb Jason regarding harbor moorings, and there is a request from Hugo's to extend their hours of business for New Year's Eve.

No regrets from Chief Dooley

By Jane Lane
Mariner Staff

To be a firefighter. It is the dream of all young boys.

It was no different for Martin Dooley. It was a dream he realized in 1954.

But on January 1, for the first time in more than 30 years, Dooley will no longer be a professional firefighter.

"I'm devastated. What else can I say? It's devastating," he said this week from his Elm Street office. Since selectmen decided not to renew his contract last March, Fire Chief Dooley has been applying for positions all across the country.

He will continue the search, for as he said, "I've never wanted to do anything else."

It's been three years since Dooley was apointed chief by the Board of Selectmen. It has been a time of controversy and confusion, but Dooley doesn't see it as an entirely negative experience. The lasting friendships he has made, the improvements he has overseen in the fire department, and the experience he has gained as a professional, will remain with him wherever he next journeys.

Dooley this week recalled his childhood in Port Washington, N.Y., where he would chase after engines responding to a fire. Sometimes he would skip school if there was an important blaze being battled.

By the time he was a senior in high school, Dooley was on the volunter force. When the whistle alerted the call force to duty, Dooley would drop his paper and pencil and rush to the scene.

He is the third in four generations of firefighters. His grandfather was a volunteer with the New York City department in Queens. His father was a volunteer with the Port Washington force. Dooley began his professional career in August, 1954 in Port Washington, and his son Patrick is now a firefighter with the East Hartford, Conn. department. Patrick was only 19 when he began his firefighting career, the youngest member ever appointed to the Manchester, Conn. department.

"It's hard to explain," Dooley answered, when asked why someone would choose to be a firefighter. "Either you like it or you don't. There's a lot of comradeship and dependency on each other, regardless of rank. There's a lot of personal satisfaction that only those who are in the field could understand."

His career began in Port Washington, a suburb about 40 minutes outside New York City. He then transferred to Garden City, Long Island where he remained until 1964. That year he was appointed to the Hartford, Conn. department.

It was during the tur b ulent years of 1968 until the mid-1970's that Hartford was a center of social unrest. At that time, Dooley said, the city was about 60-70 percent minority, and the northern section of town kept police and firefighters continually on alert.

He was appointed a deputy chief's aide in 1980, and a few months after that, he was named a lieutenant. It was during those years in Hartford that he received three unit citations for his work and was nominated for the Medal of Valor.

When asked why he came to Cohasset when he was rising through the ranks in Connecticut, Dooley answered, "I wasn't moving up as fast as I wanted. When the opportunity came to be a chief, I grabbed

The Law and You

by Richard Price, Attorney-at-Law

PRE-TRIAL DISCOVERY

Except in minor cases, each side in a civil case has the right of pre-trial discovery. This means that one can learn everything about the opponent's case and vice-versa. Pre-trial discovery is based on the following theory: If both sides are fully informed about a case, they often can reach a settlement and avoid a costly trial. In practice, the theory works quite well. Most civil cases are settled rather than tried. This is often a result of the information gained through discovery. After pre-trial discovery has been completed, the lawyers meet in the judge's office for a pre-trial conference. They exchange the names of witnesses that they expect to call. They also try to narrow the issues by agreeing on those facts which are no longer in dispute.

Any matter before the court, civil or criminal, is serious in nature with usually far reaching consequences in the future. It is important when appearing before the court to be adequately represented by professionals. LAW OFFICE OF RICHARD PRICE, SMITH, SMITH & PRICE, P.C., 202 Mill Wharf Plaza, Scituate, 545-6660. We are available daily by appt. May we take this opportunity to wish you and yours a joyous holiday season.

HINT

Tort cases are civil wrongs that are not founded on a contract.

The gifts all there.
It's a time to pause,
And a time to share.
Glad tidings, good wishes,
And heartfelt cheer,
Thank you for being

it."

He explained that his first attempt at the lieutenant's exam did not have successful results.

"I didn't pass," Dooley said with a smile, "because I didn't study. I took it because all my peers were taking it, and we all flunked. The second time, I studied and came out 16th from a total of 235 people who took it."

"Hartford was starting to settle down as far as fire duty is concerned. And I was getting older, in my mid-40's," Dooley stated, outlining the reasons why he applied for the Cohasset vacancy in 1983. "The kids were grown and, I guess, I was looking for that boyhood dream to be a fire chief. Fire duty is for young men, so I was applying all over the East Coast. I was a finalist here and in Maryland. But Arthur Clark (former executive secretary) called and said they appointed Roger Lincoln. So I was going for the Maryland job when I got another call nine days later and I came to Cohasset."

It was a promotion in grade, and a $2000 pay raise that lured Dooley to the smaller community of Cohasset.

"I have not regretted moving from Connecticut to Cohasset, and I don't regret the promotional opportunity I had here," he continued. "I just want to be in the fire service. It is every firefighter's dream to be the chief one day. I accomplished that. How many other people accomplish their dreams ?"

Chief Dooley recalled his class photos in junior and senior high school. Underneath the pictures was inscribed each year, "destined to be a firefighter."

"The only regret I have now is that after 31 years being associated with the organization of firefighting, come January 1, I will be unemployed. The fact that I'll no longer be associated with the fire department is devastating. I don't know how I am going to handle it."

To help cope the stress of impending unemployment, Chief Dooley has talked at length with other professionals. He has reviewed with them the daily diary he kept for the past three years.

"I made mistakes, we all do. But I hope I'll be given a second opportunity to prove my real worth. I know I can do the job, make accomplishments, and I look forward to my next job," he said.

Currently, Chief Dooley has 11 applications pending in areas throughout the country. He has spent much time filling applications, and being interviewed for perspective jobs. Thus far, he has "been the bridesmaid, but not the bride." He has been a finalist in several situations, opportunities in which there are at least 60 men applying for the same position.

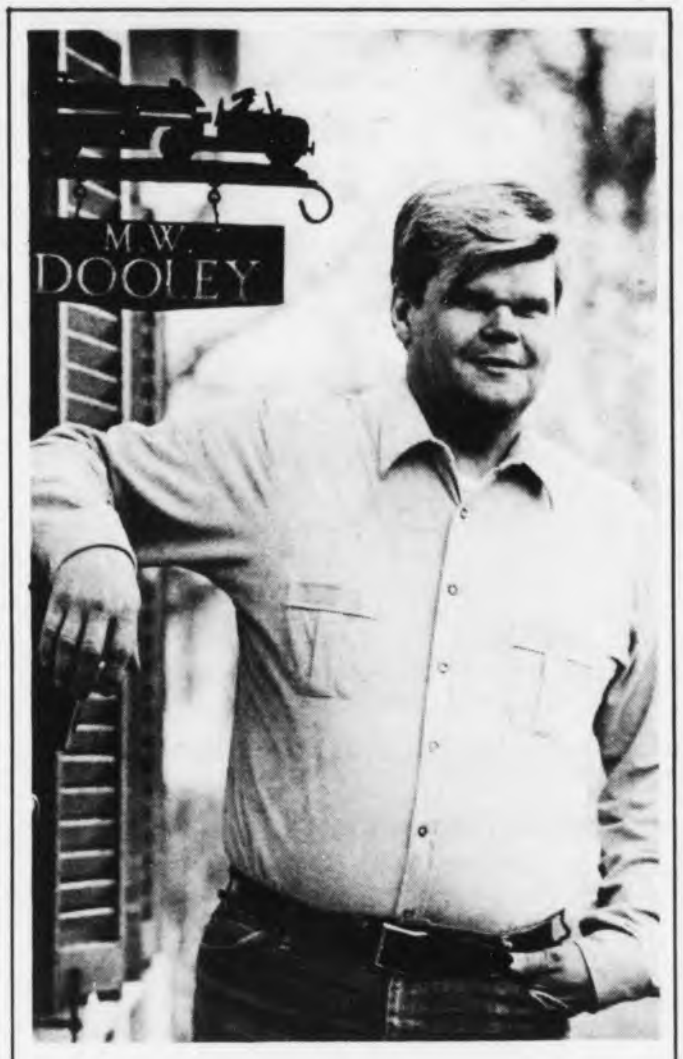
"I recently went for an interview in Hartford, Vt. and was told there were 80 applicants for the job. Another position had 210 applications," he said.

That is in sharp contrast, he observed, to the six applications submitted for the job Dooley will soon vacate.

The chief said it is impossible to separate duties he held here as an administrator and as a firefighter. As he explained, if a chief and a fireman respond to the same call, they become the firefighting team. Once more personnel arrives, the chief becomes the field manager. He rates himself a "good to excellent" field manager, something he's been told by his peers.

"I don't think I am a bad administrator," he added, saying he is stubborn but flexible. "And I think I have a proven track record."

The chief and his wife, Joyce, will remain in their Summer Street home until he finds employment elsewhere. He expects the job market will slow until sometime in mid-January. "I'll probably stay here until I find a job," he said.



On January 2, the Cohasset Fire Chief will apply for unemployment. "The major problem will be hospitalization," he said, noting his wife is in therapeutic treatment three times a week. "That's going to cause a hardship."

The chief said he is not so stubborn to avoid employment in the private sector, and is looking in business as well as firefighting.

His memories of Cohasset have not been all bad. "It is a beautiful town," he commented. "And there are a lot of super people here. But they're not aware of what was going on behind closed doors."

At 49, Chief Dooley faces a future of uncertainty as he leaves his post. He is confident of opportunities that will become available. Firefighting is his career and his life - one that he will not relinquish easily.

"I have never been unemployed before . . . "

Martin W. Dooley

"I made mistakes, we all do. But I hope I'll be given a second opportunity to prove my real worth."

Discussion to prevent teenage suicides

The assembly held at Notre Dame Academy, Hingham, recently was not the usual seasonal get-together where students sing songs of Christmas greetings, happy times, family togetherness and friendship. Instead of music there was a filmstrip dealing with teenage suicide. Instead of Christmas carols, there was a message from Carol Lockwood, a representative of Samaritans, a volunteer group dedicated to the prevention of suicide.

The program was organized by the Academy's Peer Counseling group because suicide among teenagers is on the increase and timed because there are definite peak periods, particularly during holidays when people become more lonely and desperate.

"During this year in this country one half million people will attempt suicide, and, of this number, 6,000 young people between 15 and 25 years old will succeed," Mrs. Lockwood told the students. "And, just think," she said, "this is happening in a period that is supposed to be the 'best time of your life!' "

What Lockwood urged the teenagers to do was to be alert for signs from their friends, to be good listeners, and to say, "I care" when other teens talk of ending their life. "it is important always to take a person seriously when they talk of suicide," she cautioned. "If a person truly wants to kill himself or herself, there is nothing anyone can do to prevent it. But, a person who is contemplating suicide is hurting because of feeling isolated, misunderstood, and rejected. They are helpless about what to do about it, but they don't necessarily want to die."

"The person must solve the problem of the hurt that is driving them to this desperation and this can only be done if he feels good about himself because he knows that someone cares." she continued. "It's like the driving technique you have to use when you skid on ice, you can only regain control by steering in the direction of the skid." By being a sympathetic listener and asking why they feel this way is a way of showing you care."

Lockwood also encouraged the students to seek help for anyone who talks of taking their life. "Risk losing the friendship. You just might save a life," she pointed out.

Although suicide is a complicated issue, there have been some patterns among teenagers who are driven to this desperate act. "They usually give messages, signs or signals that they are in trouble and need help," the Samaritan said. What has been noted are a withdrawal from family and friends, grades dropping, a tendency to give away favorite possessions and a change in sleeping habits either sleeping too much or too little. "Unfortunately, these are also the signs of normal teenager behaviour and can be overlooked," she noted.

A schedule of Christmas services

First Parish

Sunday, Dec. 22 - Service of Worship at 10:30 a.m. A very special service filled with music of Christmas. There will be a presentation of the "Songs of the Birth of Jesus Christ" by Heinrich Schultz. The chorus will be accompanied by a small orchestra of brass, strings and flute.
Christmas Eve - Music for meditation at 7:30 p.m., following by the Christmas Eve candlelight service at 8 p.m. with special choral music.

Second Congregational

Anyone is welcome to attend the Christmas Eve services at the Second Congregational Church. Access to the second floor sanctuary has been improved with an elevator, enabling handicapped or older people to participate in all services. Wreaths and ropes of evergreens tied with red ribbons and lighted by candles provide the setting for the carols and scriptures of Christmas.

The Family Christmas Eve Service will begin at 7 p.m. It is planned especially for families with young children, and will feature a new Christmas story, "Englebert Elf and the Christmas Gifts."

The Candlelight Communion Service will begin at 11 p.m. on Christmas Eve. The church observes open Communion, welcoming everyone to participate in its celebration of the grace and love of God at Christmas.

St. Stephen's Church

Christmas Eve, Dec. 24 - Family Holy Eucharist and Baptism at 5 p.m.
Festal - Holy Eucharist service at 11 p.m.
Christmas Day, Dec. 25 - Holy Eucharist service at 9:30 a.m.

St. Anthony's

Christmas Mass -
Eve: 5 and 7 p.m. and Midnight Mass.
Day: 8, 9, and 11:30 a.m.
Parish Penance Service - 7 p.m. with confessions, Monday, Dec. 23
Confession - Tuesday, Dec. 24 at 4:30 p.m.

REAL ESTATE GUIDELINES
By Norma Telesco
Home Center Realty

When Your Buyer Has A Home To Sell

Prospective buyers often have homes they must sell in order to purchase a new home. Sellers, on the other hand, may be reluctant to accept any offer that is contingent on the sale of another property. If you receive such an offer and if it is satisfactory in all other areas, there are ways to structure the sale that can minimize the seller's risks.

First, you might put a limit on the amount of time the buyers have to accept an offer on their property. You can also keep your home on the market. If a second offer comes in, you may be able to reserve the right to withdraw the first conditional offer unless the contingencies can be removed within 48 or 72 hours.

Many sales that start out as contingent offers work well for the sellers. Your purchaser is not going to be in the best bargaining position and is less likely to ask for concessions on price or other terms. Each situation is different, however, and before you accept a contingent offer, you should go over the pros and cons of the particular situation with your realtor.

The professionals at HOME CENTER REALTY can guide you through each step of the home buying or selling process. Please visit our offices at 57 Water Street, Hingham or give us a call at 749-8833.

around town

"And I want . . ."Santa listens attentively as Ben Peterson of Cohasset enumerates the bounty of treasures he will expect under his tree. (McCann photo)

☐Thinking a lot about Jeff and Amy Loughran this year, as are all of their friends! As you may remember, Jeff and Amy sneaked (so there would be no emotional farewells, we know) out of town last fall, and they are truly missed on this first "big" holiday. Here's hoping that you have a super first Christmas in your new residence, and that the New Year is a wonderful one for you.

☐Add another to the list of things that Doris Golden has done! Doris was recently sworn in as a notary public by secretary of state Michael Joseph Connolly. Mary Jeanette Murray was there with her. Congratulations to you, Doris! 'Course that probably doesn't compare to the fact that Doris and Jack are grandparents. That was their daughter Karen's wonderful gift to them. and she and husband Steve did a superb job. Here's to the whole family, and may they have a long and wonderful life together.

☐And, while on the subject of grandparents and babies, don't think that we'd forget the Dooleys and the Howorths! Dennis and Diane Dooley had a son on December 3, born at South Shore Hospital.

☐Beverly Lutz recently attended a conference (an Affiliate leadership conference) in Albany, New York. At least it was before all of the snow they have now — she may not have been able to get home! Beverly is the English chairman for the Weymouth public school system and president of the Massachusetts Council of Teachers of English.

☐Paul Bishop came over to help me figure out my VCR last week, for which I am very grateful. Paul is extremely active in the cable programs that are run out of the downtown office, and knows just about all that there is for him to know in order to run programming efficiently and smoothly. I asked Paul about how the whole program was run, and he said it is through us (the townspeople) that want to learn it. The cable company will happily teach anyone how to run the equipment, and it is a help to them that we learn! They simply don't have enough manpower to be everywhere! For example, they can't record a hockey game because the one that knows how to film it is on the hockey team. It would behoove some of us to learn, even if it's just to see some of the things aired that might otherwise be missed. Stop into the cable office if you are interested, and talk to them about learning the machinery down there. Paul says that it's easy (no comment) — Find out!

☐Happy to report that Mr. McCarthy is out of intensive care and on the mend. Keep up the good work, Pat!

☐Congratulations to Maresa and William Blakeman, who had a baby girl on November 30 at South Shore Hospital.

☐Under the "don't forgets" is the Christmas concert to be held on Dec. 12 at the CHS auditorium, put on by the Deer Hill Chorus and Band. The High School will put on a concert, too, to be held on Dec. 18.

☐Winter sports have begun, that's why you see so many tired looking boys around town. Takes a while before they get used to the 5 a.m. alarm (if they ever do). All of the teams had scrimmages this weekend, and all reported back that they did extremely well. When you consider how hard they work, do your share and attend some of the games this year. All of the teams appreciate it.

☐Kathleen Bryanton of Hingham was recently appointed director of the senior center by the council on aging. She certainly has a lot of qualifications, including nutrition, and a degree in human resources. She was chosen from 25 applicants, and will begin her job on Jan. 6. (The facility is located at the community center on No. Main Street.) She is going to develop activities for our senior citizens at the drop-in center, and coordinate programs with some of the other town agencies. We sure wish her a lot of success, and hope that our seniors will take advantage of the program. More news is sure to follow on this good news!

☐That is the news from here. Sure hope that Santa was good to all, and that you all have a grand New Year full of good news for me to print and you to read!

"The True Meaning of Christmas"

I think the true meaning of Christmas is thinking that Jesus was born on this day. Alot of people just think about getting presents, and don't think of Jesus. It is hard to believe that when you wake up and see all those presents under the tree that 1,985 years ago Jesus was born.

I can believe that there was a St. Nicholas who used to give presents to the poor. St. Nicholas was nice because he did not steal from the rich then give to the poor he gave gifts of his own.

Christmas wishes

This is our list containing our sincere, but irreverent best wishes for the people who make Cohasset what it is. May everyone enjoy peaceful and happy holidays, filled with good friends and family.

to developer Donald Staszko - discovers he's a close relative of Jane Cook, and that he owns all of Fair Oaks Lane.

to Chamber of Commerce member Dan Leahy - a sweet, loveable, agreeable disposition to Selectman Mary Jane McArthur - a stick of dynamite to blow up the Bates Building.

to Health Agent Joseph Godzik - a match to light it.

to Atty. Charles Humphreys - appointment as a Norfolk County Superior Court judge.

to Sewer Commissioner Pat Walsh - a moped.

to new Fire Chief Dan Brock - free room and board so he can afford to live in Cohasset.

to Selectman Diane Sullivan - a night out - with her husband!

to CHS Principal Richard Streeter - a package of No Doz before each school committee meeting.

to Building Inspector Ed Poskus - a fancy new typewriter, a donation from the members of the advisory committee.

to R. M. Campbell of Old Pasture Road - a broken typewriter.

to Recreation Director Jack Worley - assurance that he'll never get fat, because he wouldn't be able to fit into his office.

to selectmen's secretary Flo Kelley - a wall constructed in front of her desk so she won't have to watch people going in and out of the Town Hall bathrooms.

to Water Commission Chairman Peter Pratt - appointment as national EPA director.

to Sewer Commission Chairman Charlie DeSantis - a close friendship with Peter Pratt.

Firefighter Linwood Davis - a silver bell.

to CHS basketball coach Eddie Minnelli - humility.

to Selectman Rocco Laugelle - dedication of the Legion Post in his name, or at least a bar stool for all his hours of service there.

to Fire Chief Martin Dooley - loss of memory for a period not exceeding three years.

to Harbormaster Harry Ritter - the mysterious disappearance of the mooring list and any proof that it actually existed.

to Arne and Martha Gjestby - a name change.

to Selectman Cliff Mitman - a devil-may-care, no explanations-needed, I'm-just-here-for-a laugh, off-the-cuff, let's-party attitude.

to the Town Hall employees - no more photos! Who cares if anyone "Know(s) Your Town Hall?"

to the workers at the First Parish Meeting House -a white or black tarp. Don't you realize this is the Common Historic District?

to CHS Chorus and Drama Directors Bryan Marks and Ron Emmons - donation of a new auditorium and stage from An Wang.

to the Cohasset police officers - a winning Megabucks ticket - each!

to the Winter Garden owners - a second business to supplement the current operation. May we suggest a commercial landfill, an amusement park, a mega-supermarket, low income housing, McDonald's, a shopping mall, a hazardous waste site, a military base, and a bar featuring male strippers.

to school committee member Jack Langmaid -a year of excellent health.

to outgoing Fire Chief Martin Dooley - our second wish - don't go see Rambo.

to Selectmen Chairman Frank England - an autographed photo of Gen. George Patton, (we realize this is a bit late) inscribed, "They broke the mold after us."

to the community of Cohasset - continued prosperity, caring, compassion, and wisdom to make the best decisions during the year ahead. Good health to all!

Objection to Town Meeting address

To the Editor:

Mr. Murray Campbell is a prolific writer and he takes excellent advantage of the various public forums available to him in various newspapers. Weekly we are kept up-to-date on Mr. Campbell's feelings about the Cohasset Sewer Commissioners, and his feelings regarding the citizens of the Town who support the sewer commissioners in their efforts. In addition, Mr. Campbell regularly petitions citizens and Town Meeting voters at town meeting, and through the mails.

At the 9 Dec. Special Town Meeting I vocalized my objections to Mr. Campbell addressing the meeting for several reasons.

The Town Clerk, who expected numerous non-residents and non-voters at that particular meeting in view of the business articles on the warrant, designated a special non-voting area in which these individuals were directed to sit. The numerous non-resident businessmen present at that session, all of whom pay high property assessments, and who also support the Town's numerous educational and sports activities through their advertising in various arts and sports programs, and through outright generous donations — did not object, not one, to sitting in the non-voting section.

Letters

Only Mr. Campbell objected to sitting in the non-voting section; in fact, Mr. Campbell insisted in sitting in the voting section — much to the consternation of Town Meeting officials, and Cohasset voters. Consequently, Mr. Campbell could well have offered a voice vote on numerous warrant articles. At future meetings I would hope the Town Clerk and the Moderator would use their supreme authority to have Mr. Campbell ejected from the assembly, if he should continue to refuse to abide by the rules of the meeting.

If Mr. Campbell had afforded the Town Clerk, her agents and town meeting voters the respect they deserve, I might not have objected to a brief presentation. In any case, Mr. Campbell's feelings are always well-documented. At the 9 Dec., 1985 Special Town Meeting Mr. Campbell handed literature to every voter entering the meeting place.

In summary, Mr. Campbell was hardly "singled out" for special treatment by anyone.

Yours truly,
Tanna Kasperowicz

Murray's Memos

by Rep. Mary Jeanette Murray

With home prices in Massachusetts among the highest in the nation today, one might find it hard to believe that the Legislature would want to make them even higher. Well, that is exactly what would happen under a bill currently before the Massachusetts House of Representatives.

The "Land Bank" bill, House Bill 6716, would allow any city or town in the Commonwealth to impose up to a 2% tax on every transfer of real estate in that community. The tax would be collected and placed in a "Land Bank", administered by local conservation commissions, for the purpose of purchasing open space, vacant lots and derelict buildings.

There are several reasons why such a tax would be detrimental to economic growth.

First, by allowing communities to gobble up land for conservation purposes, you are reducing that town's taxable revenue base, driving up the price of other parcels of land in the community, and, impeding further development in that community.

Also, if the tax were imposed on buyers, it would be a substantial hardship. For example, a 2% tax on a $100,000 home would add an additional $2,000 to the purchase price, let alone closing costs and regular property taxes apportioned over each year. Sellers would be at an equal disadvantage if the tax was imposed on them since they would have less money for a down payment on another home. Knowing this, sellers would be tempted to tack that additional tax money onto the selling price of the home—adding to the already outrageous prices.

Housing develoment, which often requires multiple transactions, would also suffer as a result of a 2% tax. Some projections estimate an added cost of 10-12% to the end product.

According to the National Association of Realtors, if 1984 real estate transactions are used as a base, House Bill 6716 would produce $300 Million in revenues. It seems a little ironic that at the same time the Legislature is working to repeal the state surtax, which involves nearly the same amount. The reason for repeal is the enormous surplus revenues that are pouring into the state treasury as a result of a healthy economy and excess taxes.

Finally, House Bill 6716 is essentially a way for local communities to circumvent Proposition 2 ½. That law requires communities to restrict their property taxes to 2 ½ percent of the value of the land. If this new bill is enacted into law, you would be taxed on one end of the transfer of your land and also be subject to your annual property tax. What a "welcome" to a new town, or a "goodbye" from an old one!

In summary, this new tax is unnecessary and would cripple economic growth. Instead of increasing revenues to cites and towns, it would in the long run decrease them. Also, funded programs are already in place at the state level to purchase land deemed by communities to be desirable for conservation purposes.

A Christmas story - meeting a woman named Baboushka

By Rev. John Benbow
Second Congregational Church

Everybody knows that Christmas in New England is supposed to be a lovely scene, with fresh white snow piling up around candle-lighted windows and chestnuts roasting by the fire. Everybody knows that—except the citizens of the seaside towns, where cold rain is just as likely as softly falling snow, and a driving wind is often on hand to keep us on our toes. At least once each Christmas season, we seem to be subjected to an awful night of rain and wind and falling temperatures, the sort of night when anyone in his right mind stays safely at home.

On one such recent night, I had the misfortune of a meeting to attend in Boston, late at night because no one on the committee really had time for it. The rain was terrible, and the wind was worse. The roads were as black as the sky, and my headlights seemed to have no effect on the deathly blackness of the night. As I stepped into my car, my old soggy hat managed to funnel a small river of icy rain down the back of my neck. I was not in a festive mood.

A cheerful radio weatherman informed me, as I began the long drive into Boston, that his forecast of clear skies and warmer temperatures hadn't been quite accurate after all, and that we were to expect more of the freezing rain and wind, and worse before morning: "Maybe ice, maybe sleet, maybe snow, maybe some kind of weather we've never seen before. Stay home, if you know what's good for you!" I switched him off.

By the time I reached the hill that leads down to the Hingham rotary, ice had begun to form on the road. My headlights, dim as they were in the darkness, picked up something out of place in the roadway ahead of me. I had no idea what it could be—a large rock, a small tree, or perhaps even a human figure dressed in black. Whatever it was, it was moving directly into my path. I slammed on my brakes, twisted the steering wheel to the left, and waited helplessly as I lost control of my car. I half-expected to hear a dull thud as I hit whatever it was. I missed it, thank God, and slipped and slid halfway around the rotary in the wrong direction before I could come to a stop.

Sitting there in my car, I stared at the rain pouring on my windshield as if from a fire hose. I was still clutching the steering wheel, and I was making a sudden transition from cold fear to boiling anger. I couldn't decide what to do. Should I go back to see whatever it was that I had almost hit? Should I call the police? Should I roll down my window and yell at it: "Get out of the road! You could have been hit!"

Before I could do anything, whatever or whoever it was in the road opened the back door of my car on the passenger side, as if my little Datsun was a taxicab, and climbed in. I was too startled to say a word.

I stared at it in the dim light. It was a human figure, wrapped and bundled in layer after layer of dank, decrepit clothing. The person had an immense overcoat or cape (I couldn't tell which) of a blackish-green color, and over its head there was an ugly blackish-blue hood or headscarf. I could barely see its face, so I didn't know even whether it was a man or a woman when I finally said, "What's going on? Who are you? Don't you know you could have been hit, running into the road like that?"

That's when I learned that my unexpected passenger was an old, old lady, for she said in an ancient but rather sweet voice, "T'ank you. T'ank you ferry much." She had some sort of soft foreign accent, which I couldn't quite place.

"What do you mean, thank you?" I asked. I was still angry, of course, and scared. Was I being robbed? Was she crazy, or lost, or what?

"T'ank you ferry much for stopping." I didn't say anything. I was trying to start my car again, having finally decided I'd rather do something about heading the wrong way on the rotary. I made a cautious U-turn, and then pulled off the road into the driveway of a filling station. It was closed, and so were the other stations nearby. I considered driving to the police station, two miles down the road, and asking them to evict my unwanted rider. "This isn't a taxi, lady," I began; but she interrupted me. "Of course it isn't. But you are going to Boston?"

"Yes. I have a meeting late tonight. . . ."

"Then you will let me ride with you to Boston." It was a statement, not a question. What could I do? Try to force a little old lady out of my car on a rainy night? She was probably homeless, and stood a better chance of a warm place to sleep in Boston than on the South Shore. And either she was harmless, or she had some weapon concealed in the heavy folds of what I could now see was an ancient cape. Either way it seemed easier to let her ride along with me.

I could see her in the rearview mirror as I drove under the streetlights along Route 3A toward Weymouth, and Quincy, and Boston. I even caught a glimpse of her wrinkled old face from time to time, and her dark eyes like little berries half-hidden between her eyebrows and her cheeks. As for her nose, it deserves separate mention: it was a monument to decrepitude, the nose of a wizard or a witch.

I drove along in silence through Hingham and into Weymouth, concentrating on a hazardous roadway made worse by a repair project. The rain was predictably turning to snow, and even in the warmth of the car I could tell the night was turning colder. In the mirror, I could see her peering and staring at me, and several times she seemed about to speak. At last she said, "You will want to know who I am."

I should have said, "No, I won't." But I doubt if that would have stopped her. I was resigned to my fate: my crazy derelict of a hitchhiker was about to tell me the story of her life. Bad luck always comes in threes: a late meeting, a terrible night, and a talkative old woman.

"Baboushka," she said. I had heard the word before, but never as a name. A babushka is a large headscarf, like the one she was wearing, tied in a knot under her chin. "You have heard of Baboushka?

"Well, I know what the word means. A covering for the head."

"Yes, in America that is babushka. But in Russia Baboushka means something else."

Russia! Was that the origin of her strange accent? I didn't ask her that; but I did ask, just out of curiosity, "And what does it mean in Russian?"

"It means two things. First, it means the mother of your mother or your father. How do you say it?"

"Grandmother?" I said.

"Yes, Grandmother. Baboushka means Grandmother." By now we were crossing the Fore River Bridge, and the wind threatened to make me lose control of the car. When we were safely past the useless rotary on the Quincy side of the bridge, I said "What else does it mean?" She didn't say anything, and seemed lost in a world of her own. I should have left well enough alone. But I said, "Babushka. What else does it mean?"

"Baboushka," she said, correcting my pronunciation. "Baboushka." Then she was silent again. I had my second chance to leave well enough alone. In fact, I thought she had fallen asleep. I had stopped at nearly all the traffic lights along Quincy's part of Route 3A when she finally spoke again.

"Baboushka. In America you do not know about Baboushka." I shrugged my shoulders. "Baboushka is old, old legend." Then she stared out the window at a house covered with Christmas lights. She was as distractible as a child, and didn't speak until I had made the left turn toward Wollaston Beach. Then she began to tell me the story of Baboushka.

"Longer ago than anyone but me can remember, there were wise men who lived in a land far to the east of a faraway sea. The wise men were called Magi, and they spent every night watching and tracking the stars in the sky, trying to foretell what would happen on earth.

"One December night, the wise men saw the brightest star that they had ever seen, and they said to each other, 'This star is a sign. Something astounding has happened. Or is happening. Or is about to happen.' What could it be? The end of the world? The birth of a warrior, or a wizard, or a king? There was only one way to find out. 'We will follow the star, and see where it takes us.'

"Wise men, eh? To go wandering off in the middle of winter to follow a star? Most of them knew better, and stayed home. But three of them just couldn't forget about the star they had seen. The decided to ride their camels across the winter desert to the place marked by the star.

"They were wise men, all right. But they were not so smart. It was 12 days' journey across the desert. They would starve to death before they got to wherever they were going."

I was enjoying her story by then. We were at the last traffic light before the Southeast Expressway, and the rain had turned to icy snow. Neponset Circle was as much a wasteland as the desert in her story. She waited until I had driven up the ramp and onto the nearly empty highway before she continued.

"And so, Baboushka said . . ."

"Wait a minute," I said, thinking I had missed part of the story. "Who is Baboushka?"

"Baboushka. Remember? This is the story of Baboushka. Baboushka is an old woman. She was the grandmother of the wisest of the wise men, and she was smart. She said, 'You will have to take food or you will starve in the desert. And water, or you will die of thirst.'

"So the Magi packed food enough for the journey, and water and wine to drink along the way. And they said, 'What a smart old lady is this Baboushka! She should go with us on our journey!'

"But Baboushka was suspicious. If they weren't smart enough to take food and drink along on a trip through the desert, how wise could they be? And what if they all got lost? And anyway, why did they want her to go? 'Please come with us,' the wise men said. 'We are following the star to see if a warrior or a wizard or a king has been born. Or perhaps the Lord of the earth has come. You must go with us.'

"But Baboushka didn't want to go. She liked her little home, and she liked to sit by the fire, and she was—yes, just a little bit lazy in her old age.

"The wisest of the Magi, her grandson Melchior, now came to beg her to go with them. 'Baboushka,' he said, 'if you stay home, who will cook the food you reminded us to take on the journey?'

"That almost convinced her to go, for Baboushka loved to cook. But then she saw the camels: great, tall, gangly beasts with humps that bumped and wobbled every time they took a step. And one of the camels saw her, and curled its ugly lower lip as if it were about to spit at her. So Baboushka said, 'No, and that's final.'

"She waved goodbye to the wise men, especially to Melchior, and watched the camels carry them out into the desert, toward whatever astounding thing they would find at the end of their journey.

"And then Baboushka began to regret her decision. She couldn't sleep at night for wondering where her grandson was, and what they had found. She couldn't cook during the day for wishing she had gone along with them.

"That went on for eleven days and eleven nights. Finally Baboushka could stand it no longer. On the twelfth day, she borrowed a camel and packed all her belongings, and also food and water enough for a long journey. She set off alone cross the desert, following the Magi who followed the star."

Now by that point in her story, it was all I could do to keep my car on the road. Thank goodness there wasn't much traffic, because the slush and ice and falling snow made it almost impossible to drive. But the story she was telling did have a certain charm to it, and when she stopped for another of her long silences, I said, "What a fine old story that is. I suppose she found them at last, and knelt with them in the straw of the stable as they gave their gold, and frankincense, and myrhh to the newborn Christ?"

From the back seat, the old woman peered at me in the rear view mirror. She said, "No. She never found them."

That surprised me so much that I nearly missed the Mass. Avenue exit, heading off to the left from the Expressway. Slipping and sliding finally to a stop at the Mass. Avenue traffic light, I said, "She never found them? She never got to Bethlehem?"

"Oh, she found the wise men," she said. "Baboushka met them in the desert, on their way back home again. They told her about the holy child who had been born in Bethlehem. But by then the star had faded from the sky, and when she got to Bethlehem, there was no child to be found. King Herod had massacred all of them. She heard a rumor that the holy child had escaped into Egypt, so she traveled on to Cairo. But when she got there, they had left again, for some village in Galilee. She lost her way, and ended up in Ephesus, but never found the child who was born in Bethlehem.

"She had started too late, and had looked in the wrong places, and though she searched for years and years, she never found the child.

"That is the story of Baboushka," the old woman said. She settled back into her seat as she added, "They say in the villages of Russia that every year Baboushka goes searching for the child. Baboushka never dies, and century after century she shows up, in Athens, in Moscow, in Jerusalem, in Los Angeles, . . . in Boston, looking for the child. Searching for the Lord who was born in Bethlehem."

I had reached the place where my meeting was to be held. I offered to take her anywhere in the city, but she refused. "No," she said. "Baboushka can walk."

Now her story began to make sense, in a crazy sort of way. The poor decrepit old lady thought that she was Baboushka! She was senile or mentally ill, I

Noise reduction

State Sen. William Golden, supports proposed regulations which would reduce airplane noise on the South Shore.

The regulations would include phasing in quieter jet airplanes to Logan Airport by Jan. 1, 1988, reducing the number of noisy aircraft in the night-time hours, and implementing stricter noise monitoring measures.

"By implementing the proposed regulations, Massport would not only take a positive step towards providing relief from excessive airplane noise, it would also end the process of shifting the noise problem from one area to another," Golden said.

Jerusalem Rd. outage

State Representative Mary Jeanette Murray (R), Third Plymouth District, has been conferring with Eastern Edison officials regarding the outage of street lights on Jerusalem Road in Cohasset.

Vice President of the electric company, Joseph Moses, informed Rep. Murray that a study of the problem has been underway to determine the extent of the damage on Jerusalem Road. The underground cable which controls the street lights has been damaged. The necessary work will be performed as soon as the study is completed.

Coast Guard budget

Congressman Gerry Studds reported negotiations between the House and Senate conferees on a catch-all federal spending bill for Fiscal Year 1986 resulted in some good news — and some bad news — for the budget of the U.S. Coast Guard.

The bad news is that the conferees agreed to reduce Coast Guard operating expenses to $1,752 billion — and some $33 million below the bare-boned level requested by the President and approved previously by the House.

The good news is that, in the process, the earlier efforts by the Senate to reduce the figure by a staggering $230 million were largely thwarted.

To further complicate matters, while the Congress has yet to give final approval to the Continuing Resolution, the bill which contains the Coast Guard funding, the president is threatening to veto it.

Chiropractic for HEALTH

by Dr. Kevin M. Neill, Chiropractic Physician

EARLY DETECTION

It is crucial for patients to pay attention to the early warning signals of pain. In instances where the spinal column is damaged, it may directly affect the nerves. Once the cause of the injury has been removed, white matter, the nerve cells which send messages to the brain, can regenerate. Gray matter, however, the nerve cells that relay commands from brain to the body, cannot. Pressure, which can come from a disc, a degenerating joint or a tumor, can cause permanent damage in a matter of months. Before this happens, however, excruciating pain generally sends the patient to the chiropractor for help. By paying attention to this pain and seeking the means to correct it, a patient can generally be helped. Early detection usually saves the nerves.

Pain is a signal. Such a warning should be carefully heeded. For the chiropractic exam that will address the source of your problem, not merely the symptom, we urge you to call the COHASSET CHIROPRACTIC OFFICE, 760 Chief Justice Cushing Hwy., Suite 12. In this fashion the source of aggravation can be attended to eliminating resultant pain and discomfort and providing the long term relief so desirable. For professional attention to your needs and well-being, we invite you to call today. Tel. 383-1211, 2114. Daily by appt.

Thoughts of Christmas

A CHRISTMAS POEM!

Christmas is a time for loving and giving. Christmas is a time for cheer. Christmas is always full of laughter, and Christmas is almost here! Christmas is full of lights all-a-glow , and they shine on forever on the new fallen snow. Although sometimes there is no Christmas cheer, I wish you a Merry Christmas and a Happy New Year!

Martha Curran,
Deer Hill School

"WHAT CHRISTMAS MEANS TO ME"

The main thing Christmas means to me is sharing, caring, and loving. Without these things Christmas wouldn't mean much, but it's Jesus' birthday. Some people don't believe in Santa Claus but I still believe in his spirit and that's what counts the most. Jesus' birthday is one of the most important days of my life. Now some people are Jewish, Baptist, and Seven Day Adventists but I think all believe in the Lord Jesus Christ. Some children are selfish but some are happy for what they have.

William Bruns,
Deer Hill School

THE CHRISTMAS STORY

Mary and Joseph laid near the sleeping child Jesus. They were in a stable with a few animals watching the small child. High up in the sky, one star shined above the rest, to let people know that their king is born. To this day, people celebrate Christmas in honor of Jesus Christ the Lord.

Rebecca Tosca,
Deer Hill School

Munching on goodies. Eating alot. Rosy red faces from playing alot. Rejoicing because you sat on Santa's lap telling and shouting with excitement.

Caroling, caroling, having fun. Rolling in the snow, eating freezing icicles. Singing, dancing, decorating trees. Listening to merry stories. Always joy ful, the spirit of giving.

THE TRUE MEANING OF CHRISTMAS

Christmas is a time of year where most people have this strange tingle inside of them for giving. They get a great joy out of seeing someone opening a gift that no one else could have given them. Christmas is also the time of year that Santa Claus is brought to life in the hearts of little children.

That's the true meaning of Christmas.

Brett Picton-Quinn,
Deer Hill School

THE TRUE MEANING OF CHRISTMAS

The true meaning of Christmas is not what many people think. We do not celebrate this occasion just for presents. We celebrate this special holiday because of the birth of Jesus.

We rejoice because of a special happening. Many people don't realize how special Christmas really is. Our Savior was born. Jesus is the symbol of sharing and giving.

This is just to tell how special Christmas really is and the true meaning of Christmas.

Jeff Stone,
Deer Hill School

Christmas to me means Christmas carolers knocking on doors, Christmas trees to put up and decorate, snow falling, sleigh bells ringing, people laughing, everyone in a rush to buy presents.

It also means giving as well as receiving. It means eating lots of candy canes and seeing all your relatives and that's what Christmas means to me.

Amy Gallant,
Deer Hill School

By Kennie Leahy

I love Jesus and Kristnas. I love presents and decorating the Christmas tree and, getting presents and, most of all I like when my moms family comes to my house.

WHAT CHRISTMAS MEANS TO ME

Christmas is a time for giving and a time for receiving. A time for thinking about days yet to come and a time to rejoice.

Christmas is the time of year when you unite joyfully with family and friends. A time for sitting around the hearth and singing Christmas carols and that's what Christmas is to me.

Marcie Hahn,
Deer Hill School

THE TRUE MEANING OF CHRISTMAS

Everyone thinks Christmas means hanging up stockings, eating big feasts, having lots of relatives visit, but most of all opening up lots of presents. But the true meaning of Christmas began long ago in Bethlehem...

A couple, Mary and Joseph, were looking for a place to give birth to Mary's child. There was no room anywhere, so on that night, Mary gave birth to a newborn son, Jesus.

And when we celebrate Christmas, we are celebrating Christ's birthday.

Julienne Quemere,
Deer Hill School

"CHRISTMAS IN MY EYES"

Christmas in my eyes is different you see than any other person thinks it may be. Christmas in my eyes is a time for giving, it is also a time to be glad your living. Christmas in my eyes means more to me than any ordinary Christmas tree.

Local legislators discuss train rehabilitations

Area legislators recently heard an encouraging planning and financial report on the progess of the South Shore Train Rehabilitation Project.

This $200 million project would re-establish commuter rail service from the South Shore and Southeastern Massachusetts to South Station in Boston.

Service would operate on three lines: Greenbush, Plymouth and Middleboro. The completed system would affect 23 cities and towns around the South Shore and three routes would cover 80 miles.

Infrequent freight service is currently provided on portions of all three lines.

The Caucus, composed of South Shore legislators and chaired by Sen. Edward P. Kirby (R-Whitman) and Representative Frank Hynes (D-Marshfield), heard James O'Leary, general manager of the MBTA and other officials who have been working on the Old Colony Rehabilitation Project, give an optimistic report regarding recent discussions with the Urban Mass Transit Administration.

O'Leary told legislators that discussions with officials of UMTA have led to an informal agreement over the need for a study of alternatives to full restoration.

UMTA, a federal agency which will be funding a majority of the cost of the rehabilitation project, has requested the state to study alternatives before they would make a commitment to the project.

State officials argued that alternatives had already been explored. Kirby and Hynes said that the agreement, although informal, was a major step in securing federal approval for the project. "I'm excited by this development," said Hynes. "It's apparent that Jim O'Leary and his staff are committed to seeing this project through and are willing to work behind the scenes with federal officials to insure the successful completion of this project."

Kirby added, "UMTA appears now to be leaning in our direction in their realization that the restoration of commuter rail service is the only practical alternative to the Southeast Expressway.

"However, federal officials still need to be convinced that this undertaking is an 'improvement project' rather than a 'major new initiation.' "

Officials of the MBTA also informed South Shore legislators that various preliminary reports, all vital to planning and construction of the project are underway.

Included in those reports is the Environmental Notification Form which will be submitted to the Massachusetts Environmental Protection Agency this month.

This document outlines the scope and nature of the project and is the initial step of the environmental review process. Next month, so-called "scoping" meetings will take place.

At these meetings, the parameters of the project will be discussed, as well as various options to full service on all three lines in the event full service cannot be restored.

At the request of Senator William Golden (D-Weymouth), MBTA officials agreed that if service on the Greenbush line could not be fully restored to Scituate, partial service would be restored at least to the Hingham area.

The MBTA had previously considered ending service in East Weymouth as an alternative.

The three rail lines will have to be upgraded to service trains which will attain speeds up to 60 mph. In addition, terminal facilities will have to be built and four to six stations will have to be constructed on each branch.

Story of Baboushka

thought. She will wander around on the street of Boston and freeze to death tonight or tomorrow. But I couldn't stop her from getting out of the car, and she was already heading down a dark alley off Gloucester Street before I could double park the car and run after her.

Somehow in the icy slush, with snow falling fast enough almost to blind me, I couldn't keep up with her. I finally saw her small dark form, her mammoth cape, and her blackish-blue babushka under a street-light on Dartmouth Street. I called out to her, but all I could say was the question I still had: "Do you think you are Baboushka?"

I hardly expected an answer, but her ancient voice came to me above the howling of the wind. "Yes," she said. "I am Baboushka." And then she said something even crazier. "So are you! And you and I must search everywhere and always for the child God gives to the world. Jerusalem, San Salvador, Beirut, Boston. . . . We must look into the eyes of every child of every nation for the love of God, and the light of hope, and the laughter of the little Lord who is born into the cold, dark world again and again and again. . . ."

Her words became a peal of lovely ancient laughter, fading at last into the noises of the night.

Well, that is the story of Baboushka. The meeting I attended was uneventful, and the trip back home was even more treacherous than the trip into town. But I had a lot to think about. And I've been thinking about it, in one way or another, ever since. "I am Baboushka, and so are you. . . ."

Michael Kasameyer
Grade 2, Mrs. Tewksbury

Christmas means to me loving and caring for other people that do not have any food.

Nate Caldwell,
Grade 2, Mrs. Tewksbury

Christmas to me is a time for thinking about others and you are thnakful for what you have. It's a time to be happy and to be nice.

Andrea Mercurio,
Grade 2, Mrs. Tewksbury

Christmas means Jesus' birthday celebration. Visiting people. Christmas caroling. Waking my parents to open my presents.

Megan Fahey,
Grade 2, Mrs. Tewksbury

Christmas means—thanking God for what we have. It is caring. It is loving. It is fun.

Caroline deLima,
Grade 2, Mrs. Tewksbury

What Christmas means to me is thanking God, loving, caring, giving, having fun, being together, sharing.

Erin E. Devine
Grade 2, Mrs. Tewksbury

I think of Christmas when the family gets together. I also think of Jesus' birthday.

Caitlin Connolly,
Grade 2, Mrs. Tewksbury

I love giving presents to people like mom and dad when it is Christmas.

THE TRUE MEANING OF CHRISTMAS

Christmas means more than opening presents. It means thanking God for bringing us Jesus our Saviour.

Ryan Sawchuk,
Grade 2, Mrs. Collins

Dear Santa,
I have been good this year. What would you like for Christmas? Could you bring me a skateboard? Q burt?

Brian T.,
Grade 2, Mrs. Clark

Dear Santa,
Well I've been doing good in school and math. I'm excited about Christmas. Well I've been wanting a kitten, white and black.

Amie T.,
Grade 2, Mrs. Clark

Dear Santa,
I would like some Christmas records because I've been helping my mother with surprises.

Jennifer Cullivan,
Grade 2, Mrs. Clark

CHRISTMAS IS SPECIAL

My Christmas tree smells good. I give my brothers and my sister presents. It makes me feel good.

Greg Stevens,
Grade 2, Mrs. Collins

I like Christmas because the houses are decorated. The lights are bright. All the families get together to celebrate Jesus' birthday.

Melissa Weier,
Grade 2, Mrs. Collins

SANTA IS VERY JOLLY

Santa is very special to me and so is God. Christmas is a jolly time! Christmas is the spirit of giving.

Brett MacQuarrie,

State stands to lose solar jobs

The Massachusetts Residential Solar Tax Credit is due to expire at midnight on Dec. 31, 1985. If this tax credit is not extended, Massachusetts stands to lose over 1,000 solar related jobs and millions of solar related dollars.

Solar energy is a logical, economical alternative energy source for heating the hot water in our homes. Unlike many traditional forms of energy, solar is readily available to anyone with access to sunshine, and it is economically "clean." Estimates have shown that the installation of a solar domestic hot water system may save the homeowner $300 a year in fuel bills.

Ever since 1979, Massachusetts residents who purchase solar energy systems for their homes have been able to deduct a substantial portion of the cost of that system from their tax bills. Through a federal tax incentive — which is also due to expire on Dec. 31, 1985 — taxpayers can deduct 40 percent of the cost of a solar system installed on their principal residence, up to a maximum credit of $4,000. After the federal tax credit is subtracted, Massachusetts taxpayers can claim an additional 35 percent state tax credit on the remaining cost of the solar energy system, up to a maximum of $1,000.

These tax credits helped to make solar energy an affordable alternative energy source for the Commonwealth's residents, and have encouraged the development of a strong solar energy industry. In addition, the use of solar energy systems have contributed to the Commonwealth's reduction of energy use from expensive, imported fossil fuels.

Several pieces of legislation are now pending in the Massachusetts State Senate that would extend the existing state tax credit. One bill — S2336 — would extend the credit for two years. This legislation has the support of the Dukakis administration's Executive Office of Energy Resources and the Legislature's Joint Committee on Energy.

Currently, more than 87 percent of all Massachusetts energy consumed is imported from outside the commonwealth, amounting to a net monetary loss of $7.9 billion a year from the state's economy and a reduction in the disposable income of Massachusetts families. With the use of solar energy systems already in place, Massachusetts residents could bring $9 million back into their economy each year.

The state's Department of Revenue has projected that the existing residential solar credit will cost the Commonwealth $4.6 million in fiscal year 1986. Therefore, the cumulative annual savings in displaced fuel costs is already almost double the cost to the Commonwealth for the tax credit.

The fate of the Massachusetts solar energy tax credit is now in the hands of the state legislature. It is imperative to the health of our growing economy, as well as to the future of solar energy in Massachusetts, that this tax credit be extended.

Support group meets

A support group for incest victims will hold its first meeting Thursday, Jan. 2 at the South Shore Women's Center, Plymouth, from 7:30 to 9 p.m.

This will be a drop-in discussion group open to adult women over the age of 18 who were incest victims. Meetings will be held the first Thursday of each month.

Cohasset Worship . . .

First Parish

Christmas Eve Candlelight Service - Dec. 24 at 8 p.m. Come and bring your family and neighbors to share in this festive service of celebration. Music for meditation begins at 7:30 p.m.

Christmas Concert - An overflow crowd attended our Christmas Concert to hear and join in another beautiful musical event. Over $1,800 was raised for the benefit of Rosie's Place, a wonderful Christmas gift to the homeless from the First Parish and members of the community.

Newsletter - Next week's newsletter will cover both Sunday, Dec. 29 and Sunday, Jan. 5. Be sure to have your notices in by 9 a.m. Monday, Dec. 23.

Parish committee meeting - Monday, Dec. 30 at 7:45 p.m. in the livingroom.

Second Congregational

Christmas Eve services - Once again this year, two services of worship will enable our church family to celebrate the birth of the Lord.

Family Christmas Eve Service - at 7 p.m. This quiet service, planned especially for families with young children, will include a new Christmas story, "Engelbert Elf and the Christmas Gifts."

Christmas Eve Candlelight Communion - will begin at 11 p.m. Our church practices open Communion, and invites everyone to participate in the Sacrament. Feel free to invite friends and neighbors to this observance of Christmas.

No mailing next week - The newsletter will not be published next week. Please note the following:

Sunday, Dec. 29 - Our 'second Christmas' will be observed with more Christmas carols and anthems. Children are welcome to attend church with their families, but no Church School classes will be held.

Merry Christmas to all - from the church staff: John, Ellen, Muriel, Marsha and Frank.

St. Stephen's

Christmas Worship - The services Christmas Eve will include an early service at 5 p.m. Children will process with animals and figures to the creche. There will be a children's sermon and baptism of Drew Massa-Williams.

At 9 p.m., there will be a collation in the Bartow Room. This will be a time of fellowship for all. At 10:30 a.m., there will be a concert of Christmas music by organ and brass ensemble. At 11 p.m. will be the festal celebration of Holy Eucharist which will bring us into Christmas Day.

On Christmas Day itself there will be a service of Holy Eucharist celebrated at 9:30 a.m.

Rehearsal church school pageant - Children wishing to participate in the Church School Epiphany will hold their first rehearsal Sunday, Dec. 29 at 2 p.m. Other rehearsals will take place Jan. 5 at 2 p.m. and Saturday, Jan. 11 at 2 p.m.

The actual Epiphany pageant or Feast of Lights will take place Sunday, Jan. 12 at 10 a.m. in the context of our Sunday morning worship. The pageant portrays the visit of the three wise men to behold the Christ child.

Reminder for college-age students - There will be two day-long classes for college students wishing to be confirmed. They will be held from 9 a.m. to 2 p.m. Monday, Dec. 30 and Friday, Jan. 3. Students wishing to attend these classes should notify the Rector by Dec. 27.

Outreach meeting - At our Dec. 15 meeting, we agreed to continue our policy of open meetings to which all interested parishioners are invited to express their concerns, and to become members of the ongoing committee, which is responsible for major decisions. The primary purpose of our committee is to involve individuals in giving of themselves in service to those less fortunate. Several different opportunities for personal involvement will again be offered.

Since it takes at least three yeats to establish a mission congregation, it was agreed to continue our commitment to the Hull Mission Project for another two years. In relation to this and the Quincy Crisis Center programs we invite Esther Sanger and Diane Edson back early in 1986 to present progress reports to the parish.

The committee also intends to be responsible for contributing to emergency/disaster situations both with outreach funds and by recommending appropriate organizations through which individuals can make personal contributions.

The discussion will continue at our next meeting Jan. 19.

From the Garden

Joan Pinkham

Only a true New Englander accustomed to the vagaries of our weather could appreciate the sights our gardens offered until last week's belated frost. Visitors to our seaside towns might think we were a little addled seeing one yard bedecked with Christmas lights the day after Thanksgiving, while across the way Indian corn, a big orange pumpkin and a bright bed of marigolds were still celebrating the fall season.

Marge Trout's patient lucy was still in bloom, Connie Lambert's Easter Lily came up a second time, and a petunia poked up through the oak leaves in Flora Lawrence's garden. Green grass, a few pleasure boats still at their moorings and a purple bed of pansies lulled one into thinking it might be spring.

It takes a certain ratio of daylight to dark for buds to blossom, which may explain why pink geraniums from our garden made a novel Thanksgiving centerpiece. Even though it was pretty combined with ivy, in no way could it compare to Ann Gardner's magnificant bowl of roses she picked from their 75 bushes still blooming the day of a luncheon one day in late November.

Rob Coleman, a botanist, says that through our late winter has rhododendron and azaleas in bud, the trees and shrubs will not be harmed.

The autumnal season begins in September wearing away at the look of the landscape until about the only thing that brightens the scene after our frost is the birds. It's fun to watch the nuthatch as they spend much of their lives upside down, dripping along tree trunks at half-inch hitches.

The Floyd Carltons had their first grosbeaks last week, but most of us are wondering where the cardinals are hiding. In our neighborhood a multitude of crows are roosting, and I was surprised to read that they are highly intelligent birds, so smart that they totally ignore scarecrows.

What with these gloomy-looking birds, greedy blue jays and squirrels, all but the chickadees seem to boycott our yard. We still hang crusts and suet from our Christmas tree branches when the holiday is over and long ago, Peggy Beals suggested this "birdwatcher pie," saying it's worth repeating at this time every year.

It goes like this: Put a pie pan on kitchen counter and scrape into it all crumbs, bits of meat or vegetable, food scraps and crusts. As you cook bacon, hamburgers, etc., drain fats into pan and when it's filled, chill, remove from pan and serve to birds.

* * *

Your holiday plant may look tasty to little kids, but munching leaves, berries or flowers might cause severe stomach upsets. Plants tempting to kids include poinsettia, mistletoe, holly berries, Jerusalem cheery and amaryllis. Keep them out of reach.

Not too many of us knew what a tussy-mussy was until Darlene Beauvais explained that the Pilgrims at Plimoth Plantation, where she is the herbalist, carried these little nosegays of fragrant herbs to purify the air and keep pestilence away.

We learned a lot from this clever lady. For instance, indoor herbs you can grow on a sunny windowsill now include aloe, wonderful for burns; catnip for your pet cat; rosemary for flavoring chicken, stews and meats. Pot a sprig of rosemary and before long, you'll have to snip away at it to see out the window.

Parsley and chives grow well indoors and informer days, women applied a dillweed poultice to reduce swelling, and moldy bread to heal an open sore. Any 17th century housewife always had garlands of onions hanging in her kitchen, not only for soup; they kept bugs out of her garden and the onion's cousin, garlic, was even more powerful. A necklace of garlic cloves was thought to protect the wearer from disease. Perhaps it was only because it kept other people so far away that their germs couldn't reach them.

Just think — winter has yet to begin. The winter solstice begins on the 21st, and as Ethel Rich happily pointed out — the days start getting longer then. The moon of cold and long nights marks the low point in gardening for most of us, and so I asked some of our garden club members if they've started their Christmas decorations.

Hilma Alger of the Hanover Garden Club said the group had been busy decorating the historic Stetson House in the Nutcracker theme for the club's open house.

One of Hilma's projects was a mantel wreath made of Queen Anne's lace picked late in the fall, spray-painted white and sprinkled with diamond dust arranged on a wreath covered in dark blue velvet, with a background of greens.

The Hingham Garden Club has been so busy with their three holiday projects, you wonder how they find time to decorate their own homes. Members have sold 300 wreaths to local merchants, filled village window boxes with greens and given workshops at the Hersey House, a former mansion which now serves as a drop-in center for senior citizens. They in turn treated their instructors to luncheon.

Cinda Henry suggested a simple, but pretty way of decorating a mantel with a string of lights of white-frosted birds against a carpet of greens and baby's breath, whith low white candles.

Mrs. Gordon Lang, president of the Weymouth Garden Club, says that after their workshop on window hangings of dried grasses, she hopes to find time to gather once again a variety of greens from the woods. She plans to make wreathes for their 10 front windows and door with greens decorated with velvet ribbons to match the outside trim.

Plants are always pleasing holiday gifts and you can make some gifts yourself. Bird cages make wonderful hanging containers for pots of ivy and other vines. Heavy glass goblets from any housewares department will hold small pots of African violets.

A chip-and-dip set will hold a fern in the small bowl and several ivies in the larger one. Terrariums are easy to make, and pine cones are a favorite decorating material, for they can be sprayed, glittered, covered with shiny beads, shells or tiny birds.

Wreaths made with cones are handsome and may be used year after year if stored in a plastic bag. The wreath may be used as a table centerpiece, placing a candle in the center. Or it can be hung over the fireplace or at the door.

* * *

A simple decoration is a kissing ring, using a sprig of mistletoe. Take two embroidery hoops. Cover with ribbon. Insert one hoop at right angles inside the other, forming a cross. Wire hoops together at top and bottom meeting points and wire mistletoe to the top point. Place bow on top and make a ribbon loop for hanging.

What is Christmas without a poinsettia? They last on and on with a little TLC and cool temperatures. When the soil feels dry to the touch, water with tepid water, discarding any water left in the dish. Our poinsettias were first discovered in the 16th century in Mexico by a group of Franciscan monks who used them in a Christmas fiesta.
